TREASURY

Asset Protection Scheme/Asset Protection Agency

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): In my statement to the House, 30 November, I said that I would provide Parliament with full details of the operation of the Asset Protection Scheme by 7 December. I am today placing copies of the legal agreements that have been signed with the Royal Bank of Scotland in the Libraries of both Houses, with redactions only in so far as they are necessary to protect commercial interests. Copies of these agreements will also be placed on HM Treasury's website.

I am placing information on the assets covered by the scheme, drawn from HM Treasury due diligence, into the Libraries of both Houses. This information will also be placed on HM Treasury's website.

In addition, I am today announcing the launch of the Asset Protection Agency (APA), an Executive Agency of HM Treasury. This follows the announcement on 25 September 2009 regarding the appointment of Stephan Wilcke as Chief Executive Officer of the APA.

The APA's role will be to manage the Asset Protection Scheme on behalf of HM Treasury, ensuring compliance with the scheme rules by the participating financial institution.

The overarching objectives of the APA are to run the scheme effectively and to ensure the participant maximises the economic value of the protected assets. Performance targets will be based on provision of timely information, identification of risks, and delivery of remedial action.

The CEO reports to Treasury Ministers and will provide them with any information needed in the course of parliamentary business. The APA will prepare and publish an annual report and accounts each year which will be laid before Parliament.

Treasury Ministers are accountable to Parliament for the work of the APA.

Further information on the role of the APA and relationship with HM Treasury is set out in the APA framework document, copies of which have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. The document is also accessible via the HM Treasury website: www.hm-treasury.gov.uk

"Putting the Frontline First"

The Chief Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Liam Byrne): Today I am publishing a command paper entitled "Putting the Frontline First". The document is an action plan for delivering better public services for lower cost. The plan has three central actions: driving up public service standards to strengthen the role of citizens and civic society, providing new freedoms for frontline services by recasting the relationship between the centre and the front line, and streamlining the centre of Government for sharper delivery.

Copies of the document have been deposited in the Libraries of both Houses.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Cluster Munitions Production (Financing)

The Minister for Europe (Chris Bryant): In December 2008, the UK was among the first signatories to the Convention on Cluster Munitions. It is recognised as one of the most significant disarmament treaties of recent years, prohibiting the use, development, production, stockpiling and transfer of cluster munitions.

To enable the UK to proceed with ratification, the Government have introduced the Cluster Munitions (Prohibitions) Bill in this Parliament. The Bill would legislate for the treaty's prohibitions, establishing criminal offences and penalties for a range of banned actions; notably the use, production or transfer of cluster munitions on UK territory or by UK nationals.

In response to the interest of civil society and parliamentarians, I would like to set out the Government's understanding of how the Bill's prohibitions apply to the financing of cluster munitions production. Under the current provisions of the Bill, which have been modelled upon the definitions and requirements of the convention, the direct financing of cluster munitions would be prohibited. The provision of funds directly contributing to the manufacture of these weapons would therefore become illegal.

The convention does not prohibit so-called indirect financing of cluster munitions. Indirect financing is therefore not within the scope of the Bill's provisions. As such, it would not become illegal to provide funds generally to companies that manufacture a range of goods, including cluster munitions.

However, aware of the humanitarian suffering caused by cluster munitions and the threat they pose to development in post-conflict areas, the Government are keen to see a complete end to cluster munitions. Due to the complex nature of indirect financing, there is a need for thorough consultation to consider the impact of any measures, and to ensure that we develop the most appropriate and effective measures to end indirect financing.

The Government intend to work with the financial sector, non-governmental organisations and other interested parties, to promote a voluntary code of conduct to prevent indirect financing, and if necessary would use their right to initiate legislation. We shall also review public investment guidelines to the same end.

International War Crimes Tribunal for Former Yugoslavia (Serbia)

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): The International War Crimes Tribunal for Former Yugoslavia (ICTY) Chief Prosecutor, Serge Brammertz, delivered his latest report on the ICTY completion strategy to the UN Security Council on 3 December. One of his key judgments was his very positive assessment of Serbia's co-operation with the ICTY. The Government warmly welcome this assessment.

The Government have long been among the strongest supporters of the ICTY, and of a clear policy of conditionality underpinning EU integration. It is important that all countries wishing to join the EU show their commitment to the rule of law and fully accept their responsibility to deal with the past, in particular by ensuring that all those indicted for the most serious of crimes face justice. EU member states have made it consistently clear that achieving and maintaining full co-operation with the ICTY is essential for progress towards EU membership.

We have had many discussions with the Serbian authorities about this over recent years. We have not been slow, when we thought they were not doing enough, to make our views known.

When the new Serbian Government took office last year, under President Tadic's leadership, we were encouraged by their public commitment to do everything necessary to conclude this process successfully. We have maintained close contact since then with those responsible for the investigations.

I have previously made clear to this House that our assessment of full co-operation would be based on committed and sustained activity from the Serbian Government, demonstrating 100 per cent. effort and political will in co-operating with ICTY. That co-operation should cover efforts in a wide range of areas including: tackling support networks; meeting requests for documents; allowing access to archives; ensuring protection of witnesses; as well as in locating and transferring the remaining indictees. The Government's assessment is that prosecutor Brammertz's report shows this to be the case.

We congratulate the Serbian authorities on this significant achievement. We are discussing with our EU partners how the EU should recognise this. We will remain in close touch with the authorities in Serbia to underline the importance of maintaining this sustained effort, including to track down and deliver the two remaining ICTY indictees, Ratko Mladic and Goran Hadzic.

General Affairs Council and Foreign Affairs Council

The Minister for Europe (Chris Bryant): The General Affairs Council (GAC) and Foreign Affairs Council (FAC) have replaced the General Affairs and External Relations Council (GAERC) under the provisions of the Lisbon treaty, which came into force on 1 December 2009. The GAC and FAC will be held on 7 and 8 December in Brussels. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary will represent the UK.

The agenda items are as follows:

GENERAL AFFAIRS COUNCIL

Preparation of the 10 and 11 December European Council

Ministers will discuss the presidency's draft agenda for the December European Council. We welcome the presidency's continued focus on the economic and financial situation. We expect the European Council to take stock of the economic climate. It will review the measures necessary to return the EU economy to sustainable growth, including through ensuring the development of co-ordinated exit strategies from the economic stimuli taken forward under the European economic recovery plan. In this context, the European Council will also begin discussions on the future of the Lisbon strategy for jobs and growth. We also expect it to reach agreement on the Commission's proposals for financial supervision and regulation. The European Council will also review the implementation of the EU sustainable development strategy and adopt the EU's new work programme (the "Stockholm programme") setting out priorities for EU co-operation in justice and home affairs from 2010 to 2014.

On external relations, we expect the December European Council to take stock of Iran's response to the offer of negotiations on their nuclear programme and set out a clear, appropriate way forward in line with the dual track strategy of engagement and pressure.

Enlargement

The General Affairs Council will take stock of progress on enlargement and the stabilisation and association process in the Western Balkans, informed by the Commission Communication of 14 October, which set out an enlargement strategy and progress reports for candidates and potential candidates. We believe the Commission Communication to be a fair and balanced assessment. We expect the Council to agree conclusions that reconfirm consensus support for enlargement and recognition that the accession process gives strong encouragement to political and economic reform in the enlargement countries and reinforces peace, democracy and stability in Europe. We also expect the Council to recognise that enlargement countries have been affected, to different degrees, by the global economic recession and reconfirm its commitment to provide support including through the instrument for pre-accession (IPA). We would support conclusions language emphasising that the rule of law, in particular the fight against corruption and organised crime, and the need to build professional civil services remain major challenges that the enlargement countries need to address at an early stage. We also support the Commission's view that bilateral disputes should not be allowed to hold up the accession process.

We expect the Council to review progress in the accession negotiations for Turkey and Croatia. We will support the Council's recognition of the key role Turkey plays in regional security, energy supply, and the promotion of dialogue between civilisations and recent initiatives including addressing the Kurdish issue. However, we will share the Council's disappointment that Turkey has not yet fulfilled its obligation to open its ports to trade with Cyprus under the additional protocol to the association agreement and agree that further efforts are needed to accelerate the pace of Turkey's accession negotiations.

We will support the Council in commending Croatia for progress made but stressing that further efforts are needed to meet accession criteria in order to be able to conclude negotiations in 2010. We will support the Council to reiterate that full cooperation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia remains essential in line with the negotiating framework. We also expect the Council to note that Iceland's application for EU membership is currently being assessed by the Commission. We expect the Council to make a decision on opening negotiations early in 2010 on the basis of the Commission's opinion.

EU Disaster Management

Ministers will discuss the future of civil protection under the arrangements introduced by the Lisbon treaty. We expect the December European Council to focus on the possibilities afforded by both the solidarity clause and the civil protection article to enable improved disaster management in the EU. The European Council will adopt the Stockholm programme, which stresses the need for an integrated approach to disaster management including prevention, preparedness and response; and foresees further efforts to strengthen and improve the Community's civil protection instruments. We also expect the European Council to adopt conclusions on a Community framework for disaster prevention, which will set out priorities for efforts to reduce vulnerability to catastrophes and their consequences and for which the Government have expressed support.

The Government recognise the primary role of national responsibility in disaster management while acknowledging the importance of solidarity among member states when disasters overwhelm national capabilities.

Trio Programme of the Spanish, Belgian and Hungarian Presidencies

The next trio presidency of the EU will begin on 1 January 2010 with Spain, followed by Belgium and Hungary. Under the Lisbon treaty, they will look to build a stronger, more coherent EU that more effectively works for its citizens and addresses their concerns. Their focus will be on the reinforcement of the social agenda, with strong European leadership in key areas such as recovery from the financial and economic crisis, climate change and energy security.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS COUNCIL

Western Balkans

We expect discussion to focus on Bosnia and Herzegovina (BiH). Ministers are likely to consider further the future of the EU's military presence (EUFOR Operation Althea) and may receive an update from the presidency on the ongoing EU/US initiative to unblock progress on reforms. The Government believe that EUFOR makes a vital contribution to stability and security in BiH and should therefore only be reconfigured when the time is right. The Government support the EU/US initiative and believe that the conditionality set by the Peace Implementation Council (PIC) must be met before the Office of the High Representative can close and we move to an EU-led presence in BiH.

Ministers may discuss progress in Serbia, following a report to the UN Security Council on 3 December by the Chief Prosecutor for the International Criminal Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia (ICTY). If this report is sufficiently positive, Ministers may consider whether it is possible to implement Serbia's interim agreement. The Government support implementation of Serbia's interim agreement, on the basis of the significantly improved co-operation with ICTY that Serbia has already demonstrated.

We also expect Ministers to discuss progress by the Western Balkans countries towards eventual EU membership. The Government support the assessments made by the European Commission in its Communication of 14 October and believe that Council conclusions should reaffirm support for the European perspective of the Western Balkan countries. We believe that the countries of the region should make progress towards joining the EU on the basis of their progress in meeting the fair and rigorous conditions for membership. In particular, we support the Commission's recent recommendation for Macedonia to open accession negotiations and believe that conclusions should ensure that the country continues to move forward in the enlargement process. The Government also want to see conclusions that demonstrate the EU's ongoing commitment to Kosovo's economic and political development.

Iran

Ministers will discuss recent developments and consider, in preparation for the December European Council, whether efforts to engage with Iran have shown any signs of progress. Ministers may also consider next steps in the context of the dual track policy, in order to persuade Iran to enter into meaningful negotiations on the nuclear issue. They will also focus on the human rights situation inside Iran.

Middle East Peace Process

Ministers will discuss developments in the Middle East, including the Israeli announcement of a limited 10-month moratorium on settlement building in the West Bank. The presidency plans conclusions that are likely to reaffirm the EU's commitment to a two state solution and support of US efforts. The UK will be arguing for the EU to make clear its position on the importance of a two-state solution.

Burma

Ministers may discuss the latest developments and consider the EU's next steps. The military Government have made no tangible progress towards meeting the long-standing demands of the international community, including the release of Aung San Suu Kyi and all political prisoners and the start of a genuine process of dialogue and national reconciliation. The prospect of elections in 2010 gives such discussion added urgency.

HEALTH

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Gillian Merron): The Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council met on 30 November and 1 December in Brussels. The Health and Consumer Affairs part of the Council was taken on 1 December. I represented the UK.

At the meeting, the Council was unable to reach agreement on the application of patients' rights in the cross-border healthcare directive. This issue will be discussed further under the Spanish presidency.

Ministers received a progress report from the European Commission and the European Centre for Disease Control. There was also a discussion on lessons learnt from the EU level response to the H1N1 pandemic.

A Council recommendation on smoke-free environments and Council conclusions on alcohol and health, e-Health and innovative incentives for effective antibiotics were adopted. The presidency also provided an update on progress of the proposals in the pharmaceutical package.

New Horizons: A Shared Vision for Mental Health

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Phil Hope): Today I am publishing "New Horizons: a shared vision for mental health". Mental health care in England has been transformed since the launch in 1999 of the national service framework for mental health. Significant and sustained increases in investment, an expansion of the workforce and a shift from hospital care to treatment in the community mean that our services are now recognised and admired internationally. It is time now to build on those achievements.

New Horizons represents an innovative dual approach: continued improvement to mental health services in England, coupled with ambitious cross-Government action for promoting public mental health and well-being. It is the product of close collaboration between Government Departments and with a coalition of leading stakeholders from local government, the professions and the third sector. It has also been the subject of extensive public consultation.

The guiding values of New Horizons, endorsed by the consultation response, are equality and justice; helping people to fulfil their potential and control their lives; and valuing relationships. It has six key themes:

(i) preventing mental ill health and promoting good mental health;

(ii) intervening early;

(iii) tackling stigma;

(iv) strengthening transitions between mental health services;

(v) personalising care; and

(vi) achieving value for money.

Its publication marks the beginning of a process, not the end. New Horizons provides a platform for action across Government in the coming months and years. We are already putting this approach into action with the publication today of a suite of documents relating to the issue of mental health and employment. They are "Working our way to better mental health: a framework for action, alongside Work, Recovery and Inclusion" and "Realising ambitions: better employment support for people with a mental health condition". These are described more fully in the written ministerial statement made today by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions.

"New Horizons: a shared vision for mental health" has been placed in the Library and copies are available for hon. Members from the Vote Office.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council

The Minister for Pensions and the Ageing Society (Angela Eagle): The Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council was held on 30 November and 1 December 2009 in Brussels. I represented the United Kingdom on all employment and social policy items on 30 November, except for the intervention on gender equality: strengthening growth and employment, where the United Kingdom was represented by my right hon. Friend, the Leader of the House of Commons, Lord Privy Seal and Minister for Women and Equality. Health business was taken on 1 December 2009.

The first discussion and main item of the agenda was the Council policy debate on recovering from the financial crisis and preparing for the post-2010 Lisbon strategy. The presidency stressed that work was the best way out of social exclusion and also promoted health and wealth. I intervened to note the domestic measures taken by the UK to tackle the crisis, including the focus on minimising youth unemployment and keeping people close to the labour market, extra staff and funding for Jobcentre Plus and help for lone parents. I also underlined the need to learn from the mistakes of previous recessions, when the early retirement or placing on disability benefits of workers created significant long-term employment issues.

The second policy debate of the meeting was on gender equality, strengthening growth and employment. The presidency stressed the importance of equality issues being fully considered both in short-term responses to the recession and as part of the longer-term post-Lisbon strategy. For the UK, my right hon. Friend the Minister for Women and Equality, stressed the importance of recognising skills of men and women alike in the workplace, and believed that gender should be at the heart of the work of the EU, not just in terms of growth and employment policy but across the board. The Minister called for more joint working by women Ministers in order to put forward the gender equality agenda and looked ahead to the EU playing a strong role in the creation of the UN's new 'Gender Entity'.

The Council adopted Council conclusions on: promoting Labour market inclusion—recovering from the crisis and preparing for the post-2010 Lisbon strategy; healthy and dignified ageing; gender equality—strengthening growth and employment; and on the follow-up of the implementation by the member states and the EU institutions of the Beijing platform of action. The Council similarly endorsed Employment Committee and Social Protection Committee Opinions on the post-2010 Lisbon agenda.

Political agreement was reached unanimously by the Council on the revised social partner framework agreement on parental leave, and the ILO's Work in Fishing Convention, after the Commission circulated a minute statement clarifying that member states do not need to ratify this convention.

After some debate, the Council achieved political agreement on the directive on equal treatment of the self-employed and the directive was adopted by qualified majority. Hungary, Germany and the UK abstained: Hungary because of the legal base, the UK because of concerns that some aspects of the directive were not in line with the general principle that member states should decide how best to provide social protection, and Germany on both counts. The directive will now return to the European Parliament with a view to achieving a Second Reading agreement.

Finally, the Council also adopted without comment a progress report on implementing equal treatment between persons irrespective of religion or belief, disability, age or sexual orientation (the anti-discrimination directive).

Under other business, the presidency and the Czech delegation summarised several recent conferences and the Spanish delegation outlined the central themes of their presidency, noting that job creation and social cohesion would be among them.

There was no formal discussion over lunch.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Mental Health and Employment

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Yvette Cooper): Today, the Secretary of State for Health and I are announcing a number of publications on the subject of mental ill health and employment.

Mental ill health presents a major challenge to our society. As well as the devastating impact it can have on individuals and their families, mental ill health costs the economy between £30 billion and £40 billion through lost production, sick pay, NHS treatment and unemployment. It is now also the most common reason for claiming health-related benefits.

The Government are determined to support individuals and families and tackle these costs. Improving mental health at work and boosting the employment chances of people with mental health conditions are central to our approach. Taking part in well-managed work can help to develop people's mental health, resilience and well-being. We must ensure that more workplaces support their employees to do this and provide joined-up services to help people with mental health conditions to find and stay in employment.

Our first publication, "Working Our Way to Better Mental Health: a Framework for Action" is the first mental health and employment strategy for the whole of Great Britain. It sets out a practical approach to achieving the twin aims of increasing well-being at work for everyone and improving employment outcomes for people with mental health conditions. It has been developed with the assistance of a group of independent experts, including mental health specialists, senior academics and representatives from business and third sector organisations, chaired by Dame Carol Black, the National Director for Health and Work. The document was developed in partnership with the devolved Administrations in Scotland and Wales.

We are also publishing today an independent review commissioned by DWP and led by Dr. Rachel Perkins of South-West London and St. George's Mental Health Trust. Her review, "Realising Ambitions: Better employment support for people with a mental health condition", describes how we can strengthen employment, health and wider state support to help people with mental conditions who are out of work.

Our third publication, "Work Recovery and Inclusion" is a cross-Government delivery plan for England setting out a high-level vision and series of commitments to support those people in contact with secondary mental health services into work. It forms part of the UK Government response to the Perkins review.

Acting on employment and mental health must be a long-term commitment. These publications support the objectives of "New Horizons: a shared vision for mental health" in England that is also published today. Taken together, our ambitions will influence future policy development across Governments and throughout the wider public sector, and bring about changes in behaviour in organisations and individuals. In so doing, they signal a long-term commitment to joint working between Government and their partners.

Copies of all the documents will be available later today in the Vote Office.

BUSINESS, INNOVATION AND SKILLS

Financial Support (Students)

The Minister for Higher Education and Intellectual Property (Mr. David Lammy): This year Government are spending more than £5 billion on student support in England, underpinning our commitment that finance should not be a barrier to higher education. The number of undergraduate entrants to higher education has increased by 19 per cent. since 1997, and the 20 most deprived constituencies have shown higher than average growth in student numbers over that period.

Students need a simple and straightforward application service when they are applying for student support. As I said to the House on 14 October, this year's problems have had an unacceptable effect on individual students and their families. Even when they have not led to financial hardship, they have undoubtedly caused worry and frustration. It is clear that there were serious lapses in the customer service provided by the Student Loans Company (SLC).

At the beginning of September I became aware that, in this first year of operating the new service, there were delays in processing, customers were unable to speak to the company, and some documentary evidence could not be traced. I ordered that a number of actions be undertaken to enable the company to accelerate the processing of applications and to increase the number of calls being answered.

These issues are why, together with the recently appointed chair of the Student Loans Company, I commissioned Professor Sir Deian Hopkin to provide external scrutiny to the review of lessons to be learned from this year's processing problems. Professor Sir Hopkin has now provided his report and I am very grateful to him for carrying out his work so swiftly.

While at the time of this statement the Student Loans Company has paid 801,000 students, it is clear that this year the service has fallen short of expectations. The report says that:

> "While some aspects of the programme have been realised and some progress made on others, there has been a conspicuous failure in key areas of its delivery which has had a far-reaching impact on applicants and stakeholders".

The Department accepts in full all the recommendations in Professor Sir Hopkin's report and, as I would expect, the board of the Student Loans Company has also accepted the recommendations in their entirety.

I am now clear that decisive action is required to change the service and that the key to this is strengthening the leadership of the company and ensuring that the customer is at the heart of everything the company does. The chair of the Student Loans Company has confirmed that the senior management team of the company will be strengthened and reorganised.

I expect the chair to ensure that the company transforms how it communicates with its customers so that they know what to expect from the service, what is expected of them, and that risk management, contingency planning and staff training are all significantly improved.

I have asked my officials to consider the best practice in other public sector organisations to enable us to better challenge and scrutinise the company's performance. But there must be no confusion about roles: it is for the Student Loans Company board to hold the executive to account and to ensure it has the capacity and capability to deliver the service.

Key to moving forward and improving the service next year is early engagement with customers and stakeholders in the higher education sector. I have therefore asked the company to establish a stakeholder forum which will include representation from the National Union of Students, Higher Education Institutions and UCAS. This will help the company to develop Student Finance England, including implementation of the recommendations in Professor Sir Hopkin's report and should mean, with stakeholders more closely involved in the company, that many of the issues experienced this year can be identified earlier and swift action be taken to avoid them in the future.

We have invested significantly in a substantial programme of improvements which are designed to transform the way the student support service works for customers. Over the next few years, the centralised service—which takes over from applications to local authorities where the level of service was variable—will allow students to apply online; they will no longer need to send in their passports to verify their identity; and their sponsors will not need to send paper evidence of family income.

I acknowledge that some of the improvements will take time to implement, but I have received assurance from the chair that improvements in the way the service is managed will be made quickly. As the report says, the highest priority at the moment is to successfully complete this year's application cycle. There remain problems with disabled students' allowances and I have asked the Student Loans Company to engage directly with universities and assessment centres to speed up the process, and to increase staffing resource for these activities.

The chief executive and chair of the Student Loans Company have publicly apologised for the difficulties customers have suffered. As the Minister responsible for higher education, I too have expressed regret for the unacceptable service parents and students have experienced.

Customers must also play their part, and take responsibility for applying for their student support in good time if we are to ensure the service has the best chance of operating efficiently.

A copy of the report and a letter from the chair of the Student Loans Company are being deposited in the Libraries of the House and paper copies of the report will be placed in the Vote Office and Printed Paper Office.

Northern Rock PLC

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): Earlier this year, the Government announced that Northern Rock would be restructured, subject to state aid approval from the European Commission. That approval was received on 28 October 2009 and the Government welcome the European Commission's decision as an important step in restoring Northern Rock to viability.

Legislation to give effect to the restructuring—The Northern Rock plc Transfer Order 2009—will be made and laid before both Houses of Parliament today.

Under the order the restructuring of the company will take place on 1 January 2010. Part of Northern Rock's business will be transferred to a new company, also wholly owned by the Treasury:

> The business transferred to the new company will include Northern Rock's retail and wholesale deposit business (other than certain wholesale deposits held on behalf of Northern Rock's Granite securitisation and covered bond programme), a proportion of its unencumbered mortgages and its mortgage origination and servicing platform. The new company will be regulated as a deposit taker by the FSA.
> The legal entity which is Northern Rock plc will retain the remainder of Northern Rock's mortgage book, arrangements relating to the Granite securitisation and the covered bond programme, the Government loan, its other borrowings, derivatives and certain wholesale deposits held on behalf of its Granite securitisation and covered bond programme.

The intention is that the companies will be renamed in conjunction with the transfer, such that the new company will be named "Northern Rock plc" and the old company will be named "Northern Rock (Asset Management) plc".

On restructuring the guarantees covering the liabilities of Northern Rock will be replaced by separate guarantee arrangements for Northern Rock (Asset Management) plc and Northern Rock plc. All retail deposits in Northern Rock plc continue to be guaranteed in full, and guarantees will not be lifted with less than three month's notice. Full details of the guarantee arrangements are available on the Treasury website (www.hm-treasury.gov.uk).

Both entities will continue to be wholly owned by the Government and operate at arms' length from Government on commercial principles. UK Financial Investments (UKFI) will take on management of the Government's shareholdings in these two companies. The restructuring will enable Northern Rock to increase its new lending and support the economic recovery.

Full details of the financial support provided by the Government to support the restructuring will be set out next month.

The Treasury has also made the Northern Rock plc (Tax Consequences) Regulations 2009. These regulations make provision to neutralise unintended tax consequences that could otherwise be triggered by transfers of assets and liabilities between these two companies wholly owned by the Government.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Local Government (Unitary Proposals)

The Minister for Regional Economic Development and Co-ordination (Ms Rosie Winterton): My right hon. Friend, the then Minister for Local Government, the Member for Wentworth (John Healey) told the House on 6 February 2008, Official Report, column 66-68WS, that we were requesting the Boundary Committee under section 4 of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 to advise on certain matters respectively relating to the unitary proposals made by Exeter city council, Ipswich borough council, and Norwich city council. We originally requested the advice by 31 December 2008, which, on account of litigation brought by certain local authority against the Boundary Committee, we subsequently extended to 8 December 2009.

The Boundary Committee has now provided its advice, copies of which have been placed in the Library of the House.

In its advice the Boundary Committee has, pursuant to its powers in section 5(3) of the 2007 Act, made alternative unitary proposals covering the counties of Devon, Norfolk, and Suffolk, and recommended, on the basis of the evidence available to it, that the original unitary proposals made by Exeter city council, Ipswich borough council, and Norwich city council are not implemented.

There is now a period of six weeks until 19 January 2010 for representations to be made to the Secretary of State about the Boundary Committee's advice, and for any further representations to be made about any of the three original proposals.

Thereafter, the Secretary of State intends to take his statutory decisions under the 2007 Act as to whether to implement, with or without modification, any of the unitary proposals—the alternative proposals made by the Boundary Committee and the original proposals—before him, or to take no action. Before taking his statutory decisions he will consider carefully the Boundary Committee's advice, all the representations he receives, and all other relevant information available to him. Under the 2007 Act no proposal can be implemented unless Parliament has approved an Order giving effect to the Secretary of State's decision.

We recognise the need to end uncertainty and intend to move forward as quickly as practicable. Our priority is to ensure that the people of Devon, Norfolk, and Suffolk will have the councils that are best able to play their part at the heart of providing innovative and better value public services across the counties, providing strong strategic leadership, engaging effectively with their most local communities, and delivering efficiencies and service improvements.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan (Aircraft Deployment to ISAF)

The Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): The House will know that the NATO-led International Security Assistance Force has expanded substantially over the course of the last year and is continuing to grow in size. Air operations in support of the force have become more complex and NATO has identified a need for improved air traffic control.

I have therefore agreed a NATO request to commit two Boeing E3D Sentry aircraft and some 200 personnel from 8 Squadron, Royal Air Force, to fill this role as part of our standing contribution to the NATO Airborne Early Warning and Control Force. The detachment will be based in the Middle East. It is separate from the British deployment in Afghanistan announced by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister on 30 November 2009, Official Report, column 835, and the size and structure of the latter will not be affected. On current plans, the detachment should begin to deploy shortly. It will recover to its home base at RAF Waddington by 28 February 2010.

HEALTH

"Healthy Children, Safer Communities" Strategy

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Phil Hope): I am pleased to announce that "Healthy Children, Safer Communities", the Government's joint strategy to promote the health and well-being needs of children and young people in contact with the youth justice system, is being published today.

This strategy will work to improve the health and well-being of children and young people in contact with the youth justice system to ensure that children and young people are safer, healthier and stay away from crime and that communities will be safer too.

In particular, the strategy:

provides a strategic framework within which local services can deliver quality improvements, and communicates the framework to the relevant health, education and youth justice organisations; sets out the actions the Government will take to support these improvements; develops a national approach, by building on the good work and good practice that is already underway in individual localities; and maintains the significant impetus from recent policy developments including the Youth Crime Action Plan; Healthy Children, Brighter Futures Strategy, and Lord Bradley's review of people with mental health problems or learning disabilities in the criminal justice system, to drive forward improvements in health and well-being services for children and young people in contact with the youth justice system.

The key elements of the strategy and related work for young people in contact with the youth justice system are:

harnessing mainstream services to reduce offending and reoffending—wherever children and young people are in the youth justice system, and whenever they are at risk of coming into this system, the health and well being needs should be met through mainstream services;

addressing health and well-being throughout the youth justice system—contact with the youth justice system will produce positive health and well-being outcomes for children and young people; and making it happen—policy and decision-makers at national, regional and local level champion a strong response to the health inequalities experienced by children and young people involved in or at risk of becoming involved in antisocial and offending behaviour.

A copy of the strategy has been placed in the Library and copies are available to hon. Members from the Vote Office.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Justice and Home Affairs Post-Council Statement

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Alan Johnson): The Justice and Home Affairs (JHA) Council was held on 30 November and 1 December 2009 in Brussels. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Justice, the Under-Secretary of State for Justice, Lord Bach, the Scottish Lord Advocate, Elish Angiolini, and I attended on behalf of the United Kingdom. The following issues were discussed at the Council:

The Council, in Mixed Committee with non-EU Schengen states, received an update from the presidency on the current state of play on the implementation of the regulation establishing the Visa Information System (VIS). As a result of testing delays in both the central and national databases the roll-out of VIS will now take place, subject to no further problems, in December 2010. The UK does not participate in the regulation.

The presidency then updated Ministers on arrangements for the first milestone test for the second-generation Schengen Information System (SIS II) noting that the test should take place by 29 January 2010. If the Council deemed the first milestone test to have failed it would then have two months to decide whether to switch to the contingency plan. The UK stressed the need to distinguish between technical and contractual elements of the project highlighting the importance of the milestone test in this respect. The UK could not accept a delayed milestone test being equated with non-compliance; if the test could not happen in January then the Council should be consulted on the next steps. This was reflected in Council conclusions adopted following the Mixed Committee.

The presidency sought the Council's views on the need for an IT agency and its potential scope, inviting applications from those wishing to host it before the end of the year. It concluded that there was broad support for the agency, which would manage SIS, VIS and the Eurodac systems, and the details would be further discussed at working level. The UK supported the need for an agency and wishes to take part in the adoption and application of this proposal to the extent we participate in the relevant IT systems.

The Council adopted amendments to the common visa list lifting visa requirements for Serbia, Montenegro and the Former Yugoslav Republic of Macedonia. Their citizens will no longer require a visa to enter the Schengen area. Albania and Bosnia Herzegovina were urged to work towards full completion of the benchmarks required for visa liberalisation. While the UK does not participate in the EU visa regime, we maintain an interest in all visa issues.

Under any other business Switzerland gave an update on the national referendum on the building of minarets and asked Schengen partners for their support to help free two Swiss businessmen detained in Libya since 2008.

Following Mixed Committee, the Council approved the A points list. Of note the Council endorsed the suspension of negotiations on the Council regulation and Council decision on the establishment of an evaluation mechanism to verify the application of the Schengen acquis. The Commission has been invited to review the texts and devise next steps, due to the European Parliament's rejection of the text and the entry into force of the Lisbon treaty.

The Council adopted the decision authorising the presidency to sign the EU agreement with Japan on mutual legal assistance in criminal matters which includes important safeguards regarding the death penalty. Other measures of note included a framework decision on prevention and settlement of conflicts of jurisdiction in criminal proceedings, a resolution on a "roadmap" for strengthening procedural rights of suspected or accused persons in criminal proceedings, and Council conclusions on model provisions guiding the Council's criminal law deliberations.

The presidency presented the draft future JHA work programme (the Stockholm programme). The Council considered interior issues on the first day and justice on the second. All delegations welcomed the draft text, although points on mutual recognition of asylum decisions and training targets for police and judges remained contentious. On asylum, the Commission insisted on mutual recognition of asylum decisions as a long-term objective. The UK along with a number of other member states supported a text reflecting that beneficiaries of international protection should not have an automatic right to move throughout the European Union. In addition the UK secured language limiting ambitious targets for providing training in European law to police and judiciary to those who were concerned with European co-operation. The UK also secured acceptable language on the "Roadmap" on criminal procedural rights.

Overall, the Government welcome the Stockholm programme, which will allow the EU to build upon the many successes of EU collaboration in this area. The programme will now go to the December European Council for final agreement. An action plan for implementation of this JHA work programme will be presented by the Commission as soon as possible in 2010.

Over lunch Interior Ministers held a discussion on the location of the European Asylum Support Office. The Council agreed that the office should be located in Valletta, Malta.

After lunch, the Commission introduced its proposals to revise directives on asylum procedures and qualification. The UK fully supported the objectives to streamline standards, simplify the law and combat abuse, but not the draft directives, which would go in the opposite direction. Restrictions on accelerated procedures would stop member states making fast, fair decisions on asylum applications. Lengthening the process and unnecessary burdens (like new rules on translation) would result in additional costs. Changes to who qualifies could actually result in member states granting asylum to those not in need of EU protection. Measures on unaccompanied minors would have negative effects and could undermine efforts to reduce human trafficking. These concerns were supported by other member states.

The presidency presented its paper on external relations to the Council and updated the Council on the recent global migration forum, held in Athens in early November.

The EU Counter-terrorism Co-ordinator (CTC), Gilles de Kerchove, presented his six-monthly report and outlined considerations for ongoing efforts to implement the CT strategy. Priorities would be: victims; prevention; information management; co-operation with the private sector; and development and security. The UK supports efforts made by the CTC to continue to drive forward EU co-operation on CT, and is particularly appreciative of his efforts with priority third countries, such as Pakistan. The Commission looked forward to further work with the private sector, such as follow up by future presidencies of the recent seminar organised by the UK's Centre for the Protection of National Infrastructure (CPNI), and encouraged member states to further co-ordinate their counter-terrorism strategies.

The Council agreed the EU-US agreement on the processing and transfer of financial messaging data for the purposes of the US terrorist finance tracking programme (TFTP). This agreement, supported by the UK, was required due to a restructure of the SWIFT (Society for Worldwide Interbank financial Telecommunications) system used by the TFTP to identify and trace terrorist finance and facilitators. The presidency concluded that the interim agreement would be signed and, though temporary, did contain strengthened data protection provisions. It will come into force on 1 February 2010.

Under any other business, the Commission noted the entry into force of the Lisbon treaty on 1 December: any third pillar proposals not adopted would become void and would need to be re-negotiated; new proposals would be brought forward under the new Commission, as soon as possible in 2010. Spain outlined its presidency priorities and, in the margins of the Council, the UK joined other member states in signing a mobility partnership agreement with Georgia.

On day two, the presidency outlined the progress made during negotiations on the framework decision on combating sexual abuse, exploitation of children and child pornography. A new proposal will be needed, following the coming into force of the Lisbon treaty. The Commission said it would table one as soon as possible. The UK welcomed the progress made and looked forward to a new Commission proposal.

Justice Ministers then debated transfer of proceedings in criminal matters. This covered, among other things, the extent to which EU action could add value to the 1972 Council of Europe convention on transfer of proceedings, in particular in relation to jurisdiction. The UK congratulated the presidency on its efforts to try to reach agreement on this complicated issue. It is not clear whether or when, a new proposal on this subject will be brought forward.

The presidency updated the Council on the way forward on negotiations to update the framework decision on combating trafficking of human beings and, following the entry into force of the Lisbon treaty, looked forward to a new Commission proposal. The UK supported this view for an updated framework decision, drawing on the good work done by the Swedish presidency.

The presidency also updated the Council on the adoption of the action-oriented paper (AOP) and the human trafficking conference held in October. The UK highlighted that the implementation of the AOP should focus on how existing measures, instruments, and mechanisms could be best utilised. The UK welcomed the presidency's efforts to link JHA work with the external dimension, but also needed to address the internal EU dimension of trafficking, as the EU contained source, transit and destination countries.

There was a state of play report on e-Justice, during which it was explained that the launch of the European e-Justice portal had been delayed for technical reasons. It is hoped that the launch can be rescheduled for the first half of 2010.

Under AOB, Spain listed their priorities for their presidency, which included the European protection warrant, and making progress on the new proposal on succession and wills.

Autumn Performance Report

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Alan Johnson): The Home Office Autumn Performance Report 2009 has been published today by Command of Her Majesty.

It includes our report against the 2007 Public Service Agreements that are led by the Home Office. These PSAs ensure controlled, fair migration that protects the public and contributes to economic growth, make communities safer, reduce the harm caused by alcohol and drugs and reducing the risk to the UK and its interests overseas from international terrorism.

The report also provides an update on performance against the targets we set in the 2004 spending review that are still current. It shows that we have met our targets to reduce unfounded asylum intake and we are on course to reduce the harm caused by drugs.

Copies of the report are available in the Vote Office. The report is also available on the Home Office website.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Right to Control (Disabled People) - Government Response

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Yvette Cooper): In 2005, the Government made public their commitment to work towards equality for disabled people by 2025. Since then we have come a long way but, as many disabled people know, we still have further to go.

To help achieve this ambition, on 11 June 2009 we launched a national consultation on the Right to Control by publishing the consultation paper, "Making choice and control a reality for disabled people: consultation on the Right to Control". We have also legislated for a Right to Control for disabled people in the Welfare Reform Act 2009, which recognises that disabled people are the experts in their own lives. We have worked closely with disabled people and their organisations to develop this right, including with our advisory group, chaired by Baroness Jane Campbell, and will test it in our Trailblazers, which will start in late 2010.

The consultation concluded on 30 September 2009 and 176 responses were submitted from individual disabled people, user-led organisations, service providers and local authorities, amongst others. These responses have helped us understand what areas we need to focus on and develop in order to offer a right that will be truly transformative for disabled people. Today, with the publication of the Government Response, "Making choice and control a reality for disabled people: Government Response to the consultation on the Right to Control", we can take another step towards delivering the Right to Control and improve the life chances of disabled people by giving them more choice and control over how public money is spent to meet their individual care and support needs.

The Government response to the Right to Control consultation can be viewed and downloaded from the Office for Disability Issues website at www.odi.gov.uk/right-to-control. Copies of the document will be placed in the House Library.

Fiscal Responsibility Bill (Draft Secondary Legislation)

The Economic Secretary to the Treasury (Ian Pearson): The Treasury has today published draft secondary legislation in relation to the Fiscal Responsibility Bill to indicate how the Treasury intends to use one of the powers provided by the Bill. Copies of the document are available in the Vote Office and have been deposited in the Libraries of both Houses.

Pre-Budget Report Measures

The Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury (Sarah McCarthy-Fry): Budget 2009 announced that, in order to ensure that the system of pensions tax relief remains fair, affordable and sustainable, tax relief on pension contributions would be restricted for those with incomes of £150,000 and over. This restriction applies to all contributions, including those from employers.

The gap between the announcement and implementation creates a real risk that those affected, or who believe they might be affected, would attempt to forestall the new rules by making large contributions now to take advantage of higher rate tax relief that would not be available to them after April 2011.

To prevent this, at Budget 2009 the Government introduced an anti-forestalling regime. It seeks to enable high-income individuals to continue to receive higher rate relief on pension contributions that they would have made in the absence of the announcement of the 2011 reform, but not on higher contributions prompted by that announcement.

As announced in the 2009 pre-Budget report, the restriction of relief from April 2011 will apply to individuals whose income, including the value of any pension benefit funded by (or eventually funded by) an individual's employer, is £150,000 or over. This will be subject to an income floor so that those with pre-tax incomes, excluding the value of any employer contributions, of less than £130,000 are unaffected. So, the restriction will apply to about 2 per cent. of pension savers, who currently receive around a quarter of tax relief on pension contributions.

To prevent an estimated £400 million of tax revenues being put at risk before April 2011 by additional forestalling, the Government have today announced that the anti-forestalling rules will be extended to apply to individuals on incomes of £130,000 and over (with income being as defined on the same basis as in the existing anti-forestalling rules), effective from 9 December 2009 and for the remainder of this tax year and next. This will be legislated in Finance Bill 2010 and draft clauses will be published shortly.

Those newly brought into the regime will be subject to the special annual allowance, which remains unchanged. This means that they will continue to receive higher rate relief up to the level of their normal (defined as quarterly or more regular) pension contributions; or the lower of £30,000 and average contributions over the past three years if contributions are less regular than quarterly; or £20,000; whichever is highest. Contributions exceeding these limits made prior to the new rules taking effect will not be charged. Further detail on these provisions is available at: www.hmrc.gov.uk. Around 98 per cent. of pension savers will not see their tax relief restricted by these provisions.

The Government believe that this action is necessary, and that a straightforward extension of the current anti-forestalling provisions is the simplest, least disruptive and least burdensome way to achieve this.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Education, Youth and Culture Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Mr. Siôn Simon): A meeting of the Education, Youth and Culture Council was held on 26 and 27 November. I represented the UK for the culture and audiovisual section of the Council on 27 November.

The Council adopted, without further debate, the conclusions on promoting a creative generation by developing the creativity and innovative capacity of children and young people through cultural expression and access to culture.

The proposal for the European Year of Voluntary Activities promoting Active Citizenship (2011) was adopted by the Council. The year's aim is to improve the environment for volunteering in the EU, to raise the quality of voluntary activities and to recognise the value and importance of volunteering. A budget of €8 million has been allocated for this initiative.

The Council adopted the conclusions on media literacy in the digital environment encouraging the promotion of media literacy, including through formal and informal education, to maximise the potential of the internet and minimise possible risks. The conclusions were adopted without further discussion.

There was then a presentation by the Commission on the Google Books Report. The Commission had strong concerns about the revised Google books settlement, and argued for the development of an EU legal framework on global copyright issues. The Commission encouraged member states to increase the number of EU books being digitised and highlighted that initial findings from the recent Consultation on Europeana (The European Digital Library) has shown strong support for the initiative.

A policy debate on the digitisation of cultural content in Europe followed the Commission's presentation. All member states agreed on the importance of fair but user-friendly copyright rules, and the need for EU level co-operation and encouragement. Public-private partnerships were also supported by the majority of member states, with many citing the usefulness of the Arrow project. There was no request for further member state funding for Europeana.

Under any other business, France raised the current financial difficulties faced by cinemas in transferring to digital systems. Slovenia, supported by a number of member states, requested that books written in minority languages should be allowed to have a zero tax rate. The Spanish gave a brief presentation on their forthcoming presidency. An informal Council meeting would be held on 29 and 30 March, a seminar on copyright and digital libraries in Madrid on 26 and 27 April, a European Cultural Heritage conference on 29 April and a conference on the Mobility of Artists on 25 May in Madrid.

Finally, Austria asked the Commission to explain their proposed next steps following a letter received from Commissioner Reding on the Council of Europe convention on transfrontier television. This concerned the legal implications of signing a Convention that related to an area of EU competence. The Commissioner argued that the letter merely reflected the current legal reality. The Commission did not want their future right of initiative to be affected by the Council of Europe convention, but agreed that we should co-operate on the basis of complementarity. They did not rule out the possibility that a prior negotiating mandate may be necessary.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture and Fisheries Council (14-16 December)

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): The Under-Secretary of State responsible for the natural and marine environment, wildlife and rural affairs, my hon. Friend the Member for Ogmore (Huw Irranca-Davies), will represent the United Kingdom at the Agriculture and Fisheries Council in Brussels from 14 to16 December.

There are a number of items on the agenda relating to agriculture and fisheries which are of significant interest to the United Kingdom, including the adoption of the recent dairy proposals, on which the UK will abstain. Discussions will take place on the following:

Conservation of fisheries resources through technical measures.

EU/Norway annual fisheries consultations for 2010.

2010 fishing opportunities for fish stocks in the Black sea.

Simplification of the common agricultural policy.

Future of the common agricultural policy: rural development.

There are currently two items under any other business—a statement on Community action reducing incidental catches of seabirds; and general conclusions from the 26th conference of EU paying agencies.

There is also a ministerial lunch scheduled to discuss the reform of the common fisheries policy.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Security Industry Authority Annual Report and Accounts 2008-09

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Alan Campbell): I am pleased to announce that the annual report and accounts of the Security Industry Authority (SIA) for 2008-09 will be laid before Parliament today and will be published on 11 December 2009.

Copies of the report will be available in the Vote Office.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

United Nations Central Emergency Response Fund

The Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Douglas Alexander): The UK has provided £40 million per annum for the past four years to support the United Nations (UN) Central Emergency Response Fund (CERF). The CERF provides UN humanitarian agencies with early funding so that they can respond immediately when a crisis strikes. The fund is also able to channel funds to neglected emergencies.

To date, over US$1.5 billion has been contributed to the CERF by 109 UN member states and 19 private donors, of which the UK is the largest single contributor. During this time, the CERF has committed $1.4 billion to emergency programmes in 71 countries. CERF has been an important part of the humanitarian response in nearly every major crisis in 2009. CERF was the top source of funding for five of the six UN emergency appeals launched in 2009 namely Lao People's Democratic Republic, Madagascar, Namibia, Burkina Faso, and the Philippines. The top recipients of CERF funds to date have been: DRC ($162 million), Sudan ($102 million), Kenya ($79.4 million) Somalia ($71.3 million), Ethiopia ($69.5 million), Afghanistan ($60.1million), Sri Lanka ($56.8 million) and Zimbabwe ($52.2 million).

CERF has performed well over its first four years of operation. An independent evaluation of the fund in 2008 found that the CERF > "has proven itself as a valuable and impartial tool, becoming in a short time-frame, an essential feature of international humanitarian action and complementing other humanitarian financing mechanisms".

The evaluation report concluded that CERF has helped to accelerate humanitarian response and increase the coverage of needs.

The UK is represented on the CERF Advisory Group, which provides the UN's Emergency Relief Coordinator with advice on the speed and appropriateness of fund allocations, and examines performance and accountability. We share the view that the CERF has made good progress.

In the light of the CERF's solid performance to date, and as part of our ongoing efforts to improve the quality of the UK's response to humanitarian crises, I am pleased to inform the House that I have approved a further commitment to the CERF of £120 million over the next three years (January 2010 to December 2012). We will monitor the performance of the CERF closely to ensure this investment is used to the best effect. I hope that this long-term commitment will encourage other donors to do likewise, thereby strengthening the financial sustainability of the CERF. We will continue to actively lobby key donors to this end.

Financial Sector

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Treasury has today published a discussion document on possible international options to reduce the cost to taxpayers of financial sector failures. "Risk, reward and responsibility: the financial sector and society" is a contribution to the international debate on the future of the global financial sector.

The document highlights the importance of the financial sector to the UK economy alongside the risks it poses to society. While some risk-taking is inherent in financial sector operations, the recent financial crisis has shown the high cost to taxpayers when risk-taking becomes excessive. The document considers ways in which the financial sector might contribute to the potential costs of any residual risks it poses to taxpayers and to broader social objectives.

I have placed copies of the document in the Library and the document is also available on HM Treasury's website.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Early Years Funding

The Minister for Children, Young People and Families (Dawn Primarolo): This Government have transformed the provision of early years education and childcare in this country, increasing investment sevenfold since 1997 and creating a universal free offer for three and four-year-olds.

As a result there is now nearly universal take-up of the 12½ hours of free early learning and childcare available to three and four-year-olds, and we remain on course to extend the provision to 15 hours per week from September 2010. The commitment and endeavour of early years providers across the country have been crucial to this success.

In 2007 we announced plans to introduce a single local Early Years Single Funding Formula (EYSFF).

This aims to provide greater consistency and transparency in local decision-making concerning the funding of the free entitlement for three and four-year-olds.

The necessary paving legislation for the EYSFF was included in the Apprenticeships, Skills, Children and Learning Act 2009, which has recently completed its passage through Parliament. The introduction of the EYSFF was welcomed by Members on all sides of both Houses.

Our intention has been that every local authority should implement the EYSFF from April 2010. In anticipation of this many local authorities have been working hard to prepare for this and have engaged positively with local providers.

However, during the summer it became clear that a significant number of local authorities were experiencing difficulty in developing their EYSFF. More recently, parents and providers, from both the maintained and the PVI sectors, have expressed concerns about the potential adverse impact on provision if the EYSFF is introduced now.

In response to these concerns the Department acted quickly to survey all local authorities, to establish how much progress they had made. This was completed towards the end of November and found considerable variation in terms of their readiness.

The data and information we have collected now suggests that less than a third of local authorities will be in a secure position to implement their EYSFF from April 2010. While it is difficult to generalise about the underlying reasons it seems clear that some local authorities have experienced serious difficulties in obtaining accurate data from their providers, while others have simply found the task extremely challenging.

I have therefore decided to postpone the formal implementation date for the EYSFF by one year until April 2011.

I have asked my officials to invite all local authorities that are confident they are ready to implement their new formulae in April 2010 and who wish to do so to continue as planned. These local authorities will be able to apply to join a pathfinder programme, which currently involves nine local authorities but which we will now expand.

This expansion will increase the capacity of the pathfinder programme to develop practice from which other local authorities can learn.

The Government remain strongly committed to the introduction of the EYSFF in all areas from April 2011. We believe that it is only through the effective implementation of the EYSFF that all providers across the sector can have confidence in local decisions about funding. This 12-month delay should provide sufficient time for concerns to be addressed, without incurring a risk of drift. It will also allow time for more dedicated support to be offered to those local authorities that need it in order to complete the development of their formula.

Revised Schools Admissions Code

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ms Diana R. Johnson): Today I have presented to Parliament a revised School Admissions Code ('the Code'). Subject to the usual Parliamentary procedure, this revised Code will come into force in February 2010.

This statement follows on from previous statements I have made accepting recommendations made by Sir Jim Rose from his primary curriculum review in April 2009, in particular those designed to help improve outcomes for summer-born children, by enabling them to start school from the September following their fourth birthday.

Sir Jim Rose recommended that, subject to parents taking into account their child's maturity and readiness to enter reception class, summer-born children should be entitled to start part school in the September after their fourth birthday. This could be at part-time basis if parents prefer.

A study for the primary curriculum review by the Institute for Fiscal Studies (IFS) found that admissions policies do matter and that, in general, summer-born children are slightly better off in terms of cognitive outcomes at Key Stages 1-3 if they start school in the September following their fourth birthday. The IFS study also reported that summer-born children risk being treated as 'immature' in comparison with their older classmates, giving rise to lack of confidence and low self-regard that may limit expectations of them and their expectations of themselves. Furthermore, a literature review by the National Foundation for Educational Research concluded that children who start school later will spend less time in reception class prior to entering Year 1 of primary school, and therefore they may lose some of the educational experience that will develop and prepare them for their school careers.

The majority of local authority areas already operate an entry point in September following a child's fourth birthday so summer-born children do not have the same education opportunities across the country. Implementing this proposal will therefore provide a fair system for parents, which also gives them more choice to meet their own child's needs. Research conducted by Sir Jim Rose found that 61 per cent. of parents of children currently in part-time maintained provision and 63 per cent. of parents with summer-born children would move to a full-time provision once offered.

The aim of the policy change is to enable parents to choose between school or other early learning provision for their four years olds. Some parents have a strong preference for their child's early years experience to take place outside a school setting. I am therefore also making arrangements to enable all children to receive full and part time provision in private, voluntary, independent and maintained nurseries from the September after their fourth birthday up until compulsory school age.

Parents who prefer to delay their child's starting school would be able to defer a school place until compulsory school age—as they can already do now. But it is right that all children should be in school—playing and learning and developing—from age five.

The four years olds proposal is just one of many recommendations made by the primary curriculum review aimed at giving greater parental choice and improving transition and outcomes for all children, particularly summer-born children and vulnerable groups such as those with SEN, who Sir Jim felt would benefit most from starting school early. We are already reforming the primary curriculum to encourage a smoother transition from early years foundation stage (EYFS) into school by arranging the curriculum in six areas of learning (similar to EYFS areas of learning and development) and free it up for teachers. This supports my proposal by creating an appropriate school environment for all four years olds.

Continuing play based learning into primary schools and ensuring children receive learning experiences appropriate to their age and circumstances is a key feature of the new primary curriculum. Whether in reception classes, or in nurseries, four year olds will benefit from receiving the early years foundation stage full-time.

Also in line with my earlier statement, over the next few months, we will provide information to parents and local authorities about the optimum conditions, flexibilities and benefits to children of entering reception class in the September immediately after their fourth birthday.

Following a consultation on relevant changes, this revised Code will require all admission authorities to provide for the admission of children following their fourth birthday, from September 2011 onwards.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Food Labelling (Occupied Palestinian Territories)

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): DEFRA has today issued advice to retailers and importers who wish to respond to consumer demand for information about the origin of food that has been produced in the Occupied Palestinian Territories (OPT).

Importers, retailers, NGOs and consumers have asked the Government for clarity over the precise origin of products from the Occupied Palestinian Territories (OPTs). The label "West Bank" does not allow consumers to distinguish between goods originating from Palestinian producers and goods originating from illegal Israeli settlements.

Rules on the labelling of produce are set by the European Union and require that the place of origin or provenance should be supplied on foodstuffs where omission of such information might materially mislead the consumer about true origin or provenance of the foodstuff.

Since the "West Bank" is a recognised geographical area within the OPTs, labelling produce with the "West Bank" does not infringe EU labelling rules. However, retailers have informed us of consumer demand for more detailed information.

Therefore, in March, the Government arranged a round-table discussion between interested parties to look at how retailers could make labelling clearer for consumers.

We have taken these views into account, and have today issued advice to retailers and importers. This will help them consider how best to respond to consumer demand for information about the origin of food that has been produced in the OPT.

The Government will keep their policy on labelling food imports from the OPTs under review, in conjunction with the European Commission and other EU member states, and in the light of developments in the middle east peace process. The Government believe that that existence, and continued growth, of Israeli settlements poses a significant obstacle to peace in the middle east. At the same time, the clear position of the Government is that we are opposed to boycotts of Israel or Israeli goods. We do not believe that boycotts help engage or influence Israel, or lead to progress in the middle east peace process.

Copies of the advice will be placed in the House Library and on the DEFRA website: www.defra.gov.uk.

South Downs National Park

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): On 12 November, Official Report, column 32WS, I informed the House that I was confirming the designation of the South Downs national park and signing the orders which set the precise boundary. I am now proceeding to establish a national park authority for the new national park.

On 16 July 2009 I consulted on the membership of the future South Downs national park authority, proposing that the authority should have from 29 to 37 members. I am most grateful to all those who have taken the time to submit a response to that consultation.

There was a diverse range of views expressed, not only on the size of the proposed authority, but also on its composition, and on the representation of those who live in and around the new park. Although several people offered views on how parish seats might be allocated, this is a matter for the parish councils within the park to determine.

The main reasons cited by those in favour of a 37 seat authority or larger were that it would enable proportional representation of all local authorities, as well as enable more "grass roots" representation with parish councils having several seats. While I understand the reasons for many respondents favouring such a composition, it is the case that, once selected to serve on the park authority, members are expected to act in the best interests of the park in its entirety, so any emphasis on weighted representation is not really consistent with that principle.

A number of respondents favoured a "medium" sized authority of around 31-33 members, in preference to the two ends of the range laid out in the consultation paper. While appreciating that this might draw together the best features of both a large and small authority, it would not be large enough to allow it to be fully weighted nor would it be small enough to minimise the additional administrative burden which a larger authority might create.

Those supporting a smaller, 29 seat authority saw it as creating an efficient, cost-effective authority, with faster decision making, and at a lower cost to the taxpayer. The suggested composition was generally 15 local authority, eight national and six parish seats. Although a smaller authority would mean weighted representation would not be possible, it would still allow every local authority one seat.

A further option emerged in the wake of the consultation which is for a 27 seat authority. This is made possible because two local authorities have stated they wish to share a seat. This would reduce the minimum number of local authority seats from 15 to 14. As I have previously confirmed my view that local authorities should have an absolute majority, this would require the Government to respond to the reduction in local authority members by reducing the number of "national" members from 8 to 7. So the overall composition could be 14 local authority, seven "national" and six parish seats.

Having considered each of the above options carefully, and being satisfied that it would be appropriate for Worthing and Adur councils to share a seat, I have decided to opt for a 27 seat authority. In order to ensure that the national park authority keeps in close touch with communities and is able to respond to their concerns, I expect the authority to place a big emphasis on community and stakeholder engagement. I shall now include the 27 member authority in the statutory instrument which I shall lay before Parliament around the turn of the year. With Parliament's consent, this will allow the national park authority to be established from 1 April 2010 and to become operational from 1 April 2011.

A summary of the responses, plus a list of all respondents, can be found on the DEFRA website at: http://www.defra.gov.uk/corporate/consult/south-downs-membership/index.htm.

HEALTH

Autumn Performance Report

The Secretary of State for Health (Andy Burnham): I have today laid before Parliament my Department's autumn performance report for 2009 (CM 7776). The report is in the Library of the House and copies are available for hon. Members from the Vote Office.

The autumn performance report provides the second public report of progress on our public service agreements, departmental strategic objectives and value for money targets set for this comprehensive spending review period.

NHS 2010-15

The Secretary of State for Health (Andy Burnham): I have today laid before Parliament "The NHS 2010-15: from good to great. Preventative, people-centred, productive" (Cm 7775). The paper is in the Library and copies are available for hon. Members from the Vote Office.

"The NHS 2010-15" maps out how we will build on the achievements of the last decade to create a more preventative and people-centred NHS—a service that is better for patients, but also more productive. It is intended to give the NHS time to plan for the challenges of a new era.

In the past, a tougher financial environment has meant that patients have paid the price through longer waits. But this will not happen this time. We will not back away from the NHS. The Pre-Budget report confirms that we can lock in the achievements of the last decade, while protecting staff and the service as a whole.

The document also sets out how we will continue to improve the NHS, according to the principles set out in the next stage review. It outlines the following key steps:

> a new payment system which puts patients first, and ensures they get the high quality care they deserve. A growing proportion of hospital's income will be linked to patient satisfaction, rising to 10 per cent. of their payments over time. Poor or unsafe care will not be tolerated—payments will be withdrawn if care does not meet minimum standards; > more choice for patients—giving them the right to register with a GP wherever they choose, a guarantee of seeing a doctor in the evenings and weekends in every area, and more access to services—like chemotherapy and dialysis—at home or in the community;
> dedicated carers for patients with cancer or serious long-term conditions who can benefit from a more personal approach to nursing. We expect all parts of the NHS to review continually the way long-term conditions are managed and to seek out and adopt best practice. Where appropriate this should include the provision of personalised one-to-one support by a health professional, particularly for the more complex conditions. We will consider and cost the possibility of a patient entitlement in this area. This will benefit millions of people;

new rights to high quality care—including the right for patients to die at home. Enshrining the right to a "good death" is the mark of a civilised health system. The NHS will ensure a dying patient can choose where they wish to spend their final days; more freedom for hospitals. The best NHS foundation trusts will be free to work across a wider area. We will encourage high-performing foundation trusts based in one area to provide both acute and community services in other areas, if the PCTs in those areas want to commission from them; and greater emphasis on prevention—we want the NHS to intervene earlier and prevent more disease. We will provide access to personal care plans and health-checks for anyone suffering with a long-term condition. Patients will be invited to discuss and agree their care plan with their clinician, giving them a greater say in their care.

Under this plan services will be reshaped around the needs of patients more radically than ever before. The NHS and its staff will need to adapt as they strive to make the changes necessary, but they will be supported in doing so. The results will be better patient safety, better health outcomes, more satisfied patients—and, ultimately, a stronger NHS.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Intercept as Evidence

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Alan Johnson): The Government have no higher duty than to protect the public. A critical tool in this is the warranted interception of communications that allows law enforcement and intelligence agencies to gather intelligence about those individuals who seek to do us harm.

Intercept material obtained under a RIPA warrant cannot currently be used as evidence in criminal trials. It has been, and remains, the Government's objective to find a way to make this possible. In February 2008, the Prime Minister accepted the findings of a Privy Council review, chaired by Sir John Chilcot, which recommended that intercept should be admissible as evidence subject to meeting nine operational requirements, which the review judged to be necessary to protect the public and national security. He set in train the necessary implementation process and established an advisory group, comprising the right hon. Sir John Chilcot, the right hon. Member for Berwick-upon-Tweed (Sir Alan Beith), the right hon. and learned Member for Folkestone and Hythe (Mr. Howard), and my right hon. And noble Friend Lord Archer of Sandwell, in order to help safeguard intelligence capability and protect the public.

In my written ministerial statement to the House of 16 July I provided an update on the progress of the implementation programme. I said that I would make a formal report to Parliament on the results and conclusions after end of the summer recess.

I am today publishing a Command Paper setting out the work programme's findings and conclusions. Copies will be available in the Vote Office. I am also placing in the Libraries of both Houses copies of a separate report to my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister by the advisory group. The Prime Minister and I are grateful to the advisory group for its work. I echo their recognition both of the complexity and sensitivity of the work programme and the commitment and thoroughness of officials in undertaking it.

Any implementation of intercept as evidence must, as set out in the original Privy Council review, ensure that trials continue to be fair and that the operational requirements to protect current capabilities are met. As noted in the advisory group's interim report to the Prime Minister, reported in my predecessor's written ministerial statement of 12 February and placed in the Libraries of both Houses, there is an intrinsic tension between these legal and operational requirements.

The work programme set out to develop a model for intercept as evidence that successfully reconciled these requirements, based on the approach recommended by the Privy Council review. This model has been subject to extensive practical testing, with the close involvement of senior independent legal practitioners. This testing has demonstrated that the model, if fully funded, would be broadly consistent with the operational requirements. However, it would not be legally viable, in that it would not ensure continued fairness at court. This has been confirmed by a recent European Court of Human Rights case (Natunen v Finland). The result would be to damage rather than enhance our ability to bring terrorists and other serious criminals to justice.

These findings are disappointing. In the light of them, the Government conclude, as does the advisory group, that the model does not represent a viable basis for implementation. However, the Government also share the advisory group's view that the potential gains from a workable intercept as evidence regime justifies further work. We therefore welcome the group's suggestion of three areas of analysis, beyond the scope of the original work programme, intended to establish whether the problems identified are capable of being resolved. These areas are to examine:

Further enhancing the judicial oversight available.

Full retention of intercept material alongside alternative review requirements.

Advances in technology which might make full retention and review more manageable.

The Government agree with the advisory group that while continuing to seek innovative and imaginative approaches, these should not be at the cost of the operational requirements, and hence national security or public protection. I am grateful for the advisory group's agreement to continue in its current invaluable role and for agreeing to be similarly engaged on interception related matters that have arisen in the context of the Coroners and Justice Bill.

The Government will report the results of this activity to Parliament before the Easter recess.

UK Border Agency

The Minister for Borders and Immigration (Mr. Phil Woolas): A revised version of the framework agreement for the UK Border Agency is being published today. The framework has been updated following the passage of the Borders Citizenship and Immigration Act 2009. The new document reflects, in particular, the transfer of customs functions and staff to the Home Office from HM Revenue and Customs. Copies are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

JUSTICE

Freedom of Information Act 2000

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): I have today given the Information Commissioner a certificate under section 53 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 ('the Act'). The certificate relates to case FS50100665 from 23 June 2009 in which, in my opinion, the Information Commissioner wrongly found that the Cabinet Office had failed to comply with section 1(1)(b) of the Act by withholding copies of the minutes of the Cabinet Ministerial Committee on Devolution to Scotland and Wales and the English Regions (DSWR) of 1997. The consequence of my giving the Information Commissioner a certificate is that the Commissioner's decision notice ceases to have effect.

A copy of the certificate has therefore been laid before each House of Parliament. I have additionally placed a copy of the certificate and a detailed statement of the reasons for my decision in the Libraries of both Houses, the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

This is only the second time this power (the 'veto') has been exercised since the Act came into force in 2005 and over that period of time central Government have received approximately 160,000 non-routine requests for information. The decision to exercise the veto in this case was not taken lightly but in accordance with the statement of Government policy[1] on the use of the executive override as it relates to information falling within the scope of section 35(1) of the Act.

In accordance with the policy, my conclusion rests on an assessment of the public interest in disclosure and non-disclosure of these Cabinet minutes, and of the exceptional nature of the case. While the convention of collective Cabinet responsibility is only one part of the public interest test, in my view disclosure of the information in this case would put the convention at serious risk of harm. As an integral part of our system of Government the maintenance of the convention is strongly in the public interest and must be given appropriate weight when deciding where the balance of the public interest lies.

Having done that, and having taken into account all of the circumstances of this case, I have concluded that the public interest falls in favour of non-disclosure and that this is an exceptional case where release would be damaging to the convention of collective responsibility and detrimental to the effective operation of Cabinet Government. Consequently, this case warrants the exercise of the veto.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Parliamentary Standards (Legislative Proposals)

The Leader of the House of Commons (Ms Harriet Harman): The Committee on Standards in Public Life (CSPL) published its report on MPs' expenses and allowances on 4 November. The Government are grateful to the Committee for its work and welcome the Committee's recommendations.

The House has sought clarification on the question of what further legislation the Government will bring forward in the light of the CSPL's recommendations, which I set out in this statement today. The House will wish to be aware that in preparing this statement the Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State for Justice has had constructive discussions with both Sir Christopher Kelly, Chairman of the Committee on Standards in Public Life, and Professor Sir Ian Kennedy, Chairman of the Independent Parliamentary Standards Authority. I am pleased, on behalf of both the Lord Chancellor and myself, to be able to report to the House that both Sir Christopher and Sir Ian are in agreement with the proposed approach to further legislation and on the amendments set out below.

Many of the CSPL recommendations relate to the substance of a new parliamentary allowances scheme. Others, however, relate to the scope and functions of the Independent Parliamentary Standards Authority (IPSA), now being set up under the provisions of the Parliamentary Standards Act 2009 which passed into law earlier this year.

Those substantive recommendations of the CSPL report that relate to the drawing up of the allowances scheme are , of course, under the provisions of the Act, now a matter for consideration by and decision of the new independent authority. The IPSA will shortly be conducting its statutory consultation on a proposed new allowances scheme. Its chair has already made clear that the CSPL recommendations will be central to this consultation.

In relation to the recommendations identified as requiring legislation, the Government's proposals are as follows:

Power to make deductions from resettlement grant

The Committee recommends that

> "where an MP is found to have seriously abused the expenses system or otherwise seriously breached the code of conduct, the Standards and Privileges Committee should always consider recommending that the House reduce or remove the resettlement grant from that MP as part of any sanctions to be imposed and should be prepared to do this for past as well as for future breaches of the rules. The new statutory scheme should empower the House of Commons to impose such a sanction by resolution".

(Recommendation 33).

The Parliamentary Standards Act already provides that the IPSA's power to pay MPs' salaries is subject to anything done in exercise of the disciplinary powers of the House. This enables the IPSA, for example, to give effect to a resolution of the House following an S&P recommendation that an MP should lose salary for a specified time. The Government will bring forward legislation to make the same provision in relation to allowances (including resettlement grant).

Statutory duty of efficiency, cost-effectiveness and openness

The Committee recommends that

> "the independent regulator should have a statutory duty to support MPs efficiently, cost-effectively and transparently in carrying out their parliamentary functions"

(Recommendation 41).

IPSA itself is already under a duty to carry out its functions efficiently and cost effectively and is subject to the Freedom of Information Act. The Government will also bring forward legislation to ensure that there is specific reference to supporting MPs to carry out their parliamentary duties in an efficient, cost-effective and transparent way. (See also response to recommendations 49 and 60).

Register of Financial Interests and Code of Conduct

The Committee recommends that

"responsibility for maintaining the register of financial interests and the associated code of conduct should be removed from the independent regulator and returned to the House of Commons"

(Recommendation 42).

The Government propose to repeal section 8 of the 2009 Act and the consequential references to it.

Pay and pensions

The Committee recommends that

"the independent determination of MPs' pay and pensions should be entrenched in primary legislation in the same way as expenses. The independent regulator should therefore be given statutory responsibility for setting MPs' pay levels and overseeing MPs' pensions as well as for dealing with expenses"

(Recommendation 43).

Provision for pay to be included in the IPSA's remit was in an early pre-introduction version of the Parliamentary Standards Bill but was removed after representations made in the intensive cross-party talks.

Now there is a clear consensus that IPSA should take on responsibility for pay and pensions, the Government will bring forward legislation to give IPSA the power to set, as well as to administer, the MPs' pay system, after consulting the Senior Salaries Review Body. The powers for both pay and pensions would therefore take effect in 2011-12. MPs' pay in 2011-12 would then be set by the IPSA on the basis of the SSRB recommendation for that year. Pay in 2012-13 and subsequently would be set by the IPSA following consultation with the SSRB and others as appropriate.

The Committee recommends that

"responsibility for investigating allegations about breaches of the rules on expenses should be vested in the independent regulator, which should be able to appoint its own compliance officer for this purpose. The compliance officer should be able to conduct an investigation on his or her own initiative, at the request of the independent regulator, or in response to a complaint from a member of the public or an MP"

(Recommendation 44).

Provision for the IPSA to appoint an officer responsible for investigations and compliance, who would act at arm's length from the other functions of the IPSA, was included by the Government in the original draft of the Parliamentary Standards Bill but was amended after strong representations from the Chairman of the Standards and Privileges Committee. As there is now clear consensus on this, the Government propose to amend the Parliamentary Standards Act to provide for a compliance officer to be appointed by the IPSA through a process of fair and open competition. The compliance officer will be an independent office holder. The powers of the compliance officer to investigate complaints will be similar to those presently vested in the Independent Commissioner. The powers in relation to sanctions will be significantly different (see below).

Enforcement powers of the IPSA

The Committee recommends

"that the independent regulator's enforcement regime should be strengthened by giving it the power to:

Compel MPs to cooperate with the new body, including through the provision of relevant information.

Require the repayment of wrongly paid or misclaimed sums, with associated costs if appropriate.

Impose, subject to the procedural safeguards laid out in the Act, its own non-parliamentary sanctions for breaches of the expenses regime (including where necessary of a financial nature) analogous to those available to HMRC and DWP, without the need to report to the Commissioner for Parliamentary Standards"

(Recommendation 45).

The Parliamentary Standards Bill which the Government presented to Parliament contained provisions allowing the IPSA to recommend sanctions. They were removed during the Bill's passage.

As it now appears that allowing sanctions to be imposed directly by the regulator is acceptable, the Government will introduce amendments to the 2009 Act to give the compliance officer the power to impose sanctions, namely a civil penalty, as well as requiring restitution of wrongly paid allowances. Repayments, monetary penalties and costs will also be made recoverable as a civil debt. In addition, the Government will provide a route of appeal from the decisions of the compliance officer to the first-tier tribunal. Since allowances claims are not covered by privilege, there should not be any difficulty in this regard.

Cases could still be referred to the Committee on Standards and Privileges if it is felt that parliamentary sanctions are also needed or to the prosecuting authorities if the offence of making false declarations may have been committed.

Lay members of the Speaker's Committee

The Committee recommends that

"the Speaker's Committee on the independent regulator should include three lay members drawn from outside Parliament who have not previously been MPs or peers. They should be chosen through the official public appointments process and formally approved by the House"

(Recommendation 48).

The Government propose to bring forward legislation to provide for the appointment of lay members of the Speaker's Committee.

General duty to act openly and transparently

The Committee recommends that the independent regulator should be placed under a general duty to act openly and transparently, to give reasons for any revisions to the expenses scheme, and to report, and take account of, the views of the general public as well as the House of Commons (Recommendation 49).

Section 5(4) of the Parliamentary Standards Act requires the IPSA to consult a number of people and bodies in preparing an allowances scheme, including "any person the IPSA considers appropriate".

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 already applies to the IPSA, including a duty to issue a publication scheme.

The Government are however content to bring forward amendments to the 2009 Act to add an additional requirement that the IPSA must give reasons for its revisions to the allowances scheme, to give reasons for adopting a determination in respect of MPs' pay, and to consult the general public. (See also response to recommendations 41 and 60.)

Sunset provisions

The Committee recommends that

"the sunset provisions in the Parliamentary Standards Act 2009 should be repealed"

(Recommendation 53).

The sunset provisions, set out in section 15 of the Act, were inserted in the House of Lords. They deal with the code of conduct on financial interests and the position of the independent commissioner for investigations. As both the role of the IPSA in relation to the code and the commissioner are to be repealed, the sunset clause has no further purpose and therefore can be similarly repealed.

Publication of claims

The Committee recommends that

"the independent regulator should continue to publish, at least quarterly, each individual claim for reimbursement made by MPs with accompanying receipts or documentary evidence. The information published should not be confined to claims actually reimbursed"

(Recommendation 60).

As part of the proposed amendments to the 2009 Act to give effect to recommendations 41 and 49, which require the IPSA to act transparently, the Government will bring forward legislation to place on the IPSA the duty to publish claims made and allowances paid, with such details as it considers appropriate. The 2009 Act already requires IPSA to determine procedures for the circumstances in which findings of investigations should be published. (See also response to recommendations 41 and 49.)

There are three further recommendations which would require legislation to achieve, but on which it has been accepted that immediate legislation is not necessary.

Publication of electoral candidates' financial interests

The Committee recommends that

"all candidates at parliamentary elections should publish, at nomination, a register of interests including the existence of other paid jobs and whether they intend to continue to hold them if elected. The Ministry of Justice should issue guidance on this in time for the next general election. Following the election, consideration should be given as to whether the process should become a statutory part of the nomination process"

(Recommendation 37).

The Ministry of Justice is working on the guidance. The Ministry of Justice will discuss the approach with the Electoral Commission and others as appropriate before guidance is issued, in time for the next general election. A decision about whether to implement this on a statutory basis will, as the Committee suggests, be taken in the next Parliament.

Hon. Members who are members of devolved legislatures

The Committee recommends that the practice of permitting a Westminster MP simultaneously to sit in a devolved legislature should be brought to an end, ideally by the time of the elections to the three devolved legislatures for May 2011 (Recommendation 40)

This is not strictly an issue about MPs' allowances. The Committee recommends that this provision should be in place by May 2011 and the Government will consult interested parties before implementing it in the next Parliament.

Term of office of IPSA Chair

The CSPL recommends that

"the chair of the new regulatory body should be appointed for a single, non-renewable five year term. The other members of the new body should in principle be appointed on the same basis, but some flexibility may need to be shown in relation to those appointed in the first round" (Recommendation 47).

Paragraph 4(1) of schedule 1 to the 2009 Act provides for the chair of the IPSA to be appointed "for a fixed term not exceeding five years". Paragraph 4(3) provides that "a person who has held office as a member of the IPSA (whether as the chair or an ordinary member) may be re-appointed as a member once only, for a further period (whether consecutive or not) not exceeding three years".

The CSPL acknowledges the need for flexibility in relation to the first round of appointments. The Government accept the principle of the recommendation, but believes that amendments to the legislation are not required now. They could be made at a later date if still required.

TRANSPORT

Autumn Performance Report 2009

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Mr. Sadiq Khan): My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Transport, Lord Adonis, has made the following ministerial statement:

I have today published my Department's Autumn Performance Report for 2009 (CM7737). Copies have been laid before Parliament and placed in the House Libraries.

The report provides Parliament with details of progress on performance against the departmental strategic objectives, value for money and public service agreements, using data available up to November 2009.

Consultation on HGV Testing Exemptions

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark): The Department for Transport has today issued a consultation document on our proposals to remove or modify some of the exemptions from the statutory annual roadworthiness testing scheme which currently apply to certain categories of heavy goods vehicles.

I have placed copies of the document in the House Library.

Local Transport Act 2008:Quality Contracts Schemes

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Mr. Sadiq Khan): The Local Transport Act 2008 includes provisions designed to make bus quality contracts schemes—the London-style model of bus contracts—a more realistic option for local transport authorities throughout England and Wales. The Government are today announcing that these provisions will come into force, in England, on 11 January 2010.

Supporting regulations will be laid before Parliament within the next few days and statutory guidance, applying in England from 11 January 2010, is being issued today. The Government are also today beginning the process of recruiting members of a panel of persons from which members of QCS boards will be appointed. QCS boards are independent boards with a remit to provide an opinion on whether proposed quality contracts schemes in England meet the statutory public interest criteria, and on whether due process has been followed.

Copies of the statutory guidance, the Government's response to the consultation and the recruitment pack for QCS board panel members are being placed in the Libraries of both Houses and will also be available on the Department for Transport's website.

Airport Economic Regulation

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark): My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Transport, Lord Adonis, has made the following ministerial statement:

In March, the Government consulted on a number of proposals designed to modernise the framework for the airport economic regulatory regime and put passengers at its heart. The review primarily seeks to ensure that economic regulation improves the passenger experience and encourages timely and appropriate investment.

Having considered responses to the consultation, I intend to introduce as soon as parliamentary time will allow a package of reforms that:

Modernise the statutory duties of the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) in this area. The Government will replace the CAA's existing duties with a single primary duty to promote the interests of end consumers of passenger and freight services at airports. In order to provide clarity about the additional factors the CAA need to take into account when making decision, the Government will also be introducing new subordinate duties.

Introduce a new licensing regime that is flexible and targeted. The new regime gives the regulator sanctions and enforcement powers to incentivise licensee compliance.

Introduce a new framework of merit based appeals to ensure the regulator is accountable for the decisions it makes.

Enhance passenger representation within the aviation sector. To ensure that passengers have an independent and influential advocate with an end-to-end journey perspective, the Government will introduce legislation to make Passenger Focus the passenger representative body for aviation. Passenger Focus will build on the firm foundations established by the Air Transport Users Council.

Promote the financial resilience of major airports. In October, this year I brought forward the announcement on financial resilience in order to provide as much certainty as possible for the industry and its investors, and support sustained investment. In this announcement I said that the Government intended to consult on two further financial aspects and this consultation is published today.

A few responses to the consultation raised the importance of connecting regional economies to London airports and international destinations. The Government recognise this issue and will commission research to gather further evidence.

This package of reforms is intended to provide a modern and flexible economic regulatory framework for airports which I believe reflects best practice in other regulated regimes and promotes the interests of passengers, investment, as well as the principles of Better Regulation.

I also intend to consult on further proposals to update the regulatory framework for aviation.

The Government commissioned Sir Joseph Pilling to carry out a strategic review of the Civil Aviation Authority to ensure that it remained able to meet current and future challenges. He described the CAA as a "highly successful organisation" and concluded that it remained appropriate to have a specialist aviation regulator, with a broad range of functions from safety to economic regulation. But he also identified that changes were needed to modernise the CAA's legislative and governance framework. In particular, he considered it important that the CAA's role should be to safeguard the public interest, and he recommended that we make it absolutely clear in the legislation that the CAA's primary responsibility is to the public rather than the aviation industry.

I am consulting on proposals giving the CAA a clear statutory focus, consistent with our international obligations and aligned with Better Regulation principles, by assigning new objectives to the organisation. These will apply to most of the CAA's functions and will ensure that the CAA focuses its attention on pursuing the interests of consumers and seeking environmental improvements while maintaining a high standard of safety.

To support the CAA in delivering its objectives, I am also proposing to give powers to enable it to obtain relevant information and make arrangements for that information to be made publically available where this is in the interests of consumers or those affected by aviation. The CAA would only be able to use this power where it could demonstrate that the benefits of publishing information outweighed the costs.

I also want to see the CAA's governance and enforcement arrangements aligned with modern regulatory practice. I am proposing to give the CAA access to a range of civil sanctions, which will address concerns previously expressed about the disproportionate and inappropriate nature of criminal sanctions for certain offences.

We have looked at financial protection for air passengers following the failure of the XL Leisure Group in 2008. This highlighted the need to reform the ATOL scheme which provides reimbursement and repatriation in the event of insolvency.

We are committed by European legislation to provide financial protection for passengers on package holidays. We decided in 2005 not to extend this to all flights. Although that remains the right decision, the concept of a package holiday has become blurred by the way many holidays are sold through mix-and-match components. Consumers must be able to make informed choices. My objective now is to create a clear boundary of protection, and this objective is shared by the travel trade. The consultation puts forward several options for this.

I am also consulting on a number of measures to rationalise the process for making airport byelaws. The main aims are to modernise and streamline the existing airport byelaw-making process and increase the level of consultation with interested parties during the preparation of airport byelaws.

The proposals in this consultation will provide strategic direction for the CAA and help it regulate the aviation industry in tune with modern needs.

Copies of the decision document, both consultation documents and associated publications have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Equality 2025

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Jonathan Shaw): In line with good practice on non-departmental public bodies, the Office for Disability Issues commissioned an internal review of 'Equality 2025: the UK Advisory Network on Disability Equality' in June 2009. The review recognised that Equality 2025's remit of offering Government advice and expertise on disability equality issues remains valid and recommended it should continue unchanged. The review also recommended developing Equality 2025's strategic role as an 'expert group' and streamlining its size. I have broadly accepted these recommendations and officials are now working towards their implementation. The full list of review recommendations is available on the Office for Disability Issues' website at: www.officefordisability.gov.uk.

I am pleased to announce that the Office for Disability Issues intends to publish the report of the review of Equality 2025 in the first half of 2010. The document will be available on the Office for Disability Issues' website and will also be placed in the Libraries of both Houses of Parliament.

BUSINESS, INNOVATION AND SKILLS

EU Competitiveness Council (3-4 December)

The Minister for Higher Education and Intellectual Property (Mr. David Lammy): The EU Competitiveness Council took place in Brussels on 3 and 4 December 2009. The following is a summary of those discussions.

My hon. Friend the Minister for Further Education, Skills, Apprenticeships and Consumer Affairs, represented the UK on 3 December on EU consumer issues, while on 4 December I represented the UK on EU patents issues and the Minister responsible for Business and Regulatory Reform, my hon. Friend the Member for Wrexham (Ian Lucas), attended the ministerial lunchtime debate on General Motors/Opel. Andy Lebrecht, the UK's Deputy Permanent Representative to the EU, represented the UK when a Minister was not in attendance.

On 3 December the main areas of discussion were research and consumer affairs. On research, the UK argued for a more sophisticated approach to setting targets for the level and impact of R and D investment. Many countries agreed, however the Commission felt abandoning the current 3 per cent. headline target would send a negative signal to business and research communities.

There was strong backing for any EU Lisbon strategy successor to encourage better links between researchers and innovators across Europe. The UK emphasised the need to lever more private sector investment in innovation. There was also broad agreement to reduce bureaucracy for applicants and participants in EU R and D framework programmes.

Conclusions on a new joint European research programme on Alzheimer's and for other research items were adopted. However decisions to reform crest, the high level group on EU science policy issues were delayed until 2010.

When debating the draft Consumer Rights Directive, the UK was keen to see fully harmonised solutions across the whole directive that were acceptable to the majority of member states, and supported harmonisation where it could be shown that divergent rules create barriers to trade, though not at the expense of important consumer protections, such as the right to reject faulty goods and receive a full refund. Discussions on the draft directive will continue under the Spanish EU presidency in the first half of 2010.

On 4 December agreement was reached in principle on a general approach on a community patent regulation and Council conclusions regarding a European patent court, patent fees and partnership working between the European Patent Office and national patent offices. The presidency, Commission and several member states acknowledged there would still be difficult discussions ahead before there was full completion, but the UK said this step was long overdue and it was vital to move forward.

At a ministerial lunchtime discussion, Ministers heard an update from General Motors/Opel on its plans for European restructuring. There were no formal conclusions. No agreement was made on the proposal for a European private company statute. It will now be for the Commission and future EU presidencies to decide if and when to come back to this.

Ministers agreed Council conclusions after debating eco-efficient industry policy as a contribution to the revised EU Lisbon strategy. The Commission felt the EU Competitiveness Council had a vital role to play in future deliberations on a Lisbon strategy successor, and these should take account of areas such as climate change, demography, and finding the right balance between competitiveness and high quality jobs.

The UK stressed the importance of the EU being competitive at a global level and of strengthening the EU single market. The UK also stated that the temporary state aid framework should end as planned in December 2010, and that the EU should exploit and invest more in R and D and innovation to ensure a competitive, modern and diverse industrial base in Europe. Many delegations expressed a desire for a more powerful voice for the Competitiveness Council and considered it important to give greater priority to green technologies.

For other items, conclusions on better regulation were adopted as drafted. UK and Malta tabled a joint minute statement on gambling which expressed concerns over the presidency progress report. They requested no further discussion in Council as the current Commission had no intention to legislate.

Under any other business points, the Commission reported on the Global Monitoring for Environment and Security (GMES) initiative. It was felt unlikely this would ever be profit making, but would however be strategically beneficial for Europe. When giving a progress report on the construction products directive, the Commission singled out the simplified procedures for small to medium enterprises (SMEs) as important in reducing administrative burdens. The Commission also updated the Council on the recent Google books settlement.

Spain presented priorities for their forthcoming EU presidency (January to June 2010) which will be innovation, standardisation and business and SME competitiveness. Future industrial policy would be considered in the context of the crisis. There would be a new EU strategy on electric vehicles, to be discussed at the informal Competitiveness Council on 8 and 9 February in San Sebastian, Spain. The presidency would promote socially responsible tourism, and address the EU's target of a 25 per cent. reduction in administrative burdens by 2012, as well as implementation of the EU services directive.

Telecoms Council (18 December)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills (Mr. Stephen Timms): I am pleased to confirm the agenda items for which BIS has responsibility at the forthcoming Transport, Telecommunications and (Telecoms Council) in Brussels on 18 December 2009.

There are only three substantive agenda items, the first of which is a televised policy debate on the adoption of council conclusions on the "Post i-2010 strategy"-towards an open, green and competitive knowledge society". These conclusions are member states, consolidated views on what policies and workstreams, should be in the successor to the current i-2010 framework (i-2010 is Europe's ICT agenda). The UK welcomes and supports the adoption of these conclusions, as ICT is now seen by all member states as one of the most important components of a state's economic "armoury". They are in line with the Digital Britain report and also with the priorities that the UK submitted to the recent EU Commissions public consultation on a successor to i-2010. They will be taken account by the Commission in crafting their new ICT strategy, due to be adopted in the first half of 2010.

In my intervention (we expect nearly all member states to make comments) I will welcome the opportunity to debate this essential issue, and as per my recent letters to both Houses on i-2010, I will suggest that a new ICT strategy framework, should now focus on an agenda that delivers greater benefit for businesses and consumers; should be economically focused, and that the Commission should move away from regulation towards incentivising take up and investment in new networks/technologies, particularly carbon reducing technologies.

The next item on the agenda is the adoption of "Council conclusions on "Communication from the Commission - transforming the digital dividend into social benefits and economic growth" This item concerns the members states views on this communication, which outlined a set of proposals for a common approach to the digital dividend in Europe. (The digital dividend is the radio spectrum that is released when member states switch from analogue to digital television). We do not expect a table round on this item, but if there is a discussion, I will intervene to note my support for the conclusions and their encouragement to member states to complete their switchover programmes during 2012. I will also emphasise our preference for a non-legislative approach to the use of the 800MHz band for mobile broadband services.

The last substantive item on the agenda is the adoption of Council resolution on "Collaborative European approach on network and information security". The resolution (on which there are no reserves) notes the Commissions efforts in 2009 to promote action on critical information infrastructure protection and it also looks forward to the Commission's forthcoming proposals on network and information security priorities and the future of ENISA. I will be intervening (if there is a discussion) to note that we welcome this resolution and that the UK has an open mind about the future of ENISA and look forward to the Commission's proposals on this matter.

The Swedish presidency are also hosting a ministerial lunch, where member states will debate, informally, the issue of competition and investment in "Next Generation Networks". This discussion will start with a presentation, by UK spectrum expert, Martin Cave and I will emphasise the importance of maintaining (and indeed enhancing) competition, as we move towards adoption of next generation networks. In particular, I will stress the need for competitive access to new networks across the EU.

In addition to the three substantive items, there are two further items for which BIS has responsibility listed under any other business. The first of these will be an update from the Council presidency on internet governance including a report on the recent Internet Governance Forum that took place in Sharm el-Sheikh in Egypt.

Finally, the incoming Spanish presidency will present their work programme for the next six months, which begins on 1 January 2009.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children's Plan

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): I am today announcing, on the second anniversary of the Children's Plan, the publication of the "Children's Plan 2 Years On: a progress report", as well as both the publication of an independent assessment of the impact of the commercial world on children's wellbeing, and the appointment of Sarah Thane CBE to develop proposals about the regulation of child performance.

Children's Plan 2 Years On: A progress report

This report demonstrates how the Children's Plan, which puts the child at the centre of all our policy and provision, has significantly changed children's services to the great benefit of children, young people and their families, and all those who work with them. As a result, the Children's Plan has significantly improved outcomes for children and young people. It can be accessed at: www.dcsf.gov.uk/childrensplan.

As well as celebrating what has already been achieved, today's "Children's Plan 2 Years On" report shows the huge advances that are made for children when families are supported, and whole communities are enabled to work together to overcome the challenges they face.

The report explains that over the next five years we will:

Introduce new guarantees setting out what children, young people and their parents can expect from services through: the new pupil and parent guarantees underpinned by legislation in the Children, Schools and Families Bill; the September guarantee and, in 2010, the January guarantee to a suitable place in education post-16; and setting out what support families can expect from the early years onward in a Green Paper concerning families and relationships.

Further professionalise the workforce across all children's services. In the early year's workforce we will have better qualified practitioners, increasingly with graduate leadership; within social work we have accepted the recommendations of the social work taskforce to ensure children, young people and their families receive the highest standards of care; and we will develop a professional status for the youth sector.

Develop and support the best leaders by investing in developing talent and giving our leaders the flexibility to innovate.

Be tough on services that fail to deliver. The early success of national challenge has shown what can be achieved when support and appropriate intervention is targeted at underperforming schools through local authorities. It is equally important that we intervene where local authorities are failing to deliver children's services to an acceptable standard.

We are committed to continued investment in the services and other activities required to fulfil the ambitions set out in the Children's Plan and are keen to move to the next stage of reform. But now more than ever, we need to ensure we are getting real value for money from our investment. In this tougher fiscal climate, we need to continue supporting and working with those who deliver services, including those on the frontline, in combining investment and efficiency savings to meet spending requirements, and to deliver our guarantees to pupils, parents and school leavers. We must remain focused on meeting the challenges facing all those working with children. Through a collective effort we believe we can go even further and can move 21st century children's services from being good to outstanding, making England the best place in the world to grow up.

I am also pleased to announce the launch of a new blog site as part of the Children's Plan village at: www.dcsf.gov.uk/childrensplan. The website includes case studies and video showing how the Children's Plan has made a positive difference to children and young people, families and practitioners over the past two years.

The Impact of the Commercial World on Children's Wellbeing

The Government announced in the Children's Plan our intention to "commission an independent assessment of the impact of the commercial world on young people" and later that David Buckingham, Professor of Education at the Institute of Education, would lead this work, supported by a panel of independent experts.

Professor Buckingham and his team conducted an extensive review of the available evidence and spoke to a large number of stakeholders representing the broad spectrum of opinion on this subject. I am today publishing the resultant report. It reflects the fact that Professor Buckingham was asked, first and foremost, to bring together and critically assess all the available research and evidence that exists on this vast subject.

Professor Buckingham's report raises a number of far-ranging issues, from the need to promote greater media literacy to the regulation of new media and the need to safeguard children's television as part of a broadcaster's responsibility to provide public service content. I am very grateful to Professor Buckingham and his colleagues for such a thorough piece of work.

The key messages from this comprehensive piece of work are that:

The children's commercial market is already large, is continuing to grow and is becoming increasingly sophisticated in its activities, in particular through new media. This trend seems set to continue;

The children's market does not exist in isolation. Notwithstanding considerable social change in recent decades, parents continue to play the pivotal role in how children are affected by the market, although peers also have a considerable influence, especially as children grow into adolescence;

So far as the impact of the commercial world on children is concerned the evidence shows a complex picture from which it is not possible to draw simple conclusions about cause or effect. The evidence does not validate either the notion that commercialisation is creating a 'toxic childhood', nor the notion that children are highly sophisticated consumers able to navigate with ease through a benign market;

Children are also increasingly aware of commercial forces in public places and in schools, and there is significant commercial activity going on within schools.

Professor Buckingham's thoughtful report requires a considered response, and we have decided that this should comprise the following elements:

We will take action to ensure children and their parents are supported to improve their media literacy skills, especially relating to new media.

As a first necessary step towards this we will shortly establish a panel to assess the place of media literacy within the school curriculum, to help schools to enhance the media literacy of their pupils. We believe our overriding aim should be to ensure children are safe while enjoying the many opportunities that both old and new media have to offer.

We will also develop materials to help parents guide their children and help them deal with commercial messages transmitted via old and new media working with the Digital Participation consortia set up following the Digital Britain White Paper.

It is important that the regulatory framework keeps pace with technical developments and the subsequent new marketing techniques that might be directed at children. In response to these issues the independent advertising regulators recently undertook an extensive public consultation exercise to inform the updating of both the broadcast and non-broadcast media codes. The revised codes will be published early in the New Year.

We are also working with the Department for Culture, Media and Sport and the Department of Health to ensure that the wellbeing of children is given priority, particularly in areas such as food promotion. The chief medical officer is planning this week to issue guidelines on the health effects and risks of children drinking alcohol. Working closely with industry, we will look at developing a set of voluntary principles to underpin all forms of marketing and promotion of food and drink to children, particularly where established mandatory self-regulatory and co-regulatory regimes do not exist. We also welcome the fact that the Internet Advisory Bureau has developed a set of good practice principles for online behavioural advertising. These came into force in September 2009.

We want there to be strong links and productive partnerships between schools and businesses, as illustrated in "Building Stronger Partnerships", published in December 2008. The best practice principles relating to the commercial aspects of these partnerships have been in place for nine years. We have reviewed these with businesses and school partners and we now plan to update them to provide stronger guidance about the characteristics of good partnerships and how these are best formed, so both schools and businesses can benefit. The new charity, the Education and Employers Taskforce, will be doing more to co-ordinate and promote constructive joint working between schools and employers. It has already published some initial online guidance.

We recognise how important public service broadcasting (PSB) is to children. Professor Buckingham's report found that older children are relatively poorly served by PSB and made it clear that there is a need to encourage high quality UK-sourced, original PSB content for children. We strongly agree and we welcome the BBC executive's recent decision to increase their budget for children's content, and the new remit for Channel 4.

Child Internet Safety

We have also launched the UK Child Council for Child Internet Safety (UKCCIS) strategy—the first UK strategy on child internet safety and, we believe, the first strategy of its kind anywhere in the world led and owned by an unprecedented coalition of Government, industry, charities, law enforcement and many others united in working together to help children stay safe online. And we have launched the first stage of the "Click Clever Click Safe" public awareness campaign with our online version of the green cross code: "Zip it, Block it, Flag it". We want to see the digital code become as familiar as "Stop, Look, Listen".

For the first time, key players from industry, charities and Government will be independently reviewed against standards to keep children safe online. Online safety is already a compulsory part of the national curriculum for secondary schools and is also being taught in many primary schools. From September 2011, online safety will be a compulsory part of the curriculum from age five.

As Professor Buckingham's report makes clear, the commercial world offers children many exciting opportunities in terms of entertainment, creativity, communication, learning and cultural experience, but it also carries some risks. Both issues can be seen in the specific context of children's participation in television, film and theatre performances.

Our starting principle is that performing is good for children because of the opportunities it offers them to develop their skills and talents, to have these recognised and praised and to develop more self-confidence as a result. Performing is often highly enjoyable for children, while also giving great pleasure to many people beyond children's families and friends.

As a country, we want to continue celebrating the brilliant performances of children in stage shows like Billy Elliott or programmes like Britain's Got Talent, and it is right that our talented children should continue aspiring to appear on those stages.

We also benefit as a country from the careful and sensitive insight into children's lives given by films like Fish Tank or documentary programmes like My First Year.

But where many parents, educators and Ministers become concerned is when programme makers seem determined to keep pushing the boundaries of what is acceptable, to provide shock value for viewers and push up ratings, rather than to do anything positive or meaningful for our children, our culture or our country.

The relevant legislation is set out in the Children and Young Persons Act 1963 and the 1968 regulations which relate to it. This regulatory regime applies across a huge range of performance activities, from local dramatics and talent shows to popular television programmes and films.

There are a number of difficulties with the 1968 regulations, and also the primary legislation on which they depend. For example, the legislation is highly complex; is interpreted very differently in different places; and is hard to apply to contemporary broadcasting. Concerns have also been raised that the regulations are often misapplied, or sometimes not applied at all. Some have also asserted that the current regulations do not reflect current thinking about the nature of the biggest risks to children, or children's greater maturity today compared to 50 years ago.

Questions have also been raised about whether there is sufficient information and guidance currently available to parents who are considering agreeing to their children taking part in performance activities, or indeed to all of those putting on performances, and of parents.

Increasing technological convergence also means that there is a need to consider these issues in a way that takes fully into account the fact that the boundaries between different forms of communication are blurring—those between television and the internet especially. Unless a modern framework is developed which consciously looks ahead there is a serious risk of it being rapidly overtaken by technological change.

Questions have therefore arisen about the extent to which the current regulatory approach is still fit for purpose today. My Department has lead responsibility for the regulation of child performance. Earlier this year, I asked officials to examine the 1968 regulations with the aim of updating them. The results were discussed informally over the summer with interested parties. These discussions made it clear that simply updating the existing regulations would probably not create the kind of approach that we believe we now need: that is, one that protects children effectively and proportionately from the risk of harm, enables them to make the most of the many exciting performance opportunities now available, and reflects and respects the right to freedom of expression and editorial independence.

I and the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport have therefore decided jointly to commission a piece of work to explore these issues in greater detail, with a view to deciding what a modern, effective and proportionate set of arrangements for the regulation of child performance should look like, and we have appointed Sarah Thane, CBE, to lead it. Sarah Thane is a former chair of the Royal Television Society, a former adviser to Ofcom on regulation and content, and a member of the governing board of Teachers TV, and therefore brings considerable, relevant experience and expertise to the task.

Sarah Thane will engage and work with all those with an inte[illegible] area, including organisations representing children [illegible] parents; children's charities; broadcasters, programme and film makers; representatives of local arts and drama organisations; theatre organisations and local authorities, among others. Sarah Thane will report her conclusions to us by the end of February 2010.

Vetting and Barring Scheme

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): I am today publishing Sir Roger Singleton's report on the vetting and barring scheme, "Drawing the Line", together with the Government's response. I am placing copies in the Libraries of both Houses.

Parliament legislated for the new scheme in the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006 and it received overwhelming support. We recognised then, as we do now, that it is essential to ensure that children and vulnerable adults are properly safeguarded and that we do everything we reasonably can to protect them from those who seek to do them harm.

Our aim throughout has been to develop an approach which is proportionate, balanced and effective, with the scheme operating in a way which is neither burdensome nor bureaucratic, or off-putting to potential volunteers in children's settings—while still meeting the concerns of parents.

We have found much support for the scheme as we have taken this work forward through a process of extensive consultation with those who run services and activities for children.

It has always been our intention that mutually agreed and responsible arrangements made between parents and friends for the care of their children should be excluded from the vetting and barring scheme. That principle is central to the 2006 Act.

However, some significant concerns have been expressed about the interpretation of one particular aspect of the scheme; the degree of contact with children which should trigger the requirement to register with the Independent Safeguarding Authority (ISA). Striking the right balance on where to draw the line that separates those situations that should be covered from those that should be excluded has undoubtedly been a difficult judgement.

In my letter of 14 September to my hon. Friend the Member for Huddersfield (Mr. Sheerman), chair of the Children, Schools and Families Select Committee, I said that Baroness Morgan and I had asked Sir Roger Singleton to check that the Government have drawn the line in the right place on this issue.

We are very grateful to Sir Roger for his very thorough work on this over the last three months, during which he has consulted a wide range of key individuals and organisations, including relevant unions, inspectorates, voluntary organisations, faith groups and local charities and clubs. His work was also informed by a survey of some 1,800 parents carried out by the National Confederation of Parent Teacher Associations.

I am therefore pleased to confirm that the Government welcome and accept all 10 of Sir Roger's recommendations to make sure that the vetting and barring scheme draws the line in the right place, protecting children without getting involved in private arrangements between parents and friends.

Taken together, we believe these recommendations strike the right balance between the need to protect the vulnerable on the one hand, and the importance of having a scheme which is proportionate and which is based on some fundamental guiding principles, consistently applied, on the other.

Sir Roger's report is based on two fundamental guiding principles which underpin both his overall approach and all his specific recommendations and which also underpin the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006.

The first principle is that where parents exercise their own judgment about who should care for their children that is entirely a private matter in which the scheme should not interfere. But where parents give that choice to an organisation, such as a school, club or group and cease to be able to make a personal decision about which adult provides the care or teaching etc, then registration should be required, subject to how often the contact takes place between the adults and the children.

The second principle is that the statutory requirements laid down should go no further than is necessary for the safety and protection of children, At the same time, it is also necessary, and appropriate, to recognise that some organisations will choose to require registration in situations of exceptional vulnerability, whether or not the frequency test is met; for example, if the person will be expected to provide intimate personal care for a severely disabled child. This allows for a degree of local flexibility and recognises everyone's responsibility for safeguarding.

As Sir Roger notes in his report, public misunderstanding has led to concerns that the scheme risks intruding inappropriately into family life. It is not and it never will be this Government's policy that this should happen. We therefore strongly welcome the recommendations in Sir Roger's report, which make this absolutely and unambiguously clear.

The Government welcomes Sir Roger's recommended adjustments to the scheme's requirements which include:

> Where organisations such as schools, clubs or groups make the decisions as to which adults should work with their children then the requirement to register with the VBS should apply, subject to the frequent and intensive contact provisions;
> The frequent contact test should be met if the work with children takes place once a week or more (at present the test is if activity happens as often as once a month). This covers regular repetitive activity;
> The intensive contact test should be met if the work takes place on four days in one month or more or overnight. This change will make the scheme easier to understand and put into practice, since at present the test is three times in every 30 days or overnight. This covers the circumstances where there is contact over a short space of time which is not necessarily repeated;
> Individuals who go into different schools or similar settings to work with different groups of children should not be required to register unless their contact with the same children is frequent or intensive;
> The minimum age of registration for young people who engage in regulated activity as part of their continuing education will be reviewed. The Government will change the rules so that 16, 17 and 18-year-olds in education will not be required to register;
> Overseas visitors bringing their own groups of children to the UK e.g. to international camps or the Olympics, should have a three months exemption from the requirement to register for the work they do with the children or vulnerable adults they have brought to the UK; and
> Exchange visits lasting less than 28 days, where overseas parents accept the responsibility for the selection of the host family, should be regarded as private arrangements and will not require registration.

We believe that these adjustments to the scheme are proportionate and that they will be supported by parents, employers and by those who work or volunteer with children and vulnerable adults. The changes they will bring about are faithful to the two fundamental principles of allowing parents to make their own private arrangements without interference, and ensuring that requirements set by the state do the minimum necessary to protect children and the vulnerable.

Sir Roger's report also invites the Government to undertake further work in three areas:

> To review the registration requirements for self-employed private health practitioners. As the law currently stands, when a patient attends one of these practitioners it will be a private arrangement and therefore although the practitioners may register with the scheme, there will be no requirement for them to do so. However, the intimate nature of medical treatment may suggest that these practitioners should be registered. The Department of Health will lead on this review in collaboration with my Department and the health care regulators;
> To review whether there is a continuing need for the separate class of work with different requirements, defined in the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006 as "controlled activity". Controlled activity refers to certain tightly defined ancillary and support activities, mainly in FE colleges, NHS settings and local authorities. Far fewer people are potentially covered by "controlled activity" than by "regulated activity". Sir Roger invites the Government to take stock of whether controlled activity is a necessary part of the scheme. My Department and the Department of Health will take this review forward together, in collaboration with the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills;
> To review the statutory requirements, and the Government's advice, for CRB disclosures on those who work with vulnerable groups when they are already registered with the ISA. We had already undertaken to carry out this work once the scheme had settled in.

The Government will take forward these three reviews in the New Year.

The changes recommended by Sir Roger will impact on the numbers of people who will have to register. Initial estimates by the Home Office indicate that Sir Roger's recommendations will lead to approximately 2 million fewer individuals needing to register with the vetting and barring scheme. This suggests that the new figure of those who will have to register with the scheme lies in the range of 9 million to 9.5 million. The Government will publish a revised impact assessment shortly.

Sir Roger rightly underlines in his report the need for renewed efforts to communicate the details and safeguarding benefits of the scheme. The Government will therefore commission further communications activity to help explain the scheme. We will also act swiftly to dispel any myths and misunderstandings about the scheme with updates to the briefing notes that are on our website and which I have sent to hon. Members. The Government will also reflect all of Sir Roger's recommendations in the full guidance on the scheme that we intend to publish in the New Year.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Connecting Communities

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. John Denham): On 14 October, I informed Parliament about my plan to reinvigorate and connect with those communities that are feeling the pressure from recession most acutely and ensure they are well placed to share fully in future prosperity and emerge stronger and more cohesive.

I can today inform Parliament that I am extending that programme to a further 85 neighbourhoods across 54 local authorities, adding to the 27 neighbourhoods across 21 local authorities that I announced in October.

The expansion of the programme means over 100 communities are now getting targeted help in addressing local issues. The package of support will enable local people to influence, shape and change policies on issues which really matter in their community. It will help to make sure that those people who are feeling the pressure the most are getting a bigger say and a fair deal.

Practical actions delivered on estates and streets will focus on making changes that address local people's concerns, reconnect them with jobs and tackle head on issues—real and perceived—which, left neglected, can prove fertile territory for extremism and those who would divide our communities.

I can also announce that around £2 million of funding is being directed at activity to support community champions, council staff and councillors that will help them develop the skills and confidence to address local issues head on. This funding complements extra support announced recently for around 130 local authority areas to tackle antisocial behaviour with training and support available to front-line staff and community champions.

DEFENCE

War Pension Committees

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Kevan Jones): I am today announcing a change to the role of the existing War Pensions Committees. This follows a review of their terms of reference and a consultation with organisations representing serving personnel and the ex-service community.

The new committees will be known as 'Veterans Advisory and Pensions Committees' and will initially be piloted across the country for a period of 12 months, with a review point at six months. There will be 13 committees established across England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, made up of volunteers from a cross-section of the local community. Members will include health, social care and legal professionals with an interest in ensuring the best possible service is provided to veterans and their families.

Their role will consist of three main elements:

To act as advocates for implementing improved cross-Government support, including services outlined in the Service Personnel Command Paper and recently announced 'Welfare Pathway'.

To raise awareness, within their areas, of the above services, the War Pension scheme, Armed Forces Compensation scheme and the Veterans Welfare service.

To assist veterans, and their families in accessing local support services as described above. Further, to provide assistance and guidance to individuals in accessing the war pension scheme and armed forces compensation scheme and to provide an independent element to the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency's complaints process relating to these schemes.

By extending the role of the committees to include an advocacy role, at local level, we are demonstrating the commitment of the Government to embed these initiatives across the country.

HEALTH

Kidney Care (National Service Framework)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Health (Ann Keen): The Department has today published "Achieving Excellence in Kidney Care: Delivering the National Service Framework for Renal Services", which outlines progress towards the standards and quality requirements of the national service framework, and highlights specific examples of good practice and innovation. The report also celebrates the first year of operation of the improvement organisation NHS Kidney Care, part of NHS Diabetes and Kidney Care.

Real progress to implement the national service framework has been made. The NHS is now a world-leader in the detection and management of chronic kidney disease in primary care, there has been a marked drop in MRSA infection rates among kidney patients as best practice in vascular access becomes more widespread, and there has also been a welcome reduction in the number of late referrals to renal replacement therapy services. Dialysis capacity has expanded through more main and satellite units, and progress continues to be made in increasing the number of organ donors, particularly as the recommendations of the organ donation taskforce are put into action.

The report is, however, equally clear that there is no room for complacency and that there remains a lot more work to be done to take kidney services from good to great. Looking to the future, it is clear that a renewed focus on the issue of acute kidney injury (acute renal failure) is required as part of driving up standards of care across acute medicine. Another central and important theme is achieving real patient choice, and ensuring that a full range of treatment settings are available for all patients, including increasing capacity for home haemodialysis in line with NICE guidance. This would enable patients to more effectively self-care if it is clinically appropriate, and if they wish to make that choice.

"Achieving Excellence in Kidney Care: Delivering the National Service Framework for Renal Services" has been placed in the Library of the House and copies are available for hon. Members from the Vote Office.

Genomic Medicine

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Gillian Merron): I am pleased to announce that the Government's response to the House of Lords Science and Technology Committee, genomic medicine inquiry report has been laid before Parliament. The Select Committee's report on the rapid developments in human genetics is extremely timely.

Since the Genetics White Paper 2003 "Our inheritance, our future", the Government have invested over £80 million to fund a broad-based programme of work that has put in place a framework for the National Health Service (NHS) genetics services today. These investments have already provided new levels of genetic knowledge, skills and services within the NHS. Following the review of the White Paper in 2008, the Government have been taking forward a series of actions:

to strengthen specialised genetic services;

position genetic services into the mainstream diagnostic pathway; promote understanding across the NHS; and generate new knowledge and applications.

In addition to this, the Medical Research Council and other research councils collectively invested over £45 million in genomic medicine in 2007-08.

The Government response reinforces our commitment to genetics research and aims to maintain our position as world leader in associated health research, development and innovation. It clearly sets out how we will continue to ensure the NHS is ready for future developments and that new technologies are properly developed and translated into clinical practice.

Health and Social Care Volunteering Fund

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Phil Hope): Following the 'Third Sector Funding and Investment Review' in 2008, and a subsequent procurement exercise conducted by the Department to appoint an organisation to manage and deliver a new 'health and social care volunteering fund', the Government have today announced that they have awarded the contract to act as volunteering fund manager to a partnership led by ECOTEC, with PrimeTimers, Attend and CSV, who will deliver support linked to grant funding to enable third sector organisations to achieve their objectives for long term sustainability.

The volunteering fund will provide two distinct grant funding schemes: a local grant scheme aimed at supporting volunteering in health and social care, with awards made subject to applicants being connected at local level to commissioners; and a national portfolio scheme through which national organisations will be able to apply for more substantial awards to deliver more strategic or developmental volunteering programmes. The fund manager will also share good practice, disseminate learning and deliver training and development for local and national volunteering programmes.

Volunteers play a range of critically important roles in our communities, and in the context of health and social care: contributing to the delivery of high quality health, care and support services; improving health and well-being; helping to reduce health and social inequality. They frequently offer support to people at the most vulnerable points in their lives.

The future of health and social care provision places an ever stronger emphasis on better quality and more personalised services, creating even more potential for new roles and opportunities for volunteering that complement the services provided by the paid workforce and utilise the expertise of service users in the provision of services.

The volunteering fund will replace the existing opportunities for volunteering (OFV) scheme over the next three years. Building on the success of the OFV scheme since 1982, the new volunteering fund will be more closely aligned with Departmental strategic objectives; therefore increasing the impact of the Government's investment in volunteering in directly supporting their integration with the delivery of Departmental strategic outcomes.

Overall, ECOTEC's planned approach will support coherent investment, reinforce the role of volunteering in health and social care, and support implementation of the funding and investment review and the developing strategic vision for volunteering in health and social care.

Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme

The Minister of State, Department of Health (Mr. Mike O'Brien): The 10th report to Parliament on the Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme (PPRS) was published today.

The Department published the first report on the PPRS in 1996 following a comment by the Health Committee that the "Department of Health should introduce greater transparency into the PPRS by publishing an annual report on the scheme". Since then, the Department has published a report to Parliament on the operation and management of the scheme most years. However, there has not been a report since July 2006 following the Office of Fair Trading's market study into the PPRS in 2007 and the renegotiation of the PPRS in 2007 and 2008. This latest report covers developments since the last report and a description of the new 2009 PPRS.

A copy of the report has been placed in the Library and copies are available for hon. Members from the Vote office.

JUSTICE

Out-of-Court-Disposals

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): On Monday 9 November I announced our intention to review the use of out-of-court disposals by criminal justice agencies. Today the Home Secretary, the Attorney-General and I are publishing the terms of reference for this review.

Out-of-court penalties and other similar interventions in one form or another have been available for a long time. They are designed to provide simple, swift and proportionate ways of responding to antisocial behaviour and low-risk offending and to save courts the time of listening to minor and undisputed matters. They also support rehabilitation and reparation, especially by young people, provide quick resolution to victims and free up time for the police and courts to focus on more serious offending.

Existing legislation and guidance on the use of out-of-court disposals is clear, but we have been concerned by reports of these disposals being used for apparently serious offences, including violent assaults. We are also concerned by the apparent variation between areas in the number of crimes brought to justice through the use of out-of-court disposals, by reports of the repeated use of such disposals even for low-level offences, and by the robustness of their enforcement.

We have therefore asked the Office for Criminal Justice Reform to conduct a review of the use of out-of-court disposals with the following terms of reference:

> To examine evidence on the use and enforcement of out-of-court disposals for adults and youths by criminal justice agencies;
> To identify any issues with current operational practices, including current performance and regulation frameworks, and compliance with legislation and published guidance;
> To report to Ministers in order that they can issue a written statement to Parliament in March 2010 on emerging findings and the focus for the next phase of the review, including any further work required to improve the compliance of criminal justice agencies with legislation and guidance and to consider possible changes to the out-of-court disposals frameworks for adults and youths to improve transparency and confidence in the criminal justice system.

The objective of this first phase of the review is to ensure we have a proper understanding of the operation of the existing out-of-court disposals framework. To this end, and in consultation with key criminal justice partners, the review will examine:

> i) national trends in the numbers of out-of-court disposals in the context of the level of crime, charged cases, court caseloads and convictions;
> ii) local variation in the number of out-of-court disposals and operational practice, including performance management and quality assurance arrangements;
> iii) the use of out-of-court disposals for serious offences, and the consultation with victims in such cases;

(iv) evidence of the effectiveness of out-of-court disposals, including operational issues such as the repeat issue of disposals to offenders, compliance and enforcement, and any evidence of the outcomes they deliver for offenders, victims and the public's confidence in the criminal justice system; and

(v) the efficiency of using out-of-court disposals, including evidence of their costs and benefits to criminal justice agencies, and any concerns about bureaucracy.

The findings from this first phase of the review will determine the work to be undertaken in the second phase of the review. The programme of work that will form the second phase of the review, and the timescales for this, will be set out in the further written statement I will issue to Parliament in March 2010.

Diverting Women Away from Crime

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Maria Eagle): Today I am publishing a report on the Government's strategy for diverting women away from crime. Prison is the right place for those who are dangerous and serious offenders but only 3 per cent. of the female population fall into that category.

Two years ago I announced our commitment to a fundamental change in how the criminal justice system deals with women. We believe rebalancing our spending from custodial provision to community provision will stop vulnerable women from becoming trapped in a cycle of crime. Women's offending is a complex problem which creates a burden on society, damage to children and families, and misery for the women themselves.

I am pleased to announce that having put in place an intensive, multi-agency approach, we are starting to make a difference, and I am today announcing a commitment to go further. We will:

Reduce the women's prison estate by 300 places by March 2011 and 400 places by March 2012 and divert resources from custody to the community to sustain the multi-agency community services we have established through grant funding.

Provide up to £5 million to improve approved premises accommodation for women offenders that are being closely supervised on release from custody, and for women offenders with high levels of need to keep them out of custody.

Make available funding of over £1 million to pilot a new project, from April 2010, to explore the benefits of early intervention for women with multiple needs from their first point of contact with the criminal justice system. Family intervention projects will target this group of women and their dependent children in up to 20 areas in England to provide intensive personalised support in a community setting. Dedicated key-workers will provide intensive support to vulnerable women and their families.

Fund enhanced bail support to provide mentoring and other provision to help over 500 more women settle in accommodation.

We have already made good progress with taking forward our strategy to divert women from crime. It takes time to effect change but we can already see a promising reduction in the number of women in prison and encouraging increase in the use of community orders for women.

These findings show we are moving swiftly towards our aim of a different, coherent and sustainable approach to help prevent vulnerable women from becoming trapped in a cycle of crime.

We have been investing to build the necessary community capacity to ensure that there are effective alternatives to custody for women who might otherwise be remanded into custody or given short prison sentences. Earlier this year I announced £15.6 million of new funding over two years, to invest in the provision of additional services in the community for women offenders, who are not a danger to the public, and women at risk of offending.

This funding has crucially given women offenders and those at risk of offending the engagement with the mainstream services they so often struggle to access. It has also enabled centres to give courts an alternative to short prison sentences by providing additional requirements that can be linked into a productive community sentence that can be more effective in cutting re-offending.

The issues that women and girls face are often multiple, complex and rooted in social exclusion; they commonly include mental health problems, drug and alcohol addiction, sexual and domestic abuse as well as concerns regarding their children's welfare, poverty and homelessness. By failing to address these needs we let down some of the most socially excluded people within our society today; the need to address these issues could not be clearer.

Through our work we aim to secure access for women to homes, jobs, mainstream health services, support to tackle drug and alcohol misuse and mental health problems, support for them and their children as a socially excluded group and as victims themselves.

Underpinning our strategy is the gender equality duty which is our main lever to ensure delivery of gender specific services. To promote awareness of how the gender equality duty supports a different approach to women offenders; share best practice and publicise the work and knowledge of local services within the community, a series of one day 'Women in Focus' stakeholder events have been held across the country, the evaluation of which will be published in early 2010.

The report sets out our progress and plans to consolidate and build on delivery of our strategy, to invest further in community provision, and to make more widespread changes to stop women committing crime and entering the criminal justice system. I have placed copies of the Update Report in the Libraries of both Houses. Copies are also available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

I firmly believe that the approach we have been taking and the further announcements today will help transform for the better the way women offenders are managed. It will also contribute to our wider ambition to prevent women who are at risk of offending from entering the justice system.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Independent Reviewer of the Justice and Security (Northern Ireland) Act 2007 (Annual Report)

The Minister of State, Northern Ireland Office (Paul Goggins): I have arranged for copies of the second report of Robert Whalley CB, Independent Reviewer of the Justice and Security (Northern Ireland) Act 2007 (the "2007 Act"), to be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

This second report provides an assessment of the operation of sections 21 to 32 of the 2007 act and the procedures adopted by the Brigade Commander 38 (Irish) Brigade for receiving, investigating and responding to complaints. The report covers the period 1 August 2008 to 31 July 2009.

The report highlights the seriousness in the security position this year, with the reviewer reporting that the use of the powers under the 2007 Act has remained entirely appropriate and proportional. The reviewer makes clear that, in the light of the activities of dissident republicans, the balance of argument for continuing the powers is persuasive.

The independent reviewer notes that while the low level of general complaints regarding military activity has been maintained, there has been an increase in the number of complaints in relation to helicopter flying. The reviewer does, however, assess that the procedures adopted by the Brigade Commander 38 (Irish) Brigade for dealing with these complaints is positive and he is satisfied that the staff concerned with addressing the complaints are aware of the importance of pursuing their inquiries fully and expeditiously. This is important, as these training flights are necessary and reflect the armed forces wider strategic commitment, particularly in Afghanistan.

There has also been a major change recently with the closure of RAF Aldergrove. While air activity will continue under the Joint Helicopter Command Flying Station Aldergrove, the reviewer has indicated this change presents an opportunity to review how best to reconcile military needs with the impact on the community, through the fullest possible engagement with the community.

The Chief Constable and the Brigade Commander 38 (Irish) Brigade have both welcomed the independent reviewer's report and the recommendations made. I too welcome the recommendations made by Robert Whalley in his second report and I will consider them carefully.

TRANSPORT

High Speed Two

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Chris Mole): My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Transport, Lord Adonis, has made the following ministerial statement:

> In January, the Government set up High Speed Two Ltd to advise on the development of high-speed rail services between London and Scotland. At the end of this month High Speed Two will report to me on a detailed route plan for the first stage of a north-south high-speed line, from London to the West Midlands. The company will also advise on options for extending high-speed services, and high-speed lines, to destinations further north, including the North-West, the East Midlands, Yorkshire, the North-East and Scotland. It will also advise on options for serving Heathrow Airport, and on connections between High Speed One and High Speed Two.
> HS2 will present a business case supported by technical assessments, including demand forecasts, and the potential for shifting journeys to high-speed rail from air and road. In respect of the route between London and the West Midlands, the company will also present detailed plans, design specifications, and an assessment of costs, funding and delivery structures.
> Having taken full account of the HS2 report, if the Government decide to pursue proposals for high-speed rail, we will publish a White Paper setting out plans by the end of March 2010. This would include route proposals, timescales and associated financial, economic, and environmental assessments. The White Paper would be followed by a full public consultation in the autumn of 2010, giving all interested parties an opportunity to comment before proposals are finalised and a Hybrid Bill is prepared.
> It would not be possible to publish the HS2 report in advance of a White Paper setting out the Government's plans, as to do so would cause unnecessary blight in respect of options identified but not taken forward. However, the report will be published alongside the Government's response. I will seek to minimise uncertainty for those who are potentially affected by a proposed line, and the White Paper would therefore set out, for consultation, a non-statutory hardship scheme.

Local Transport Act 2008: Review of Designated Bodies for Section 19 Permits

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Mr. Sadiq Khan): The Government are today publishing their response to the consultation on proposals to review the list of "designated bodies".

Under section 19 of the Transport Act 1985, the Secretary of State has the power to designate bodies who may issue permits under that section to eligible community transport operators. These "section 19" permits allow the holder to operate transport services for hire or reward, subject to certain conditions, without the need for a full public service vehicle operator's licence.

The Government published the 12-week consultation on the 21 July 2009, and intend final proposals to come into force around the middle of 2010. The proposals would apply to England, Scotland and Wales.

Copies of the formal response are available on the Departments website (www.dft.gov.uk) and in the Libraries of both Houses.

Railway Modernisation

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Chris Mole): My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Transport, Lord Adonis, has made the following ministerial statement:

> In July, I announced a £1.1 billion investment in the electrification of the Great Western Main Line between London and South Wales, and the line between Liverpool and Manchester.
> In the pre-Budget report the Chancellor indicated that the Government are now going ahead with plans for electrification of further lines in the North-West. I can today set out the lines and expected timescales involved.
> The first line is between Huyton—on the line running from Liverpool to Manchester—and Wigan, on the already electrified West Coast Main Line. This will allow electric trains to operate between Liverpool and Wigan via St. Helens. The second line is between Manchester and Euxton Junction—just south of Preston on the West Coast Main Line. This will allow electric trains to operate between Manchester and Preston, via Bolton. The third line is between Blackpool North and Preston. This will allow electric trains to operate between Blackpool North and both Liverpool and Manchester.

Our plans envisage that, once electrified, these three lines will be served by thoroughly refurbished electric commuter trains transferred from the Thameslink line. This will increase rail capacity and reliability between key cities and towns in the North-West. It will allow 30 year old "Pacer" diesel trains to be retired, and modern diesel trains to be transferred to other routes requiring extra capacity. It will also help to reduce the long-term cost of operating the railway, and reduce carbon emissions.

Network Rail will now develop detailed plans to complete these electrification projects alongside the previously-announced plans for Liverpool to Manchester, opening in sequence between 2014 and 2016. Funding of up to £1.1 billion had already been allocated for electrification between Liverpool and Manchester and on the Great Western Main Line. Subject to detailed work on value for money on each new line, a further £200 million will be provided from within Network Rail's capital programme, giving a total investment available for electrification of up to £1.3 billion.

In July I undertook to review the Department's rolling stock plan in the light of the electrification announcements and other developments. The Government remain committed to providing an additional 1,300 carriages by mid-2014. Until commercial negotiations on the Thameslink programme are completed, I am not in a position to update the rolling stock plan, which is critically dependent on the determination of the Thameslink rolling stock contract. However, I can give the following detail of recent and projected rolling stock procurements:

> Southeastern introduced 48 cascaded carriages in March 2009 as the first phase of additional capacity to address the crowding of train services through London Bridge to London Charing Cross and London Cannon Street. The specification for the second phase is now being developed as part of the Thameslink Key Output 1 (December 2011) and Key Output 2 (December 2015) service patterns which are being discussed with train operators.
> The East Anglia franchise operator will take delivery of 120 new carriages for Stansted Express services, as part of the Department's agreement with the current train operating company. This will enable the carriages currently forming these trains to be redeployed to lengthen other services into London Liverpool Street. National Express East Anglia is also deploying a further 68 cascaded carriages to lengthen existing trains. In total 188 new and cascaded carriages will be deployed to increase capacity into London Liverpool Street.
> The first two phases of additional capacity on London Midland services have been agreed. These involve the deployment of 28 cascaded carriages to lengthen trains and also to operate more trains between Watford and London Euston during peak periods. The third phase of the additional capacity for London Midland services is now being developed with the train operator. This will focus on additional capacity into Birmingham.
> Extra capacity provision is included in the recently-announced Southern franchise. This includes additional capacity into London Bridge and London Victoria over the next three years using 128 cascaded carriages.
> Arrangements are almost finalised with First Capital Connect for the introduction of 41 carriages onto the services into London. The extra carriages will be introduced over the next 12 months.
> Negotiations are underway with First Great Western to provide additional capacity on services around Bristol. This is expected to involve additional cascaded carriages, introduced over the next 12 to 18 months.
> Proposals for the provision of additional capacity into London Waterloo are being negotiated with South West Trains.
> The provision of additional capacity on the Shrewsbury - Birmingham route is being developed with Arriva Trains Wales.
> Plans for additional capacity on the Liverpool—Nottingham route are being developed with East Midlands Trains.
> The specification for a first phase of additional capacity on services into Leeds, Liverpool, Manchester and Sheffield has been completed and is now being discussed with Northern Rail and the relevant Passenger Transport Executives. Planning work is also underway with Northern Rail and the Passenger Transport Executives to develop a second phase scheme to address the further capacity requirements for these cities.
> The specification for the new Essex Thameside (C2C) franchise in May 2011 will include extra capacity requirements. The proposed specification will be published in early 2010.
> The specification for the new Intercity West Coast franchise, due to start in April 2012, will include a requirement to deploy the 106 new Pendolino vehicles on order to increase capacity between London, Birmingham and Manchester.
> The current Transpennine Express franchise is due to end in February 2012, and the specification for its replacement will be developed over the next 24 months. This will include the deployment of new electric trains on the Manchester to Central Scotland route, allowing the diesel trains currently operating these services to be used to provide more capacity on the main trans-Pennine route.
> Chiltern Railway's franchise agreement contains provision under Evergreen Phases 2 and 3 for extra capacity requirements to be delivered by 2014. Chiltern Railways has procured additional carriages to achieve this and further plans are now being discussed.

WALES

Legislative Competence Order (Transport)

The Secretary of State for Wales (Mr. Peter Hain): I am pleased to inform the House that the proposed National Assembly for Wales (Legislative Competence) (Transport) Order 2010 has been laid today, as Command Paper (Cm 7777). Copies of this can be found in the Vote Office and will be placed in the Library of the House from 12 noon. I have written to the Welsh Affairs Committee and to the House of Lords Constitutional Committee to request they undertake pre-legislative scrutiny.

Anti-Avoidance

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Stephen Timms): This Government have put in place a comprehensive set of tax reliefs for charities and for those who choose to donate to charities. These tax reliefs provide valuable incentives to encourage people to give and provide support to the charity sector. In the UK we are rightly proud of our charity sector, which continues to undertake important work in the UK and around the world.

It is therefore particularly regrettable that we have become aware of an artificial, aggressive and offensive tax avoidance scheme that seeks to abuse those tax reliefs available for donations to charity. A similar scheme to exploit this same relief was shut down in the Finance Act 2004, and we are aware that other schemes to exploit these reliefs have been marketed since then.

The Government will not tolerate tax avoidance or tax evasion, and will act promptly to tackle both of these, so I am today announcing changes to be made to legislation, with immediate effect, to counter these schemes.

The scheme exploits the relief available for donations of listed shares and other types of qualifying investments (including land) to charities in section 431 of the Income Tax Act 2007 and section 587B of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988. An offshore company sells to a taxpayer listed shares with a market value well in excess of the amounts paid. However the offshore company has an option to buy back the shares, exercisable after three years, for £1. The taxpayer then gifts the shares to a charity and gets tax relief on the higher market value of the shares, despite having paid only a fraction of that market value for the shares.

The option to buy back the shares is not taken into account for the purposes of determining the amount of the relief. The rules disregard contingent liabilities, such as an option, until the liability crystallises, typically by the exercise of the option in this case. In reality the option is never exercised and the scheme organiser gets the money back from the charity through some contrived arrangements.The benefit to the charity is typically less than half of 1 per cent. of the value of the tax relief obtained.

The Government do not accept that these highly contrived arrangements have the effect sought, but will remove any doubt by introducing appropriate legislation in the Finance Bill 2010. The new rules will reduce the tax relief on such arrangements to the lower of the cost of acquisition to the donor of the shares or investments gifted, or the market value at the date of disposal, where the acquisition was made as part of a tax advantage scheme. This legislation will have immediate effect from 15 December 2009.

The legislation will not affect genuine donations to charity where tax avoidance arrangements are not involved and HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) will be consulting with the charity sector to ensure that the legislation achieves its intended effect.

Further details are contained in a draft explanatory note published on HMRC's website at: www.hmrc.gov.uk, today with the proposed draft legislation.

It is particularly offensive that individuals seeking to avoid tax do so in a way that exploits charity tax reliefs.

I am therefore giving notice of our intention to deal with any arrangements that emerge in future that are designed to take advantage of the tax reliefs for donations of qualifying investments under section 431 of the Income Tax Act 2007 and section 587B of the Income and Corporation Taxes Act 1988. The Government introduced these reliefs in 2000, with the intention that they should be used only for genuine donations to genuine charities. Where HMRC becomes aware of arrangements which attempt to frustrate that intention, the Government will introduce legislation to close them down, where necessary with effect from today.

This action will not affect the vast majority of charities and donors who organise their affairs in a straightforward and ordinary way. The Government continue to believe that charities make an important contribution to our society and do not deserve having their reputation called into question by such offensive tax avoidance.

Government Fraud Report

The Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury (Sarah McCarthy-Fry): Today I am publishing the Government Fraud report for 2008-09. Copies of the document entitled, "Fraud report 2008-09: an analysis of reported fraud in Government departments" have been deposited in the Libraries of the House and will be available on the HM Treasury website at: www.hm-treasury.gov.uk.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Growth Funds

The Minister for Housing (John Healey): I am publishing today the Government's response to their consultation on the proposed changes to the Growth Fund for 2010-11. Copies have been placed in the Library of the House.

The Growth Fund provides capital and revenue funding to the 75 growth partnerships in Growth Areas and Growth Points across 163 local authorities in England, supporting their planned housing growth, enabling housing development to be brought forward, tackling barriers to delivery and ensuring that new development is planned as sustainable communities. Provisional funding allocations for 2009-10 and 2010-11 were published in December 2008.

The exceptional economic circumstances and global recession have affected the availability of finance, credit and mortgages. The Government have taken action to help people stay in their homes, stay in work, and to help firms stay in business. The Government have also continued to focus on providing the affordable homes that people need. The Government are clear that getting house building across the country started, and providing the affordable homes that people need, is a priority during the current exceptional economic circumstances.

The Government set out the housing pledge as part of Building Britain's Future on 29 June, with a £1.5 billion package of measures to build an extra 20,000 new affordable homes in 2009-10 and 2010-11, of which over 13,000 will be for social rent, and 10,000 open market homes. As a result, the Government are now investing £7.5 billion in 2009-10 and 2010-11 to deliver up to 112,000 affordable homes and around 15,000 private homes.

While the majority of funding for the pledge comes from other Government Departments' programmes, given the importance attached to stimulating the housing market, I also reviewed our own investment programmes in Communities and Local Government to support the pledge. As such, the Government have switched £128 million capital funding from the Growth Fund in 2010-11 to support the pledge. All regions have benefited from the pledge funding, which has been considerably greater than the impact of the 2010-11 switch from growth funding.

Given the impact of the exceptional economic circumstances on the delivery of homes and infrastructure, there is uncertainty that it will be possible to use Growth Funds in the way envisaged when multi-year allocations were made before the global recession. Switching some grant money from the Growth Fund will mean it is still used for housing purposes and that the fundamental aims of the Growth Fund—to support housing growth—will still be met.

I wrote to the leaders of all local authorities in the Growth Areas and Growth Points about the housing pledge on 17 July, highlighting the opportunities for additional funding, and set out the planned adjustment to the Growth Fund. The Government's preferred approach was to make a pro-rata reduction to the provisional 2010-11 capital allocation of each Growth Area and Growth Point. Provisional revenue allocations for 2010-11 remain in full. The Government believe this approach would provide certainty on funding decisions in a timely manner, is fair and transparent. Consultation on the proposed changes lasted six weeks.

The consultation showed that although respondents did not welcome any reduction in funding they did show general support for the Government's preferred approach of a pro-rata reduction for every growth area local authority and the Government will therefore revise funding allocations for 2010-11 as set out below. Revised funding allocations will be paid by the Homes and Communities Agency to the nominated accountable body for each Growth Area and Growth Point in the first quarter of 2010-11. Local authorities in growth locations will still have the flexibility to prioritise how funding is used to best support local priorities.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Autumn Performance Report

The Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (Mr. Ben Bradshaw): I am pleased to announce the publication of my Department's Autumn Performance Report.

We report strong progress against our public service agreement to deliver a successful and inspirational Olympic and Paralympic Games in 2012 that provide for a sustainable legacy and get more children and young people taking part in high-quality PE and sport. That is also one of our departmental strategic objectives.

We are maintaining decent progress against our other Departmental Strategic Objectives—the digital switchover programme is on track and more data is becoming available to assess enjoyment of and excellence in culture, media and sport. I expect to be in a position to report more fully on them next year.

We continue to maintain a strong track record of delivering value for money savings. We have significantly exceeded our Lyons relocation target and maintain good progress towards our comprehensive spending review 2007 value for money target.

A copy of the Autumn Performance Report will be deposited in the House Libraries.

DEFENCE

Future Rotary Wing Strategy

The Secretary of State for Defence (Mr. Bob Ainsworth): I am today announcing a new strategy that will see the Ministry of Defence deliver increased levels of helicopter capability for our armed forces. The strategy's priority is support to operations, and through it we will deliver, by 2016, an increase of some 40 per cent. in the number of helicopters suitable for deployment in hot and high conditions, such as Afghanistan.

At the heart of the strategy is the procurement of an additional 22 new Chinook helicopters, with a further two expected to replace those that were destroyed in Afghanistan this summer. The current Chinook fleet has seen continuous service on operations over the last 20 years, and it has performed superbly in Afghanistan. It is a proven capability that is highly regarded by those who fly it and troops who use it. Delivery of these aircraft will not only mean more aircraft able to operate in the kind of conditions seen in Afghanistan but also a significant increase in the overall lift capacity of our helicopter fleet. We anticipate delivery of 10 new build Chinook during the course of 2012 and 2013, including two to replace the aircraft recently lost in Afghanistan. The proposed investment in these new Chinook builds on the £400 million that the Ministry of Defence has invested this year to improve the operational performance of the existing Chinook fleet by delivering enhanced engines and cockpits.

Beyond increasing levels of capability, our other main focus has been on simplifying the delivery of helicopter capability. As the HCDC set out in its recent report, Helicopter Capability (HC434), the optimum means to achieve efficiencies is through reducing the number of different types of helicopter fleet; with each fleet type comes an associated support cost overhead and training cost. The new strategy will enable the Department to reduce the number of fleet types.

We aim to remove all marks of our Sea King fleet by 2016, with its roles to be delivered by our Merlin helicopter fleet or, in the case of UK peacetime search and rescue capabilities, by a joint private finance initiative service that we intend to provide with the Maritime and Coastguard Agency. To enable this transition, we intend to capitalise on our past investment in Merlin and its over-water capabilities and safety features, including by modifying our Merlin Mk3/3a helicopters to enable them to operate effectively from amphibious shipping as well as continuing to contribute to our battlefield lift requirements.

The £300 million Puma life extension programme, which will deliver a step change in the aircraft's capability, will proceed, delivering vital battlefield lift capability for operations alongside Chinook until at least 2022. Beyond the retirement of Puma, we intend that the Ministry of Defence will operate four broadly equal-sized core helicopter fleets comprising Chinook, Apache, Wildcat and Merlin, with much smaller niche fleets for specialised roles. As a result of the measures set out above, we do not intend to proceed with the future medium helicopter competition.

We anticipate that the reduction in fleet types will produce substantial through-life cost savings over the next decade and beyond. We are also exploring the possibility of further benefits that might arise through, for example, estate rationalisation and the more efficient delivery of training solutions.

Although the major components of this strategy will be subject in due course to separate investment decisions, the new approach represents excellent news for the overall helicopter capability available to our armed forces and provides industry with a clear vision of our investment priorities over the coming decade against which they can align their resources. While a significant percentage of the planned investment will be made on a US product (Chinook), we anticipate that much of the investment required to deliver other elements of the strategy will be made in the UK, supporting UK jobs, and sustaining essential onshore skills as well as delivering value for money.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

EU Energy Council

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (Mr. David Kidney): My noble Friend the Minister of State for Energy and Climate Change today made the following statement:

> I represented the United Kingdom at the EU Energy Council in Brussels on 7 December 2009.
> The first item on the agenda was an update from the Swedish presidency on the energy efficiency package (made up of separate directives on the energy performance of buildings; the indication by labelling and standard product information of the consumption of energy and other resources by energy related products; and the labelling of tyres with respect to fuel efficiency). The presidency noted that the package was close to final agreement. The UK is happy with the progress made on these directives.
> The Commission reported on progress on the proposal for a regulation on the security of gas supply. This was followed by a policy debate in which member states commented on the current draft of the proposal, in particular responding to questions about the roles and responsibilities of different actors in preparing for and during an emergency, of the need for mandatory infrastructure and supply standards; and the definition of protected customers. The UK raised concerns over some of the powers envisaged for the Commission.
> There was also an exchange of views on the recent Commission communication on investing in the development of low-carbon technologies under the Strategic Energy Technology (SET) Plan. The UK indicated that it shared its support for the SET Plan but raised concerns over the sources of funding for the programme in the current financial climate.
> In addition, the Commission updated Ministers on progress in a number of other areas, including implementation of the European economic recovery package, the Baltic Energy market integration programme and the regulation on the notification of investment projects in energy infrastructure within the European community. Some delegations used the opportunity to raise concerns about biomass sustainability criteria. Finally, the Spanish Minister outlined the energy priorities for Spain's forthcoming presidency. These included a new energy action plan for 2010-14, a focus on renewables, energy efficiency, low-carbon technologies, relations with external energy suppliers and further progress on current legislation.

Over lunch, Ministers discussed a number of items on international relations in the field of energy including relations between Ukraine and Russia.

Separately, Ljubljana was selected as the seat for the agency for the co-operation of energy regulators, following a vote.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Exotic Diseases of Animals

The Minister of State, Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Jim Fitzpatrick): The national contingency plan for exotic diseases of animals will be laid before Parliament today in accordance with Section 14a of the Animal Health Act 2002 which came into force on 24 March 2003.

This plan sets out the operational response arrangements DEFRA will put in place to deal with any occurrence of foot and mouth disease, avian influenza or Newcastle disease. The plan is also applicable to all other exotic diseases of animals. It is composed of two elements:

> DEFRA's framework response plan for exotic diseases of animals, outlining the systems and structures which are established and detailing the key roles and responsibilities of Ministers and officials during an outbreak of disease; and
> DEFRA's overview of emergency preparedness which provides details of our preparedness and operational response.

It replaces DEFRA's contingency plan for exotic animal diseases which was laid before Parliament on 9 December 2008.

DEFRA's contingency plan is very much a "living document". It will be subject to ongoing revision taking on the latest developments in science, research, and epidemiological modelling together with lessons identified from outbreaks.

To meet the provisions of the Animal Health Act, the plan will also be subject to formal annual review.

Pitt Review (Government Response)

The Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Hilary Benn): I am placing copies of the Government's second update report detailing the progress made in implementing the recommendations contained in Sir Michael Pitt's report on the 2007 summer floods in the Libraries of both Houses today.

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/flooding/risk/floodreview2007.htm

We continue to make significant progress. We have introduced our Flood and Water Management Bill which implements Pitt recommendations that require legislation, and will strengthen co-ordination, improve accountability and reduce the impact of future floods.

In advance of the Bill becoming law, we have taken action to help communities at risk of flooding. We have, for example:

> Set up a £7.7 million Flood Forecasting Centre, jointly run by the Environment Agency and the Met Office, which is already providing important services to local authorities and emergency responders, helping them to be better prepared for potential flooding;
> Strengthened arrangements for local and national co-ordination in the event of an emergency, as recently tested in Cumbria—for example through publishing updated emergency response and recovery guidance;
> Announced that local communities across England will benefit from £16 million funding to help them tackle surface water flooding, including £9.7 million made available to 77 local authorities for areas where the risk and potential impact of surface water flooding could be highest;
> Issued guidance to regulators on protecting essential services; local action includes reinforced defences at Mythe water treatment works in Gloucestershire and flood defences at East and West Hull sewage pumping stations;
> Invested in building capacity, including funding local authority places for the Environment Agency's flood management foundation degree and developing an NVQ level 2 and 3 course on flood risk management;

Delivered, through the Environment Agency:

> 106 flood defence schemes protecting over 63,800 additional homes in England.
> 140,000 additional people signed up to receive flood warnings in England and Wales: and the introduction of "opt out" telephone warning systems in February 2010 will significantly increase that number.
> Doubled our overall investment in flood and coastal erosion risk management in the last ten years to a record £2.15 billion over the current three-year spending period.

The progress report explains the further steps we are taking to implement Sir Michael's recommendations. The risk of flooding remains and the recent events in Cumbria underline once again the importance of this work. The Government remain determined to enable us to better able anticipate and deal with the impact of flooding.

I will continue to keep the House informed of progress through future progress reports.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

EU General Affairs Council and Foreign Affairs Council

The Minister for Europe (Chris Bryant): The General Affairs Council (GAC) and Foreign Affairs Council (FAC) was held on 7/8 December in Brussels. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary represented the UK.

The agenda items covered were as follows:

GENERAL AFFAIRS COUNCIL

The full text of conclusions adopted, including 'A' points, can be found at:

http://www.consilium.europa.eu/uedocs/cms_data/docs/pressdata/EN/genaff/111832.pdf

Preparation of the 10-11 December European Council

On economic issues, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary emphasised that governance of the financial markets was a global issue, not just an internal matter for Europe. He stated that the EU should take account of the International Monetary Fund work on renewing the "social contract" between the financial institutions and wider society, including by ensuring that the financial sector bear the full costs associated with its activities. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary congratulated the presidency for their help in resolving the financial supervision and regulation package.

On climate change, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary underscored the importance of tackling this issue against the backdrop of the Copenhagen conference of parties. He called for the European Council conclusions to reinforce the EU's commitment to the Kyoto protocol, and to be clearer and more specific on climate financing.

On external relations, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary, with support from a number of member states, argued for a European Council declaration on Afghanistan, reflecting President Obama's 1 December announcement on troop reinforcements, and the London conference in January 2010. The presidency agreed to draft a declaration, which was discussed at the FAC on 8 December. We also requested conclusions language on development assistance.

Enlargement

Ministers adopted conclusions, which the Government broadly support, welcoming the Commission communication dated 14 October 2009 entitled "Enlargement Strategy and Main Challenges 2009-2010". Broadly, the conclusions took stock of progress in accession negotiations with Turkey and Croatia, while urging both countries to implement outstanding reforms.

On Turkey, the Council welcomed recent initiatives including on the Kurdish issue and recognised that Turkey is an important regional player, playing a key role in energy supply. However, it expressed disappointment that Turkey has not yet fulfilled its obligation to open its ports to trade with Cyprus under the additional protocol to the association agreement and agreed that further efforts are needed to accelerate the pace of Turkey's accession negotiations. On Croatia, the Council commended progress made but stressed further efforts are needed to meet accession criteria in order to be able to conclude negotiations in 2010.

On Croatia's cooperation with the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) the Council welcomed the creation of a new investigative task force, noted that substantial progress had not been reported, and called on Croatia to take the necessary steps to complete a comprehensive and credible investigation into missing documents without further delay. On Iceland, the Council noted their application for EU membership in July and agreed to come back to the issue when the Commission presents its assessment on whether Iceland is ready to open accession negotiations.

The Council reaffirmed EU support for the European perspective of the western Balkans; noted that the office of the ICTY prosecutor was content with Serbia's current levels of effort in their cooperation, and that the EU would start implementing the interim agreement; welcomed the fact that Macedonia had substantially addressed the key priorities of the accession partnership, noting the Commission's recommendation to open accession negotiations and agreeing to return to the matter during the next presidency; expressed concern about political developments in Bosnia and Herzegovina and called on its leaders to speed up key reforms; welcomed the Commission's study on furthering Kosovo's political and socio-economic development and invited the Commission to take the necessary measures to support Kosovo's progress towards the EU; and welcomed progress in Albania and Montenegro, while urging the countries to intensify efforts on reforms in a number of areas and agreeing to return to their membership applications once the Commission had presented its "Avis" (opinions).

EU Disaster Management

Ministers approved a presidency report on reinforcing the EU's capacity for preventing and responding to disasters, which the Government support while recognising the primary role of national responsibility in disaster management.

Trio Programme of the Spanish, Belgian and Hungarian Presidencies

Spain, Belgium and Hungary briefly presented their programme, looked forward to chairing the GAC under their presidencies, and to close co-operation with the President of the European Council and the High Representative. The Government welcome the Trio's emphasis on finalising the international climate change negotiations, putting in place a Lisbon strategy fit to take the EU beyond the aftermath of the economic crisis and bringing Europe closer to its citizens.

EXTERNAL RELATIONS COUNCIL

The full text of all conclusions adopted can be found at:

http://www.consilium.europa.eu/uedocs/cms_data/docs/pressdata/EN/foraff/111833.pdf

Western Balkans

The presidency briefed on the EU/US initiative to unblock progress on reforms in Bosnia and Herzegovina and Ministers held an exchange of views on the future of EUFOR Operation Althea. They agreed to revert to the latter at their next meeting in January.

Iran

Ministers also approved a draft European Council declaration on Iran which draws attention to Iran's continued failure to comply with international obligations and signals the EU's readiness to begin a new phase of work on the pressure side of the dual-track approach, which the Government welcome.

Middle East Peace Process

Ministers agreed conclusions that called for the resumption of negotiations leading to a two-state solution within an agreed time-frame; referred to Jerusalem as the future capital of two states and declared that the EU will not recognise any changes to the pre-1967 borders; emphasised the importance of the United States' efforts; welcomed and encouraged Palestinian efforts on state-building and improving law and order; reiterated commitment towards the security of Israel and its full integration into the region; and welcomed and encouraged Israel's steps to ease restrictions of movement in the West Bank.

Afghanistan

Ministers agreed to forward the presidency's draft declaration to the December European Council for adoption, which the Government welcome. The declaration notes that an international conference is to be held in London in January 2010, underscores the EU's readiness to support President Karzai in meeting his commitments, and highlights the need to maintain a comprehensive approach to the challenges in Afghanistan, building on a combination of political/civilian development and military instruments.

Burma

France briefly raised the EU approach to Burma. The presidency underlined that EU action was in train.

AOB: Honduras

Spain called on the EU to monitor progress on reconciliation, as well as the views of the US and key states in the region, and keep the situation under review.

A points

The Council adopted the following conclusions or decisions without discussion:

Conclusions on Iraq

Conclusions on Horn of Africa

Conclusions on Climate Change and International Security

Conclusions on promoting compliance with International Humanitarian Law

Conclusions on Human Rights and Democratisation in Third Countries

Sri Lanka

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): Seven months have now passed since the end of the conflict in Sri Lanka. I would like to update the House on developments in the humanitarian and political situation in Sri Lanka.

Humanitarian

Since the end of the conflict the UK has focused its efforts on securing an improvement in the humanitarian situation. The end of the fighting in May left over 280,000 internally displaced persons (IDPs) in camps in northern Sri Lanka. The UK's approach to the situation has been fourfold: to advocate for improvements in conditions in the camps so that they meet international standards; to push for the early and safe return of IDPs to their home areas; to support, with the Department for International Development's (DFID) allocation of £12.5 million since September 2008, the vital work of the humanitarian agencies that have been providing assistance to the IDPs; and to urge the Government of Sri Lanka to allow those not yet resettled to have the ability to enjoy unrestricted freedom of movement.

Conditions in the camps have improved to the extent that basic needs are now generally being met. In recent weeks there has been some progress in the return of IDPs. As of 6 December, the UN has confirmed that over 158,000 IDPs have been released. Of this number approximately 29,000 vulnerable people had been transferred to host families or institutions. This leaves less than 112,000 people in the Menik farm site and less than 15,000 people in camps in other locations. It is important that IDPs continue to be able to return to their home areas as soon as it is safe to do so. When I spoke to Foreign Minister Bogollogama on 29 October and 4 November, he confirmed that the Government of Sri Lanka was committed to returning those still in the camps. In order to assist this process, the Government have been funding the work of demining non-governmental organisations (NGOs) such as Mines Advisory Group and HALO trust to help make areas safe for return. We will continue to help clear landmines, to provide transport from the camps and to help civilians to restart their lives so they can return home quickly and safely.

The recent announcement by the Sri Lankan Government that, as of 1 December, all remaining IDPs have been granted freedom of movement is a positive step. We hope this leads to unrestricted freedom of movement for all IDPs as soon as possible. As the Under-Secretary of State for International Development, my hon. Friend the Member for Worcester (Mr. Foster), made clear in his statement of 28 November, we believe the opening of the camps and granting of real freedom of movement will enable the thousands still living in the camps to start to rebuild their lives. We welcome the fact that a number of national NGOs have now been granted access to some areas where IDPs are returning to such as Vavuniya, Mullaitivu, Mannar and Jaffna in the north. The recent announcement by the Governor of the Northern Province that international NGOs will also be allowed to work in these areas on agreed projects is also welcome. It is imperative that all humanitarian agencies are given full access to all IDPs, including ex combatants, so that they can provide them with the help and protection they need both in the camps and in places of return.

Political

Beyond the immediate humanitarian concerns the UK has underlined to the Government of Sri Lanka the importance of securing genuine reconciliation between Sri Lanka's communities.

At the end of May the Sri Lankan president issued a joint statement with UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon recognising the need to work towards a lasting political solution. The UK has consistently maintained that one of the prerequisites for lasting peace in Sri Lanka is a political settlement that fully takes into account the legitimate grievances and aspirations of all communities. Presidential elections have now been announced for 26 January 2010. Parliamentary elections in spring 2010 will be a further opportunity for the voice of Sri Lanka's communities to be heard. Free, fair and credible elections will allow Sri Lanka's communities to have their say in shaping the country's future. Adequate arrangements must be made to ensure IDPs can vote in upcoming elections. It is important for all those who want to play a role in Sri Lanka's future to agree to an inclusive political solution that addresses the underlying causes of the conflict.

The EU has made clear its belief that accountability is integral to the process of reconciliation. We therefore welcome President Rajapakse's decision to appoint an independent committee to look into the incidents cited in the US State Department's report. We will continue to press the Government of Sri Lanka to live up to this and his earlier commitment made to UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon in May to take measures to address possible violations of international humanitarian law.

GSP+ (General System of Preferences plus) /Human Rights

The EU's GSP+ trade preference scheme is intended to provide vulnerable economies with incentives to achieve standards in sustainable development, human rights, labour standards and good governance. Beneficiary countries are required to implement effectively certain international human rights conventions. On 19 October 2009 the European Commission published a report of its investigation into Sri Lanka's compliance with three of these conventions. The report was clear about Sri Lanka's failings in the implementation of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, the convention against torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment and the convention on the rights of the child. This report has reinforced our serious concerns over the human rights situation in Sri Lanka and we share the Commission's assessment. The Commission is expected to issue its formal recommendation on Sri Lanka's continued access to the GSP+ scheme shortly. We are clear that, in order to continue enjoying access to the GSP+, Sri Lanka must meet fully its human rights obligations. I have urged the Government of Sri Lanka to take urgent action to address the issues raised by the Commission in its report such as the lack of effective investigations into alleged disappearances and the need to uphold the right to freedom of expression. As EU Foreign Ministers made clear in our conclusions of 27 October, the EU will maintain a dialogue with Sri Lanka on the steps necessary to address the problems highlighted by the Commission's investigation, in order to effectively implement the conventions.

Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting (CHOGM)

When the Heads of Commonwealth Governments met in Port of Spain in November members agreed that Australia will host CHOGM in 2011. The most important thing for the UK was that the host for each Commonwealth summit demonstrably embodies our shared values—including respect for human rights and democracy. While we welcome the recent progress on freedom of movement for IDPs in Sri Lanka, given our ongoing concerns about the humanitarian and human rights situation at the time, the UK was unable to support Sri Lanka's bid to host CHOGM in 2011. However Commonwealth leaders accepted the President of Sri Lanka's offer to host the summit in 2013.

Conclusion

We have regularly made clear our view that the Government of Sri Lanka has a unique opportunity—and duty—to work for genuine political reconciliation. As a measure of the UK's ongoing commitment to the future of Sri Lanka, we remain at the forefront of international efforts to help ensure lasting peace there. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's special envoy for Sri Lanka, and my right hon. Friend the Member for Kilmarnock and Loudoun (Des Browne) continues to engage the Tamil Diaspora and he has updated hon. Members on his recent activities.

We will continue to work directly with the Government of Sri Lanka and with international partners including the EU, UN and Commonwealth, to urge the Government of Sri Lanka to resolve the underlying causes of the conflict through an inclusive political process which addresses the legitimate grievances and aspirations of all communities—Sinhalese, Tamils and Muslims.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Community Safety Accreditation Schemes

The Minister for Policing, Crime and Counter-Terrorism (Mr. David Hanson): An employers' guide to community safety accreditation schemes and the 2009 audit of community safety accreditation schemes have been published today.

This year's community safety accreditation schemes audit shows an increase in the number of participating forces from 23 in 2008 to 26 this year. The Metropolitan Police was one of the three forces to begin operating a scheme. Over the same period, the number of accredited persons rose from 1406 to 1667 (an 18.5 per cent. rise) and the number of employers with accredited persons rose from 95 to 109. This growth reflects the benefits of the scheme for the police and businesses. Accredited persons help to tackle anti-social behaviour, to provide a visible and reassuring presence on our streets.

The employers' guide is intended to improve the information available to employers about the scheme and to raise its profile. Four employer case studies (presented in the employers' guide) demonstrate clear benefits, both for the organisation and for the accredited staff, in greater information sharing and closer partnership with the police.

Copies of the audit and the guide are available on the Home Office website at: www.homeoffice.gov.uk and in the House Library.

Control Order Powers

The Minister for Policing, Crime and Counter-Terrorism (Mr. David Hanson): Section 14(1) of the Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005 (the 2005 Act) requires the Secretary of State to report to Parliament as soon as reasonably practicable after the end of every relevant three-month period on the exercise of the control order powers during that period.

The level of information provided will always be subject to slight variations based on operational advice.

Control orders continue to be an essential tool to protect the public from terrorism, particularly where it is not possible to prosecute individuals for terrorism-related activity and, in the case of foreign nationals, where they cannot be removed from the UK.

As stated in previous quarterly statements on control orders, control order obligations are tailored to the individual concerned and are based on the terrorism-related risk that individual poses. Each control order is kept under regular review to ensure that obligations remain necessary and proportionate. The Home Office continues to hold Control Order Review Groups (CORGs) every quarter, with representation from law enforcement and intelligence agencies, to keep the obligations in every control order under regular and formal review and to facilitate a review of appropriate exit strategies. During this reporting period, six CORGs were held in relation to the orders currently in force. In addition, further meetings were held on an ad hoc basis as specific issues arose.

During the period 11 September 2009 to 10 December 2009, three non-derogating control orders have been made and served. No control orders have been renewed in accordance with section 2(6) of the 2005 Act in this reporting period. In this reporting period there have been six revocations of control orders that were in force. Three control orders were revoked because it was not possible to meet the disclosure test set out in the June 2009 House of Lords judgment (AF & Others) on article 6 of the European convention of human rights (ECHR) (right to a fair trial). One of these orders was not replaced. In the other two cases new non-derogating control orders with significantly reduced obligations were imposed in their place; the Government argued before the court that in such cases article 6 was not engaged—or, even if it was, the level of disclosure required in AF & Others did not apply. Two control orders were revoked because they were no longer considered necessary. One control order was revoked on the order of the court. In addition to the six revocations of current control orders, one non-derogating control order previously made but not served was also revoked in this quarter.

In total, 12 control orders are currently in force, nine of which are in respect of British citizens. Seven individuals subject to a control order live in the Metropolitan Police Service area; the remaining individuals live in other police force areas. All of these control orders are non-derogating. There were no prosecutions for breaching a control order during this reporting period however one individual was charged with seven counts for breach of a control order obligation.

During this reporting period, 77 modifications of control order obligations were made. 29 requests to modify control order obligations were refused.

Section 10(1) of the 2005 Act provides a right of appeal against a decision by the Secretary of State to renew a non-derogating control order or to modify an obligation imposed by a non-derogating control order without consent. One appeal under section 10(1) of the 2005 Act has been lodged with the High Court during this reporting period. A right of appeal is also provided for by section 10(3) of the 2005 Act against decisions by the Secretary of State to refuse a request by a controlled person to revoke their order and/or to modify any obligation under the order. During this reporting period four appeals have been lodged with the High Court under section 10(3) of the 2005 Act.

Six interlocutory judgments were handed down by the High Court during this reporting period in relation to disclosure required to make control order judicial review proceedings under section 3(10) of the 2005 Act compliant with article 6 following the June 2009 House of Lords judgment in AF & Others.

Two of these judgments were handed down in the case of Secretary of State for the Home Department v BB & BC. In the first judgment, handed down on 5 October 2009 in closed only, the court required the Secretary of State to make further disclosure in order to ensure compliance with article 6 despite the court's acknowledgement that the disclosure of this material would cause damage to the public interest. The Secretary of State elected not to make the disclosure identified. Both control orders were revoked and new control orders with significantly reduced obligations were imposed. In the second judgment, handed down on 11 November 2009, the court found that, notwithstanding the new control orders impose less stringent obligations, article 6 applied and that the House of Lords in AF & Others had identified an "irreducible minimum" of disclosure which must be made in all control order cases regardless of the stringency of the obligations. The court granted the Secretary of State permission to appeal and an appeal has been lodged.

A further two judgments were handed down in the case of Secretary of State for the Home Department v AS. At the hearing on 6 and 8 October 2009, the court handed down a judgment in closed only requiring the Secretary of State to make further damaging disclosure to comply with article 6 or to withdraw reliance on the relevant allegations. The Secretary of State elected to make some further disclosure to maintain the control order in force. In an open judgment handed down on 21 October 2009 the court set out the principles of how the court should apply the decision in AF & Others.

An interlocutory judgment was handed down in the case of Secretary of State for the Home Department v AN on 27 November 2009. The court handed down a judgment in closed only requiring the Secretary of State to make further damaging disclosure to comply with article 6 or to withdraw reliance on the relevant allegations. The Secretary of State elected to make some further disclosure to maintain the control order in force.

A further interlocutory judgment was handed down, about which it is not possible to say any more for legal reasons.

Two judgments have been handed down by the High Court in relation to modification appeals during this reporting period. The court handed down judgment in Secretary of State for the Home Department v BH on 17 November 2009. The court found that the Secretary of State's decision to refuse to modify BH's geographical boundary to let him attend legal appointment outside his boundary was lawful. This was against the background that the Secretary of State had offered to modify the control order to allow the visit subject to BH agreeing to submit to a personal search as part of a police escort to and from the appointment. BH had refused to agree to this condition and the Secretary of State had therefore refused the modification. The court decided this refusal was lawful, noting that BH's legal representatives were able to visit him within his boundary instead. However, he commented that in circumstances where it would not be proportionate to refuse to modify the boundary for a purpose such as attending an urgent medical appointment, the Secretary of State would not be able to insist that a controlled person be escorted by the police, if the police would not escort the individual without searching him first.

The court handed down a judgment in Secretary of State for the Home Department v AS on 23 November 2009. The court dismissed AS's appeal against the decision of the Secretary of State to refuse to modify his control order to enable him to stay overnight in London during the judicial review hearing of his control order.

During this reporting period, the Court of Appeal refused permission to appeal in one case. In Secretary of State for the Home Department v AU, the Court of Appeal found AU did not have any real prospect of success in his arguments that the judicial review of his control order had not been article 6 compliant and that when the Secretary of State decided to impose a control order in this case, he was not entitled to consider allegations which formed part of the previous criminal prosecution and sentence.

Door Supervisors Training

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Mr. Alan Campbell): I am pleased to announce the publication of a consultation document and partial impact assessment on enhanced (or top up) training for door supervisors renewing their licences.

Copies of the report will be available in the Vote Office and in the House Library.

Hillsborough Disaster

The Secretary of State for the Home Department (Alan Johnson): The Hillsborough tragedy on 15 April 1989 at the FA Cup semi final between Liverpool and Nottingham Forest was the worst disaster in British sporting history. Ninety-six people died and hundreds more were injured. The tragedy was of such national and international significance that it served to act as a watershed in the subsequent minimisation of safety risks at football matches and similar sporting events.

There have been a number of examinations of the circumstances surrounding the disaster over the years. Following the 20th anniversary of the tragedy in April 2009, the Prime Minister asked the then Secretaries of State for the Home Office and for Culture, Media and Sport, and the Justice Secretary, to consider how to bring about maximum possible public disclosure of governmental and other agency documentation on the events that occurred and their aftermath. In order to bring about this disclosure I am today announcing the creation of the Hillsborough independent panel.

The Hillsborough independent panel will work in partnership with Government and other public agencies to oversee the disclosure process. It will also consult those most affected by the disaster: the Hillsborough families. The panel will be chaired by the right reverend James Jones, Bishop of Liverpool. The appointment of the rest of the panel will take place over the coming weeks in close consultation with the Hillsborough families and will be announced in due course. The panel will meet for the first time in Liverpool as soon as possible in the new year.

The independent panel will be provided with access to Hillsborough documentation held by Government and local agencies relevant to events surrounding the tragedy in advance of the normal 30-year point for public disclosure. The fundamental principles will be full disclosure of documentation and no redaction of content, except in the limited legal and other circumstances outlined in the full terms of reference and disclosure protocol which will be placed in the Library of the House and made available on the Home Office website at: www.homeoffice.gov.uk.

Recognising the volume of material that must be catalogued, analysed and preserved, the panel will seek to complete its work within two years.

The remit of the independent panel will be to:

oversee full public disclosure of relevant government and local information within the limited constraints set out in the disclosure protocol;

consult with the Hillsborough families to ensure that the views of those most affected by the tragedy are taken into account; manage the process of public disclosure, ensuring that it takes place initially to the families of the victims and other involved parties, in an agreed manner and within a reasonable timescale, before information is made more widely available;

in line with established practice, work with the Keeper of Public Records in preparing options for establishing an archive of Hillsborough documentation, including a catalogue of all central governmental and local public agency information and a commentary on any information withheld for the benefit of the families or on le[illegible] other grounds; produce a report explaining the work of the panel and the extent to which disclosure adds to public understanding of the tragedy and its aftermath.

Where Government records are covered by the well established convention on access to papers of a previous administration—in particular papers which indicate the views of Ministers, such as Cabinet material or ministerial policy advice—representatives of the previous administration are being consulted and their consent to release of those papers sought.

Identity Cards

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department (Meg Hillier): I am pleased to announce the extension of the national identity service from the beginning of January 2010.

On 30 June, the Home Secretary confirmed that we would accelerate the roll-out of identity cards by extending the initial coverage from Greater Manchester to other locations in the north-west of England early in 2010. Following a successful implementation of the national identity service in Greater Manchester and at Manchester and London City airports on 30 November, the next phase of the roll-out will be commenced from Monday 4 January 2010. From that date, most citizens living or working in the north-west will be eligible to make applications for identity cards at a fee of £30.

Initially, they will be able to apply at the offices of the Identity and Passport Service (IPS) in Manchester city centre. From February 2010, they will also be able to apply at new enrolment facilities in existing IPS offices in Liverpool and Blackburn.

To find out more about identity cards, register interest in obtaining a card or to request an application pack, visit: www.direct.gov.uk/identity or call 0300 330 0000.

UK Border Agency (Chief Inspector's Report)

The Minister for Borders and Immigration (Mr. Phil Woolas): The first annual report of the independent Chief Inspector of the UK Border Agency, John Vine, is being laid before Parliament today. The post and role of independent Chief Inspector was created in the Borders Act 2007 and extended in the Borders Citizenship and Immigration Act 2009 to reflect the wider role of the new agency. The key focus of the Chief Inspector is the efficiency and effectiveness of the UK Border Agency. The role provides an external, independent and transparent assessment of the Agency and helps to provides reassurance to Parliament and the public. I therefore welcome this account of the first year's work of the Chief Inspector. The annual report sets out the work of the Chief Inspector in establishing his inspection methodology, inspection plan and staffing since the role commenced in July 2008 and summarises the findings from six early inspections. Copies of the report will be available in the Vote Office.

Interim CCTV Regulator

The Minister for Policing, Crime and Counter-Terrorism (Mr. David Hanson): I am today announcing the arrangements we are putting in place to take forward implementation of the national CCTV strategy and to approve an interim CCTV regulator with immediate effect.

CCTV enjoys a high level of public confidence in tackling crime. Home Office research published in 2005 showed that over 80 per cent. of respondents supported the use of CCTV to deal with crime in their neighbourhood. A similar high level of confidence is reflected in the Ipsos MORI poll conducted last year and which we will be publishing shortly. CCTV played a key role in a number of investigations including the London terrorist outrages in July 2005 and the Steven Wright murders in Ipswich as well as offences such as burglaries, robberies, violence and antisocial behaviour across the country. The changes are aimed at ensuring that those involved across the CCTV industry, whether from the public or the private sector, can be actively involved in the development and implementation of national standards on the installation and use of CCTV. Importantly, it also aims to maximise public engagement by raising public awareness of the benefits of CCTV and accountability of owners and users of CCTV systems.

It is important that we retain and build on that high level of public confidence by demonstrating the important contribution to preventing and detecting crime and antisocial behaviour which CCTV can make. We have already announced in Building Britain's Future that we will make sure that local people have a say on the use of CCTV in their area and will be publishing guidance for crime and disorder reduction partnerships next year on communicating with their community on the role of CCTV in public protection.

It is also important that we address public concern about how CCTV is used. I am, therefore, pleased to announce the appointment of the Forensic Science Regulator, Andrew Rennison, as the interim CCTV regulator with immediate effect. The interim CCTV regulator will advise the Government on matters surrounding the use of CCTV in public places, including the need for a regulatory framework overseen by a permanent CCTV regulator, which enables the police, local authorities and other agencies to help deliver safer neighbourhoods while ensuring that personal privacy considerations are appropriately taken into account with supporting safeguards and protections. The establishment of a permanent CCTV regulator would rightly be a matter for Parliament. That is why we are, at this stage, considering the regulatory arrangements function through an interim appointment and the revised governance structure for implementation of the national CCTV strategy.

The interim appointment will be for a period of up to 12 months. The appointment is an important step in implementation of the national CCTV strategy. The interim regulator will work with the national CCTV strategy board on six key areas. These are to: develop national standards for the installation and use of CCTV in public space; determine training requirements for users and practitioners; engage with the public and private sector in determining the need for and potential content of any regulatory framework; raise public awareness and understanding of how CCTV operates and how it contributes to tackling crime and increasing public protection; review the existing recommendations of the national CCTV strategy and advise the strategy board on implementation, timelines and cost and development of an effective evidence base; and promote public awareness of the complaints process and criteria for complaints to the relevant agencies ( for example, Information Commissioner, local authority or private organisation) or how to deal with complaints relating to technical standards.

The appointment of the Forensic Science Regulator will bring to his CCTV role the expertise, knowledge, and standing he has gained in operating a suitable framework for forensic services. He will play a leading role in identifying and helping meet the needs of both users and the public.

While the interim CCTV regulator will not have responsibility for deciding whether individual cameras are appropriately sited or how they are used, he will be able to help explain to the public how they can complain about intrusive or ineffective CCTV placement or usage.

Part of the process of promoting greater accountability is engaging directly with key stakeholders. We will shortly be establishing an independent advisory group with representatives from business, CCTV operators, community and third sector groups to monitor and provide direction on implementing the national strategy. The advisory group will advise the interim CCTV regulator and the national CCTV strategy board. These arrangements provide for partnership working at strategic and neighbourhood level. Through these new arrangements, we intend to ensure that CCTV continues to be an important tool available to communities to help tackle crime and antisocial behaviour.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Autumn Performance Report

The Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Douglas Alexander): I have today laid before Parliament my Department's autumn performance report for 2009. The report is in the Library of the House and copies are available for hon. Members from the Vote Office.

The report provides details of progress on DFID's departmental strategic objectives and value for money as well as progress on Public Service Agreement 29: Reduce poverty in poorer countries through quicker progress towards the millennium development goals.

St. Helena

The Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Douglas Alexander): I have carefully considered the views received in response to the public consultation on air access for St. Helena. I have also considered the reasonableness of proceeding with funding an airport in the prevailing economic conditions and the urgent requirements upon the Department to protect vulnerable countries around the world from the impact of the global downturn.

The present calls on DFID funding, and the current economic conditions, mean that proceeding with the project would not be appropriate at this time. DFID is committed to supporting the people of St. Helena and so, rather than make a decision at this juncture, I have instructed my officials to conduct a further analysis of two particular issues that have been brought to my attention through the consultation, and require more detailed scrutiny:

potential cost savings to the airport contract which might be enabled by recent technological developments options for funding the capital cost of the airport through a possible public private partnership.

In addition, my officials will also analyse further the costs and options for a replacement ship.

I expect this to take around six months and will make a further statement when it is complete.

The director responsible for the overseas territories will be visiting St. Helena in the first quarter of 2010 to discuss this announcement with both Government and private sector.

JUSTICE

Bernard Lodge

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Claire Ward): I have today laid before Parliament the report of the inquiry that the Under-Secretary of State, Ministry of Justice, Member for Dewsbury (Shahid Malik) announced on 23 February 2009 into the death of Bernard Lodge, who died at HMP Manchester on 28 August 1998.

I would like to thank the Chair of the inquiry, Barbara Stow, and the solicitor to the inquiry for the way in which they handled the inquiry and for fulfilling the terms of reference so efficiently.

Civil Law Reform Bill

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice): In accordance with the Government's legislative programme for 2009-2010, the Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor has today laid before Parliament the draft Civil Law Reform Bill for pre-legislative scrutiny (Civil Law Reform—A Draft Bill Cm 7773).

The draft Bill contains provisions to:

reform the law of damages to provide a fairer and more modern system, particularly in relation to bereavement and dependency damages under the Fatal Accidents Act 1976.

give greater flexibility in setting the interest rate on pre-judgment debt and damages and on judgment debts so that it can be adapted more readily to different circumstances, making it fairer to debtors and creditors alike.

reform the law relating to the distribution of estates of a deceased person where an inheritance is forfeited or disclaimed, so that where a person is disqualified or refuses an inheritance, his or her heirs are not disinherited.

bring the disciplinary hearing appeal process for barristers into line with the appeal process for solicitors by transferring the jurisdiction to hear appeals to the High Court.

To accompany the command paper the Ministry of Justice has today published a consultation paper Civil Law Reform—a draft Bill containing the draft Bill, the accompanying explanatory notes and the impact assessments relating to the reform. The consultation period will close on 9 February 2010.

FOI Quarterly Monitoring Statistics

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. Michael Wills): Today I have deposited copies of "The Freedom of Information Act 2000 - Statistics on implementation in Central Government: Q3 - July - September 2009" in the Libraries of both Houses. Copies are also available in the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

This is the quarterly monitoring statistics report analysing the performance of central Government in the fifth full year of freedom of information.

House of Lords (Commonwealth and Republic of Ireland Citizens)

The Minister of State, Ministry of Justice (Mr. Michael Wills): My noble friend the Under-Secretary of State, Ministry of Justice, has made the following written ministerial statement:

During the debate on 10 December in the House of Lords—on the Commonwealth's shared goals in democracy and development—Baroness Gardner of Parkes asked about eligibility of Commonwealth and Republic of Ireland citizens for membership of the House of Lords. The Government undertook to set out the background to the issue in more detail and to legislate before the end of the current session of Parliament to remove any uncertainty. The Government's firm view is that nothing in the current circumstances prevents any Member of the House of Lords from membership or from taking a full part in the proceedings of the House.

It was suggested to the Government in April 2009 by the House authorities that the drafting of the Electoral Administration Act 2006 ("the 2006 Act"), and modifications made by that Act to section 3 of the Act of Settlement 1701, could be interpreted to have inadvertently cast doubt on whether Commonwealth and Republic of Ireland citizens are eligible for membership of the House of Lords and to hold certain offices under the Crown.

The Government have been examining possible interpretations of the changes made by the 2006 Act carefully. Although one possible interpretation would have the effect which has caused concern, this was clearly not the intention of Parliament when passing the 2006 Act, and the Government would disagree with any suggestion that changes should be made in the way that eligibility is regarded.

The relevant provisions are complex. Section 18 of the 2006 Act included provisions about eligibility for membership of the House of Commons, which were intended to ensure that only persons with indefinite leave to remain in the UK are eligible to be Members of the House of Commons. The Act also extended this provision to elections to the European Parliament, the Greater London Authority, local authorities, and the devolved legislatures. The provision was enacted in response to concerns that elected representatives should be able to serve their term of office in full in the UK. The provision was commenced on 1 January 2007.

Section 18(7) of the 2006 Act repealed the first entry in Schedule 7 to the British Nationality Act 1981. That entry had modified the application of section 3 of the Act of Settlement which concerns eligibility for membership of both Houses of Parliament, the Privy Council and certain offices under the Crown by disapplying part of it in relation to Commonwealth and Republic of Ireland citizens, allowing such citizens to be Members of either House and to hold offices under the Crown.

This change was made in consequence of the provision at section 18(1) of the Electoral Administration Act 2006, which substituted a new modification of section 3 of the Act of Settlement that applies only for the purposes of membership of the House of Commons: under its terms, Commonwealth citizens who do not have indefinite leave to remain in the UK are prevented from being Members of the House of Commons. However, since the drafting of the legislation did not contain provisions expressly saving the first entry in Schedule 7 to the British Nationality Act 1981 in relation to membership of the House of Lords and other offices under the Crown, a question has been raised about whether the eligibility of Commonwealth or Republic of Ireland citizens for membership of the House of Lords and other positions is affected.

Though it clearly was not the intention of Parliament in passing the 2006 Act to change the entitlement of Commonwealth and Republic of Ireland citizens to sit in the House of Lords, Ministers have concluded that it is best to put the issue beyond any doubt. Accordingly, we will introduce appropriate legislation before the end of the current Session of Parliament to remove any uncertainty on this issue. An amendment will be tabled to the Constitutional Reform and Governance Bill, currently before the House of Commons, to achieve this.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Expedited Legislation (Explanatory Notes)

The Leader of the House of Commons (Ms Harriet Harman): On 7 July the House of Lords Select Committee on the Constitution published its report on "Fast-track Legislation: Constitutional Implications and Safeguards" (HL 116, 2008-09). The Government response was published on 7 December (HL 11, 2009-10).

The report recommended that, where the Government was proposing expedited legislation it should provide an explanation of why the legislation should be fast-tracked. The Government accept in principle the Committee's recommendation that, for all Bills which are to be passed with unusual expedition, an explanation of the reasons for using a fast-track procedure should be provided.

I am therefore informing the House that any future legislation which will be subject to expedited procedures will contain a full explanation in the accompanying explanatory notes to the legislation. The explanation will address the questions set out in paragraph 186 of the Committee's report:

(a) Why is fast-tracking necessary?

(b) What is the justification for fast-tracking each element of the Bill?

(c) What efforts have been made to ensure the amount of time made available for parliamentary scrutiny has been maximised?

(d) To what extent have interested parties and outside groups been given an opportunity to influence the policy proposal?

(e) Does the Bill include a sunset clause (as well as any appropriate renewal procedure)? If not, why do the Government judge that their inclusion is not appropriate?

(f) Are mechanisms for effective post-legislative scrutiny and review in place? If not, why do the Government judge that their inclusion is not appropriate?

(g) Has an assessment been made as to whether existing legislation is sufficient to deal with any or all of the issues in question?

(h) Have relevant parliamentary committees been given the opportunity to scrutinise the legislation?

The Video Recordings Bill which has been introduced in this House today is the first Bill to be fast-tracked since the Committee published its report. The explanatory notes of this Bill reflect the new approach.

Parliamentary Pensions

The Leader of the House of Commons (Ms Harriet Harman): The Government are committed to providing public service pension schemes that are affordable and sustainable in the long term, consistent with the principle of fairness for all taxpayers and between generations.

On 3 December I laid before Parliament amendments to the Parliamentary Pensions (Consolidation and Amendment) Regulations 1993. These amendments will bring in the cost-saving changes to the Parliamentary Pension Scheme which I announced in my statement of 31 March 2009 in accordance with the January 2008 recommendations of the Senior Salaries Review Body endorsed by the House on 24 January 2008. The package is judged by the Government Actuary to produce savings of 2.9 per cent. of payroll, which will reduce the Exchequer contribution to the scheme by approximately £1.4 million a year.

The House endorsed the cost-saving package on 25 June 2009 and also agreed that further changes should be brought forward to cap the Exchequer contribution for 2009-10 not at the 28.7 per cent. of payroll level recommended by the Senior Salaries Review Body, but at the lower 2008-9 level of 26.8 per cent.

At request of the Prime Minister, the Senior Salaries Review Body is currently undertaking a fundamental independent review of the Parliamentary pension arrangements. The Prime Minister has asked the Senior Salaries Review Body to consider the full range of options for reducing the Exchequer contribution and to consider, among other things, the merits of defined contribution or money purchase arrangements. The Senior Salaries Review Body aims to conclude its report by the end of the year. The Senior Salaries Review Body will take into account the cost-saving changes we have made, but its chairman has expressed concern that any proposals by the Government to make further such changes at this time could conflict with the Senior Salaries Review Body's recommendations and might appear to compromise its review. The Government's decision on any further proposals will be taken after the publication of the review. Where applicable, those proposals will be informed by the Senior Salaries Review Body's recommendations and will, in compliance with the House of Commons' resolution of 25 June, have the effect of freezing the Exchequer contribution for 2009-10 at the 2008-09 level as a percentage of payroll.

TRANSPORT

Bus Service Operators Grant

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Mr. Sadiq Khan): My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Transport has made the following ministerial statement:

In December 2008 the then Secretary of State for Transport, the right hon. Member for Ashfield (Geoff Hoon), announced a range of reforms to bus service operators grant (BSOG) to bring this subsidy better into line with Government objectives. As promised in that announcement, we have since been developing the detailed arrangements with stakeholders, and continuing to discuss possible longer-term reforms.

In April this year the Government introduced two changes to the current BSOG scheme. First, bus operators who have achieved a 6 per cent. improvement in fuel efficiency will receive a 3 per cent. uplift in their BSOG rate from April 2010. Secondly, with effect from April 2009 operators have been able to claim an additional payment of 6 pence for each kilometre operated by a low-carbon bus, per example one that is capable of achieving at least a 30 per cent. reduction in greenhouse gas emissions compared to a similar size conventional diesel bus.

I can now confirm the details of two further changes that were first announced in last December's statement and will come into effect in April 2010. From that date operators will receive an 8 per cent. increase in their BSOG rate if they have operational ITSO smartcard systems and, separately, a 2 per cent. increase if they have fitted their buses with GPS equipment. To qualify for the higher rate smartcard equipment will need to accept all English concessionary passes and the incentive will also be linked to accepting integrated ticketing products. To receive either the smartcard or GPS incentive, operators will also have to commit to share specific data with local authorities, central government and other relevant bodies. Together these incentives could be worth around £1,000 in additional grant per bus each year.

The smartcard and GPS incentives will not apply to London operators. The contractual arrangements for bus services in London already provide the mechanism for securing the outputs that the Government are seeking, such as installation of GPS equipment and availability of GPS data. There is a separate project to enable the Transport for London Oyster network to read ITSO smart cards, to which the Department for Transport has committed £60 million.

The smartcard incentive is part of a package of measures designed to encourage the introduction of smart and integrated ticketing across the country. These are the subject of a separate announcement today. Encouraging the take up and use of GPS systems will help realise the potential for passengers to receive real-time information about bus services and bus performance.

I can also announce today our intentions for a more fundamental reform of BSOG which we aim to introduce in the next two to three years.

As last December's statement made clear, we want our buses to be as green and clean as possible. That is why we are reforming BSOG to ensure it contributes to the Government's strategic objectives, particularly in relation to tackling climate change. Drawing on the results of our consultation in 2008 on options for longer term reform, and from discussions with stakeholders, the Government wish to move away from paying support on the basis of how much fuel is consumed. We will therefore bring forward new arrangements for support on the basis of passenger numbers. This will act to make public transport more attractive thereby delivering environmental benefits through reduced congestion and improved air quality.

These new arrangements will mean that operators will face the full cost of the fuel they use. This will strengthen the commercial incentives for operators to find ways to reduce their fuel consumption and improve the business case for investment in driver training and low-carbon buses. It also builds on the fuel efficiency target and the distance-based payment for use of low-carbon buses that are now part of the current BSOG system.

The new incentive per passenger arrangements, which build on the work done by the Commission for Integrated Transport, will rely on accurate recording of passenger numbers. This will require audited data of the sort that can be provided through the use of smart ticketing equipment. The move to per passenger payments will therefore be underpinned by the delivery of the Government's smart and integrated ticketing strategy, which has been announced today, and which is itself supported by the new smart ticketing incentive described above. We recognise that it could take up to 10 years for the national bus fleet to be equipped, and we therefore propose a managed transition from BSOG to the new system.

Introduction of this new form of bus subsidy will also require the approval of the European Commission for reasons of state aid. Given the fundamental nature of the changes that we are proposing, approval is likely to take two to three years. Until the new system has been approved the existing BSOG scheme will continue. Once approval has been given, the per passenger system will be rolled out as quickly as operators can install ITSO smart ticketing systems. The existing fuel-based system will continue in parallel for those operators without smartcard equipment, although the rate of payment may decline over time. Eventually, by around 2020, the BSOG system will end and be replaced entirely by an incentive per passenger.

We will discuss the detailed implementation of these proposals with members of the Bus Subsidy Advisory Group and with other Government Departments. In particular, we recognise that an incentive per passenger will have different impacts in areas of high and low demand. While the bulk of resources available for bus support will therefore move to an incentive per passenger basis, we will wish to discuss with stakeholders how best to make appropriate arrangements for supporting socially necessary services that become less commercially viable as a result of introducing a per passenger system. This might mean, for example, some of the current BSOG budget being transferred to local authorities.

It remains our intention as part of these reforms to stop providing BSOG direct to London operators, as announced last December. We will seek to agree detailed arrangements with TfL at the appropriate time.

The changes I have announced today set the long term direction of changes to bus subsidy and introduce important new incentives to the current system. In summary they will:

Provide strong incentives for bus operators further to improve their fuel efficiency, building on the changes introduced in April 2009 which have sent decisive signals to the industry about the need to improve their environmental performance;

Give operators real incentives to attract more passengers to their services and out of their cars;

Underpin the ticketing strategy also announced today and pave the way for widespread smart ticketing;

Support the take up and use of GPS systems that will increase availability to passengers of real-time information about services and bus performance.

EU Transport Council

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Mr. Sadiq Khan): I will attend the second Transport Council of the Swedish presidency which will take place in Brussels on 17 December.

The Council will be asked to reach a political agreement on a regulation on the rights of passengers in bus and coach transport, which also amends Regulation 2006/2004 on co-operation between national authorities responsible for the enforcement of consumer protection laws. While the scope of the regulation remains unresolved prior to the Transport Council, other key UK concerns with the original proposal have been addressed and the Government hope that a satisfactory political agreement can be reached.

The Council will be asked to reach a general approach on an amending regulation on structures for the management of the European satellite radio-navigation programmes. The Commission will also give a progress report on the Galileo programme. Regulation 683/2008 significantly changed the role of the Galileo Supervisory Authority (GSA). The amending regulation amends earlier legislation on the GSA to bring it all in line with the 2008 regulation. It changes the name of the body concerned to the European GNSS Agency and gives the European Commission more power in the administrative board. The UK is content that this is a sensible compromise. The UK has been a strong supporter of the need for a security accreditation body which can operate independently. We were also keen that, should the Accreditors take a decision which would significantly increase cost or introduce delay, the Commission cannot overrule them without going to the Council and the Parliament. It would be for Council to decide whether the risk of not doing what the Accreditors wanted was manageable. The Commission and member states have agreed with us that this is a sensible way forward.

There will be a progress report on a directive on the deployment of intelligent transport systems (ITS). My officials have been negotiating to secure amendments to the draft directive which better align it with UK interests. Good progress has been made on those areas of concern to the UK.

There will also be a progress report on a proposed directive on aviation security charges. The UK will work towards achieving a fair and proportionate outcome that balances the interests of passengers and airports.

The Council will be asked to reach a general approach on a directive on reporting formalities for ships arriving in and/or departing from EU ports. The UK supports this measure in principle as it should lead to a streamlining of administrative procedures to be followed by ships. It will be important to ensure that the implementation timetable allows member states sufficient time to adapt existing national systems to the new requirements.

The Council will be asked to adopt conclusions following on from the Commission's Communication "A sustainable future for transport: Towards an integrated, technology-led and user friendly system", which was debated by the Council in October. The UK believes the Council conclusions to be a good outcome. They provide the Commission with a clear and useful steer and I expect to be able to sign up to the conclusions at the Council.

The Council will be asked to adopt a decision, authorising the Commission to negotiate an agreement with the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO), providing a general framework for enhanced co-operation. The UK supports this proposal. There are significant gains to be had from closer co-operation between the Community and ICAO, notably in the field of aviation safety. The presidency has made clear that the draft mandate does not affect relations between individual member states and ICAO, nor does it affect the arrangements for preparing Community positions for meetings of the ICAO Council.

There will be a progress report from the Commission on the second stage of air services negotiations with the US. Ministers' views will be sought on the next phase of the negotiations.

Smart and Integrated Ticketing Strategy

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Mr. Sadiq Khan): My right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Transport has made the following ministerial statement:

> I am today announcing the launch of the Government's smart and integrated ticketing strategy.
> The strategy follows a consultation which ran for 10 weeks from August this year and sought views on the Government's emerging vision for smart and integrated ticketing across public transport in England. The consultation was well received, with over 120 responses, and there was strong support for the emerging vision although also a strong message that Government needed to set out a clear roadmap for delivery.
> Our research suggests that smart and integrated ticketing could bring overall benefits of over £1 billion per year and could significantly improve the offer to the passenger through reduced queuing times, removal of the need to carry cash and the provision of seamless journeys.
> We have incorporated 27 specific Government commitments in the strategy. Key commitments include £20 million of funding to be awarded to nine of the largest urban areas in England (outside London) in order to bring smart ticketing to the greatest number of people most quickly; a change to bus operators' grant (BSOG) which is the subject of a separate announcement today and which will reward operators who equip their buses with smart ticketing infrastructure with an 8 per cent. increase in grant; consideration of possible legislation if insufficient progress has been made in the roll-out of integrated ticketing; and the creation of a dedicated smart and integrated ticketing team within the Department of Transport to co-ordinate delivery of the strategy from a central point.
> The strategy includes a timetable for delivery, which though challenging, I believe is achievable. Our immediate goal is to see integrated multi-modal smart ticketing schemes, similar to the Oyster scheme in London but using the ITSO specification, in England's major urban areas by 2015. We expect that urban schemes will provide a base from which further expansion can occur, and anticipate that that there will be some local integrated ITSO smart ticketing schemes in every area of the country by 2020. The Department will also continue to put smart ticketing requirements into the rail franchises as they come up for renewal.
> Longer term, our aim is to see customers possibly being given a choice of ticketing media, potentially including bank cards and mobile phones and improved links between ticketing and information provision to make public transport use an easier and more attractive option to passengers.
> The successful delivery of the strategy will depend upon partnership working to ensure that schemes meet the needs of the passengers. In the strategy, the Department lays out the roles envisaged for principal stakeholders: ITSO, the local transport authorities, local transport operators, train operating companies and suppliers. We recognise that we cannot deliver the strategy without the support of all these key stakeholders and I look forward to working with them to ensure that we meet our commitments as soon as possible.
> Copies of the strategy document have been placed in the Library of the House.

UK Roads Liaison Group Report (Severe Weather February 2009)

The Minister of State, Department for Transport (Mr. Sadiq Khan): In February Britain experienced its worst winter for 18 years. It is important that we learn the transport lessons from that experience, so that the country is better prepared for similar severe events in future. To this end, the then Secretary of State for Transport, my right hon. Friend the Member for Ashfield (Mr. Hoon), commissioned the UK Roads Liaison Group (UKRLG) to conduct a review of the difficulties experienced in the operation of winter maintenance service at that time.

The UKRLG published its report on 4 August (available from the Libraries of both Houses or from: www.ukroadsliaisongroup.org), and I am grateful for the thorough way in which it reviews events. The report makes 19 recommendations, and I am pleased to announce today that the Government have accepted them all, which together should improve our preparedness to face up to the challenges presented by severe winter weather in the future.

Most of the recommendations are addressed to local highway authorities and salt suppliers. It is, of course, for each authority to consider these and decide for themselves how best to take them forward. I commend them to authorities' attention.

The report addresses four recommendations specifically to the Department for Transport and the Highways Agency.

First, it recommends that the Highways Agency should hold a reserve of salt above that which it needs to meet its service standards, in order to reduce overall demand for salt at critical times. In addition to supporting the UKRLG review, the agency has carried out its own internal exercise to identify those areas of its business which may be improved, to further strengthen its winter service resilience. A number of improvements have been identified and implemented, including a review of the salt stock levels that will be held across the strategic road network in England. The agency has previously implemented a risk-based approach to set its salt stock levels each year. By identifying and considering the impact of issues which may affect salt supplies and associated stock levels, a suitable salt stock profile for each of the agency's operational areas is derived for the winter season ahead. The increased risk of a salt shortage similar to that experienced last season has been considered when setting the salt stock profiles for this winter season, in order to increase the agency's salt stock resilience.

UKRLG further recommend that the Department should publish an information leaflet for highway authority elected members and senior managers on preparation for severe winter conditions. We have produced such a leaflet and have arranged for this to be distributed today.

The report proposes that the Department should make preparations to enable rapid introduction of derogation against drivers' hours regulations for specific categories of vehicles and drivers if necessary in times of severe adverse weather conditions. We agree with the recommendation that it is important to implement such derogations quickly, when the need has been identified. We believe that the Department's response in February was as swift as was possible; but we will review our processes to ensure that we remain ready to deal with applications for derogation as quickly as possible.

UKRLG considered the operation of the centrally co-ordinated Salt Cell that was set up in February. The report concludes that the possibility of a future Government-run Salt Cell should only be considered as a matter of last resort, but that the Government should develop a contingency plan for any future Salt Cell, to be used in extremis. I again accept the recommendation. My Department is working with a number of stakeholders, both within and without Government, to develop robust protocols against such an eventuality.

Co-operation and co-ordination between highways authorities and suppliers will be a key component in better management of winter service in the future, however severe the weather. The Highways Agency had already identified the need to develop a closer relationship with its salt supply chain partners. A strategic Salt Liaison Group (SLG) has been established, to discuss issues affecting salt usage and supply for the strategic network. Local highway authorities may wish to reflect on how similar arrangements might benefit them. As part of its own review of lessons learnt, the agency also highlighted the need for improved communications to give earlier warning of any developing salt supply issues. Again, local authorities may wish to consider how they can implement a more precautionary, focused dialogue with salt suppliers in the same way.

There is already good communication between the Highways Agency and local authorities, and the agency shares a number of depots with local authorities. As well as the cost efficiencies associated with depot-sharing, it can provide access to the network at operationally important locations that may not otherwise be available. The Highways Agency recognises the importance of depot-sharing in providing a cost-effective solution to planning and maintaining an effective winter service. However, depots are often not suitable for sharing either on account of their location, their size or other operational constraints. Each proposal therefore needs to be considered on its individual merits, to ensure that service delivery for both authorities will not be compromised.

While no system can be completely resilient in extreme circumstances, adopting the UKRLG's recommendations should help the nation to be better prepared should weather conditions similar to this past winters be encountered in future.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Autumn Performance Report

The Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (Yvette Cooper): I will shortly be publishing the Autumn Performance Report of the Department for Work and Pensions. The report is intended to supplement the Department's annual report published in June 2009.

The report is the Department's third report under CSR2007 on its cross-governmental public service agreements, its departmental strategic objectives and its value for money delivery agreement.

This publication has been specifically designed to be accessed online, on the grounds of sustainability and potential financial savings, and will be available on the Department's website. For the convenience of Members, some printed copies will be placed in the Library and supplied to the Vote Office and Printed Paper Office.

Written Ministerial Statements

Wednesday 16 December 2009

ECOFIN

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Economic and Financial Affairs Council was held in Brussels on 2 December 2009. The following items were discussed:

Regulations establishing three European supervisory authorities

Ministers agreed general approaches on draft regulations establishing three European Supervisory Authorities (ESAs): the European Banking Authority, the European Insurance and Occupational Pensions Authority and the European Securities and Markets Authority.

The UK secured significant additional safeguards for both crisis and mediation decision-making by the ESAs, including language in line with the June European Council conclusions that decisions taken would not impinge in any way on the fiscal responsibilities of member states.

Ministers agreed that ECOFIN would retain the power to call a crisis and therefore activate any ESA powers. Ministers will vote by simple majority on safeguard clauses applying to crisis powers of a member state seeking an opt-out as well as any ESA decisions on mediation. Member states seeking an opt-out would have the option to refer the matter to the European Council.

The Government welcome the outcome, which complements existing national regulation and should tighten up the European regulatory system. The presidency will now start negotiations with the European Parliament with a view to enabling adoption of the texts at first reading.

Taxation

> a) VAT: Draft Directive on reverse charge on emission allowances and certain goods.
> The Council agreed a general approach on the draft directive that would allow member states to implement, on an optional and temporary basis, a reversal of liability for the payment of VAT on greenhouse gas emission allowances. The Council will continue to work on other elements of the proposal as regards the application of the reverse charge mechanism to mobile phones and electronic circuit devices, with a view to reaching an agreement as soon as possible.
> b) VAT treatment of postal services
> ECOFIN agreed to discuss the VAT treatment of postal services further before the implementation of the third postal directive enters into force on 1 January 2011 (1 January 2013 in some member states). The forthcoming Spanish and Belgian presidencies were invited to explore all options and report back to Council by December 2010 at the latest.

Implementation of the Stability and Growth Pact

ECOFIN agreed Council recommendations calling on Belgium and Italy to reduce their deficits below the 3 per cent. of GDP threshold by 2012, the Czech Republic, Germany, Spain, France, the Netherlands, Austria, Portugal, Slovakia and Slovenia to do so by 2013, Ireland by 2014 and the UK by the 2014-15 financial year. It also adopted a decision acknowledging that Greece's response to its April 2009 recommendation has been insufficient. These recommendations are in line with recent agreements at ECOFIN and the European Council on the EU's framework for fiscal exit strategies.

Preparations for the 10-11 December European Council

> a) Financial supervision
> The Council took stock of progress made on the legislative proposals aimed at reforming the EU framework for the supervision of financial services following the global financial crisis. The Swedish presidency will report on progress to the December European Council, taking into account the results of the Council deliberations on both the micro and macro-supervisory elements of the package, enabling Heads to sign off the complete package as planned.
> b) Contribution from ECOFIN to the discussion on the post-2010 Lisbon agenda
> Ministers agreed a set of conclusions on the direction of a successor to the Lisbon strategy. The Government support the conclusions, which help build momentum towards the December European Council, where EU Heads will discuss a set of principles for a new European strategy for jobs and growth.
> c) Exit strategies
> Ministers agreed conclusions on exit strategies from support to the financial sector. The UK is content with the conclusions, which recognise the importance of starting to design the strategy for the phasing out of support schemes, but emphasised that implementation should wait until markets have fully recovered. ECOFIN will return to this issue in February 2010.

Financial stability and crisis management

ECOFIN agreed conclusions on financial stability, focusing on improvements in cross-border crisis management in the banking sector. The conclusions recognised the value of co-ordination among member states and with external partners, and endorsed the principles of firm-specific recovery and resolution plans.

Equitable Life

The Chief Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Liam Byrne): I can today provide an update to the House on the progress of Sir John Chadwick's work in advising the Government on the establishment of an exgratia payment scheme for Equitable Life policyholders.

Sir John published his first interim report on 18 August 2009. He has since received a range of representations on the questions he has raised, and is today publishing a second interim report, which sets out:

> The scope of the work that will be required following his revised terms of reference, which were issued on 27 November.
> The case for adopting a "flexible" approach to calculating policyholders' relative loss. Sir John considers that this approach is fairer, easier to calculate, and quicker to deliver than other potential approaches.
> The list of questions that he will need to address in his final advice.

Sir John would welcome further representations and comments from all parties on the issues raised in his latest report by 29 January 2010.

The Government are committed to establishing a fair payment scheme as quickly as possible. We expect Sir John to submit his final report in spring 2010, and will announce details of a payment scheme to follow, also in spring 2010.

I will update the House further in due course.

Investment Banks

The Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury (Sarah McCarthy-Fry): Today the Government are publishing a consultation document on investment bank resolution. Copies of the document entitled, "Establishing resolution arrangements for investment banks" have been deposited in the Libraries of the House and will be available on the HM Treasury website at: www.hm-treasury.gov.uk.

House of Lords Select Committee on the Barnett Formula (Government Response)

The Chancellor of the Exchequer (Mr. Alistair Darling): The Government are today publishing their response to the House of Lords Select Committee report on the Barnett formula (CM 7772). This paper and the evidence referred to in it also meet the Government's commitment to produce a factual paper on the Barnett formula.

The Remittance Basis

The Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Mr. Stephen Timms): I am announcing today the Government's intention to present to Parliament proposed changes to the capital gains tax rules which will be legislated as part of Finance Bill 2010. These changes prevent the creation of capital gains tax losses which arise in certain circumstances from transactions of foreign currency bank accounts and will be effective from 16 December 2009. HM Revenue and Customs will publish on their website at: www.hmrc.gov.uk, precise details of the changes as soon as possible.

The changes affect individuals who are liable to tax on their foreign income and gains on the remittance basis. These individuals are liable to income tax on the sterling value of the amount remitted at the time of remittance. If the remittance takes the form of a transfer from a bank account in a foreign currency, they will simultaneously dispose of a corresponding part of that account and a capital gain or loss might arise as a consequence.

Associated with this change, I can confirm that HM Revenue and Customs accept that an existing capital gains tax rule in section 37 of the Taxation of Chargeable Gains Act 1992 removes any element of double tax charge in this situation. The income remitted is fully taxable (subject to any exemption which might apply), but a double charge to tax is avoided by this rule which excludes the income amount from the disposal proceeds used to calculate the capital gain or loss.

It is now clear that the rule goes beyond preventing a charge to capital gains tax and does not produce a fair outcome. Where the remittance is all treated as income, the rule creates capital gains tax losses that are far in excess of any real loss which the individual incurs. Where the remittance is partly income, the rule either creates an excessively large loss or reduces the taxable gain below the real level of gain.

The proposed legislative change will correct this defect in the current rules. Where a remittance comprises wholly income, the change will eliminate the loss arising under the current rule. Where a remittance comprises only partly income, the loss attributable to the income element of the remittance will again be eliminated. In addition, the allowable cost attributable to the non-income element of the remittance will be adjusted to ensure it corresponds to the amount of that part of the remittance. Where necessary, the allowable cost of the bank account will also be adjusted to ensure it corresponds to the amount remaining in the bank account after the remittance.

The result of these changes will be that a double tax charge will be avoided and no relief will be given where no actual loss has been incurred.

CABINET OFFICE

Government and Third Sector in England (Compact)

The Minister of State, Cabinet Office (Angela E. Smith): I am pleased to announce that the refreshed Compact, which outlines how the Government will work together with the third sector, has been launched today. The new Compact is clearer, shorter and easier to use and is a clear symbol of the Government's continued commitment to working with the third sector. It will be a valuable tool in helping to build partnerships in the years to come.

Copies of the Compact have been placed in the Library and on the Cabinet Office website: www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/third_sector.aspx

EU Education and Youth Council

The Minister for Schools and Learners (Mr. Vernon Coaker): Jane Hutt, Minister for Children, Education, Lifelong Learning and Skills in the Welsh Assembly Government, represented the UK at the Education and Youth Councils, on behalf of DCSF and BIS.

Education

Ministers adopted conclusions on the professional development of teachers and school leaders; the role of education in a fully-functioning knowledge triangle; and the education of children with a migrant background. All three sets of conclusions are consistent with UK domestic policy, and we were able to support them.

The latter conclusions also formed the theme of a policy debate between delegations. While clear that there was a wide variation in the levels of migration in each member state, all were in close agreement on the approach set out in the conclusions.

There was a second policy debate on quality assurance in higher education. This was based on a Commission discussion paper which argued for early improvements in higher education quality assurance and further development of transparency tools. The UK supported the approach set out in the Leuven Communiqué of April 2009, stressing the need to embed current improvements before going further and that the issue should be reviewed at the Bologna HE summit in 2012.

This was supported by the majority of member states, who wanted a measured approach, working through the Bologna process.

Under any other business, the Commission presented the draft joint interim report on the education and training 2010 work programme, and the Spanish presidency briefly noted their upcoming presidency schedule.

The Council included a lunch debate on the role of education in the post-2010 Lisbon strategy. This discussion was informed by presidency questions, but also the recently released Barroso EU2020 paper.

Youth

Youth Council adopted a Council resolution on a renewed framework for European co-operation in the youth field (2010-2018). A policy debate followed on the short-term implementation and future aspirations for the framework. All member states supported the strategy, with the majority citing youth unemployment and disadvantaged youth as key issues. The UK pressed for member states commitment to the open method of co-ordination process at all levels, noting the need to avoid burdensome reporting structures.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Lamb Inquiry

The Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (Ed Balls): Today I welcome the publication of the final report of the Lamb inquiry on parental confidence in the special educational needs (SEN) system.

The Lamb inquiry was established as part of the Government's response to the House of Commons Education and Skills Committee report "Special Educational Needs: Assessment and Funding". The inquiry, under the chairmanship of Brian Lamb, the chair of the Special Educational Consortium, was tasked with investigating a range of ways in which parental confidence in the SEN assessment process might be improved. We specifically asked that the inquiry:

commission and evaluate innovative projects;

draw on the evidence of other work currently commissioned by the Department; and take into account the evidence of the submissions to the two Select Committee reports in 2006 and 2007.

The inquiry began in March 2008, and has made a range of recommendations, which we have accepted and acted upon. In December 2008, in response to early findings calling for a greater focus on outcomes achieved by children with SEN and disabilities (SEND), we announced a £38 million package of measures aimed at addressing this. At the heart of that was Achievement for All pilots, which are now taking place in 10 areas, involving 460 schools to demonstrate how to: raise achievement for children with SEND; better engage their parents; and address issues such as bullying and participation in school life[1]. In April, I committed to ensuring that our 21st Century Schools White Paper mainstreamed the needs of parents of children with SEND. Since the inquiry's two reports in August, the Children, Schools and Families Bill has been introduced to Parliament. It proposes a new duty on Ofsted to report on the progress of children with SEND in school inspections, now and in future, and gives parents who have had their child's statement reviewed but not amended, an additional right to appeal.

The Government welcome the inquiry's final report. The inquiry has found that, whilst the SEN framework functions well for the majority of parents, within the same legislative framework there are parents who have been poorly served and have had to battle to get the needs of their child identified and met. This varied picture must be redrawn so that it is common practice to have access to skilled professionals who understand the needs of children and who have high expectations of what children can achieve.

I have written to Brian Lamb today to thank him for the inquiry and to outline the Government's immediate response, which focuses on the concerns of parents who have least confidence in the present system:

Work will begin immediately on establishing a national special educational needs helpline which will provide independent, expert advice and information to parents directly over the phone and through dedicated online support.

The Government will move quickly to strengthen parent partnership services by ensuring all advisors are trained in SEN and disability law. We will work with the national parent partnership network, based at the Council for Disabled Children, to deliver this training in 2010.

We will work with professional bodies to make clear that the advice professionals provide to local authorities should not be fettered because of concerns about capacity to deliver.

Start-up funding will be provided to the local government ombudsman, to take on parental complaints on SEN about local authorities from January 2010.

Statutory guidance to governing bodies and independent appeals panels on exclusions will be strengthened to require a review of whether the head teacher had regard to the guidance on special educational needs and disability.

Tomorrow, we are inviting local authorities and voluntary sector organisations to bid for a further round of innovative projects to improve parental confidence. These will include more transparency in LA decision-making and greater independence of assessment, using different service models for providing educational psychology advice.

The inquiry makes a number of recommendations about strengthening the operation of the first-tier tribunal (SEN and Disability). We agree that guidelines should be issued on the provision of professional and expert evidence by March 2010. It is important that we improve access to justice and so we will work with the Ministry of Justice and key stakeholders to review the exceptional funding scheme for providing legal aid for tribunal hearings and will also aim to re-launch this scheme by March.

We know that bullying is a particular issue for children with SEND and we have published guidance on how to prevent and tackle it. We will be investing further in a project starting early in 2010, led by the Anti-Bullying Alliance and working with key organisations, to identify best practice in tackling SEND-related bullying and how schools can be supported to address it.

In total the inquiry has made 51 recommendations; the implementation plan which we will publish in the new year will set out a full response to each of these recommendations and provide details on how the Government will take them forward. The implementation plan will say how we will be:

Putting Children's Outcomes at the Heart of the System

The inquiry is clear that parental confidence is strongest where aspirations for children are high and there is a real focus on progress and outcomes. Our implementation plan will show how we will help schools develop skills and capacity within their workforce and parents will be able to access specialist expertise. The Government's pupil and parent guarantees will also make a commitment to all pupils and their parents, including those with SEND, that their schools will have effective policies in place to prevent and tackle all forms of bullying.

Ensuring a greater voice for parents in the system

The importance of good communication is well evidenced by the inquiry: communication between parents and schools and better partnerships between parents and professionals. The implementation plan will explain how the principles of the Aiming High for Disabled Children Core Offer will be further embedded for children with SEN and how we will see improvements in the information that parents can expect to receive from all levels of the system.

Establishing a local system in tune with children's needs

The Inquiry has shown that local authorities can and do make a difference to outcomes for children with SEND. The system works best where schools, local authorities and parents operate in a true partnership. We will build on this good practice. Our implementation plan will detail how we will build the system's capacity to provide this level of partnership with all parents. This will include further training for children's services leaders and support for better models of commissioning services. We will also offer guidance and training to those drawing up statements to help build partnership and trust with parents.

The final report is clear about the importance of accountability in ensuring parental confidence in the system. Our implementation plan will explain how guidance and training for school governors, school improvement partners and appeal panel members will be taken forward. I am committed to ensuring that we bring about an end to systematic failures to fulfil statutory duties and will work with bodies who have information on non-compliance to take firmer action to address failure.

The implementation plan will also detail how the tribunal will review and develop the information that it gathers and publishes and arrangements for the guidance and training for tribunal chairs on telephone and face-to-face hearings.

The inquiry has recommended remedying the exclusion of schools from the duty in the Disability Discrimination Act to provide auxiliary aids and services. We accept this in principle and will look for a suitable legislative opportunity.

I am immensely grateful for all that Brian Lamb and his expert advisers have achieved through the inquiry. I would also wish to thank them for the thorough way in which the inquiry has consulted a wide range of experts and practitioners and for the way in which the voice of parents and children and young people has been brought to the fore. I also note the knowledge that has been developed through the innovative projects and thank the local parents, teachers and officers who have been testing out new ways of ensuring greater parental confidence.

I have asked Brian to monitor progress against the actions we have announced today, and those in the implementation plan we will publish in the new year, and report back to me in April 2010.

The Government share the inquiry's call for much greater ambition for the nation's most vulnerable children and the best possible engagement with their parents. Through our response to the inquiry, and the implementation plan early in 2010, I am committed to ensuring all parents have a shared experience of a system that operates in partnership for the benefit of their children.

I am placing a copy of the report and our response in the Libraries of both Houses.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Sustainable Homes

The Minister for Housing (John Healey): Tackling the huge challenge of climate change is one of this Government's highest priorities. The Government have committed to ambitious emissions reduction plans and have set in legislation a target to reduce UK carbon emissions by 80 per cent. against 1990 levels by 2050. In the UK, nearly half of our carbon emissions come from buildings—27 per cent. of these are from our homes and a further 17 per cent. from other non-domestic buildings. Reducing emissions from our homes is therefore an important part of the UK's transition to a low carbon economy.

Code for Sustainable Homes

The Code for sustainable homes aims to improve the overall sustainability of new homes by setting a single national standard for England, Wales and Northern Ireland within which the home building industry can design and construct homes to higher environmental standards, and giving new home buyers better information about the environmental impact of their new home and its potential running costs. It helps people to cut their carbon emissions and to lead a more sustainable lifestyle in general and provides practical experience to support future regulatory steps to help achieve the challenging commitment of requiring all new homes built from 2016 to be zero-carbon.

Since its introduction in 2007, over 300,000 homes have been registered to be built to Code standards, and nearly 2,000 certificates have been issued for completed homes. We now have our first set of Code level six homes.

But while practical experience of working with the Code is informing the development of other aspects of sustainability policy (for example the development of surface water management proposals in the current Floods and Water Management Bill), it has also established some questions over existing standards and the processes for assessment. We also now need to revise the Code to incorporate the new regulatory standards we have and are putting in place, and plan for more stretching energy efficiency standards, including our 2016 zero-carbon standard. To ensure the Code can continue to play a central role in supporting more cost effective sustainable housing development in future, we propose to revise the Code.

I am therefore launching a consultation today on the revisions I propose to the Code for sustainable homes. The consultation is focused on three broad aims for changes:

Aligning the Code with the latest developments in the zero-carbon homes policy—to enable it to continue to reflect the future regulatory trajectory and provide practical experience for developers and inform the development of detailed regulatory proposals for 2013 and beyond. This includes consulting on the new energy efficiency standard to be required of zero-carbon homes:

streamlining the standard and processes — learning from experience to date, to ensure that the Code is focused on the issues of greatest significance and that we eliminate unnecessary bureaucracy; and resolving problems that have arisen in use — seeking to find practical solutions to barriers that have arisen in the use of the Code so far, balancing sustainability policy aims with the practicalities of house building in the current economic climate.

Zero-Carbon Homes

In my written ministerial statement of 16 July 2009, I confirmed our commitment and approach to zero-carbon homes. A zero-carbon home is one with a high standard of energy efficiency, a minimum level of on-site carbon reduction and whose remaining emissions are addressed via a range of further carbon reduction measures known as 'allowable solutions'.

On 24 November 2009, I set out a further written ministerial statement announcing the minimum fabric energy efficiency standard that we would require in zero-carbon homes and that we would consult on this as part of the revision of the Code for sustainable homes. The Code consultation published today therefore seeks views on the fabric energy efficiency standards that should apply to all new homes from 2013 and 2016.

Work continues to put in place the practical arrangements that would be required to permit allowable solutions to be put in place to ensure that standards are achieved in practice and on setting a guideline maximum price we expect industry to bear in implementing allowable solutions. We will seek, in line with the Chancellor's pre-Budget report, practical ways of reducing the costs.

The Government will take full account of the views received in refining the Code and the zero-carbon definition. The consultation will close on 24 March 2010.

I am publishing the following documents for this consultation, which together will help the Government take forward the Sustainable Buildings programme.

"Sustainable New Homes: The Road to Zero Carbon (Consultation on the Code for Sustainable Homes and the Energy Efficiency standard for Zero Carbon Homes)". This is available on our website: www.communities.gov.uk/thecode.

"The Draft Code for Sustainable Homes Technical Guide". This is also available on our website later this week.

"The Code for Sustainable Homes Impact Assessment and the Zero Carbon Homes Impact Assessment (Updated 2009)". These will be available on our website later this week.

I am placing copies of the consultation paper in the Library of the House, and will also do so with the "Draft Code Technical guide and Impact Assessments" later this week.

Housing

The Minister for Housing (John Healey): On my written ministerial statement, 30 June 2009, Official Report, column 7WS, I announced proposals to reform the current system of council house finance and replace it with a devolved system of responsibility and funding.

In my statement, I confirmed that transferring council-owned stock to a registered social landlord remained an option for local authorities. However, I was clear that there should be equity in the terms of public funding whether council homes are transferred or retained in the future under self-financing.

I also said that those local authorities who had existing places on the Housing Stock Transfer programme at 30 June should continue with their transfer proposals. Those local authorities were Plymouth, Rutland, Lambeth (Ashmole), Lewisham (Excalibur) Lambeth (Latmos), Manchester (West Gorton), Merton, Harrow (Mill Farm Estate) Lewisham (Forest Hill), Lewisham (Catford) and Lewisham (Rushey Green). They should ensure that their housing transfer is completed within the requisite two-year period. In my statement, I also undertook to continue to work with councils whose tenants had voted for transfer at that date. Plymouth and Rutland have now transferred their housing stock to a registered social landlord.

At the date of my statement at 30 June, the following local authorities, Warrington, Oldham, Bolton, Stockton, Dacorum and Hull (North Bransholme), had significant contact and developed discussions with the Department or the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) or both. These authorities had also undertaken preliminary consultation with their tenants.

These councils have continued to develop their options including for council stock transfer and by today, December 16, all had submitted a full transfer application. I can confirm that I am instructing the HCA to offer the option of a place on the Housing Stock Transfer programme to these authorities. From this date the transfer process, if it is pursued, should be completed within the required two-year period.

On 21 July, I published a consultation document on the reform of Council Housing Finance which proposed the dismantling of the Housing Revenue Account subsidy system and replacing it with a devolved system of responsibility and funding.

Consultation closed on these proposals on the 27 October. We are carefully considering all the detailed responses received, but there was overwhelming support for the principle of self-financing. Local authorities will retain all their rental income, all their capital receipts, and have a sustainable level of debt based on a significant increase in the scope to spend on housing services and standards. Self-financing will increase local responsibility for long-term planning, asset management, and for meeting the needs of local people. It will enable local authorities to improve the management of their homes and services to tenants, to continue to deliver Decent Homes, and to secure greater efficiencies through being able to plan ahead with greater confidence.

Our work on establishing the structure and detail of a self-financing offer to local authorities with social housing and a housing revenue account is progressing well. In February I expect to be able to confirm the progress we have made and set out in detail the parameters of the changes we plan. This should enable local authorities to make a more informed assessment about what self-financing might mean for future financing, sustainability and housing standards with the continued ownership of their housing stock.

Self-financing will offer an affordable retention option for all local authorities. If it is generally accepted by local government then I would expect that self-financing could be in place for authorities for 2011-12. This would offer a clear alternative to stock transfer within a clear time scale that is comparable to the two-year period allowed for concluding stock transfer.

The six local authorities offered the option of a place on the Housing Stock Transfer programme should fully consider the self-financing proposals and assess all of the options carefully. They should spell out the options available, in clear terms, as part of any consultation with their tenants.

The HCA in approving the offer document for the six authorities for the stage 1 consultation exercise will ensure that the terms of both the full consultation and any subsequent ballot are balanced, neutral and factual, and that the options available to local authorities, and more importantly their tenants, which have been considered, include the potential for self-financing.

The underlying principle is that tenants and others in the local authority area concerned must have accurate and full information on the clear options available in order to be fully consulted and be in a position to make their views known.

In the light of my statement of 30 June, I am now minded to announce a change in policy for all other local authorities who may currently be developing transfer proposals, but do not have a place on the Housing Stock Transfer programme.

I am proposing that those local authorities who had not met the above criteria by today will not be considered for a place on the Housing Stock Transfer programme until we publish the self-financing offer and as a consequence, they should reconsider their transfer proposals in the light of the outline for this new self-financing system.

This will be a very significant opportunity for local authorities to consider. Most importantly, it will be an opportunity for tenants to consider and they should have all the options in front of them when they are asked for their views.

I invite the views of local authorities on the proposed changes to the Housing Stock Transfer programme. I expect to receive representations by 15 January 2010 which I will consider fully. And, I will report to the House further on these matters.

Park Homes (Transfer of Dispute Resolution)

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. Ian Austin): Further to the statement by the Under-Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, my hon. Friend the Member for Hartlepool (Mr. Wright) on 30 May 2009, in which he announced the Government's intention to transfer most of the functions of county courts to residential property tribunals under the Mobile Homes Act 1983 (as amended), I am today announcing that, subject to parliamentary consent, the residential property tribunal's new jurisdiction will come into force on 6 April 2010.

The aim of the transfer of the jurisdiction is to provide residents of mobile homes (including caravans) and the owners of sites on which they are located, with a level playing field in the resolution of disputes, by providing access to a dedicated, low-cost specialist (housing) tribunal, which can deal with cases quickly and without the parties needing to be legally represented.

I have also today published a paper setting out the Government's response to the May 2009 consultation "Further consultation on termination provisions in the Mobile Homes Act 1983 (as amended)". The response paper sets out the reasons for the Government's decisions not to transfer the "fact finding" role of county courts to residential property tribunals in respect of termination cases involving a breach of an agreement, or a claim that the resident of the park home is no longer occupying it as his only or main residence, but to do so in respect of claims relating to the detrimental condition of the home to the amenity of the site. A copy of the response paper has been placed in the Library of the House and is available on the Communities and Local Government website at: www.communities.gov.uk/publications/housing/terminationprovisionsresponse

Sustainable Communities Act 2007

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Mr. John Denham): On 28 October I committed to reporting on the future development of Local Spending Reports. That report is being published today on the Department for Communities and Local Government website at: http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/localgovernment/localpublicexpenditure. Copies will be placed in the Library of the House.

Our aim is to deliver better public services which also offer increased value for money. In order to do that, we need to ensure that information about how public money is spent is clear, accessible and useful. This will make it easier for service providers, potential providers, and citizens themselves to look at how that money is being spent, identify evidence of duplication or waste, develop alternative solutions and hold service providers to account. More fundamentally, ensuring that citizens have the information they need about public organisations is essential to empower communities, make sure their voice is heard, and that they have control over the services they receive.

Local Spending Reports are an important part of the way in which we will increase the transparency, visibility and accountability of local public spending. They help ensure that local authorities, their partners, and citizens have easy access to the information they need about public spending in their area, all in one place. The first Local Spending Report was published in April 2009, when we committed to developing these reports further.

The report we are publishing today sets out how we plan to make Local Spending Reports more useful and informative, by increasing the range of information they cover; and more practical and accessible, by ensuring that Local Spending Reports can be viewed by anyone on the web in a broader context of quality, performance, efficiency and value for money. They will form part of the Local Data Exchange which Communities and Local Government is developing as a way for local authorities to better share information among each other and with their partners and citizens. It also sets out how we will ensure that Local Spending Reports offer value for money and are not overly costly or burdensome for local authorities and their partners.

Local Spending Reports are just one element of our ambitions to make sure that citizens are better informed about the services in their area and how they are performing. Since the Sustainable Communities Act 2007 became law, there have been other important developments which will complement and strengthen how they work—first, the Government's wider work to make public data available to common standards on the internet, led by Tim Berners-Lee and Nigel Shadbolt; secondly, our proposals to strengthen the capacity of local authorities to scrutinise local public spending; and thirdly, the development of Total Place, where local authorities bring together all the partners responsible for public spending in an area, challenging how that money is being spent. Most recently, "Putting the Frontline First: Smarter Government" set out a plan to drive up standards by strengthening the role of citizens and civic society, to free up public services by recasting the relationship between the centre and the frontline, and to streamline the centre of Government, saving money for sharper delivery. Local Spending Reports are one step towards these broader goals.

The next Local Spending Report will contain more up-to-date data, across a wider range of sources. In the new year, I will publish a consultation paper to discuss the issues with organisations who will be affected by the arrangements. We also want to make sure that the next Local Spending Report easily links across to the sources of the original data wherever possible, so that those interested in the detail of the report can quickly find out more. This will make Local Spending Reports more "alive": easier to use and more valuable to the user. My intention is to publish the next Local Spending Report (after the consultation) in the summer 2010.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Private Military and Security Companies (Standards of Conduct)

The Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (David Miliband): On 24 April 2009, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) launched a 12-week public consultation on the Government's proposed policy to promote high standards of conduct in the Private Military and Security Companies (PMSCs) industry internationally.

Our overarching aims are to (a) promote high standards of conduct by PMSCs internationally; and (b) reduce the risk that PMSC activities might give rise to human rights or international humanitarian law concerns, assist internal repression, or provoke or prolong internal or regional tensions.

Our preferred option involves promot[illegible]igh standards of behaviour by the industry in the [illegible]gh a code of conduct, agreed with and monitored [illegible]rnment, using our leverage as a key buyer to raise standards, together with an international agreement on standards covering all aspects of PMSC operation and organisation worldwide.

We received 25 responses to the consultation. The FCO is today publishing on its website a summary of responses to the consultation, including a Government response to the contributions. We will be able to integrate many of the suggestions into our follow-up work.

The following key findings emerged: (a) there was no conclusive evidence to demonstrate that the Government's preferred option of promoting high standards of conduct internationally was not the best way of meeting achieving our aims and (b) the appropriateness and capacity of a trade association to combine the compliance auditing and monitoring of a code of conduct with trade promotion activities would require careful consideration.

The Government remain convinced that their preferred approach is the most viable option, but accept that further work remains to be done in certain respects. Specifically, we will now take forward work in consultation with the industry, non-governmental organisations and others to determine detailed arrangements for the effective monitoring/auditing of compliance with a code of conduct. We will aim to publish our thinking on the way ahead, taking into account this work and the key findings of the consultation, by March 2010.

In parallel, my officials will continue to work with partners for an effective international standard supported by an accountability mechanism. We aim to agree these within the next two years.

HEALTH

NHS Operating Framework

The Secretary of State for Health (Andy Burnham): The NHS Operating Framework for 2010-11 was published today. A copy has been placed in the Library of the House and copies are available to hon. Members from the Vote Office.

The NHS Operating Framework for 2010-11 describes a stable financial settlement to operate within and makes clear what the NHS needs to do to deliver the priorities agreed as part of the comprehensive spending review 2007, and be in the best possible position to move into the new Spending Review period beyond 2011.

The priorities for the NHS in 2010-11 continue to be:

improving standards of cleanliness and tackling healthcare associated infections;

improving access to care through the achievement of the 18-week referral to treatment pledge and improving access to GP services, including at evenings and at weekends;

improving the health of adults and children and reducing health inequalities, by focusing on improving care for cancer and stroke, and paying particular attention to children's health, and maternity and neonatal services; improving patient and staff experience, satisfaction and engagement; and preparing to respond in a state of emergency, such as an outbreak of pandemic influenza.

In addition to the national priorities, primary care trusts (PCTs) need to continue to improve at understanding the particular needs of their local populations and take concrete steps to address them. In order to meet their own local needs, PCTs will need to work in step with local government through local area agreements that focus on improving health and well-being.

Local priorities will build on evidence about current PCT performance and regional variation, and also plan for the future by incorporating work being done in local service reviews.

By the end of 2010-11 we expect to see NHS organisations that have adapted to reflect the quality and productivity challenge while maintaining improved delivery and financial discipline.

The NHS must meet the needs of its patients and their families, the expectations of the public and the aspirations of its staff. At all times, the NHS must be safe, effective, personalised and fair. The more responsive and personalised the NHS gets, the better the care it will provide and the more confidence the health service will inspire.

The NHS Operating Framework for 2010-11 should be read in conjunction with the NHS 2010-15 document.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Civilian Stabilisation Capacity

The Secretary of State for International Development (Mr. Douglas Alexander): I am pleased to announce that the stabilisation unit has now recruited over 1,000 high quality individuals with the right skills and experience to deploy and help rebuild countries emerging from conflict. They come from both the public and private sectors, including 200 civil servants. This delivers the commitment made by the Prime Minister last year in his launch of the national security strategy.

The stabilisation unit currently deploys 70 civilians and 35 police officers either in hostile environments such as Afghanistan, Iraq, Sudan and DRC, or on secondment to international peace-building missions such as Kosovo and Georgia. These trained and experienced individuals are making a valuable contribution to improving security, governance and promoting peace in countries affected by violent conflict. This has been most evident in Helmand province in Afghanistan where the unit's ability to find high quality personnel willing to work in the forward operating bases has been a major factor in the success of the UK-led provincial reconstruction team in expanding the reach of the Government of Afghanistan to the majority of the population.

The creation of the 1,000 strong civilian stabilisation capacity will enable the unit to increase the number of civilians deployed at any one time up to 200 if required. The unit is also working with UK police forces in increasing the number of serving senior ranking police officers who are able to deploy.

This enhancement of the stabilisation unit's capability is one of a number of ways in which DFID, FCO and MOD are strengthening the unit. It is also increasing its ability to support cross-Government planning and identify and disseminate lessons relating to conflict.

Ethiopia

The Minister of State, Department for International Development (Mr. Gareth Thomas): Ethiopia remains one of the poorest countries in the world. Recently, it has faced additional challenges, including a chronic humanitarian situation and the impact of the global economic downturn.

Despite these additional challenges, the Government of Ethiopia continue to make impressive progress in expanding the availability and quality of health, education, water, sanitation and agriculture services across Ethiopia, with support from international donors. Progress in these areas is building the foundations for faster growth and greater food security. The UK helps support this progress through the protection of basic services (PBS) programme, alongside complementary activities.

PBS has a proven track record of providing essential services for millions of very poor Ethiopians. In the next two to three years, our latest £60 million contribution will help:

provide an extra 150,000 trained teachers get 2.8 million more children in school train 6,000 new health workers

equip 1,200 health centres with emergency obstetric care vaccinate 4 million babies against killer diseases make sure that 400,000 more children survive to the age of five; and provide access to water for 6 million more households.

We are aware of allegations that some aid provided through the Ethiopian authorities—including through PBS—is being distorted at the local level for political purposes. We take all allegations of this nature very seriously. PBS was deliberately designed to include a range of rigorous checks, including regular financial and impact audits, surveys of the intended beneficiaries to check our support is reaching them, field visits, and evaluations to monitor progress.

In addition to these in-built safeguards in PBS, we have raised our concerns with Prime Minister Meles and are taking additional steps to make sure that our aid is being used for its intended purpose. These steps include jointly commissioning work to look for any evidence of systemic or widespread distortion within PBS and the other programmes concerned.

JUSTICE

Succession and Wills (Commission Proposal)

The Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Mr. Jack Straw): The Government have today decided not to opt in to the European Commission's proposed regulation on succession and wills. This means the UK will not be bound by this regulation.

Hundreds of thousands of UK citizens live and work in other EU member states, and millions of others enjoy holidays in the EU. The diversity of rules and systems that apply to succession in different member states can make for considerable complications where a person owns property across borders. In principle therefore, efforts to simplify and clarify the rules that apply to international successions could produce huge benefits for UK citizens, and the Government are strongly supportive of the project in principle. However, there are potentially significant problems identified with the proposal that the EU Commission has published. These were set out in a public consultation document, copies of which are available in the Libraries of both Houses.

That consultation document highlighted two key problems. The first, and most difficult of those, was "clawback", which describes a legal mechanism where gifts made during a person's lifetime can be recouped after their death. The introduction of this concept into the UK could create major practical difficulties, particularly for the recipients of such gifts including charities.

The second key concern was the proposal's reliance on "habitual residence" as the sole connecting factor, that is, the factor of a person's circumstances which determines when the regulation's other rules apply. Using "habitual residence" in isolation in this way could mean that the relatives of anyone who lived abroad for a relatively short period of time and then died there, would find their estate was subject to a law with which they had no real connection. That could lead to unforeseen and unfair outcomes.

The Ministry of Justice's recent public consultation confirmed that these issues are widely considered to be of very significant concern. A report of that consultation will be published in due course.

The Government have concluded that the potential benefits of this proposal are outweighed by the risks and have therefore decided that the best course of action is not to opt in to the proposal and the UK will therefore not be bound by the outcome.

The Government intend, however, to engage fully with the forthcoming negotiations between member states on this proposal, with the aim of removing the points that currently cause concern and to deliver further improvements for citizens with links and assets in more than one country. If that can be achieved, the Government could then decide to seek to adopt the final regulation. That will be considered and consulted upon as appropriate at that time.

Legal Aid

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Justice (Bridget Prentice): My noble friend, the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State, Lord Bach, has made the following written ministerial statement.

Following a consultation process, the Government intend to introduce a number of reforms that aim to rebalance the legal aid budget to ensure that the £2.1 billion currently spent every year goes as far as possible in favour of civil help for those who need it most.

The reforms are outlined in the Government's response to the consultation paper "Legal Aid: Funding Reforms", which the Ministry of Justice will be publishing later today. The reforms are intended to make better use of the criminal legal aid budget and include changes that rationalise payment structures.

The reforms will:

Contain the cost of legal aid representation at police stations by reducing police station fees in the most expensive and oversubscribed areas.

Reform the current fee arrangements that remunerate litigators for preparation for committal hearings. Litigators will be paid a fixed fee for committals, which will be paid as part of the litigators graduated fee scheme.

End the anomaly by which practitioners in criminal cases receive a fee for file reviews which does not apply in civil cases.

It is estimated that approximately £23 million in savings will be made through the reforms to police station fees, changes to committal fees and the removal of the file review payments over the course of 2010-11.

In addition to these reforms, the Ministry of Justice will issue a second consultation paper to explore reforms to advocates fees in the Crown court.

Copies of the response to consultation and the consultation paper "Legal Aid: Reforming Advocates Graduated Fees" will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses, the Vote Office and the Printed Paper Office.

TRANSPORT

Liverpool Cruise Terminal

The Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark): The Liverpool cruise terminal is owned and operated by Liverpool city council. It receives port of call visits from major cruise lines. The construction of this terminal was funded by grant from the European regional development fund and the North West Development Agency. The original grant decision was made on the basis of the benefits to local tourism from port calls, normally lasting a day. It was assessed that there was unlikely to be any significant distortion to competition in the market for port of call cruise services resulting from the provision of grant. It was however judged at the time that changing the use of the terminal to permit turnaround cruises to operate from that location could raise competition issues in relation to other ports operating in this market. Accordingly a condition of the funding was that change of use could only be permitted with the agreement of the right hon. and noble Friend the Secretary of State for Transport.

Earlier this year Liverpool city council sought advice from Department for Transport on the possibility of such a change of use to permit turnaround cruises and the Department undertook a further competition assessment. The Department has now completed this further assessment and has concluded that the proposed change of use would be likely to have an unfair and adverse effect on competition between Liverpool and other cruise ports. Officials have informed Liverpool city council of this decision.

In making the competition assessment, account was taken of information from a number of other ports which provide cruise opportunities on a similar scale to Liverpool and serve overlapping customer markets within Britain. The evidence demonstrates that it would be unfair to allow one port to benefit from a publicly funded development when competitors have found, or would have to find, private money to achieve the same objective.

Liverpool city council has had considerable success in developing its cruise terminal to attract some of the largest cruise ships in the world. I hope this business continues to thrive. The market for supplying turnaround cruises is, however, a different and highly competitive one. It is right that that business within this market should go where customers get best value without distortion of the market by subsidy. It is for the port of Liverpool to consider whether there are options to develop the turnaround cruise business at Liverpool on a purely competitive basis.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Correction (Statement)

The Minister for Pensions and the Ageing Society (Angela Eagle): During the debate that followed the uprating statement on 10 December 2009, in response to a question from my hon. Friend the Member for Walsall, North, (Mr. Winnick), I said:

> "we have raised the basic state pension above prices every year since 1998-99." [10 December 2009, Official Report, column 521]

The correct answer is as follows:

> "Between 1997 and April 2010 pensioners will have benefited from above-inflation increases in the basic state pension, with pensioners better off by £10 or 12 per cent. in real terms in their basic state pension."

I apologise to the House for the inadvertent error.

PRESENTED PETITIONS

Petitions presented to the House but not read on the Floor

Badman Report (Eastbourne)

The Petition of persons resident in the Eastbourne parliamentary constituency,

Declares that they are concerned about the recommendations of the Badman Report, which suggests closer monitoring of home educators, including a compulsory annual registration scheme and right of access to people's homes for local authority officials; further declares that the Petitioners believe the recommendations are based on a review that was extremely rushed, failed to give due consideration to the evidence, failed to ensure that the data it collected were sufficiently robust, and failed to take proper account of the existing legislative framework.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families either not to bring forward, or to withdraw, proposed legislative measures providing for tighter registration and monitoring of children educated at home in the absence of a thorough independent inquiry into the condition and future of elective home education in England; but instead to take the steps necessary to ensure that the existing Elective Home Education Guidelines for Local Authorities are properly implemented, learning from current best practice, in all local authorities in England.

OBSERVATIONS

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Middle East

The Petition of the Brecknock Peace and Justice Group, and others,

Declares great concern at the continuing conflict between Israel and the Palestinians.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs to do everything in his power to work for a lasting and just peace agreement between Israel and the Palestinians; to suspend all military aid, co-operation and arms sales to both sides in the conflict until a lasting peace agreement is concluded; and to press both the European Union and the United States of America to adopt similar policies.

[P000337]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs:

The UK remains committed to the resolution of the conflict between the Palestinians and the Israelis and we continue to focus our efforts on a negotiated agreement that can bring a lasting peace to the region. We are friends of both the Israelis and the Palestinians, and we believe that this close relationship gives us the opportunity to talk openly and frankly to both sides to more effectively encourage them towards peace. A comprehensive resolution, covering all of the issues (including - but not limited to - borders, compensation, a just solution for refugees, and the status of Jerusalem), is the only way to bring about a lasting, and fair, peace.

We do not believe that placing an arms embargo on either side would be productive to bringing about a settlement. The UK recognises that Israel faces real security threats and has the right to defend herself. We believe the best way to influence both sides is through the continued dialogue that our strong relationship allows. We believe that a lasting peace can best be achieved through negotiations and confidence-building on all sides, not through the threat of sanctions.

In relation to arms sold by the UK, the UK is committed to maintaining one of the most rigorous and transparent arms export control systems in the world. We rigorously assess all export licence applications, on a case-by-case basis, against the Consolidation European Union (EU) and National Arms Export Licensing Criteria.

The assessment takes into account the prevailing circumstances and UK government policy, at the time of application. The criteria make clear our commitment to assess the risk of exports being used for internal repression or external aggression. The UK has refused export licences to Israel in the past, and a small number of licences have recently been revoked following a review of exports after the recent conflict in Gaza.

We continue to work with both the European Union and the United States of America to bring the parties back to the negotiating table. Facilitating peace in the Middle East remains a high priority for the UK. With the support of our international allies, we will continue to pursue vigorously a comprehensive peace based on a two-state solution, involving a viable Palestinian state living alongside Israel in peace and security.

Sri Lanka

The Petition of constituents of Hon. Dr. Vincent Cable MP for Twickenham,

Declares that following the end of hostilities in Sri Lanka as announced by President Mahinda Rajapakse, more than 280,000 Tamil civilians, including at least 50,000 children, remain detained indefinitely in cramped, squalid military run camps in the north of the island in breach of international law; further declares that there is a severe lack of medical and humanitarian aid for the needs of these wounded malnourished and severely traumatised war victims; further declares that with the current flooding, spread of diseases and the onset of the Monsoon rains the conditions in these already dilapidated camps will worsen drastically resulting in further deaths; further declares that the detained Tamil people are being held against their will, without any freedom of movement, with the intention of making these camps permanent; further declares that the traditional lands of these people are being colonised and illegally occupied by the armed forces; further declares that it is suspected that thousands of Tamils who are not accounted for are being detained incommunicado by the Sri Lankan armed forces; further declares that the perpetrators of war crimes and breaches of international law in Sri Lanka remain free from prosecution.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges HM Government to press for the implementation of the following: the United Nations, International Red Cross and voluntary agencies must be given full access to care for and protect the civilians in the camps, and then help them to return to their traditional homeland in the north and east; a list of all those still alive and in custody should be published, so that families can stop searching for loved ones who are dead; any who continue to be detained as alleged LTTE combatants must be treated in accordance with the provisions of international law, and urgently given access to legal representation; accountability processes must be established to ensure that international aid is not diverted to purposes other than those for which it was given; UN monitors must be given free access to all parts of the island; there must be a full UN investigation into war crimes committed during the war.

[P000422]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs:

Since the end of conflict in Sri Lanka in May 2009, the UK Government has remained actively engaged in working for an improvement in the humanitarian situation and for long-term reconciliation between Sri Lanka's communities.

Our priority has been the return of the more than 250,000 Internally Displaced Persons (IDPs) to their homes as soon as it has become safe to do so. We have taken every opportunity both bilaterally and with international partners to urge the Government of Sri Lanka to resettle the IDPs without further delay. In recent weeks there has been significant progress in this regard, with over 150,000 IDPs having left the camps and resettling in their home areas. The announcement that IDPs would be granted freedom of movement as of 1 December is a positive step. Some IDPs have already left, and we believe the opening of the camps and granting real freedom of movement will enable the thousands still living in the camps to start to rebuild their lives. It is now imperative that humanitarian agencies are given full access to the IDPs so that they can provide them with the help they need both in the camps and in their places of return.

Since September 2008, the UK Government have allocated £12.5 million to support the work of international humanitarian agencies and NGOs so that they have been able to provide much needed assistance to IDPs. None of this money has been provided directly to the Sri Lankan Government. In order to assist the return of IDPs the UK Government has been funding de-mining agencies, transport and will provide help to returnees in rebuilding their livelihoods. UK Government funds have also been used to help the International Organisation for Migration with a registration scheme that has issued ID cards to IDPs. This is already helping them to access services and entitlements.

We continue to work with the Government of Sri Lanka and other partners in the international community to ensure that the end of the conflict leads to sustainable peace. We have urged the Government of Sri Lanka to make progress on securing an inclusive political solution to address the underlying causes of conflict. Genuine reconciliation between Sri Lanka's communities will depend in a large part on the Government promoting and protecting the rights of all Sri Lankans—Tamil, Muslim and Sinhalese.

Reconciliation will also require a process to address possible violations of international humanitarian law committed by both sides during the conflict. President Rajapakse made a commitment to take such measures following the visit to Sri Lanka of the UN Secretary-General in May. We continue to take every opportunity to urge the Government of Sri Lanka to live up to this commitment. The report issued by the US State Department in October into incidents during the recent conflict in Sri Lanka underlines the importance of establishing a credible process. We welcome President Rajapakse's decision to appoint an independent committee to look into the incidents cited in the US State Department's report. The credibility of the committee will rest on its independence.

Declares that before the invitation by the Lord Chamberlain on behalf of The Queen that the badge for his business be Her Majesty's Cypher, Mr Burke's background was fully checked.

Declares that on 25 October 2007 Mr Burke attended an on-the-record presentation by Sir Richard Mottram, a former senior civil servant, at the Royal United Services Institute. Declares that Sir Richard mentioned the importance of the Armed Forces' reputation, that there was something in the way that he said what he said; that there was a threat to the Armed Forces; that it could be averted; that he had influence, or knew those who had influence to avert it; that they were willing and able to not only not intervene but initiate; which Mr Burke took as a coded threat.

Declares that on 9 November 2007 Mr Burke wrote to Lord Guthrie to suggest that any recording of the meeting be double checked, in case Mr Burke misheard or misunderstood what was said. Notes that Lord Guthrie was formerly Chief of the Defence Staff and is Colonel Commandant of the Special Air Service Regiment and is an expert on government. Declares that on 13 November 2007 Lord Guthrie replied to the effect that he had heard these points before, and about them was subsequently silent.

Further declares that Sir David Omand, a former senior civil servant, in his discussion paper for the Institute of Public Policy Research, February 2009, insists that professional intelligence operations to find out other people's secrets are going to involve breaking everyday moral rules. Notes that this is based on Sir David's experience as former Security and Intelligence Co-ordinator & Permanent Secretary to the Cabinet Office and a former Director of GCHQ. Notes that this stops short of torture. Further notes that Sir David maintains that it is necessary that the public trusts that the activities of the 3 United Kingdom Intelligence Agencies are reasonable, in private the rules are different. Notes that this raises the question of Sir David's own honesty, as well as the honesty of members of the Intelligence Agencies, in their dealings with members of the House.

Declares that Sir Richard Mottram was formerly a Chairman of the Joint Intelligence Committee and a Permanent Secretary, also in the Cabinet Office. Notes that the Joint Intelligence Committee is part of the Cabinet Office and sets the requirements for the 3 United Kingdom Intelligence Agencies: the Security Service, the Secret Intelligence Service and GCHQ. Notes that also in the Cabinet Office there is a set of committees to co-ordinate government departments, and a lot of the work is done on the telephone or in conversation. Notes that from the House of Commons Intelligence and Security Committee report 'Could 7/7 have been Prevented?' published in May 2009 the Intelligence Agencies have had and have access to extensive information sources. Notes that examples are: medical records, benefits records, council tax records, bank records, telephone records, telephone conversations, school records, personnel records, police records, court records, commercial databases, agency internal records, travel booking information, CCTV cameras, utility companies, driving licences, TV licences, vehicle registration, passports, people, people who have the trust of others, direct questioning, information from overseas, anything stored on a computer connected to the internet. Notes that the providers of such information are not told its use. Notes that this information is prone to inaccuracy and always will be, and further notes that even as a collection this information is partial and always will be. Notes that access to this information is based mainly on personal relationships and not by technical means.

Declares from the above the natural suspicion of provocative and unrecorded actions by the civil service. Notes some examples of such craftiness: maybe you are on the list to go to a place and someone unexpected is already there, creating at the least embarrassment; or your attention is directed one way and someone approaches from another; or someone expected does not arrive; or you do not arrive because you were not informed, or your time or direction of arrival was not as expected; there are others.

Notes that during the Second World War Sir Winston Churchill spoke in the House of Commons and broadcast to the nation for the first time as Prime Minister in May 1940 and rallied the country for the tasks ahead, and yet on 18 June 1940 just over a month later and 9 months after the start of the war, had to warn the civil service that his Ministers, a Government formed with the near unanimous support of both Houses of Parliament, were going to govern; that they were to be respected and their directions were to be punctually and faithfully obeyed; that 'they were not to be treated as here today and gone tomorrow men. Notes that Sir Winston frequently searched his speeches.

Notes that we are at war in Afghanistan. Notes that the size of the packets for biological and chemical agents are about the same as those for drugs which are regularly imported here. Notes that a small nuclear device is about the size of a small generator. Notes that most in Afghanistan would not, however quite a few would.

Notes that the 4 men mentioned in this petition have a great amount of experience of government. Notes that the heads of the 3 United Kingdom Intelligence Agencies are capable of speaking in public and do so. Notes that the Cabinet Office has changed the way it organises itself frequently. Notes that the first man referred to in the letter to Lord Guthrie possibly came from Helton in Cornwall, or another village. Notes that this is Mr Burke's third petition and was first posted to his constituency Member of Parliament on 1st November 2009. Notes that Mr Burke regrets the length of this petition and thanks Members of House for their patience.

The petitioner therefore requests that in order to begin the process of restoring trust in the 3 United Kingdom Intelligence Agencies that Members of the House of Commons, who are elected and serve to lead this country, form an oversight committee to conduct regular hearings with the heads of these 3 Intelligence Agencies in public so that deeply loyal and completely trustworthy members of the Intelligence Agencies are fully supported, even if discussion is limited to the state of the Intelligence Agencies' accommodation; and that should the question be put the House consent to the request in this petition.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Sir Gerald Kaufman .]

Observations from the Chancellor of the Exchequer:

The Government responded to the Parliamentary Ombudsman's report into the prudential regulation of Equitable Life on 15 January 2009. The Government have the greatest respect for the Office of the Ombudsman. The Ombudsman's important role in the maintenance of standards of public service is unquestioned.

The Government are permitted, in certain circumstances, to reject the Ombudsman's findings and/or her recommendations for remedy. In this instance, where the Government departed from findings in her report, and her compensation recommendation, it did so only after very careful consideration.

The recent judgment in the judicial review of our response confirmed the legality of the Government's decision to reject the Ombudsman's compensation recommendation. With regard to her findings, the Court found in three instances that the Government had focused too narrowly on the issue of regulatory compliance, and we have accepted those findings.

The Government must act in a way that balances the legitimate interests of the taxpayer with those of policyholders affected by events at Equitable Life. The Ombudsman herself recognised in her report that the public interest is a relevant consideration. What this means is that it is appropriate to consider the impact on the general taxpayer of any payments.

A further issue is that the Ombudsman was only able within her remit to consider the role of the regulator and not the role and responsibility of Equitable Life and other parties. The Government do not believe that the taxpayer should fund payments for any losses attributable to other factors, such as market conditions or the actions of Equitable Life itself.

The Government also explained in their response that they do not believe that it is generally appropriate to pay compensation where there is regulatory failure. The responsibility to minimise risks and to prevent problems occurring in a particular financial institution lies, first and foremost, with the people who own and run that institution.

Nevertheless, the Government recognise that some policyholders have been disproportionately affected by the events at Equitable Life. There are strong reasons to act quickly to help those hardest hit. We remain firmly committed to introducing a fair ex gratia payment scheme as soon as possible. The ex gratia payment scheme will be developed based upon consideration of Sir John Chadwick's advice and to take into account other relevant considerations such as the position of the public finances. Our goal is to introduce a scheme that is administratively quicker and simpler to deliver than that envisaged by the Ombudsman.

The Government expect Sir John to submit his final report in spring 2010. Once the Government have had an opportunity to consider Sir John's advice, details of the payment scheme that is fair to both taxpayers and policyholders will be announced.

Equitable Life (Hitchin and Harpenden)

The Petition of residents of the constituency of Hitchin and Harpenden in the Hertfordshire region of the U.K. regarding the Government's response to the Parliamentary Ombudsman's reports on Equitable Life.

Declares that the Petitioners either are or they represent or support members, former members or personal representatives of deceased members of the Equitable Life Assurance Society who have suffered maladministration leading to injustice, as found by the Parliamentary Ombudsman in her report upon Equitable Life, ordered by the House of Commons to be printed on 16 July 2008 and bearing reference number HC 815; and further declares that the Petitioners or those whom they represent or support have suffered regulatory failure on the part of the public bodies responsible from the year 1992 onwards, but have not received compensation for the resulting losses and outrage.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to uphold the constitutional standing of the Parliamentary Ombudsman by complying with the findings and recommendations of her Report upon Equitable Life.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Mr. Peter Lilley, Official Report, 7 December 2009, Vol. 502.]

[P000561]

Observations from the Chancellor of the Exchequer:

The Government responded to the Parliamentary Ombudsman's report into the prudential regulation of Equitable Life on 15 January 2009. The Government have the greatest respect for the Office of the Ombudsman. The Ombudsman's important role in the maintenance of standards of public service is unquestioned.

The Government are permitted, in certain circumstances, to reject the Ombudsman's findings and/or her recommendations for remedy. In this instance, where the Government departed from findings in her report, and her compensation recommendation, it did so only after very careful consideration.

The recent judgment in the judicial review of our response confirmed the legality of the Government's decision to reject the Ombudsman's compensation recommendation. With regard to her findings, the Court found in three instances that the Government had focussed too narrowly on the issue of regulatory compliance, and we have accepted those findings.

The Government must act in a way that balances the legitimate interests of the taxpayer with those of policyholders affected by events at Equitable Life. The Ombudsman herself recognised in her report that the public interest is a relevant consideration. What this means is that it is appropriate to consider the impact on the general taxpayer of any payments.

A further issue is that the Ombudsman was only able within her remit to consider the role of the regulator and not the role and responsibility of Equitable Life and other parties. The Government do not believe that the taxpayer should fund payments for any losses attributable to other factors, such as market conditions or the actions of Equitable Life itself.

The Government also explained in their response that they do not believe that it is generally appropriate to pay compensation where there is regulatory failure. The responsibility to minimise risks and to prevent problems occurring in a particular financial institution lies, first and foremost, with the people who own and run that institution.

Nevertheless, the Government recognise that some policyholders have been disproportionately affected by the events at Equitable Life. There are strong reasons to act quickly to help those hardest hit. We remain firmly committed to introducing a fair ex gratia payment scheme as soon as possible. The ex gratia payment scheme will be developed based upon consideration of Sir John Chadwick's advice and to take into account other relevant considerations such as the position of the public finances. Our goal is to introduce a scheme that is administratively quicker and simpler to deliver than that envisaged by the Ombudsman.

The Government expect Sir John to submit his final report in spring 2010. Once the Government has had an opportunity to consider Sir John's advice, details of the payment scheme that is fair to both taxpayers and policyholders will be announced.

BUSINESS, INNOVATION AND SKILLS

Future of Small Shops

The Petition of members of the Federation of Small Businesses and others,

Declares that the House of Commons All-Party Small Shops Group estimates that there will be no independent retailers by 2015; declares that this equates to the loss of 50,000 small businesses; declares that the petitioners believe that small shops are struggling to survive because of local, regional and national Government policies, together with the failure of the competition authorities to deal with the aggressive policies of the supermarkets.

Further declares that the loss of the UK's Independent retailers has far-reaching socio-economic and environmental implications for the whole community; further declares that superstores and small independent shops should not be considered as two separate markets.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Government to take steps to secure the future of small shops across the UK and to safeguard the choice and competition that people expect on the market place; to create an independent regulator to ensure that local retail planning decisions do not have a negative effect on the interests of the local community; and to prohibit unfair pricing advantages such as below cost selling.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Andrew Selous, Official Report, 25 November 2009; Vol. 501, c. 644 .]

[P000424]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills:

Small retailers are the lifeblood of our economy and play an important role in our local communities. Their survival will be crucial to both maintaining employment and economic activity through the downturn and providing growth as we move towards recovery.

Small retailers can access the same support and advice as any small business. The Government are continuing to improve and build on the delivery of services through the Business Link brand. Business Link provides the information, advice and support needed to start, maintain and grow a small business in today's competitive environment.

A number of the recent measures introduced to help SMEs form "Real Help for Business", a cross-Government brand of outward-facing products and initiatives to help businesses during these tough economic times.

In addition to providing immediate help directly to businesses, the Government's recent focus has been to ensure the banks have sufficient capital and liquidity, and then to ensure they use it to lend.

Going forward, within the context of "Building Britain's Future—New Industry, New Jobs", published by the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills in April 2009, we are developing new ideas to ensure that SMEs are able to grow when the upturn comes.

On 5 May 2009, the Government published a consultation draft Planning Policy Statement 4 (PPS4): Planning for Prosperous Economies. The proposals recognise the importance of achieving a broad range of retailer representation, both small and large, in improving the attractiveness of town centres and promoting competition and consumer choice. Draft PPS4 also requires local authorities to plan proactively for their town centres, and make provision for a range of new development, which will meet the needs of the community, and create opportunities for small and large retailers. Small shops can add character, diversity and enhance choice and we are asking local authorities to make full and effective use of the tools that are available to them.

The consultation period on draft PPS4 ended on 28 July and we hope to publish the final policy before the end of the year.

On 14 April 2009 the government also launched the publication "Looking after our town centres". This guide is aimed at town centre managers and their local partners, and offers practical help in setting out how we can work together to make sure that our town centres reach their full potential.

The Competition Commission's 2008 investigation into the UK groceries market concluded the market was generally working well for consumers and competition was effective and delivered good outcomes for consumers. However action was needed to improve competition in local markets and to improve relationships between retailers and their suppliers, on which subject the Competition Commission made a number of recommendations to Government.

The Competition Commission's investigation looked at competition between convenience stores and large retailers and concluded that, although competition was intense, there was no evidence to suggest any distortions in competition.

The Competition Commission's investigation also looked at predatory (below cost selling) pricing and concluded it was not part of a predatory strategy aimed at convenience stores or specialist stores and was not having significant unintended effects on smaller stores.

Badman Report (Holborn and St Pancras)

The Petition of persons resident in the Holborn and St Pancras parliamentary constituency,

Declares that they are concerned about the recommendations of the Badman Report, which suggests closer monitoring of home educators, including a compulsory annual registration scheme and right of access to people's homes for local authority officials; further declares that the Petitioners believe the recommendations are based on a review that was extremely rushed, failed to give due consideration to the evidence, failed to ensure that the data it collected were sufficiently robust, and failed to take proper account of the existing legislative framework.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families either not to bring forward, or to withdraw, proposed legislative measures providing for tighter registration and monitoring of children educated at home in the absence of a thorough independent inquiry into the condition and future of elective home education in England; but instead to take the steps necessary to ensure that the existing Elective Home Education Guidelines for Local Authorities are properly implemented, learning from current best practice, in all local authorities in England.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.

OBSERVATIONS

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Waste Plant (North East Derbyshire)

The Petition of residents of Dronfield, and others

Declares that a hazardous waste gasification/incineration plant is proposed to be built on the site of Sheepridge Business Park, only a few miles away from Dronfield; further declares that the technology proposed by the newly established company is untested and unproven; notes that there are no long term case studies on the health effects of these processes, while every day more and more evidence is coming to light of the harmful effects of airborne pollution from industry and traffic;

Believes that the site is too close to residents, with 19 schools and around 30,000 people living within just two miles of the proposed site; further notes that the site is in close proximity to many farms, livestock, fisheries and allotments, meaning there is a real danger of dioxins entering the local food chain; further notes that the site is bordered by greenbelt land and protected woodland, threatening the devastation of all the wildlife in the area and risking further contamination of the watercourses and food chain from the movement of wildlife in and around the site; further declares that the site is close to existing businesses that will move away, leading to hundreds of job losses and difficulties attracting any future investment;

Further notes that the waste, coming from a 30 mile radius, will need to travel past many schools, through small villages and country lanes to reach the proposed site; believes this is unsafe, unnecessary and unacceptable; further declares that residents have not been reassured by communications from Cyclamax, and do not trust the company to be running such a hazardous process; and considers that profit and money-making are being put before public health and safety.

The Petitioners therefore request that the House of Commons urges the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government to do all in his power to oppose the building of this hazardous waste gasification and incineration plant and ensure that this proposed technology is not given permission to destroy a whole area of Chesterfield and North East Derbyshire.

And the Petitioners remain, etc.—[Presented by Natascha Engel, Official Report, 4 November 2009; Vol. 498, c. 961 .]

Observations from the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government:

The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government is aware that a planning application has been submitted to Derbyshire County Council in respect of the above development. He is advised that the application to enable the recycling and sorting of waste materials and generation of renewable energy at the Sheepbridge Resource Park (reference CW2/0708/56) is likely to be considered by the planning committee on 7 December 2009.

The determination of the planning application is primarily the responsibility of the County Council as the local planning authority and the Secretary of State cannot comment on the merits or otherwise of any application.

Decisions on planning applications are required to be in accordance with the adopted development plan, unless material considerations indicate otherwise. It is the responsibility of the local planning authority to identify and weigh up all the different issues, in the context of the specific local circumstances, having regard to the views of local residents and other interested parties.

The Secretary of State may decide to call-in an application for his own determination where he considers that it raises issues of more than local importance but his policy is to be very selective about this. As it is possible that the application may, at some future date come within his jurisdiction, it would be inappropriate to comment on the matters raised in the petition.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Taxis

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many miles (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department have travelled by taxi in the course of their official duties in each year since 1997; and at what cost to the public purse in each such year. [302717]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office does not record the number of miles travelled by taxi by Ministers or officials in the course of their official duties. The costs of taxi journeys since the Scotland Office was established on 1 July 1999 are shown in the following table:

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Electoral Commission: Leave

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the hon. Member for South West Devon, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission, for how many days each year the Chief Executive of the Electoral Commission is released or is entitled to take leave for service on the board of the Basildon and Thurrock Hospital Foundation Trust; and if he will make a statement. [304447]

Mr. Streeter: The Electoral Commission informs me that the chief executive is allowed up to five days paid leave a year for service as a non-executive director of the trust, provided that there is no adverse impact on the performance of his duties at the commission. The chief executive does not receive payment from the trust for his services.

Electoral Commission: Pay

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the hon. Member for South West Devon, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission, what the salary or salary band of the Chief Executive of the Electoral Commission is. [304446]

Mr. Streeter: The Electoral Commission informs me that in 2009-10 the salary of the chief executive of the Electoral Commission is £121,800.

WALES

Welsh Language

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales if he will publish before 9 December 2009 all correspondence his Department has received on the Welsh Language Legislative Competence Order other than from Welsh Assembly Government Ministers and officials. [304685]

Mr. Hain: The correspondence the Wales Office has received falls into two broad categories—first, the responses received to my predecessor's call for views on the proposed legislative competence order. Those responses which could be made public were sent to the Welsh Affairs Committee and the First Minister and were copied to the National Assembly for Wales Committee that scrutinised the LCO, on 14 May 2009, and I will place copies of that correspondence in the Library of the House.

The second category is correspondence received either before or after the call for views. This includes:

some 300 e-mails from members of the public seeking a swift publication of the Welsh Affairs Committee report. The vast majority of these were a standard text; correspondence from members of the public and Welsh language bodies. This totals some 37 letters and e-mails;

some eight items of correspondence from parliamentary committees or committees of the National Assembly for Wales, or from individual members of those committees; and some 10 letters from businesses or their representative bodies.

We have not sought the permission of these respondents to publish their correspondence, and to do so would incur disproportionate cost. Releasing correspondence from businesses and their representative bodies would also prejudice commercial interests.

PRIME MINISTER

Official Engagements

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Prime Minister when he last met the Chief of the Defence Staff accompanied by the Chief of the Naval Staff, Chief of the General Staff and Chief of the Air Staff. [304721]

The Prime Minister: I have regular meetings and discussions with ministerial colleagues and others including the Chief of the Defence Staff, Chief of the Naval Staff, Chief of the General Staff and Chief of the Air Staff.

Scientists

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Prime Minister on how many occasions he has met the Government Chief Scientific Adviser in the course of his official duties in the last 12 months. [303989]

The Prime Minister: I have regular meetings with ministerial colleagues, officials and others.

CABINET OFFICE

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how many external consultants work for (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) the Prime Minister's Office. [303244]

Ms Butler: The Prime Minister's Office is an integral part of the Cabinet Office and therefore the answer provided is for the whole of the Cabinet Office.

The information requested for the Cabinet Office is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

KBR

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office whether her Department has entered into any contracts with Kellogg, Brown and Root or its subsidiaries since January 2009. [303286]

Ms Butler: The Cabinet Office has not entered into any contracts with Kellogg, Brown and Root or its subsidiaries since January 2009.

Political Honours Scrutiny Committee

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office (1) whether any records held by the Political Honours Scrutiny Committee relating to individuals nominated for a peerage have been destroyed; [304581]

(2) where the records and documents of the Political Honours Scrutiny Committee are held. [304582]

Ms Butler: No records of the Political Honours Scrutiny Committee have been destroyed although criteria for selecting those for preservation at the National Archives (TNA) are presently being considered. Any records over 30 years old that are not selected for transfer to TNA will be destroyed.

Records of the Political Honours Scrutiny Committee are held by the Cabinet Office.

Refuges: Enfield

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how much funding has been provided for women's refuges and rape crisis centres in Enfield in the latest period for which figures are available. [302364]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the right hon. Member for Maidenhead (Mrs. May) on 1 April 2009, Official Report, column 1236W, for detail of individual awards from the Victims Fund and the Government Equalities Office Special Fund 2008-09. Details of the awards made in 2009-10 will be placed in the Commons Library.

The Supporting People programme provides the main source of public funding for housing-related support services in England. This programme is delivered at a local level. The 2008-09 national allocations for Supporting People amount to £1.686 billion.

The most recently available spend data on Supporting People is for 2007-08. Details of this data will be placed in the Commons Library. It shows that Enfield reported an annual spend of £397,817 on housing-related support services with a primary client group of women at risk of domestic violence.

The Government have invested around £11 million over the last five years in specialist services for victims of sexual violence; this is in addition to funding provided locally. Most of this funding has come from the Victims Fund. We do not have a breakdown by local authority area of funding to rape crisis centres.

The Government do not collect information centrally on what services are available for victims of rape and sexual abuse or domestic violence. Information is held on the following central Government funding:

organisations which have received awards from the Government Equalities Office Special Funds in 2008-09 and 2009-10; organisations which have received awards from the Victims Fund in the last three financial years (2007-08, 2008-09 and 2009-10); total Supporting People spend by Administering Authority per Client Group (£), per financial year.

The provision of services to victims of these terrible crimes is an issue for local authorities; decision makers in these authorities are best placed to assess the needs of their area. The majority of services are delivered through local providers who are supported and funded by local bodies, such as councils and health organisations.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average level of fine charged was for late payments in respect of the 2005 Single Payment Scheme; and what estimate he has made of the outstanding amount due relating to payments under the (a) 2005 and (b) 2006 schemes. [303424]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Financial penalties are applied by the European Commission if member states fail to make 96.154 per cent. of payments, by value, under the Single Payment Scheme (SPS) by 30 June of the year following each scheme year. To date, such penalties, totalling some £64 million, have only been applied to the UK in respect of the 2005 SPS.

The SPS payments still due are estimated at £9,628 for the 2005 SPS scheme year and £6,440 for the 2006 scheme year. Most of the nine outstanding claims are cases where probate issues still need to be resolved. Some additional sums may become due as a result of changes to claim values following, for example, appeals by farmers.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many claims of under (a) £300 and (b) £500 have been made under the Single Payment Scheme in 2009. [303612]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In England, for the 2009 Single Payment Scheme, the Rural Payments Agency received 3,748 claims for less than £300 and 4,223 claims for between £300 and £499.99. These reflect the value claimed; the value paid may differ.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average time taken to process a claim made under the Single Payment Scheme was in each of the last five years. [303621]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Based on the information contained within the NAO Value for Money Report by the Comptroller and Auditor General, HC 880 Session 2008-09, published on 15 October 2009 and titled "A Second Progress Update on the Administration of the Single Payment Scheme by the Rural Payments Agency", the average staff time taken to process single payment scheme (SPS) claims in England for each year is set out as follows:

| | SPS scheme year | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | 2005 | 2006 | 2007 | 2008 |
| Number of claimants | 116,474 | 109,100 | 106,700 | 106,500 |
| Number of staff | 3,077 | 2,993 | 2,879 | 2,527 |
| Average time per claim (hours) | 43.00 | 44.66 | 43.93 | 38.62 |

The number of staff shown includes staff employed in shared service and corporate service roles, indirectly supporting processing, as well as those employed directly in processing.

Figures are not yet available for processing 2009 scheme claims.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cheques under the Single Payment Scheme have been issued by the Rural Payments Agency for less than (a) £60, (b) £40, (c) £20, (d) £10 and (e) £1 in each year since 2001. [303623]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of Single Payment Scheme (SPS) cheque payments issued by the Rural Payments Agency (RPA) for the bands and scheme years specified in the question are as follows:

| | | | | Number of payments |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Band | SPS 2005 | SPS 2006 | SPS 2007 | SPS 2008[1] |
| £40.01 to £60.00 | 4,356 | 2,417 | 807 | 299 |
| £20.01 to £40.00 | 4,920 | 1,861 | 492 | 122 |
| £10.01 to £20.00 | 1,812 | 546 | 69 | 14 |
| £1.01 to £10.00 | 639 | 80 | 14 | 3 |
| £0.01 to £1.00 | 58 | 2 | 6 | 3 |

[1] A change in EU regulations meant that the RPA stopped making payments by cheque on 15 October 2008. All payments are now made via BACS.

Payments for the 2009 SPS scheme year only began on 1 December so we cannot provide equivalent figures at this stage.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the accuracy of the digitalised farm maps used by the Rural Payments Agency for the purpose of making payments under the Single Payment Scheme. [303628]

Jim Fitzpatrick: For Single Payment Scheme claims up to and including the 2009 scheme year, the Rural Payments Agency has been using existing Ordnance Survey base-data information on Rural Land Register (RLR) maps.

The mapping update currently in progress uses the most recent Ordnance Survey data available in conjunction with aerial photography to update the RLR maps. This includes improving the positional accuracy of our map data and reflecting any real world change recorded by Ordnance Survey.

Agriculture: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with (a) the Welsh Assembly Government and (b) the European Commission on the transitional arrangements for the agri-environment scheme in Glastir up to 2012; and what assessment he has made of that scheme's compliance with the rules stipulated by the Commission. [304141]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The transitional arrangements for agri-environment schemes prior to the introduction of Glastir will be funded under the Rural Development Plan (RDP) for Wales 2007-13. The RDP for Wales is the responsibility of the Welsh Assembly Government (WAG). Therefore, there has been no need to discuss these arrangements with either WAG or the European Commission, nor has it been necessary to make an assessment of the scheme's compliance with European Commission rules.

Animal Welfare

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many reports of abandoned animals his Department (a) has received in each of the last five years and (b) estimates it will receive in 2009. [304748]

Jim Fitzpatrick: None. DEFRA does not receive formal reports about the numbers of abandoned animals.

Animal Welfare: Circuses

Mr. Keetch: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the merits of banning the use of wild animals in circuses; and if he will make a statement. [303056]

Jim Fitzpatrick: During the passage of the Animal Welfare Bill through Parliament a Circus Working Group was established consisting of representatives of welfare organisations and the circus industry, together with an academic panel from the scientific community. The group was charged with examining the issues relating to the transportation and housing needs of wild animals (i.e. animals not normally domesticated in the British Isles) used for performance in travelling circuses. The conclusions were that there was not enough evidence to show that the welfare of wild animals in circuses is any better or worse than those in other captive environments and that available scientific evidence was insufficient to justify regulations being introduced to ban wild animals being used in circus performance.

In the light of these conclusions we commenced a feasibility study on the possibility of introducing regulations. The first element, a report and recommendations from two zoo inspectors who have undertaken visits to both travelling circuses and winter quarters, has now been completed. The findings of the first element have been discussed with representatives of welfare and industry organisations and we are aiming for completion by the end of the year.

Badgers

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the relocation of badger setts resulting from the development of land for homes. [304538]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA is not responsible for the policy on determining licences for the purpose of development under the Protection of Badgers Act 1992; this falls to Natural England. However, DEFRA has an agreement with Natural England that it will consult DEFRA if a proposed licensed operation might pose a TB risk. Licences for development can only be issued for interference with badger setts; this is normally by closing down whole or part setts. The taking, and therefore translocation, of badgers, for the purpose of development is not allowed under the Act.

Bees: Imports

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many queen bees were imported in each of the last five years. [304730]

Dan Norris: Information on the number of queen bees imported into England from countries within and outside the European Community is available on the Food and Environment Research Agency's National Bee Unit's Beebase website.

The information requested is set out in the table:

| — | Number of queen bees imported |
|---|---|
| 2009 | 10,829 |
| 2008 | 9,575 |
| 2007 | 10,349 |
| 2006 | 4,074 |
| 2005 | [1]2,256 |

[1] Imports from outside the European Community only. More reliable data on imports from within the European Community became available from 2006.

Biodiversity

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of species which became extinct in England in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [303290]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have not made an annual assessment of the total number of species that have become extinct in England in each of the last 10 years. In the 2008 UK Biodiversity Action Plan reporting round, seven priority species were reported as having been lost from England in the last 10 years. Natural England is currently carrying out a systematic review of species extinctions in England, which is due to be published in March 2010.

Biofuels

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will estimate the carbon savings resulting from the growing of biofuels on land which had previously been (a) used to grow food crops and (b) set aside or unused; and if he will make a statement. [303299]

Mr. Khan: I have been asked to reply.

Currently, there is no agreed methodology for accurately accounting for the emissions from land currently used for food production, or set aside, if displaced by biofuel production. As such, the guidelines for reporting under the Renewable TransportFuels Obligation do not account for these emissions.

Under the recently adopted Renewable Energy Directive, the European Commission is required to review the impact of indirect land use change from biofuel production on green house gas emissions, and, if necessary, come forward with a methodology for addressing ways to minimise that impact by the end of 2010.

The Department for Transport has commissioned the development of an indirect land use change methodology through expert stakeholder input and will be making its findings available to the Commission in order to feed into the above-mentioned review.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Disease Control

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farms in (a) West Derbyshire constituency and (b) the East Midlands were under bovine tuberculosis restrictions (i) in each of the last five years and (ii) on the latest date for which figures are available. [303191]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Bovine tuberculosis (TB) statistics are collated and reported in the animal health database down to county level. Therefore it is not possible to distinguish the number of herds under restriction in individual constituencies.

The following table shows the number of herds under bovine TB movement restrictions at the end of the last 5 years for the East Midlands (Derbyshire, Lincolnshire, Leicestershire, Nottinghamshire, Northamptonshire), as well as individual figures for Derbyshire. Data for 2009 are to the end of August. The numbers include herds that were under restrictions for any reason related to bovine TB controls, including for instance a new TB breakdown or an overdue TB test.

|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Derbyshire | 154 | 190 | 143 | 129 | 98 |
| East Midlands | 199 | 257 | 226 | 247 | 247 |

Note:
Information is taken from DEFRA VetNet Animal Health Database.

Nick Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cattle have been slaughtered having tested positive for bovine TB in each of the last five years; how many of those slaughtered did not show signs of TB at post mortem in each year; and how many of those slaughtered had cultures taken at post mortem which subsequently did not confirm the presence of TB in each year. [303534]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following table shows the number of cattle slaughtered under bovine tuberculosis (TB) control measures in Great Britain over the last five years, and the number of these animals with demonstrable post-mortem evidence of infection having tested positive for bovine TB in each of the last five years.

|---|---|---|---|
| 2008[3] | 33,973 | 13,283 | 20,690 |
| 2007[3] | 28,200 | 9,145 | 19,055 |
| 2006[3] | 22,282 | 7,687 | 14,595 |
| 2005[3] | 30,091 | 8,715 | 21,376 |
| 2004[3] | 19,936 | 6,355 | 13,581 |

[1] Includes cattle slaughtered as skin and gamma-interferon test reactors, skin test inconclusive reactors and direct contacts.

[2] Number of cattle slaughtered—number of confirmed cases.

[3] 2004-08 figures are provisional, subject to change as more data become available.

Source:

Data are sourced from DEFRA's VetNet Animal Health database, downloaded in December 2009.

Following a TB breakdown we aim to carry out post-mortem inspections of all the slaughtered cattle and to take tissue samples from the reactor (or if several animals must be removed, from a representative subset of those), to attempt isolation and molecular typing of the causative organism in the laboratory. This is done to support epidemiological investigations and management of the incident, rather than to validate the ante-mortem test results.

Failure to detect lesions of TB by post-mortem examination, or to culture M. bovis in the laboratory, does not imply that a test reactor was not infected with bovine TB. Indeed, in the early stages of this disease it is not always possible to observe lesions during abattoir post-mortem examination and, due to the fastidious nature of this organism, it is very difficult to isolate it from tissue samples without visible lesions. Meaningful proportions that subsequently did not confirm disease at culture for TB test reactors cannot be provided, as substantial numbers of skin and gIFN positive animals are not subject to laboratory culture—e.g. once infection has already been identified in other cattle from the same herd.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Vaccination

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on research on a bovine tuberculosis vaccine in each of the last five years. [303622]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following table provides a summary of TB vaccines research cost to the Department for each of the last five years.

Expenditure on TB vaccines research between 2004-05 and 2008-09, GB

| | | | £000 |
|---|---|---|---|
| | Cattle vaccine | Badger vaccine | Total |
| 2004-05 | 343 | 200 | 543 |
| 2005-06 | 1,083 | 918 | 2,001 |
| 2006-07 | 2,562 | 2,406 | 4,968 |
| 2007-08 | 3,074 | 2,497 | 5,571 |
| 2008-09 | 3,307 | 2,184 | 5,491 |

These figures do not include the costs of projects concerning the development of cattle and badger diagnostics which are relevant to the development of TB vaccines, therefore the total expenditure on TB vaccines research for each year represents a slight underestimate.

Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science: Shipping

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost to the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science was of operating the CEFAS vessel Endeavour in 2008-09; what estimate he has made of this cost in (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11; how many days the vessel was at sea undertaking research in 2008-09; and what estimate has been made of the equivalent number of such days in (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2010-11. [302015]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The following table sets out details of the number of days at sea for the CEFAS Endeavour in support of CEFAS managed projects.

| Financial year | Days at sea |
|---|---|
| 2008-09 | [1]273 |
| 2009-10 | [2]284 |
| 2010-11 | [3]275 |

[1] Completed

[2] Committed

[3] Forecast

The days at sea figures shown do not take into consideration the time required for mobilisation and demobilisation of scientific equipment before and after each scientific campaign (approximately 40 days per annum). They also exclude the time associated with essential vessel maintenance (approximately 20 days per annum rising to 40 days per annum where scheduled dry docking is required).

Sea trips are increasingly planned to integrate a number of projects with objectives which can be achieved during the same campaign. This typically requires 24 hour operations, so maximising the scientific returns from a single day of sea time.

The annual cost of operating the CEFAS Endeavour include, vessel operations and management, technical support, capital charges, fuel and costs and allowances for CEFAS staff on board the vessel during scientific campaigns. The annual services agreement to operate and maintain the vessel was recently let via open competition with a six year contract signed in March 2009. The agreement is subject to terms of confidentiality, hence annual budgets are not included in this response.

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many days the CEFAS vessel Endeavour was (a) made available by the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science and (b) used by other organisations during 2008-09; and what estimate has been made of the number of such days in (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2010-11. [302016]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The CEFAS Endeavour is available 365 days per annum for the scheduling of sea trips. Schedule planning must allow time for non-sea going activities such as mobilisation, demobilisation and planned maintenance. These non-sea going activities require between approximately 60 and 80 days per year.

The CEFAS Endeavour programme in 2008-09 was 100 per cent. dedicated to CEFAS managed projects and no chartering of the vessel to other organisations took place. The committed programme for 2009-10 is also 100 per cent. dedicated to CEFAS managed projects with no chartering of the vessel to other organisations planned. The forecast programme for 2010-11 is based upon the same premise.

CEFAS managed projects are undertaken on behalf of a range of customers such as DEFRA, the Marine Environmental Protection Fund (MEPF), Joint Nature Conservation Committee and Natural England. In addition, on a project basis, visiting scientists, observers and organisations collaborating with CEFAS (for project delivery) will also be present on the vessel.

Dairy Farming: Cooperatives

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what incentives his Department provides for dairy farmers to establish supplier co-operatives. [303625]

Jim Fitzpatrick: DEFRA has provided over £5 million in grant funding to English Farming and Food Partnerships since 2003 to promote collaboration throughout the food supply chain, including amongst dairy producers. There is also funding available under the Rural Development Programme for England to support co-operation between farmers, including dairy farmers, and between farmers and food processors. So far, approximately £12 million has been committed to this measure. DEFRA has not spent any additional money on specific incentives for dairy farmers to establish supplier co-operatives.

Departmental Fixed Penalties

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many non-compliance penalties were imposed by his Department in each of the last five years; what the most common reason was for such penalties being imposed; what the (a) largest, (b) smallest, (c) median and (d) mean penalty was in each such year; and if he will make a statement. [300295]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In answering this question we have taken 'non-compliance penalties' to mean all cases where a reduction has been made to farmers' payments under the single payment scheme. The figures in the following table therefore include minor over-declarations of land area, which in a regulatory sense do not qualify as a 'penalty', as well as regulatory penalties for late claims and breaches of both eligibility and cross compliance rules.

| 2005 | 17,777 | 59,490.79 | 0.02 | 28.91 | 449.70 |
| 2006 | 12,921 | 105,263.17 | 0.06 | 46.14 | 529.11 |
| 2007 | 13,719 | 67,391.91 | 0.08 | 54.00 | 551.84 |
| 2008 | 7,748 | 135,645.54 | 0.38 | 77.88 | 548.90 |

We do not yet have data for 2009 as processing checks and inspections have not been completed.

The most common reason for 'penalties' being imposed is through over-declared land areas.

Departmental Official Cars

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of providing official cars for the use of (a) Ministers and (b) officials in the last 12 months. [301180]

Dan Norris: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made by my hon. Friend the Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark) on 16 July 2009, Official Report, column 80WS.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost of provision of Government cars to special advisers in his Department was in the last 12 months. [301391]

Dan Norris: No special advisers are provided with an allocated Government car and driver. As with all civil servants, special advisers may use an official car or taxi in certain circumstances. Information on such use is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Travel

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on what date he last travelled by (a) bus and (b) taxi in the course of his official duties. [302726]

Dan Norris: The Secretary of State last travelled by taxi in the course of his official duties on 5 November 2009. He has made no journeys by bus in the course of his official duties.

Drinking Water: Crime

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many prosecutions brought by the Drinking Water Inspectorate have resulted in (a) convictions and (b) custodial sentences in each year since 1995; and how many (i) prosecutions brought, (ii) cautions given and (iii) enforcement notices served the Inspectorate was responsible for in each region in each such year. [303291]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Drinking Water Inspectorate has brought 64 prosecutions (including cautions) against water companies in England and Wales since 1995 for offences relating to drinking water quality. All but one of these were successful. There have been no custodial sentences.

| | Number | Regions |
|---|---|---|
| Prosecutions (successful) | | |
| 1995 | 2 (2) | Central, Wales |
| 1996 | 1 (1) | Thames |

| 2008 | 1 (1) | Thames |
| Cautions | | |
| 1995 | 1 | Western |
| 1996 | 0 | |
| 1997 | 0 | |
| 1998 | 2 | Northern |
| 1999 | 0 | |
| 2000 | 9 | Northern (5), Thames (2), Western (2) |
| 2001 | 3 | Northern (2), Southern |
| 2002 | 2 | Northern (2) |
| 2003 | 2 | Northern, Wales |
| 2004 | 1 | Thames |
| 2005 | 2 | Northern, Southern |
| 2006 | 0 | |
| 2008 | 0 | |

The Drinking Water Inspectorate has initiated enforcement action 1,084 times since 1995. It has not been possible to divide these figures by region.

| | Enforcements |
| 1995 | 143 |
| 1996 | 148 |
| 1997 | 189 |
| 1998 | 156 |

Flood Control: Finance

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the expected expenditure on each (a) capital and (b) resource expenditure flood defence project (i) under way and (ii) completed in the last two years was at the date of scheme approval. [303297]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Environment Agency does not hold the information required to answer this question in a format that could be completed without incurring disproportionate costs.

The Environment Agency is on track to deliver a programme of flood and coastal risk management schemes that over three years is set to exceed the challenging target to provide increased protection to 145,000 households.

The Environment Agency continuously strives to improve its procurement and management of construction and engineering projects. Since 2007 it has completed 102 major flood defence schemes that have protected over 63,000 properties from flooding in England.

Through the Environment Agency's Streamlining project it has been able to reduce the cost of project development, meaning that a greater proportion of the money is actually spent on constructing defences than ever before.

Flood Control: Water Companies

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps water companies are required to take to ensure that pumping stations for the drainage of low-lying areas are protected against flooding. [303293]

Jim Fitzpatrick: It is for individual water and sewerage companies to decide how best to protect their infrastructure from the effects of flooding. Companies have a duty to provide safe and secure water and sewerage services to their customers.

In its final determinations Ofwat has allowed water companies to invest £414 million on improving the resilience of their water and sewerage services against external hazards such as flooding.

Food: Procurement

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consideration his Department has given to introducing a sustainable seafood public procurement policy. [303619]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We are working closely with the Department of Health and the Food Standards Agency on the development of the Healthier Food Mark, an award scheme for public sector catering services offering healthier and more sustainable food. Criteria on sustainable seafood are included at all three levels of the scheme, which is currently being tested in a pre-consultation pilot.

Hill Farming

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of farmers in the English uplands required to maintain adequate land management capacity. [303631]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The 2007 June Survey data suggest that the number of holdings in the English uplands (Severely Disadvantaged Areas) has increased by approximately 3,000 since 2000. This increase has largely been driven by an increase in small (less than 10 hectares) holdings. There appears to be no change in the number of holdings greater than 10 hectares in size over the same period.

DEFRA recognises the vital role which upland farmers can play in delivering landscape and environmental benefits, and will, therefore, introduce the new Uplands Entry Level Scheme (Uplands ELS) in 2010. Uplands ELS will reward those upland farmers who deliver existing good practice, as well as encouraging positive change. Unlike the current Hill Farm Allowance scheme, Uplands ELS will be open to all farmers in the English uplands, provided they meet the rules.

Horticulture: Research

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether his Department plans to increase its funding for horticultural research in the next three years; [302476]

(2) what funding his Department has provided for horticultural research and development in the last 12 months; [302480]

(3) how much funding his Department provided for agricultural and horticultural research in (a) 2008 and (b) 2009 to date. [302481]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Funding for DEFRA's farming and food research and development programme is allocated in line with the Department's strategic priorities and policy evidence requirements. DEFRA is currently developing a new Evidence Investment Strategy which will inform priorities for future years.

Research investment in the farming and food area is within cross-cutting programmes, for example agriculture and climate change and sustainable farming systems, and these programmes include activity relevant to the horticulture sector.

Within these programmes, in the current financial year, DEFRA has committed approximately £4.5 million on research relevant to horticulture. £6.7 million was spent on similar work in the 2008-09 financial year.

Overall, DEFRA invested £63 million in 2008-09 on food and agricultural (including horticultural) research. It is anticipated that funding will be similar in 2009-10.

Nature Conservation: Crime

Mr. Cawsey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people were (a) proceeded against and (b) convicted of offences under the provisions of the (i) Badgers Act 1991, (ii) Deer Act 1991 and (iii) Wild Mammals Protection Act 1996 in 2007; and if he will make a statement. [304217]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Information from the court proceedings database held by the Ministry of Justice showing the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for offences under the Badgers Act 1911, Deer Act 1991 and Wild Mammals Protection Act 1996, in England and Wales in 2007 is given in the following table:

Number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for selected offences[1,2] England and Wales 2007

| Offence description | Statute | Proceeded against | Found guilty |
|---|---|---|---|
| Offence of cruelty to badgers and special protection for badgers and their setts | Badgers Act 1973, as amended by Criminal Justice Act 1991 and Badgers Act 1991 | 20 | 6 |
| Killing or injuring deer by shooting, trap, snares etc | Deer Act 1991 | 3 | 1 |
| Offences under this act | Wild Mammals Protection Act 1996 | 7 | 3 |

[1] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Nitrate Vulnerable Zones

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many farms there are in nitrate vulnerable zones in each region of England; and what the (a) size and (b) location is of each such farm. [303451]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The partial impact assessment accompanying the August 2007 consultation on the implementation of the nitrates directive in England estimated the number of farms in the NVZ in each region of the UK on the basis of the 2005 agricultural census.

| | Number |
|---|---|
| North East | 1,078 |
| North West | 15,144 |
| Yorkshire and the Humber | 14,980 |
| East Midlands | 20,431 |
| West Midlands | 20,350 |
| Eastern | 22,777 |
| South East | 20,328 |
| South West | 24,514 |
| Total | 139,601 |

Details of the size and location of each farm could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Ports

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether his Department has issued any recent guidance on the development of marinas on canals; [303927]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with British Waterways on the development of marinas on canals. [303929]

Jim Fitzpatrick: DEFRA is not responsible for issuing guidance on the construction or location of marinas and there have not been any recent discussions with British Waterways on this issue. Developers of new marinas must comply with the relevant planning requirements. Planning controls are a matter for the Department of Communities and Local Government.

Marinas are however an essential facility to support the use of the waterways network and its significant contribution to the wider visitor economy. Offline marinas prevent congestion along our historic waterways and so free up the navigation for leisure and commercial use. This is particularly important in the light of substantial growth in boat numbers over the past 10 years.

Poultry

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of turkey sales in the UK was of domestically produced birds in each year since 1997. [304747]

Jim Fitzpatrick: DEFRA does not record information on turkey sales in the UK.

Primates: Sales

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what criteria his Department uses to determine whether trading in animals as pets constitutes a business for the purposes of section 7(1) of the Pet Animals Act 1951. [303224]

Jim Fitzpatrick: This Department does not use any criteria—it is the responsibility of the appropriate local authority to consider all the relevant factors relating to each individual case. Factors to be considered would include the number of animals being sold and the potential value of sales.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what definition his Department uses of too early an age for the purposes of regulating the sale of primates from the (a) cebus, (b) callithrix, (c) saimin and (d) saguinus species under the Pet Animals Act 1951; and what methodology his Department used to determine such ages. [303225]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department does not define too early an age. When determining whether to grant a licence for a pet shop, local authorities must have regard to the need for ensuring that no mammal will be sold at too early an age. Local authorities should be making such decisions based on advice from professional people such as appropriate veterinary surgeons or other suitable experts.

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 15 July 2009, Official Report, column 388W, on primates, what steps the Government is taking to end the trade in primates as pets. [303226]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government have no plans to end the trade in primates as pets.

Sewers

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) consultation he has undertaken and (b) representations he has received on the proposed transfer of drains and sewers to water and sewerage undertakers in England and Wales. [304020]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In July 2003 DEFRA published the Review of Existing Private Sewers and Drains in England and Wales consultation paper that sought views on a range of strategic options to deal with the problems of private sewers. The Government published a response to this consultation in October 2004. 81 per cent. of stakeholders favoured a change of ownership, and of these, 90 per cent. held the view that sewerage undertakers should take over responsibility. DEFRA acknowledged the strength of support for this solution and undertook to look at it in more depth.

Subsequently, representatives of 50 stakeholder groups were invited to a private sewers seminar in January 2005. This included a workshop looking at the potential impacts on small businesses. DEFRA undertook a telephone survey of over 130 drainage contractors to identify the potential impacts of any transfer on them and also commissioned qualitative customer research to investigate customers' potential views on transfer to water and sewerage companies.

In February 2007 the Government published their decision paper and committed to consult on options for the implementation of transfer. A consultation paper on implementation options was published in July 2007 and The Secretary of State announced on 15 December 2008 the Government's decision to proceed with transfer from 2011.

Copies of the 2003 and 2007 consultation papers and the Government's 2004 response to the review were placed in the Library of the House on publication. A Summary of Responses to the 2007 Consultation on Implementation Options was published in March 2008 and is available from DEFRA. Further consultation on the content of regulations to implement transfer will be published this winter.

My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State, has received representations from a range of interested stakeholders during the course of the Review. DEFRA continues to consult with key stakeholders through working groups and meetings in developing proposals for implementation.

Sheep: Conservation

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding his Department has provided for the protection of the Herdwick indigenous sheep flock in each year since 1997. [303627]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In 2001, DEFRA granted £10,000 to create the Heritage Gene Bank which was set up to preserve semen and embryos from breeds considered to be at risk due to the foot and mouth disease (FMD) outbreak of the time. The Herdwick was one of the breeds considered to be at risk because the majority of its breeding population were in or near to areas heavily affected by FMD.

DEFRA recognises the need to have a long term view on managing the genetic health of our livestock breeding population and the need for a co-ordinated effort to support initiatives that will encourage the characterisation, conservation and utilisation of our livestock genetic resources—which includes rare, mainstream and heritage livestock breeds. The National Standing Committee on Farm Animal Genetic Resources is currently advising Ministers on implementing the UK's national action plan on farm animal genetic resources which was published in 2006.

In England, from next year, the use of hardy native sheep breeds will be one of the factors contributing points towards eligibility for payments under the new Uplands Entry Level Stewardship Scheme. Although not confined to Herdwicks, those with Herdwick sheep may be able to gain benefits under the scheme which will thereby provide indirect support for the breed.

Waste Disposal: Hazardous Substances

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many waste treatment sites treat toxic waste; at what distance from the nearest residential building each such site is located; and if he will make a statement. [303829]

Dan Norris: There are 224 sites that treat hazardous waste. I have arranged for a list of these sites to be placed in the Library of the House.

The centrally available distance data in this list are derived from the system that the Environment Agency uses as part of the risk assessment it carries out before authorising permits for sites. The permitting system is intended to ensure that the waste operations it authorises are carried out in a way that protects human health and the environment. The distances are not limited to residential buildings and cover a far wider range of potential receptors such as commercial and industrial premises, playing fields and parks as well as housing.

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what definition his Department uses of (a) toxic and (b) hazardous waste; and if he will make a statement. [303830]

Dan Norris: Hazardous waste is defined by reference to the European Commission's definition of hazardous waste which is based on the list set out in EC Decision 2000/532/EC. Essentially hazardous waste displays one or more of the hazardous properties that are set out in EC legislation at above specified thresholds and which may cause harm to human health or the environment if not managed in an appropriately controlled manner.

Toxicity is one of the properties that may make a waste hazardous. Toxic substances and preparations are those which, if they are inhaled or ingested, or if they penetrate the skin, may involve serious acute or chronic health risks or even death.

Waste Management

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when his Department will provide a clear time line for amending the Environmental Permitting Regulations to reflect the adoption of the end of waste concept; and if he will make a statement. [304326]

Dan Norris: In DEFRA's view, it would be premature to carry out a review of the requirements of the Environmental Permitting Regulations that apply to fuel manufactured from waste before the conclusion of the procedures necessary to comply with the Technical Standards Directive (TSD) (98/34/EC) in relation to the draft end-of-waste protocol for fuel produced from waste lubricating oils, developed in response to the Appeal Court's judgment in the OSS case. The European Commission and Austria have now commented on that draft protocol under Article 8(2) of the TSD. The UK is required to take such comments into account and this legal obligation is currently being fulfilled. On conclusion of our consideration of the comments made under Article 8(2) of the TSD, we will consider further a review of the requirements of the Environmental Permitting Regulations that apply to fuel manufactured from waste.

Water: EU Law

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his most recent estimate is of the cost to the water industry of meeting the water quality targets contained in the EU Water Framework Directive. [303423]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The most recent estimate of cost to the water industry across England and Wales of achieving water quality targets determined under the first planning round of the Water Framework Directive is £174,000,000. This includes £117,000,000 in one-off costs and £57,000,000 average annual costs over the six years of the first River Basin Management Plans from 2009-2015. These figures include the costs of investigations which are essential to progressing work within the future planning rounds of the Directive.

Capita

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether any contracts between Capita Group plc and his Department have been cancelled before completion since 1997; and whether Capita Group plc has been liable for any penalties arising from failings in the administration of contracts since 1997. [303090]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office (NIO), including its arms length bodies and the Public Prosecution Service Northern Ireland, but excluding its agencies and NDPBs, has no record of any contracts awarded to Capita Group plc since 1997.

The NIO departmental disposal policy states that records of contracts do not have to be held longer than six years and financial records seven years. Central Procurement Directorate (CPD) records go back to 2001. No records are available beyond this year.

The information provided is based on contracts which have been conducted through the NIO central procurement unit prior to November 2003 and the Department of Finance and Personnel's CPD since November 2003.

Departmental Information Officers

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many full-time equivalent press officers (a) are employed by and (b) work for his Department. [303604]

Mr. Woodward: There are a total of 8.5 press officers employed by, and work for, my Department.

Departmental Legislation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what criminal offences have been (a) abolished and (b) created by primary legislation sponsored by his Department since 1 May 2008. [303255]

Paul Goggins: The primary legislation made by the Northern Ireland Office since 1 May 2008 which abolished or created criminal offences is as follows:

The Sexual Offences (NI) Order 2008, implemented in February 2009, reformed the body of law on sexual offences. The order contains all criminal offences in relation to sexual offending behaviour. Articles 81 and 83 and schedules 1 and 3 to the order list the old offences which were repealed and article 5 abolished the common law offence of rape.

The Criminal Justice (Northern Ireland) Order 2008, made in May 2008, created nine new offences. Articles 52, 53, 65(6) and 91(4) contain four new driving-related offences; article 68 created one new offence in relation to alcohol consumption in designated public places; and the remaining offences relate to prison security. Article 71, a single offence of assisting or permitting a person to escape from lawful custody has replaced the separate offences of rescuing, or assisting or permitting the escape of, a person sentenced to death or for life, and rescuing or assisting or permitting the escape of other prisoners, formerly in sections 29 and 30 of the Prison Act (NI) 1953. Articles 77 and 78 create offences in relation to conveying articles into or out of prison. These replace the offences of conveying spirits or alcohol or other articles into prison (formerly in sections 34 and 35 of the Prison (NI) Act) with a more extensive prohibition. No offences were repealed by the order.

Departmental Pay

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many staff in his Department received bonus payments in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09; what proportion of the total work-force they represented; what the total amount of bonuses paid was; what the largest single payment was; and if he will make a statement. [300892]

Paul Goggins: Non-consolidated performance payments are made to staff in the senior civil service in line with Cabinet Office Guidance and also to staff at grades D2 to A in line with HM Treasury Guidance. These payments are made at the end of the reporting year to reward performance throughout the year retrospectively.

Under a separate scheme special performance payments are awarded to staff at grades D2 to A.

Figures for the last two years are set out in the following tables.

Non-consolidated performance payments

| | 2007-08 | 2008-09 |
|---|---|---|
| Number of staff | [1]409 | 563 |
| Proportion (percentage) | 26 | 28 |
| Total amount (£) | 609,875.00 | 599,048.50 |
| Largest payment (£) | 18,000 | 11,000 |

[1] The details for the 2007-08 non-consolidated performance payments do not include payments made by the Northern Ireland Prison Service to staff below senior civil service.

Special performance payments

| | 2007-08 | 2008-09 |
|---|---|---|
| Number of staff | 809 | 996 |
| Proportion (percentage) | 40 | 49 |
| Total amount(£) | 227,349.48 | 260,865.00 |
| Largest payment (£) | 750 | 900 |

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what the cost to his Department was of the provision of office facilities to (a) special advisers and (b) press officers in the 2008-09 financial year. [302967]

Paul Goggins: Northern Ireland Office (NIO) special advisers and press officers are located alongside other NIO staff in a number of buildings. Rent, rates and utilities, etc., are charged on the basis of the entire building, and the cost of specific areas of the building or accommodation for groups or individuals within the building could not be separated from the overall running costs of the entire building.

Disabled

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what meetings he has had with disability organisations since his appointment. [303472]

Mr. Woodward: I have not met directly with any of the disability organisations since my appointment as Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

Iraq Committee of Inquiry

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what position each official in his Department seconded to the Iraq Committee of Inquiry held between January 2001 and December 2003; and for what matters each was responsible in each such year. [303145]

Paul Goggins: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given by the Minister for the Cabinet Office, my right hon. Friend the Member for Dulwich and West Norwood (Tessa Jowell) on 3 December 2009, Official Report, columns 974-75W.

Prisoners: Foreign Nationality

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many foreign national prisoners were discharged from a sentence of imprisonment in Northern Ireland in (a) 2008 and (b) each month in 2009 for which figures are available. [303832]

Paul Goggins: In 2008, the Northern Ireland Prison Service discharged 188 sentenced foreign national prisoners.

From 1 January to 30 November 2009, the service discharged 234 sentenced foreign national prisoners, as shown in the following table.

| | Number discharged |
|---|---|
| January | 13 |
| February | 11 |
| March | 25 |
| April | 24 |
| May | 22 |
| June | 21 |
| July | 26 |
| August | 24 |
| September | 13 |
| October | 30 |
| November | 25 |

Sexual Offences

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) how many sex offenders were housed in dormitory accommodation in HM Prison Magilligan (a) in the nine months up to August 2009 and (b) on the latest date for which figures are available; on what authority they were so housed; and what steps have been taken to move them to single cell accommodation; [304438]

(2) how many sex offenders have been moved to open type accommodation at Foyleview in the last three months; and what steps have been taken to inform the local population of the matter. [304439]

Paul Goggins: In the nine months up to August 2009 there was an average of 55 sex offenders held in dormitory type accommodation; at 3 December 2009 there were 47 sex offenders held in this accommodation unit. Staff at Magilligan are in the process of reallocating prisoner accommodation, following the refurbishment of H blocks, which will reduce the numbers in dormitory accommodation to 32, with the intention of introducing partitions to provide for increased privacy.

All prisoners, regardless of offence, may occupy cellular accommodation, single rooms or dormitories.

On 24 September 2009 five sex offenders were transferred to Foyleview semi-open accommodation unit (a low supervision unit within the Magilligan prison complex) and as of 3 December 2009 nine sex offenders were located there. This is part of our strategy to make the most effective use of prisoner accommodation, based on prisoners satisfactorily completing a risk assessment and meeting the strict criteria necessary for their placement.

Before being transferred to Foyleview, prisoners must be assessed at category C level—the lowest category of risk assessment. Each prisoner accepted to Foyleview has been admitted as a result of his progression through the prison regime, though where a prisoner fails to comply with the requirements of the unit, they may be returned to the main prison complex.

There is no obligation on NIPS to inform the public.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Colombia

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken to seek to ensure the implementation of EU guidelines on the protection of human rights defenders in Colombia in 2009. [302764]

Chris Bryant: W[illegible]sited Colombia, I issued a joint statement wi[illegible]dent Uribe and the Foreign Minister declaring that

> "the defence of human rights is necessary and legitimate for democracy, in a country like Colombia which is proud of being fully open and ready for international Scrutiny on this subject".

We work closely with EU partners, non-governmental organisations (NGOs) and human rights defenders on implementation of the EU guidelines on human rights defenders. For example, we have made visits to rural communities, including the Curvarado River Basin, and more recently Popoyan, to visit communities and human rights defenders that are under threat, and we are planning further visits in conjunction with EU partners.

We also make representations to the Colombian authorities in specific cases of violence or threats against individual or collective human rights defenders. Our ambassador recently wrote to the Colombian Director of Human Rights, Carlos Franco, to request a greater level of protection for a human rights defender under threat. We also make our support clearly visible by visiting those under threat at their places of work.

We undertake a range of project work alongside Colombian and international NGOs aimed at supporting the work of human rights defenders. For example, we run two projects on tackling impunity in the criminal justice system, and three specifically aimed at promoting and strengthening the position of human rights defenders in Colombia.

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department has plans to monitor the trial in Colombia of Jorge Noguera Cotes, former head of the internal security department in that country. [302765]

Chris Bryant: Yes, we will follow this trial with interest.

Rob Marris: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department has taken to assist human rights defenders in Colombia in each quarter of 2009; and if he will make a statement. [302766]

Chris Bryant: We are involved in a number of activities to help human rights defenders in Colombia, and to support their cause. In October 2009 I visited Colombia, where I urged President Uribe to ensure that human rights defenders were properly supported and protected.

My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary recently met Eduardo Carreno, a Colombian human rights lawyer, to discuss the problems human rights defenders face, and to express the UK's support for their cause. Our ambassador in Bogota and his officials make representations to the Colombian Government in specific cases of violence or threats against human rights defenders, and visit them at their offices to demonstrate the UK's support.

In addition to our lobbying activities, we also provide practical support through our project work in the areas of freedom of expression, tackling impunity, equality and promoting civil society.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many residential properties his Department owns; and how many (a) are occupied and (b) have been empty for more than six months. [303999]

Chris Bryant: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office owns 1,391 residential properties throughout our overseas network. This includes the official residences of our heads of post and other staff accommodation. We do not own any residential properties in the UK.

Monitoring the occupancy of our residential properties is not done centrally, as the day-to-day management of the estate is carried out by our overseas missions.

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of jobs advertised by his Department in the last 12 months were online only applications; and what provision his Department makes for those wishing to apply for jobs in his Department who do not have access to the internet. [301541]

Chris Bryant: Within the last 12 months, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office has advertised for 211 vacancies in the national press and on our website. Online application forms were used for 164 (78 per cent.) of these vacancies. The remaining 47 vacancies (22 per cent.) were advertised inviting applications via email and hard copy. Alternative application methods are considered on request for all our vacancies.

EC Law: Agriculture

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions the UK Permanent Representative to the EU has had with (a) the Welsh Assembly Government and (b) the Directorate-General for Agriculture and Rural Development of the European Commission on the application of European Commission rules to the transitional arrangements for EU agri-environment schemes in Wales. [304194]

Chris Bryant: None.

EU Law

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what EC legislative instruments, including provisions on criminal law, which apply to the UK and are in force or are due to come into force, have been adopted on the basis of provisions of the Treaty establishing the European Community other than those in Title IV of Part Three of that Treaty. [302582]

Claire Ward: I have been asked to reply.

Two legislative instruments containing criminal law provisions in the first pillar were adopted under the provisions of the treaty establishing the European Community other than those of Title IV of Part III of the treaty. Directive 2008/99/EC on the protection of the environment through criminal law was adopted on 19 November 2008. The instrument is in force and the deadline for transposition is December 2010. The amending directive 2005/35/EC on ship source pollution and on the introduction of penalties for infringements was adopted in March 2009. The instrument is not yet in force.

European Union: Fines

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what financial penalties the Government has paid to European Union institutions in the first six months of 2009. [304005]

Chris Bryant: The UK has never incurred a financial penalty for failure to comply with a European Court of Justice judgment under Article 228 (ex Article 171) of the treaty establishing the European Community.

Fiji

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps he has taken to encourage Fiji to rejoin the Commonwealth. [304711]

Chris Bryant: Following the military coup in December 2006, Fiji was suspended from the Councils of the Commonwealth. The situation deteriorated further in April 2009, with the abrogation of the constitution, suspension of the courts, censorship of the press and re-establishment of Public Emergency Regulations. In July, Military Commander and interim PM, Voreqe Bainimarama, announced a 'Roadmap for Change', which ruled out holding democratic elections until 2014. As a member of the Commonwealth Ministerial Action Group, the UK took a full role in discussions which led to Fiji's full suspension from the Commonwealth on 1 September 2009. The regime can be erratic: the Australian and New Zealand Heads of Mission were suddenly expelled on 3 November 2009. This was the third New Zealand Head of Mission expulsion since the coup.

Full suspension from the Commonwealth means Fiji is no longer eligible for Commonwealth technical assistance, and can no longer participate in Commonwealth sporting events. While the Commonwealth Games Federation has voted to exclude Fiji from the Commonwealth Games, Fiji officials continue to lobby for Fiji participation. The Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting (CHOGM) reinforced suspension from the Commonwealth calling for an early return to democracy, respect for human rights and respect for the rule of law. CHOGM also made clear that sporting ties under the Commonwealth name are inseparable from the values of the association.

The Commonwealth is keen to readmit Fiji, but only when the regime demonstrates a clear and committed willingness to return to democracy and adhere to the principles of the Harare Declaration, which includes a commitment to the respect for fundamental human rights. The UK continues in its policy of engagement with the regime to work towards these common objectives, both in Suva and in other capitals, and works closely with the EU, UN and regional partners in encouraging Fiji towards an early return to democratic principles and the rule of law.

Holidays Abroad: Death

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British citizens have (a) died whilst abroad and (b) had their death reported to the British Embassy in the relevant country in each of the last five years. [304710]

Chris Bryant: Figures collated by consular directorate in previous years related only to deaths that required action by our staff. Since April 2008, we have updated our guidance to include cases where we have been notified of a death even if no action has been necessary.

Based on the above criteria, the number of deaths recorded by consular staff overseas over the last five years are as follows:

| April to March each year | Number of deaths |
|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 3,925 |
| 2005-06 | 4,071 |
| 2006-07 | 4,577 |
| 2007-08 | 4,157 |
| 2008-09 | 5,629 |

Iraq: Prisoners

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what information his Department holds on the (a) conditions under which Daniel Fitzsimmons has been detained since the incident in respect of which he is to stand trial in Iraq and (b) judicial process by which that trial will be conducted; and what representations he has received from relatives of those who died in that incident. [304040]

Chris Bryant: Mr. Fitzsimons is being held at a police station in the International Zone in Baghdad where he is visited regularly by our consular staff. He has not raised any concerns with us about the conditions in which he is being held.

The judicial process is a matter for the Iraqi authorities. However, we will make representations to the authorities should it become clear that there are concerns around the ongoing legal proceedings in comparison with internationally recognised standards or local procedure.

Foreign and Commonwealth Office consular staff have been in regular contact with the deceased British national's family to ensure he was repatriated to the UK as soon as was practicably possible and to discuss any other ongoing concerns they have.

Students: Extremism

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his Department's most recent assessment is of the level of threat to national security posed by foreign extremists, violent extremists and terrorists on student campuses in the UK. [303023]

Mr. Lammy [holding answer 30 November 2009]: I have been asked to reply.

Our assessment is that there is some extremist activity happening in Higher Education Institutions within the UK. The problem is not widespread but where it does occur it is serious. For national security reasons, we cannot release details of which institutions.

TRANSPORT

Arriva: Government Assistance

Jon Trickett: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what net subsidy was paid to Arriva Buses from the public purse in (a) England and (b) West Yorkshire in the latest period for which figures are available. [303016]

Mr. Khan: The Government subsidises bus services in England through the Department for Transport's Bus Service Operators Grant (BSOG) which is paid to operators of local bus services.

In 2008-09, Arriva England were paid £66,753,127.18 and Arriva Yorkshire West Ltd. were paid £2,042,380.03.

Aviation: Greater London

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport if his Department will ensure that details of all air flights over London are publicly available and open to public inspection so that any resident is able to obtain accurate information as to how many flights fly over a particular London borough. [304760]

Paul Clark: These are operational matters for NATS and the Department for Transport does not hold the information in the form and detail requested. Assistance may be available from the chief executive of NATS with his inquiries. His address is:

Paul Barron
Chief Executive
NATS
Corporate and Technical Centre
4000 Parkway
Whiteley
Fareham
Hants PO15 7FL

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport whether his Department has any plans to improve the provision of information relating to noise levels from air traffic in London. [304759]

Paul Clark: The Secretary of State for Transport publishes annual aircraft noise contour maps for Heathrow airport which are designated under section 80 for the purposes of section 78 of the Civil Aviation Act 1982 for noise control purposes. These follow the standard UK practice of producing aircraft noise contours for the average summer's day (Leq 16 hour, 07.00 to 23.00) where 'summer' is the 92 day period from 16 June to 15 September.

The contours are produced in three dB bands starting at 57 Leq which the Department for Transport regards as the approximate onset of significant community annoyance. Therefore the contours will encompass those areas of London exposed to 57 Leq or more. Contour details are available on the Department's website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/environmentalissues/nec/

The Secretary of State is not responsible for the production of noise contour maps at non designated airports. However London City airport also produces annual noise contours on a similar basis which are available on the London City Airport Consultative Committee's website at http://www.lcacc.org/

Modelling aircraft levels at lower levels becomes increasingly uncertain as the noise level decreases, primarily because of difficulties in obtaining aircraft noise measurements that are not contaminated with other sources of noise, such as traffic noise.

Bicycles

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what recent steps his Department has taken to increase the number of people who cycle. [302687]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Transport is providing considerable support for projects to increase cycling, through Cycling England. Cycling England was established by the Department to get more people cycling, more safely, more often. We have increased their budget to £140 million over three years (running from 2008-09 to 2010-11).

Current cycling projects include the Cycling Demonstration Towns and Cycling City (we are investing £48 million in these) and 'Bikeability' cycle training. The first six cycle demonstration towns showed an average increase in cycling of 27 per cent. Our grants for Bikeability will enable an extra 500,000 children to take part in cycle training which meets the National Standard by 2012[1]. This year, we are providing almost £10 million to train around 200,000 children.

In September of this year, the Secretary of State for Transport, announced a major £14 million package to transform facilities for cyclists at rail stations (£4 million of which is from Cycling England's budget).

In October of this year, the Department set up the Cycle to Work Guarantee. Signing up to the guarantee commits employers to helping their employees cycle to work, by providing them with improved cycle facilities, and giving them access to the Government's tax break scheme for new bicycles and equipment.

The Department is also developing the evidence base for the outcomes and benefits of cycling, and provides guidance on increasing cycling to local authorities. For example, in November this year, we produced guidance to local authorities on delivering sustainable low carbon travel[2].

We have also invested £10 million from 2004-09 on the 'Sustainable Travel Towns', initial results of which indicate cycling increases of at least 12 per cent.

[1] The 'National Standard' for cycle training (for children and adults) was launched by us in 2005.

Bicycles: Safety

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what recent steps his Department has taken to increase cycling safety. [302686]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has taken a number of steps to increase the level of safety for cyclists. We are aware that safety concerns are a deterrent for many people to cycle more, or to allow their children to cycle, and so it is an important aspect of our cycling promotion work.

To this end we have:

Developed a new National Standard for Cycle Training suitable for children and adults. We provided grants to local authorities to enable an extra 500,000 children to take part in Bikeability training by 2012. (Our Bikeability training meets the National Standard.) This year, we are providing almost £10 million to train around 200,000 children.

Through Cycling England's Links to Schools Programme, funded improvements to infrastructure which will include at least 250 safer routes to approximately 500 schools.

Launched a new THINK! education website with resources for primary school teachers, pupils and parents covering the themes of cycle training, wearing the correct clothes, cycle maintenance and using the Highway Code.

Proposed, in our consultation on a new road safety strategy, to provide greater encouragement for local authorities to introduce 20 mph limits and zones in streets which are primarily residential in nature.

Commissioned a two-year research project looking at a range of road safety and cycling issues including casualty data, infrastructure, attitudes and cycle helmets.

And finally

We have recently completed a study considering the safety aspects of a range of supplementary devices on large goods vehicles, including the Fresnel lens, in order to reduce blind spots which can be particularly dangerous to cyclists.

Bus Services

Graham Stringer: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport when he expects the panel of members for the Quality Contract Scheme approvals board to be appointed. [304143]

Mr. Khan: I expect to make an announcement about Quality Contracts Schemes shortly.

Graham Stringer: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many bus monitoring officer posts there were in each traffic commissioner area in (a) England, (b) Wales and (c) Scotland in each of the last five years; and how many such posts were funded by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency. [304144]

Paul Clark: The information requested is in the following table:

| | England | Wales | Scotland |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2004 | 10 | 3 | 4 |
| 2005 | 10 | 3 | 4 |
| 2006 | 10 | 3 | 6 |
| 2007 | 10 | 3 | 6 |
| 2008 | 10 | 3 | 6 |
| 2009 | 10 | 3 | 6 |

The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency does not fund bus monitoring officer posts.

Graham Stringer: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many research projects his Department has commissioned in the 2009-10 financial year to assess the likely effects on bus services of changes to the Bus Service Operators Grant; and what the (a) title and (b) remit was of each such research project. [304145]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Transport has commissioned no research projects in the 2009-10 financial year to assess the likely effects on bus services of changes to the Bus Service Operators Grant.

Bus Services: Lincolnshire

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how much has been paid in kickstart grants to improve bus services in North East Lincolnshire. [304429]

Mr. Khan: £522,067 has been paid to North East Lincolnshire council in kickstart grants to improve bus services.

Caparo Group

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what meetings (a) the Secretary of State, (b) other Ministers and (c) officials in his Department have had with Angad Paul in each of the last three years. [303058]

Chris Mole: There have been no meetings between the Secretary of State for Transport, other Ministers or officials in the Department and Mr. Paul in the last three years.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport whether his Department holds contracts with each company of the Caparo Group. [303107]

Chris Mole: There is one contract with AP Braking Limited of the Caparo Group where the Department for Transport provides services for approval of vehicle brakes.

Cars: Fuels

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what steps his Department is taking to increase the fuel efficiency of new cars. [304054]

Mr. Khan: The Government were a strong supporter of the New Car $CO_2$ regulation adopted in April 2009. The regulation aims to reduce $CO_2$ emissions by setting manufacturers average $CO_2$ targets based on the new cars they produce that are registered in the EU. In particular, the Government played a successful leading role, in calling for an ambitious long-term target in the regulation. This target of 95g/km means that, on average, new cars will emit 40 per cent. less $CO_2$ in 2020 compared to 2007. In the UK alone, this is expected to save 7.6MtC0$_2$ per year by 2020.

In addition, the Government have allocated over £400 million to deliver policies, through the new cross Whitehall Office for Low Emission Vehicles (OLEV), aiming to place the UK at the global forefront of ultra-low carbon vehicle development, demonstration, manufacture and us. Details of OLEV's work can be found here:

www.dft.gov.uk/olev

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many external consultants work for his Department. [303241]

Chris Mole: The Department for Transport does not hold the information centrally and it could be provided only by incurring disproportionate cost. However, following a search across the Department's Human Resources systems, it is known that 146 external consultants work for the Department. The following table provides a breakdown of the number of consultants:

| | Number of consultants |
|---|---|
| Department for Transport Central | 95 |
| Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency | [1]40 |
| Vehicle Certification Agency | 0 |
| Vehicle and Operator Services Agency | 10 |
| Government Car and Despatch Agency | 1 |
| Total | 146 |

[1] The Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency figure only includes the number of consultants appointed through their Consultancy and Interim Management Services (CIMS) Framework Agreement. The total number could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

The Driving Standards Agency, Highways Agency and Marine and Coastguard Agency could provide the information requested only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Food

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what estimate he has made of the proportion of (a) lamb, (b) beef, (c) chicken, (d) pork, (e) turkey, (f) other meats, (g) vegetables and (h) fruit procured by his Department that was produced in the UK in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [300175]

Chris Mole: The Department for Transport contributes annually towards the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA) Procurement of Food and Catering Services Report which can be found at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/foodfarm/policy/publicsectorfood/awareness.htm

The report gives details of the proportion of domestically produced meat, fruit and vegetable purchased. The figures for 2008-09 will be published by DEFRA at the end of 2009.

Departmental Legislation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what criminal offences have been (a) abolished and (b) created by primary legislation sponsored by his Department since 1 May 2008. [303257]

Chris Mole: No criminal offences have been abolished by primary legislation falling within the scope of the question.

A number of criminal offences have been created by the Crossrail Act 2008 and the Local Transport Act 2008. These are:

Crossrail Act 2008 (c. 18)

1. Schedule 4, paragraph 2(2) - creates an offence of installing an electric line above ground without prior consent.

2. Schedule 12, Part 4, paragraph 19(6) - creates an offence of intentionally altering, suppressing or destroying a document which has been required to be produced by a notice served by the Secretary of State for Transport where a transfer scheme is proposed (such schemes provide for the transfer of property, rights and liabilities).

Local Transport Act 2008 (c.26)

1. Section 44 - will, when in force, insert a new section 134B(11) into the Transport Act 2000 (c. 38). Section 134(B)(11) will create an offence in relation to the provision of information that is false or misleading by a person operating local services. It is expected that section 44 will be brought into force in January 2010.

2. Section 55 - amended section 36 of the Disability Discrimination Act 1995 (c.50) to impose new duties on the drivers of certain taxis and private hire vehicles. Breach of the duties is a criminal offence and so the effect of section 55 is to expand the scope of an existing offence.

3. Section 115 - amended section 174 of the Transport Act 2000 and paragraph 25 of Schedule 23 to the Greater London Authority Act 1999 (c.29) to make it an offence, in particular circumstances, to interfere with the functioning of any equipment to do with road user charging. It was already an offence to interfere with the equipment itself.

The following have not been included in this answer as they are not considered to be covered by the scope of the question:

(a) provisions in primary legislation which enable secondary legislation to be made (and offences to be included in that legislation); and

(b) provisions which change the penalties for contravening existing offences (including in particular circumstances, for instance where the offence is Crossrail related).

Departmental Parking

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what recent steps he has taken to improve (a) bicycle, (b) lorry and (c) car parking provision; and how much his Department has spent on such provision in each year since 1997. [302799]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Transport (DfT) allocates integrated transport block and highways maintenance funding to local transport authorities for capital investment in transport. Funding provided by the Department to local authorities is not generally ring-fenced and local authorities have discretion to spend their allocations in line with their priorities, such as the provision of improved cycle, lorry and car parking.

Total allocations provided to English local transport authorities (outside London) since 1997 are shown in the following table.

| | Allocation (£ million) |
|---|---:|
| 2009-10 | 1,345.000 |
| 2008-09 | 1,290.000 |
| 2007-08 | 1,254.000 |
| 2006-07 | 1,218.871 |
| 2005-06 | 1,215.285 |
| 2004-05 | 1,308.411 |
| 2003-04 | 1,178.476 |
| 2002-03 | 1,123.443 |
| 2001-02 | 1,074.045 |
| 2000-01 | 514.393 |
| 1999-2000 | 535.325 |
| 1998-99 | 479.000 |
| 1997-98 | 584.151 |

Note:

Since 2000 the allocations comprise integrated transport block grant and highways maintenance. Prior to 2000 the allocations are in the form of gross approved spending.

Revenue expenditure on transport is generally supported through the Department for Communities and Local Government's Formula Grant.

In addition to this funding, the Government have made some funding available specifically to improve the provision of cycle parking. In 2009-10 and 2010-11, a total of £14 million is being provided by the Department to improve cycle facilities at rail stations, including the provision of 10,000 extra cycle parking spaces. A further £62.7 million has been committed between 2005-06 and 2010-11 to provide cycling infrastructure in 17 English towns and cities, as part of the Department's Cycling Towns initiative.

The Department published a new action plan to improve lorry parking in England on 24 November 2009, available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/freight/road

The action plan will help to raise standards at existing truck stops and tackle shortages of lorry parking facilities but retains the principle that the financing and delivery of lorry parking is for the private sector. DfT Circular 01/2008 on Policy on Service Areas and Other Roadside Facilities on Motorways and All-Purpose Trunk Roads in England includes information on the role that the Highways Agency has in lorry parking.

Floods: Cumbria

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what estimate he has made of (a) the number of bridges and (b) the length of highway damaged in the recent floods in Cumbria; what estimate he has made of the costs of repairing such damage; and if he will make a statement. [302144]

Mr. Khan: Cumbria county council are the local highway authority for Cumbria. According to records held by Cumbria county council there are 1,764 bridges in Cumbria which are managed by the authority, of which 1,240 are over or near water. Other bridges in Cumbria will be the responsibility of other bodies.

The Prime Minister announced on 25 November 2009 that the Government will provide funding to Cumbria county council to assist them to carry out repairs to their bridges and roads damaged by the recent floods. Surveys of all damage will be required before it will be possible to estimate the cost of the damage to the local highway network in Cumbria. The flood water will need to recede before all surveys can be carried out. The Department for Transport will work with Cumbria county council to assist them to estimate the cost of the damage to their highway network.

The Ministry of Defence and the Department have worked together to finalise arrangements for a temporary bridge at Workington over the River Derwent. The Department will provide funding for other temporary bridges as and when required by Cumbria county council.

The Highways Agency is the highway authority for trunk roads and motorways in England and has inspected 92 roads over water bridges and three retaining walls on its road network in Cumbria, following the floods. No structural faults were found during those inspections. Further assessments of these structures and earthwork embankments near watercourses in Cumbria, will be made over the coming days.

The structural integrity of the remainder of the trunk road and motorway network in Cumbria was not affected by the floods. However, in the interests of safety for the travelling public, the network is being monitored daily.

Invalid Vehicles: Insurance

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what recent estimate he has made of the number of individuals who own mobility scooters who have purchased insurance policies for their vehicles. [304542]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Transport strongly recommends that mobility scooter users take out insurance. A survey performed for the Department in 2005 suggested that around 72 per cent. of them do so.

Recent estimates from the national travel survey suggest that there could be 316,000 of these vehicles in the UK, so therefore somewhat over 200,000 of these individuals might be expected to be covered by some form of insurance.

KBR

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport whether his Department has entered into any contracts with Kellogg, Brown and Root or its subsidiaries since January 2009. [303342]

Chris Mole: The Department for Transport does not hold this information centrally and it could be provided only by incurring disproportionate cost due to the very many number of subsidiaries that Kellogg, Brown and Root have.

London City Airport

James Brokenshire: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what recent estimate he has made of the likely change in the number of (a) aircraft movements and (b) passengers at London City Airport in the next five years; and if he will make a statement. [303649]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport's latest published forecasts of aircraft movements and terminal passenger numbers at airports in the UK are presented in "UK Air Passenger Demand and CO2 Forecasts", January 2009. This is available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/atf/co2forecasts09/

The Department's latest forecasts of air transport movements are given in table G8, page 141 of "UK Air Passenger Demand and CO2 Forecasts". The central estimate for the number of air transport movements at London City airport in 2015 is 92,000 an increase of 28,000, or 44 per cent., over the 2010 estimate.

The Department's latest forecasts for airport terminal passengers are given in table G3, page 135 of "UK Air Passenger Demand and CO2 Forecasts". The central estimate from the Department's forecasts for the number of passengers using London City airport in 2015 is 3.7 million passengers per annum (mppa), an increase of 1.4 million passengers, or 68 per cent., over the 2010 estimate.

The above estimates only include scheduled passenger services. The Department has not modelled unscheduled business jet charters and air taxis at London City airport. The model currently underestimates scheduled air traffic movements at London City airport. Table 2.4, page 34 of "UK Air Passenger Demand and CO2 Forecasts" provides a comparison of modelled and actual air transport movements. For larger airports, such as Heathrow and Gatwick, modelled and actual figures are within a couple of per cent. of each other. Moreover, the forecasts in "UK Air Passenger Demand and CO2 Forecasts" fulfil their intended purpose—to inform and monitor long term strategic aviation policy. We currently expect to publish updated aviation forecasts in 2010.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what recent representations he has received on aircraft noise at London City Airport. [303650]

Paul Clark: No formal representations have been received on aircraft noise at London City airport. However early next year, the airport will be required to submit a draft strategic noise action plan to the Secretary of State for consideration for formal adoption under the European Environmental Noise Directive (2002/49/EC). If the requirements are met, the Secretary of State for Transport will recommend to the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs that the action plan should be adopted. The airport is currently conducting a public consultation on its draft noise action plan. This consultation closes on 15 January 2010.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what recent assessment he has made of the level of noise nuisance arising from aircraft using London City Airport; and what changes in that level have been recorded in the last 10 years. [303652]

Paul Clark: Responsibility for monitoring the noise levels of aircraft operating at London City airport rests with the airport operator. Under local planning agreements with the London borough of Newham, the airport is required to produce noise exposure contours on an annual basis. These are published on the London City airport consultative committee's website.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many (a) jet and (b) propeller aircraft (i) arrivals and (ii) departures there have been at London City Airport in each of the last 10 years. [303653]

Paul Clark: The following tables show the number of jet and propeller aircraft arriving and departing London City airport from 1999 to 2008:

(i) Air transport movements: Arrivals

James Brokenshire: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport whether his Department has had discussions with the London Borough of Newham in connection with proposals to increase aircraft movements at London City Airport. [303654]

Paul Clark: The Department for Transport has not had any such discussions.

M6: Walsall

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport pursuant to the answer of 24 November 2009, Official Report, columns 60-1W, when the Chief Executive of the Highways Agency plans to visit the sites in Walsall Borough, where the work on the M6 motorway is being undertaken, Department for Transport reference 0048 004909/10. [304593]

Chris Mole: The chief executive of the Highways Agency is planning to visit the Managed Motorway works on the M6 within the next three weeks. A firm date has yet to be finalised and my hon. Friend will be notified when this is confirmed.

Public Transport: Crimes of Violence

Damian Green: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many incidents of violence and abuse on public transport in (a) Ashford and (b) Kent have been reported in each of the last five years; and what steps he is taking to reduce the number of such incidents. [304929]

Chris Mole: The Department for Transport does not hold records of crime on public transport. Details of crime on the railways can be obtained from the British Transport police at 25 Camden road, London, NW1 9LN, e-mail parliamentary@btp.pnn.police.uk

We are committed to improving the personal security of passengers on public transport. For example, new rail franchises now specify minimum levels of investment in public safety and we are encouraging Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships to work with the transport industry to help tackle transport crime.

Railway Network

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport which railway lines have been (a) built and (b) reopened in the last 20 years; how many jobs were created (i) directly during the first two years of construction, (ii) indirectly during the first two years of construction and (iii) overall on each project; and how much each project cost. [304293]

Chris Mole: The following railway lines were opened or reopened on the national network in the last 20 years:

This list excludes freight only, London Underground, tramways, Docklands Light Railway, heritage and other independent railways.

New and reopened lines in Scotland and Wales are included in this list even though for part of the period openings and re-openings have been a devolved matter.

The Department for Transport does not hold information on the number of jobs created in each project or the cost of each project.

Railway Stations

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport which railway stations have been (a) opened for the first time and (b) reopened in the last 20 years; how many jobs were created (i) directly during the first two years of construction, (ii) indirectly during the first two years of construction and (iii) overall on each project; and how much each project cost. [304292]

New and reopened stations in Scotland and Wales are included in this list, even though for part of the period openings and re-openings have been a devolved matter.

This list excludes London Underground, tramways, Docklands Light Railway and heritage and other independent railways.

The Department for Transport does not hold information on the number of jobs created in each project and the cost of each project.

Railway Stations: Greater London

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what improvement works on railway stations located within Greater London in (a) wave one and (b) wave two of the Access for All Strategy (i) have been completed, (ii) have been started but not completed and (iii) are scheduled to start (A) in 2009-10, (B) in 2010-11, (C) in 2011-12 and (D) from 2012-13 onwards. [304233]

Chris Mole: Stations in the programme were announced in three lists with indicative delivery time scales, but are now part of an integrated delivery plan which is a live document owned by Network Rail.

There are 35 stations in London boroughs, representing a third of the total programme, and of these seven are completed and six are started on site. The remainder are at the design stage and I understand from Network Rail that seven are due to start on site in 2010-11, nine in 2011-12 and six from 2012-13 onwards. I therefore suggest that the hon. Member contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to her questions:

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
Kings Place
London N1 9AG

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how much funding has been (a) allocated to and (b) spent on each railway station located within Greater London as part of (i) wave one and (ii) wave two of the Access for All strategy in (A) 2006-07, (B) 2007-08 and (C) 2008-09; and how much funding has been allocated for each such station under each wave for each year from 2009-10 to 2012-13. [304234]

Chris Mole: Stations in the programme were announced in three lists with indicative delivery time scales but are now part of a detailed delivery plan which is a live document owned by Network Rail.

There are 35 stations in London boroughs, representing a third of the total programme, included in the programme, and the current anticipated cost for these is £121.1 million and current funding spent is £49.3 million.

Information on actual spend and future years' forecast spend for individual sites is held by Network Rail and not the Department for Transport. I suggest the hon. Member therefore contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to her questions:

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
Kings Place
London N1 9AG

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport (1) which of the 150 stations which have been identified for improvement under the National Stations Improvement Plan are located within Greater London; and for which such stations improvement work (a) has been completed, (b) has been started but not completed, (c) is scheduled to start in 2009-10, (d) is scheduled to start in 2010-11, (e) is scheduled to start in 2011-12 and (f) is scheduled to start from 2012-13 onwards; [304236]

(2) how much of the planned expenditure under the National Stations Improvement Plan has been (a) allocated and (b) spent on each station located within Greater London in 2009-10; and how much has been allocated for each such station in (i) 2010-11, (ii) 2011-12, (iii) 2012-13 and (iv) 2013-14. [304237]

Chris Mole: This information is held by Network Rail as the owner and operator of the national rail network. The hon. Member should therefore contact Network Rail's chief executive at the following address for a response to her questions:

Iain Coucher
Chief Executive
Network Rail
Kings Place

Railways

Mr. Brady: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport (1) if he will meet representatives of railway enthusiast groups to discuss the revision of official guidelines for railway enthusiasts for the purposes of (a) increasing levels of access to and (b) maintaining security at railway stations; [304695]

(2) if he will take steps to ensure that railway industry managers and staff are aware of official guidelines for railway enthusiasts, with particular reference to the guidelines on photography. [304696]

Chris Mole: Network Rail, many train operators and the British Transport police all have policies in place that recognise the security benefits that the presence of enthusiasts can bring to the railway. The Government, too, recognise this and believe that security measures at stations should not prevent enthusiasts from pursuing their legitimate interest. Responsibility for ensuring that staff are aware of these policies rests with train and station operators and police commanders.

Railways: East of England

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many complaints National Express and its predecessors received in relation to rail services in East Anglia in each of the last 10 years. [304213]

Chris Mole: The Office of Rail Regulation is responsible for the publication of National Rail Trends which includes customer complaint statistics. National Rail Trends can be accessed from the Office of Rail Regulation website at:

www.rail-reg.gov.uk

Alternatively, the hon. Member may wish to contact the Office of Rail Regulation at the following address:

The Office of Rail Regulation
One Kemble Street
London WC2B 4AN.

Railways: Electrification

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what estimate he has made of the cost (a) per mile and (b) in total of electrifying (i) the Great Western Line and (ii) the Midland Main Line. [304294]

Chris Mole: On 23 July the Department for Transport announced the electrification of the Great Western Main Line between London, Reading, Oxford, Newbury, Bristol, Cardiff and Swansea at an estimated cost of £1 billion, including contingency and optimism bias. The total length of track being electrified is around 640 single track miles, so the estimated cost is around £1.6 million per single track mile.

On the Midland Main Line, a clear scope of electrification work and timescale for delivery has not yet been agreed, so the Department has not yet been able to make an estimate of the cost.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of jobs which would be created (a) directly and (b) indirectly as a result of the electrification of (i) the Great Western Line and (ii) the Midland Main Line. [304295]

Chris Mole: On 23 July the Department for Transport announced the electrification of the Great Western Main Line between London, Reading, Oxford, Newbury, Bristol, Cardiff and Swansea. Delivery of the scheme is a matter for Network Rail, and the number of jobs created will depend on the delivery mechanisms which they select. Until these are finalised, it is not possible to estimate the number of jobs which will be created.

No decision has been made on whether to take forward the electrification of the Midland Main Line or, if it is taken forward, on the timescale for delivery or the delivery mechanisms. It is therefore not possible to estimate the number of jobs which would be created.

Railways: Kent

Miss Widdecombe: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport when he expects to make a decision on the future of the City Service from Ashford International via Maidstone East station. [302149]

Chris Mole [holding answer 30 November 2009]: The December 2009 timetable seeks to make best use of the rail network in Kent and delivers wider benefits to communities across the network, primarily through the introduction of high speed services and the consequent freeing up of capacity to West Kent. There are no plans to reinstate the city services from Ashford International via Maidstone East.

Railways: Liverpool

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what the estimated cost is of building the Liverpool light rail network; and what estimate he has made of the number of jobs created (a) directly and (b) indirectly as a result. [304299]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Transport has made no estimate of the costs and benefits of a light rail scheme in Liverpool as it has not received a proposal from the promoters. I would be happy to receive a fresh proposal for such a scheme but only if a viable funding package has been agreed.

Road Traffic: Tyne and Wear

Jim Cousins: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport with reference to the answer of 27 January 2009, Official Report, column 303W, on Road Traffic: Tyne and Wear and of 4 November 2009, Official Report, column 250W, on Transport: Tyne and Wear, when he expects to receive the report of the Tyne and Wear Transport Innovation Fund's work and outcomes; and if he will place a copy in the Library. [303442]

Mr. Khan [holding answer 2 December 2009]: Tyne and Wear received pump priming funding from the Department's Transport Innovation Fund (TIF).

While the Department discussed with Tyne and Wear authorities the option for providing further resources for the completion of a formal report on the outputs, it was concluded that a business case for TIF funding was unlikely to be supported.

The Department has continued to work with the authorities in making full use of the outputs, including the Tyne and Wear model, an Urban Traffic Management Control system and Smarter Choices initiatives. These outcomes have informed the development of the Tyne and Wear authorities' transport policies, including Local Transport Plans and will inform the development of proposals resulting from the recently announced Delivering a Sustainable Transport System (DaSTS) Study.

Further details are available on Tyne and Wear's People in Motion website at:

http://www.tyneandwearltp.co.uk/core.nsf/a/ltp2_documents

Roads: Repair and Maintenance

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport with reference to the answer of 11 November 2009, Official Report, column 370W, on roads: repair and maintenance, if he will publish the submission to the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State setting out (a) the (i) reasons and (ii) justifications for not providing the information requested in question 296881 and (b) the estimated cost of providing the information requested, as required in accordance with section 7.28 of the Cabinet Office's Guide to Parliamentary Work. [302908]

Chris Mole: The information requested in parliamentary question 296881 asked for the benefit-cost ratios (BCRs) of all schemes in the targeted programme of improvements at programme entry and at present. The BCR data requested are not held centrally.

The targeted programme of improvements (TPI) comprised 114 major road schemes of which 71 are now open for traffic. The schemes entered the programme at various times, 37 of them in July 1998. For the older, completed schemes, files have been put away into storage and would have to be retrieved at a cost of £20 per file. Extracting the relevant BCR information from the files and putting that information into context in terms of what assumptions were made when the BCR was calculated is not a straightforward task. To quote BCRs out of context would be misleading.

It is not possible to estimate accurately how much it would cost to obtain the BCRs for all 114 schemes. It is thought likely that to retrieve and examine the files of one completed scheme would take around half a day at a cost of £260 (PB 5/6 Full Economic Cost rate). Further work would then be required to enable meaningful comparisons to be made between the present BCR and that calculated at programme entry.

Roads: Lincolnshire

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what proposals he has for (a) improvements to the A160 and (b) the resurfacing of the A180. [301830]

Chris Mole: It is proposed, subject to approval, to improve the A160 by upgrading the existing single carriageway sections to dual carriageway and by providing a free flow link eastbound from the A180 junction.

There are no major resurfacing schemes planned for the A180 in the current works programme as the concrete carriageway is still in good condition. A resurfacing scheme from Barnetby to Croxton on the A180 has been identified in the four-year forward programme for 2010-14. Progression of this scheme to construction will depend on available funding and relative priorities at the time.

The A180 carriageway will continue to be monitored and small works such as patching and concrete repairs will be carried out as and when required.

Rolling Stock

Justine Greening: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many of the 1,300 new carriages referred to in the 2007 Rail White Paper (a) have been (i) ordered and (ii) delivered and (b) are in use for each (A) train operating company and (B) line serving stations in Greater London. [304235]

Chris Mole: In the two years since publication of the 2007 Rail White Paper, 543 new carriages have been ordered. Of these 232 are already in service: 148 with London Midland on services operating on lines out of London Euston and 84 on Thameslink routes operated by First Capital Connect.

We are currently in negotiations for a number of other procurements.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport pursuant to the answer of 1 December 2009, Official Report, column 571W, on rolling stock, what percentage of the fuel consumed when running under the wires is attributable to the conveying of the diesel engine itself. [304407]

Chris Mole: The diesel engine is switched off and therefore will not consume any fuel under the wires.

BUSINESS, INNOVATION AND SKILLS

Bingo: Closures

Mr. Moss: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many bingo clubs have closed in (a) England and (b) North East Cambridgeshire since 1 January 2008. [303642]

Ms Butler: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Jil Matheson, dated December 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning what estimate has been made of how many bingo clubs have closed in (a) England and (b) North East Cambridgeshire since 1 January 2008. (303642)

Annual statistics on business births, deaths and survival are available from the ONS release on Business Demography at www.statistics.gov.uk. However, the industrial classification is not detailed enough to separately identify bingo clubs.

Biomedical Research

Paul Rowen: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what biomedical research into myalgic encephalomyelitis and xenotropic murine leukaemia virus-related virus is being undertaken. [304330]

Mr. Lammy: The Medical Research Council (MRC) is one of the main agencies through which the Government support medical and clinical research. The MRC is an independent body which receives its grant in aid from the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills.

In 2008-09 the MRC's total expenditure for research relating to Chronic Fatigue Syndrome/Myalgic Encephalomyelitis (CFS/ME) amounted to £728,000. This supported four projects including a £164,000 research programme led by Dr. C Clark at Queen Mary College, London on the general and specific risk markers and preventive factors for chronic fatigue and irritable bowel syndromes. CFS/ME continues to be a strategic priority area for funding and the MRC remains committed to supporting scientific research into all aspects of CFS/ME including evaluations of treatments and studies into the biological basis of the condition.

The MRC recently held a CFS/ME research workshop where the recent xenotropic murine leukaemia virus-related virus (XMRV) findings were among the items discussed. A note of the discussions will be published on the MRC website in due course.

The MRC's National Institute for Medical Research are leading a programme on infection and replication of retroviruses (including XMRV). One study within the programme is looking at how XMRV reproduces in the cell, its interaction with host cell factors and how it subverts the host immune systems.

Digital Broadcasting: Fees and Charges

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what recent discussions he has had with Ofcom on mandating fees and charges associated with wholesale connections across digital platforms. [304133]

Mr. Timms: I have regular contact with Ofcom on a range of matters but we have not recently discussed this specific issue.

Higher Education: Nursing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many places on nursing degree courses he estimates will need to be provided in each year when nursing becomes a degree entry profession, taking account of estimated drop-out rates. [303357]

Ann Keen: I have been asked to reply.

The Department does not hold this information centrally. It is for local employers to decide what skill mix they need to deliver their services. Strategic health authorities, working with national health service organisations and education providers will be planning for and determining the future numbers of nurses they need, including the numbers of places on pre-registration nursing programmes they commission.

Manufacturing Industries: Closures

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what estimate he has made of the number of small and medium-sized enterprises in the manufacturing sector which have closed in each quarter since March 2008; and if he will make a statement. [302138]

Ms Butler: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Jil Matheson, dated December 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question concerning what estimate has been made of the number of small and medium-sized enterprises in the manufacturing industry which have closed in each quarter since March 2008. (302138)

Quarterly data on the closure of enterprises are not available. However, annual statistics on business births, deaths and survival are available from the ONS release on Business Demography at www.statistics.gov.uk. The table below contains counts of enterprise deaths in manufacturing in 2008.

Count of deaths of enterprises for 2008, Manufacturing, UK

| Employment | Number |
|---|---|
| 0-49 | 11,410 |
| 50-249 | 105 |
| 250+ | 10 |

Post Office

Lorely Burt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how much subsidy the Government plan to provide to the Post Office after 2011. [304196]

Mr. McFadden: No decisions have been taken beyond the current settlement, but the Government are committed to supporting the non-commercial segment of the post office network beyond 2011 and are in regular dialogue with Post Office Ltd.

Lorely Burt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many post office branches have closed since the completion of the Network Change Programme. [304197]

Mr. McFadden: I have asked Alan Cook, Managing Director of Post Office Ltd, to respond directly to the hon. Member and a copy of his reply will be placed in the House Libraries.

Prince Madog

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills for how many days the research vessel Prince Madog was (a) hired and (b) used by organisations other than the Natural Environment Research Council in 2008-09; and what estimate has been made of the equivalent figures for (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2010-11. [302018]

Mr. Lammy: The research vessel Prince Madog is owned by a joint venture company, VT Ocean Sciences. Operational arrangements are a matter for the company.

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what grant was made from the joint infrastructure fund to VT Ocean Sciences as a contribution towards the costs of the research vessel Prince Madog; and what such funding is expected to be provided in (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [302019]

Mr. Lammy: The Natural Environment Research Council (NERC) awarded one £2.8 million Joint Infrastructure Funding (JIF) grant in 1999 to contribute to the capital cost of the research vessel Prince Madog. NERC has not provided any other capital funding and there is no planned capital funding for the vessel.

Royal Mail: Industrial Disputes

Lorely Burt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what recent progress has been made in discussions between Royal Mail and the Communication Workers Union; and what assessment he has made of the likelihood of a final agreement being reached soon. [303662]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 2 December 2009]: We are pleased that the discussions between Royal Mail and the Communication Workers Union established by the agreement on 6 November are continuing. The detail of those discussions, however, is a confidential matter for both parties.

The Government want to see a successful outcome to the discussions and welcome the appointment of Roger Poole (former Assistant General Secretary of NUPE and of UNISON and Chairman of the Parades Commission for Northern Ireland) to oversee the process. Both parties need to keep talking until an agreement is made on a way forward on the next phase of modernisation, which everyone accepts is vital for the company's future.

Royal Mail: Pay

Mr. Evans: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what mechanisms are in place for the Shareholder Executive to review the remuneration and benefits package of the Chief Executive of Royal Mail. [304694]

Mr. McFadden: Royal Mail's Remuneration Committee is responsible for the remuneration of the company's Executive Board members. As special shareholder, the Secretary of State's consent is required for any material changes to the Directors' remuneration. His approval is also required for the Framework for short and long term bonuses but the final decision on bonus payments rests with the Committee. Details of the Directors' remuneration are set out annually in the company's Report and Accounts.

RRV James Cook

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what estimate has been made of the cost of rectifying the problem of acoustic noise from the bow of the Natural Environment Research Council vessel RRV James Cook; and how many operational days are expected to be lost while corrective modifications are made. [302017]

Mr. Lammy: The Natural Environment Research Council (NERC) has not yet initiated a project to rectify the bow issue on the RRS James Cook. There is therefore no available estimate of the cost, or the time that would be lost while any modifications are made.

Scientists

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills on how many occasions the Secretary of State has met (a) the Government Chief Scientific Adviser and (b) his Department's Chief Scientific Adviser in the course of his official duties in the last 12 months. [303990]

Mr. McFadden: My noble Friend the Secretary of State met the Government chief scientific adviser on 30 July and has met his Department's chief scientific adviser in the course of various departmental policy discussions over the last 12 months.

Unsolicited Goods and Services: Telephones

Martin Horwood: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps his Department has taken to protect telecommunications customers from unsolicited telephone calls from companies claiming to be processing a refund and seeking to obtain bank account details for fraudulent purposes. [304140]

Mr. Timms: The Department for Trade and Industry introduced the Telephone Preference Service (TPS) scheme in 1999 under the Telecommunications (Data Protection and Privacy) Regulations, which were updated by the Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulations in 2003. The TPS scheme currently has 15.4 million registered numbers and reports an 85 per cent. success rate in preventing unsolicited calls. The TPS scheme provides protection from unsolicited marketing calls after subscribers have been registered for 28 days or have previously notified the caller that they do not wish to receive such calls, which under Regulation 21 also applies to those who are not TPS registered. The Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) has responsibility for the enforcement of the TPS scheme and considers complaints about breaches. Recipients of these types of calls are advised to be cautious about disclosing personal details without first checking to ensure that the call is genuine. Suspected fraudulent activity should be reported to the police.

Asset Protection Scheme

Jim Cousins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department (a) has spent and (b) has committed to spend on external advice on the Asset Protection Scheme in respect of (i) Royal Bank of Scotland and (ii) Lloyds Banking Group; and if he will list the sources of that advice. [303558]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 2 December 2009]: Lloyds and RBS have agreed to refund HM Treasury the costs it incurs in establishing and operating the Asset Protection Scheme, including those of external advisers.

When it decided not to participate in the scheme on 3 November, Lloyds agreed to pay HM Treasury £26 million, its share of the costs to that date of HM Treasury's own staff working on the APS, the costs of external advisers and the costs of establishing the Asset Protection Agency.

RBS has paid the Treasury £45 million, being the Treasury's current estimate of RBS' share of the costs to date incurred by the Treasury in developing and setting up the APS and the APA.

HM Treasury has received legal advice from Slaughters and May and financial advice from Ernst and Young, KPMG, PricewaterhouseCoopers, Citigroup, Credit Suisse, Deutsche Bank and Blackrock. The cost to the Treasury of these advisers has been fully met by Lloyds and RBS.

Bank of England: Loans

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what loans of over £1 billion were made by the Bank of England in the 2008-09 financial year. [302989]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Operational details are a matter for the Bank of England.

Bank Services: Fees and Charges

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of people who paid overdraft charges between July 2007 and the date of the Supreme Court's ruling on the powers of the Office of Fair Trading to determine the fairness of such changes. [303886]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Treasury does not collect these data.

Banks: Government Assistance

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of each signed share subscription agreement between his Department and each bank in respect of public funds. [302696]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry [holding answer 30 November 2009]: The placing and open offer agreements, and preference share subscription agreements, for the recapitalisation of RBS, HBOS and Lloyds were deposited in the Libraries of both Houses of Parliament on 18 November 2008.

I have today placed copies of the placing and open offer agreements relating to the redemption of the Government's preference share holdings in RBS and Lloyds, dated 19 January 2009 (RBS) and 7 March 2009 (Lloyds), in the Libraries.

In addition I have today placed copies of the documents relating to the Government's upcoming subscription to Lloyds' rights issue, and to Lloyds' withdrawal from the Asset Protection Scheme (APS), in the Libraries. These are dated 2 and 3 November 2009.

I have also today placed copies of all legal documentation associated with RBS's participation in the APS in the Libraries, subject only to any necessary redactions to protect commercial interests.

Banks: Loans

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the auditors of the accounts of the Bank of England for 2008-09 were informed of the loan to (a) RBS and (b) HBOS made in October 2008. [302985]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Bank's auditors were made aware of the emergency liquidity assistance to RBS and HBOS prior to the commencement of their audit of the Bank's accounts for the year to 28 February 2009.

The relevant Bank of England Annual Report can be accessed via:

http://www.bankofengland.co.uk/publications/annualreport/index.htm

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Court of Directors of the Bank of England was informed of the loan made to (a) RBS and (b) HBOS in October 2008. [302986]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Court of the Bank, acting through its Transactions Committee, was consulted in a number of meetings between 1 October and 13 October 2008.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what requirements there are on the Bank of England in respect of disclosure of information on loans made in each financial year, with particular reference to the bank's annual report and accounts. [302988]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Bank's financial statements for the year ended 28 February 2009 (and in earlier years) state that where the Bank acts as a lender of last resort, the financial effects of such operations will be included in the financial statements in the year in which they occur although these financial statements may not explicitly identify the existence of such support. This was the case for the year ending 28 February 2009. The Bank's auditors confirmed that the financial statements for the year were properly prepared in accordance with the stated basis of preparation set out in the notes to the accounts.

The relevant Bank of England annual report can be accessed via:

http://www.bankofengland.co.uk/publications/annualreport/index.htm

Defence Training College

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the Major Projects Review Group plans to publish its conclusions on the Defence Technical College proposals at St. Athan. [304520]

Ian Pearson: It is not normal practice for Major Projects Review Group information to be made public.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Willis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many residential properties his Department owns; and how many (a) are occupied and (b) have been empty for more than six months. [304002]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer the then Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury gave to the hon. Member for St. Albans (Anne Main) on 11 March 2008, Official Report, column 364W.

Departmental Information Officers

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many full-time equivalent press officers (a) are employed by and (b) work for his Department. [303607]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Nine full-time equivalent press officers are employed by HM Treasury, as well as one FTE working under contract to cover a vacant full-time post.

EU Law

Gregory Barker: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) statutory instruments and (b) other regulations his Department has brought forward in the 2005 Parliament to meet obligations arising from EU law. [304180]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: This information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Financial Services

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent estimate his Department has made of the number of (a) adults and (b) households that do not use any financial services. [303847]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: On 19 October the Financial Inclusion Taskforce published its fourth annual report on access to banking. The taskforce used data from the Family Resources Survey to estimate that around 890,000 adults living in 690,000 households do not have access to either a banking or a saving account. Of these, 590,000 adults have a Post Office card account, which enables them to receive benefits directly.

Government: Assets

Colin Challen: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the monetary value is of the equity stake held by the Government in each financial institution recapitalised from the public purse. [303793]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: As disclosed in UKFI's Annual Report, the Government currently hold 39,645 million ordinary shares in the Royal Bank of Scotland, equivalent to 70 per cent. of voting share capital. The total price at purchase of this investment was a net £20 billion. In connection with the asset protection scheme, the Government shareholding is due to increase by up to an additional 51,000 million non-voting B shares at a price of 50p per share.

The Government currently hold 11,799 million ordinary shares in the Lloyds Banking Group, equivalent to 43 per cent. of voting share capital. The total price at purchase of this investment was a net £14.5 billion. The Government have announced that they will take up their share of the forthcoming Rights Issue, increasing their shareholding by an additional 15,810 million ordinary shares at a price of 37p per share.

National Insurance Contributions: Foreign Workers

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether (a) employee and (b) employer national insurance contributions are payable in respect of intra-company transferees under Tier Two of the points-based immigration system with work permits which state that the transferees intend to spend less than two years in the UK. [304136]

Mr. Timms: Intra company transferees and their employers (or if their employer is overseas, their host employers) pay National Insurance in the UK. There are exceptions where:

1. The employee is entitled to exception from national insurance under European Community Regulations 1408/71 that operate within the European economic area and Switzerland, or under a bi-lateral social security agreement with another country; or

2. The employee comes from outside the European economic area, Switzerland, or a bi-lateral social security agreement country and falls within the 52 week exception in Regulation 145(2) Social Security Contributions Regulations 2001, that applies to certain seconded workers who are not ordinarily resident in the UK.

Revenue and Customs

Mr. Liddell-Grainger: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what improvement programmes were in operation at HM Revenue and Customs in (a) 2006, (b) 2007, (c) 2008 and (d) 2009; how much each has cost; how much each programme has spent on external consultants; and which official of HM Revenue and Customs had oversight of each programme. [303066]

Mr. Timms: Since 2006, HM Revenue and Customs' (HMRC) major change and improvement programmes have been delivered through the Department's investment portfolio known as the 'Departmental Transformation Programme'. Total expenditure, including consultancy, on these programmes is set out in the table.

The successful delivery of a change portfolio of the scale and complexity of HMRC's Departmental Transformation Programme depends critically on suitably skilled project management personnel as well as specialists in niche areas, e.g. data security and commercial banking. Where HMRC staff with the necessary skills and experience are not available, the Department will employ, through its commercial frameworks, external contractors and consultants to ensure successful programme delivery.

Scientists

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions he has met the Government Chief Scientific Adviser in the course of his official duties in the last 12 months. [303881]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Treasury Ministers and officials have meetings with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such meetings.

Taxation: Gaming

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what progress has been made on his Department's consultation on gross profits tax in respect of adult gaming centres. [304135]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Government issued a consultation on the future of gaming machine taxation on 16 July. The consultation period formally closed on 23 October. The responses received during the consultation are currently being analysed and reviewed by officials. No decisions will be taken on the future of gaming machines taxation until this analysis is complete.

VAT: Northern Ireland

Mark Durkan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the revenue which accrued to the Exchequer in value added tax (VAT) from VAT-registered businesses in each constituency in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years. [304266]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available. Although HM Revenue and Customs holds data on the place of registration by trader this has not been analysed by constituency. The address of registration is not necessarily the same as the location the trader will be operating from, for example a chain would only have one VAT registration covering all its branches, so would be unreliable for identifying the VAT accrued in that constituency.

Winter Fuel Payments: Income Tax

David Howarth: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many persons in receipt of winter fuel allowance pay income tax at the (a) standard and (b) higher rate. [303741]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available. However, winter fuel payments are paid to most people aged 60 and over, and the estimated number of income taxpayers for 2009-10 in this age group is 6.4 million, of which 6.0 million pay income tax at the basic rate or starting rate on savings income and 0.4 million pay income tax at the higher rate.

Working Tax Credit

Mr. Laws: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if he will estimate the cost to the public purse of enabling recipients of the childcare element of working tax credit to continue to receive it for 12 weeks following redundancy; and if he will make a statement; [303737]

(2) how many unemployed people claimed the childcare element of working tax credit in each of the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [303738]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the answers given to the hon. Member on 1 December 2009, Official Report, column 604W.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Audit Commission: Public Relations

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood of 1 December 2009, Official Report, column 640W, on Audit Commission: public relations, what the (a) nature and (b) purpose was of the work entitled (i) one off project fee of 10 June 2009, (ii) Connect fee as agreed of 12 June 2009 and (iii) each Connect fee of 14 September 2009. [304714]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission, and I will ask the chief executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member direct.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated 7 December 2009:

The nature and purpose of the work paid for on 10 June 2009 was to provide an informed analysis of changes in departmental portfolios and policies following the reshuffle of government ministers, of possible changes in the machinery of government, and of responses by Opposition parties in the House of Commons and House of Lords.

The purpose of the work paid for on 12 June 2009 was to update our parliamentary database (held for the purposes of supplying MPs with reports and studies relevant to their known interests and their constituencies); to update our records of where prospective candidates had been selected; and to provide informed commentary on the potential electoral effects of the controversy over MPs expenses.

The purpose of the work paid for on 14 September 2009 was to provide further updates on parliamentary constituencies where MPs had announced they were standing down at the next general election; a briefing on changes in the electoral and policy landscape in the run-up to the general election; and analysis of policy commitments made by the parties on regulation, audit, inspection, local government spending and other subjects relative to the Commission's work.

A copy of this letter will be placed in Hansard.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood of 1 December 2009, Official Report, column 640W, on the Audit Commission: public relations, if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) analysis and overview of the local election results and (b) public affairs strategy that was produced for the Audit Commission by Connect Public Affairs. [304715]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission, and I will ask the chief executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member direct.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated 7 December 2009:

Parliamentary Question: to ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, with reference to the Answer to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood of 1 December 2009, Official Report, column 640W, on Audit Commission: public relations, if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) analysis and overview of the local election results and (b) public affairs strategy that was produced for the Audit Commission by Connect Public Affairs.

Your Parliamentary Question outlined above has been passed to me to reply.

Copies of the following documents produced by Connect Public Affairs for the Audit Commission have been placed in the library:

- Local election analysis
- Public affairs strategy

A copy of this letter will be placed in Hansard.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood of 1 December 2009, Official Report, column 640W, on the Audit Commission: public relations, which key prospective parliamentary candidates were identified by Connect Public Affairs for the Audit Commission; and what action the Audit Commission or Connect took in relation to those individuals after their identification. [304716]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission, and I will ask the chief executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member direct.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated 7 December 2009:

Parliamentary Question: with reference to the Answer to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood of 1 December 2009, Official Report, column 640W, on Audit Commission: public relations, which key prospective parliamentary candidates were identified by Connect Public Affairs for the Audit Commission; and what action the Audit Commission or Connect took in relation to those individuals after their identification.

Your Parliamentary Question outlined above has been passed to me to reply.

The Audit Commission asked Connect Public Affairs to produce a list and analysis of the known interests of prospective parliamentary candidates of all parties.

Candidates are an important group of users of the rich local detail contained in Comprehensive Area Assessment. The Audit Commission is using this work to disseminate details of area assessments to those who have declared they are standing at the next general election.

The Audit Commission has not asked Connect Public Affairs to lobby or communicate with prospective parliamentary candidates on its behalf. Connect was asked to carry out research, for example providing contact details, to ensure the Commission's data records were as accurate as possible.

A copy of this letter will be placed in Hansard.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood of 1 December 2009, Official Report, column 640W, on the Audit Commission: public relations, what the purpose was of the public affairs work entitled CPA Conservative Shadow Cabinet; and what the work entailed. [304717]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This is an operational matter for the Audit Commission, and I will ask the chief executive of the Audit Commission to write to the hon. Member direct.

Letter from Steve Bundred, dated 7 December 2009:

Parliamentary Question: with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood of 1 December 2009, Official Report, column 640W, on Audit Commission: public relations, what the purpose was of the public affairs work entitled CPA Conservative Shadow Cabinet; and what the work entailed.

Your Parliamentary Question outlined above has been passed to me to reply.

Ministers, their shadows, MPs and elected members in local government are among the important users of the information and place analysis contained in the new Comprehensive Area Assessment. To identify them and plan effective communications to them, the Audit Commission asked Connect Public Affairs to use its expert knowledge to draw up a 'perceptions and influence map'.

It lists those who are likely to take an interest in Comprehensive Area Assessment and those to whom further information might be of use and of interest, so allowing the Audit Commission to target its spending on dissemination of reports, assessments and analyses more effectively.

A copy of this letter will be placed in Hansard.

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood of 1 December 2009, Official Report, column 640W, on the Audit Commission: public relations, if he will make an assessment of the compliance of the Audit Commission's hiring of a public affairs firm to identify key prospective parliamentary candidates with the Cabinet Office's Propriety Guidance rules in respect of use of public relations consultancies or agencies. [304718]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Cabinet Office's Propriety Guidance does not apply to non-civil servants, so the Audit Commission is not required to comply with it.

Homes and Communities Agency: Harlow

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 24 November 2009, Official Report, column 71W, on the Home and Communities Agency, how much the Homes and Communities Agency's predecessor bodies spent on acquiring the freehold to the Gateway site in Harlow; how much was spent on security for the site; and on what date the freehold was (a) bought by that predecessor body and (b) sold. [302952]

John Healey: It is not possible to provide a precise figure or date for the completion of the Gateway site. It was part of a larger acquisition carried out prior to 1959, which was itself part of the land assembly to support the creation of Harlow New Town. To determine the precise date and cost of the acquisition of the freehold of this site would represent a disproportionate cost.

The Gateway site was disposed of in 2004 for the figure given in my previous answer. The freehold is being transferred on a plot by plot basis as units are completed. It has therefore been transferred on some of the land but not all.

Nothing was spent by either the HCA or its predecessor bodies on security for the site.

Leasehold Valuation Tribunal

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many cases relating to the level of fees charged by private sheltered housing companies have been brought before the Leasehold Valuation Tribunal in 2009 to date. [302997]

Mr. Ian Austin: Leasehold Valuation tribunals have so far dealt with 18 cases in 2009 concerning the service charges of private sheltered housing companies.

Lichfield District Council: Finance

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent by Lichfield district council in each of the last four financial years; and what revenue the authority received from (a) Government grants, (b) council tax, (c) non-domestic rates, (d) the sale of assets and (e) other sources in each of those years. [304160]

Communities and Local Government Revenue and Capital Outturn returns

Revenue expenditure figures are produced on a non Financial Reporting Standard 17 (FRS17) basis.

Government grants within revenue expenditure are defined here as the sum of revenue support grant, area based grant and specific grants inside aggregate external finance (AEF) i.e. revenue grants paid for authorities' core services.

"Other" within revenue expenditure financing includes: transfers and adjustments; appropriations to/from revenue reserves; collection fund surpluses/deficits; and community charge amounts transferred to/from collection fund.

Local authority council tax requirement is the council tax available to finance revenue expenditure, not council tax collected.

Revenue figures exclude grants outside AEF (i.e. where funding is not for authorities' core services but is passed to a third party e.g. rent allowances and rebates), funding for the local authorities' housing management responsibilities and those grant programmes (such as European funding) where authorities are simply one of the recipients of funding paid towards an area.

Comparisons across years may not be valid owing to changing local authority responsibilities.

"Other" within capital expenditure financing includes grants and contributions from outside government (e.g. private developers, national lottery), revenue financing and borrowing.

Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when he expects to implement Part 6 of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007. [301758]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Our response, published on 27 October 2009, to the consultation paper 'The making and enforcement of byelaws' made clear our intention to implement the new regime for the making and enforcement of byelaws, which we are minded to do early in the new year.

Local Government Finance

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what percentage of the external finance in each local authority in England was generated from (a) fees and charges, (b) council tax and (c) central Government funding in (i) 1992, (ii) 1997 and (iii) 2007; [302117]

(2) if he will rank each English London local authority in order of the percentage of total income generated from council tax in 2008-09. [302118]

Barbara Follett: I have today placed in the Library of the House a table that gives, by each local authority in England, the percentage of income generated from (a) fees and charges, (b) council tax and (c) central Government funding in 2007-08.

Estimates for 1992-93 and 1997-98 are not available as they could be made only at disproportionate cost.

Information on some of the elements of total income required to produce estimates for 2008-09 has not yet been compiled.

Local Government: ICT

Mr. Kilfoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if he will commission a report on the role of Liverpool Direct Ltd. in Liverpool city council's ICT strategy; and if he will make a statement. [302767]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This is a matter for Liverpool city council. Local authorities have a duty to secure continuous improvement in the way in which they exercise their functions, having regard to a combination of economy, effectiveness and efficiency.

Local Government: Procurement

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance his Department publishes on local authority commissioning of goods and services; how many local authorities have been required under that guidance to tender for services being conducted in house, or by existing providers in the last 12 months. [303356]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Guidance on securing positive outcomes and best value through commissioning was set out in paragraphs 6.4 to 6.17 of "Creating Strong, Safe and Prosperous Communities: Statutory Guidance" (Communities and Local Government, 9 July 2008). The guidance is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/localgovernment/strongsafeprosperous

Information on how many authorities have tendered for services in the last 12 months is not held centrally.

Non-Domestic Rates

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 26 November 2009, Official Report, columns 312-13W, on non-domestic rates, what the estimated net collectable debt in respect of non-domestic rates was for each local authority in the (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10 tax year. [304232]

Barbara Follett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave her on 26 November 2009, Official Report, columns 312-13W and in particular column 2 of the table that was placed in the Library of the House.

Parking: Fees and Charges

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what (a) the total reserve in its Parking Places Revenue Account and (b) the annual income from parking charges was of each local authority in each of the last five years. [302116]

Barbara Follett: I have today placed in the Library of the House a table that gives, by each local authority in England, the annual revenue raised by local authorities from all parking charges in each year from 2005-06 to 2008-09.

Information about local authorities' Parking Places Revenue Account is not collected centrally.

Planning Permission: Appeals

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent guidelines his Department has issued to planning inspectors in respect of planning appeals. [304724]

Mr. Ian Austin: The Department has not recently issued any guidelines specifically to planning inspectors. In determining cases, planning inspectors must take account, where relevant, of Planning Policy statements and any associated material such as circulars and guidance issued by my Department. All such material is in the public domain.

Sheltered Housing

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment he has made of the benefits to residents of sheltered accommodation of the provision of services by wardens who work a 34-hour week; and what assessment he has made of the likely effects on such residents of changes in the working patterns of such wardens. [303811]

Barbara Follett: There has been no central assessment of the benefits to residents of having warden services within sheltered accommodation. When reviewing services local authorities should take account of residents views on the services being provided and the benefits received. We expect every service user to have a full risk and needs assessment undertaken and an appropriate support plan put in place. It is a local decision as to how to best meet the needs identified.

Social Rented Housing: Equality

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many employment tribunal claims have been brought against (a) local authorities and (b) registered social landlords in each of the last five years; [304537]

(2) how many cases have been brought against (a) local authorities and (b) registered social landlords in respect of alleged breaches of equalities legislation in each of the last five years; [304535]

(3) how many legal cases have been brought in respect of racial discrimination allegations against (a) local authorities and (b) registered social landlords in each of the last five years. [304536]

Ms Rosie Winterton: This information is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Social Rented Housing: Regulation

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of local authority regulation of registered social landlords; what estimate he has made of the cost to local authorities of such regulation in 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [304522]

John Healey: Registered Social Landlords (RSLs) in England are regulated by the Tenant Services Authority (TSA), the independent social housing regulator. Local authorities are not responsible for regulating RSLs.

Tenant Services Agency

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if he will estimate the cost to the public purse of (a) setting up and (b) operating for the first year the (i) Tenant Services Agency and (ii) the Homes and Communities Agency. [304521]

John Healey: The set up costs of the Homes and Communities Agency (HCA) and Tenant Services Authority (TSA) are set out in the Housing and Regeneration Bill-Impact Assessment, a copy of which is in the House Library

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/housing/housingregenactimpactassess

The running costs for both the HCA and the TSA can be found in the published financial statements for 2008-09.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Asylum

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many outstanding asylum appeals there were on 1 November 2009. [301283]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

The number of outstanding asylum appeals as of 1 November 2009 is as follows:

| | Number of cases |
|---|---|
| Immigration Judge[1] | 3,282 |
| High Court Review (Filter) Applications[2] | 271 |
| Reconsiderations[3] | 1,304 |
| Total Asylum Appeal cases outstanding | 4,857 |

[1] Initial appeal of Home Office decision.
[2] The application to review whether a reconsideration of the case is appropriate because of an error of law
[3] Reconsideration of case because of an error of law.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department to which countries children seeking asylum aged (a) 17, (b) 12 to 16, (c) five to 11 and (d) under five years old have been deported in each year since 1997. [302884]

Alan Johnson: The requested information is not available prior to 2004; however, the following table shows the number of removals and voluntary departures of children asylum cases under the age of 18, including dependants, from the United Kingdom between 2004 and 2008, by age group and country of destination.

The figures provided include children in family groups. Where they have been found by the UK Border Agency and the independent courts to have no basis of stay in the UK they are expected to leave the country or face an enforced removal. Wherever possible they are given the opportunity to make a voluntary departure. The UK Border Agency only consider returning an unaccompanied child with no legal right to remain in the UK to their country of origin if safe and adequate reception arrangements are in place.

Published statistics on immigration and asylum are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html

[4] Removals and voluntary departures recorded on the system as at the dates on which the data extracts were taken.

[5] Provisional figures. Figures will under record due to data cleansing and data matching exercises that take place after the extracts are taken.

[6] Due to a reclassification of removal categories, figures include asylum removals which have been performed by enforcement officers using port powers of removal and a small number of cases dealt with at juxtaposed controls.

[7] Since October 2006, figures include persons leaving under facilitated return schemes.

[8] Persons leaving under assisted voluntary return programmes run by the International Organization for Migration. May include some cases leaving under the assisted voluntary return for irregular migrants programme and some cases where enforcement action had been initiated.

[9] Since January 2005, persons who it has been established left the UK without informing the immigration authorities.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children from each country of origin aged (a) 17, (b) 12 to 16, (c) five to 11 and (d) under five years old have been refused asylum in each year since 1997. [302885]

Alan Johnson: Information on asylum refusals by age group and country of origin is not collated.

Information on asylum is published annually and quarterly. Annual statistics for 2008 and the latest statistics for Q3 2009 are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children from each country of origin aged (a) 17, (b) 12 to 16, (c) five to 11 and (d) under five years old have claimed asylum in each year since 1997. [302886]

Alan Johnson: Information on asylum applications from principal applicants (since 2001) and dependants (since 2002) is only available by the published age categories at time of application and nationality. Information prior to these dates is not available.

The figures are available from the annual Statistical Bulletin Asylum Statistics United Kingdom prior to 2008 and the supplementary tables of the Control of Immigration Bulletin 2008 for the year of 2008. Copies of these publications are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics website at:

Crimes of Violence

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of grievous and actual bodily harm were recorded by police in (a) England and (b) North East Cambridgeshire in each of the last 10 years. [303643]

Mr. Hanson: The Home Office does not hold data for the constituency area North East Cambridgeshire, as this does not correspond with a Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership or Cambridgeshire Police Basic Command Unit.

Data for grievous bodily harm (GBH) and actual bodily harm (ABH) offences for England for 1999-2000 to 2008-09 are given in Table A.

There was a major change in police recorded crime recording in 2002 that means that figures from 2002-03 are not comparable with figures prior to this year.

The introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in 2002 brought in a more victim-focused reporting system, where victim accounts had to be accepted unless there was credible evidence to the contrary. In its first year, this is estimated to have artificially increased recording of violence against the person by 23 per cent. (it is also thought to have increased figures in the following year as the standard bedded in but precise estimates of this effect are not available).

From 1 April 2008 there were also changes in offence classification, introducing the new category of GBH without intent, and a clarification in the counting rules for GBH with intent which meant that in some forces there was a significant shift in recording away from ABH to GBH with intent. This means figures for 2008-09 are not comparable with those for earlier years.

Table A: Recorded crime for grievous bodily harm (GBH) and actual bodily harm (ABH) offences in England, 1999-2000 to 2008-09

| GBH | 5 | More serious wounding or other act endangering life | 13,835 | 14,452 | 15,202 | 16,113 | 17,706 | 17,801 | 17,065 | 15,667 | 13,596 | — |

| Total GBH and ABH | | | 205,894 | 202,876 | 216,980 | 340,467 | 424,308 | 481,307 | 508,826 | 475,710 | 424,461 | 393,108 |

Notes:

1. There was a major change in police recorded crime recording in 2002 that means that figures from 2002-03 are not comparable with figures prior to this year. The introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in 2002 brought in a more victim-focused reporting system, where victim accounts had to be accepted unless there was credible evidence to the contrary.

2. Offence classifications 5A, 5B and 5C were introduced from 1 April 2008 and replace classification 5. Classification 5A was influenced by a clarification in recording rules that had the effect of significantly increasing levels of recording in some forces. Figures for 2008-09 for classification 5A should be viewed as provisional as a current inspection by HM Inspectorate of Constabulary may give rise to further revisions from forces. Classification 5A also includes some other offences of endangering life as well as GBH with intent, though GBH with intent is the major part of this category.

3. Offence classifications 8F, 8G, 8H, 8J and 8K were introduced from 1 April 2008 and had previously been recorded as part of classifications 8A or 8D.

Deportation

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been deported from the UK in the last five years. [300920]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Office publishes statistics on the number of persons who were removed or departed voluntarily from the UK on a quarterly and annual basis, which are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office's Research, Development and Statistics website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/immigration-asylum-stats.html

Statistics on removals and voluntary departures, by type, in the last 10 years are provided in table 3.1 of the Control of Immigration: Statistics United Kingdom 2008 bulletin at:

Figures for the third quarter of 2009 will be published on 26 November 2009.

DNA: Databases

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the written ministerial statement of 11 November 2009, Official Report, columns 25-28WS, on DNA and fingerprint retention, whether all those arrested and not charged under counter-terrorism legislation will have their DNA retained beyond the six-year limit. [301934]

Mr. Hanson: DNA profiles and fingerprints taken from adults detained under section 41 of the Terrorism Act 2000 or Schedule 7 to that Act will only be retained beyond six years if the relevant chief officer of police determines that it is necessary to do so for national security purposes.

All cases will be reviewed on a rolling two year basis after the six year timeframe and the material will be destroyed when it is no longer necessary to retain it for those purposes.

Entry Clearances

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) leave to remain, (b) indefinite leave to remain and (c) student visa (tier four) applications have been refused in the last five years. [300921]

Mr. Woolas: Statistics on leave to remain and indefinite leave to remain (settlement) applications refused for the last five complete years, 2004-08, are provided in the following table.

Provisional calendar year totals for 2009 are due to be published in February 2010. The leave to remain refusals total for 2009 will include in-country applications from non-EEA students that have been considered and refused under tier 4 of the points-based system from 31 March 2009.

Provisional leave to remain and indefinite leave to remain quarterly data for the first three quarters of 2009 were published on 26 November in the "Control of Immigration: Quarterly Statistical Summary, United Kingdom—Third Quarter 2009". ## Entry Clearances: Overseas Students

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will assess the financial effect on language schools teaching English as a foreign language of proposed reforms to Tier 4 of the points-based system. [302084]

Mr. Woolas: The Prime Minister announced on 17 November 2009 that a review of tier 4, the student tier of the points based system, would be conducted by a joint team from the UK Border Agency and the Department of Business, Innovation and Skills. The review team have been asked to assess whether the current tier 4 policy strikes the appropriate balance between facilitating access of genuine students to education in the UK and preventing abuse by economic migrants.

The review is looking at evidence gathered from the early stages of tier 4, which was launched in March this year, to look at the case for or against any policy changes. The review will consider all of the available data and evidence, including the potential financial impact of the proposals on the different parts of the education sector such as the English language sector.

Entry Clearances: Skilled Workers

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) work permits with a length of more than 12 months and (b) highly skilled migrant programme permits were issued in 2008-09. [302155]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 30 November 2009]: The UK Border Agency issued 60,305 work permits with a length of 12 months or more and 10,775 highly skilled migrant programme permits in the financial year 2008-09.

Figures are rounded to nearest five.

The figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Extremism Unit: Finance

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much his Department's Extremism Unit spent under each budget heading in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [301038]

Mr. Hanson: Extremism may take many forms. As regards funding for OSCT Prevent this was spent as follows:

| | | £million |
|---|---|---|
| | Actual admin. spend | Actual programme spend |
| 2007-08 | 0.92 | 1.71 |

Fixed Penalties

Nick Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance his Department has issued to police forces on the publication of information on the number of fixed penalty notices issued in respect of offences committed upon a particular part of the highway; and if he will make a statement. [303532]

Mr. Hanson: Decisions on the release of any information held by the police is a matter for individual chief officers of police.

Nick Ainger: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will ask South Wales Police Force to review its decision on publication of the number of fixed penalty notices issued for speeding in the 50mph limit area on the approach to the Severn Bridge toll booths on the M4. [303533]

Mr. Hanson: Decisions on the release of any information held by the police is a matter for individual chief officers of police.

Under the Freedom of Information Act 2000, if the requester is not satisfied with the response that they have received from a police force, they have two options which they can follow:

(a) ask the force to conduct an internal review of their decision and if they remain dissatisfied then

(b) they should take the matter to the Information Commissioner.

Foreign Nationals: Convictions

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign nationals who have been convicted in this country in each of the last five years were identified by a Government department or agency as having a criminal record in another country or countries (a) on entry into the UK and (b) on release from custody. [303323]

Mr. Woolas: It is not possible to obtain the requested information.

In the case of EU nationals there is a mechanism for the exchange of conviction information, operated under 2009 Framework Decision (previously conviction information was transferred under the Council of Europe arrangements, 1959).

In the case of non-European countries there are arrangements via Interpol, which concentrate on more serious offences.

Identity Cards

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 12 November 2009, Official Report, column 946W, on identity cards, what proportion of the 1,000 applications received has come from (a) Identity and Passport Service and the Home Department staff and (b) airport operator staff at Manchester and London City airports. [303782]

Alan Johnson: Since 20 October, and up to and including 30 November, 1,589 applicants have been enrolled or have made an enrolment appointment for an identity card. The information held on the National Identity Register does not include the occupation of an individual.

Identity Cards: Databases

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department which organisations were accredited under the Identity Cards Act 2006 to access data on the National Identity Register on 1 October 2009. [303816]

Meg Hillier: No organisation will have access to the information held on the National Identity Register. However, the Identity Cards Act 2006 does allow for information to be provided from the register in prescribed circumstances. The register was not in operation on 1 October 2009, and powers to provide information were not commenced until 20 October 2009.

Identity Cards: Greater Manchester

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether the personal information of British citizens applying for identity cards in Greater Manchester from 30 November will be stored on the National Identity Register. [303791]

Alan Johnson: British citizens resident or working in Greater Manchester who apply for an identity card will have their identity information including biometrics stored on the National Identity Register. The register will hold the same sort of personal information as is already held for the issue of passports.

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent on informing people in Greater Manchester that they may apply for identity cards from 30 November 2009. [303792]

Alan Johnson: The Identity and Passport Service has spent £41,195 to date to buy advertising space that utilises regional press and online search to inform people who live or work in Greater Manchester that they may apply for Identity Cards from 30 November 2009.

Immigration

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many children from each country of origin aged (a) 17, (b) 12 to 16, (c) five to 11 and (d) under five years old have been detained under immigration rules in each of the last 12 years. [302881]

Alan Johnson: The requested information is not available; however, in August 2009 the Control of Immigration Quarterly Statistical publication was expanded to include information on persons entering detention, total number of persons leaving detention and the number of families with children held in detention. This information is available split by age (to separately identify children), and will be published quarterly in the future; however data for earlier years will remain unavailable.

Information on the number of children under the age of 18 entering detention solely under Immigration Act powers in Q1-Q3 2009 by age and country of nationality is available in:

Immigration Controls: Foreign Workers

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what effects changes in the labour market test for obtaining a work permit have had on the number of domestic workers (a) applying for and (b) obtaining jobs in the UK. [301223]

Mr. Woolas: The flexibility of the points-based system allows us to support UK workers and at the same time meet the recruitment needs of businesses and support the economy. Since April this year, the RLMT has been strengthened to include a requirement to advertise skilled jobs in Jobcentre Plus, so that resident workers have a single source—their local job centre—to access all skilled vacancies. This strengthening of the resident labour market test was introduced to better support resident workers looking for skilled jobs. I announced on 24 November that, on the Migration Advisory Committee's recommendation the test would be further strengthened by increasing from two weeks to four weeks the minimum period that jobs must be advertised in order to satisfy the test. No formal assessment of the impact of the changes has yet been undertaken.

(2) when he intends to reply to the letter of 5 October 2009 from the right hon. Member for Manchester Gorton with regard to Mr. Rara Ali Raza. [303415]

Mr. Hanson: I wrote to my hon. Friend on 25 November 2009.

National Policing Improvement Agency

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has for the future (a) governance and (b) funding of the National Policing Improvement Agency; and if he will make a statement. [303902]

Mr. Hanson: The National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) is an executive non-departmental public body (ENDPB) of the Home Office created under the Police and Justice Act 2006. Its governance arrangements are set out in legislation under Schedule 1 of the Police and Justice Act 2006 and there are no plans to change these arrangements.

Funding for the NPIA is allocated on an annual basis and funding allocations have not yet been set for 2010-11 and beyond.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding his Department allocated to the National Policing Improvement Agency in each of the last five years; what agreements are in place between his Department and that agency in relation to the use of such funding; under what statutory powers such funding was allocated; and if he will make a statement. [303903]

Mr. Hanson: The funding allocated to the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) since it was established in April 2007 is shown in the following table.

The NPIA is subject to the principles of regularity, propriety and value for money that applies to all Government Departments and other public bodies in the management of public money and must observe the Treasury guidance 'Managing Public Money'. A Financial Memorandum between the Home Office and NPIA is in place and the Management Statement (published on the NPIA website) sets out in greater detail the financial framework within which NPIA is required to operate. Annual Accounts are laid before Parliament each year. The Chief Executive of the NPIA is the Accounting Officer.

The Secretary of State has statutory authority to make payments to the NPIA under Schedule 1, part 4 of the Police and Justice Act 2006.

Police

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will bring forward proposals for a protocol for police officers dealing with people with learning difficulties; [303983]

(2) what training police forces give to police officers on dealing with people with learning difficulties. [303988]

Mr. Hanson [holding answer 3 December 2009]: The Initial Police Learning and Development Programme (IPLDP) and Police Community Support Officer learning programme contain modules relating to dealing with individuals with learning difficulties. A list of these modules is given in table 1.

Police training for all officers and staff is being reviewed to ensure that mental ill health and learning difficulties are covered appropriately. The National Policing Improvement Agency has developed guidance on the 'Police Response to People with Mental Ill Health and Learning Disabilities' on behalf of the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO).

It has been developed in response to the recommendations of Lord Bradley's review of people with mental health problems or learning disabilities in the criminal justice system (April 2009).

A new Mental Ill Health Learning Programme will take a more focused and detailed approach in looking at mental ill health and learning disabilities, identifying the difference between the two and being able to identify symptoms, indicators and responses to a range of disabilities in a wide variety of policing situations. A list of topics and outcomes is given in table 2. Mind, Mencap and the Sainsbury Centre for Mental Health have been consulted throughout the development of this learning programme.

The contents of table 2 only identify where a specific focus has been drawn to persons with a disability or learning difficulties. There is a strong thread throughout IPLDP promoting equality and dealing with people in a fair and ethical manner by recognising and responding to their needs in respect of race and diversity, as set out in the Disability Discrimination Act and the Human Rights Act.

An e-learning module is being developed as part of the Mental Ill Health Learning Programme to support the new guidance. The e-learning module, which is designed for all public-facing officers, will be part of initial training and will be available to all Home Office police forces.

The overarching intention of the guidance, practice advice and training is to reduce the risk of harm to the individual, to members of the community and to policing personnel.

Table 1: Modules currently included in the IPLDP and Police Community Support Officer Learning Programme

|---|---|
| Assessing the needs of individuals and provide advice and support | Identifying vulnerable witnesses (behavioural characteristics and physical characteristics), who may be vulnerable and why. It also looks at communicating with such individuals, special measures provided for vulnerable witnesses including the identification of such needs on the appropriate documentation in file completion. There is also an appendix of common conditions including those that could affect communication, with a summary of that condition. |
| Using police actions in a fair and justified way | The student notes cover communication skills and highlights some conditions that could affect communication. |
| Interviewing victims and witnesses | Includes a section on vulnerable witnesses/victims and specifically highlights the potential for communication difficulties and misunderstandings arising. |
| Interviewing suspects | Dealing with vulnerable people, whether they are a victim, witness or suspect and the need to treat vulnerable people with particular consideration at all times. It looks at whether individuals are fit to be interviewed, and mental health issues, physical disorder, health and behaviour are discussed. It also looks at communication difficulties, the need for appropriate adults in certain situations and the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1985 code of practice in relation to interviewing those who may have a learning difficulty or a mental health issue. |
| Prepare and present case information, present evidence and finalise investigations | Includes a section on witnesses with learning difficulties and deals with how witnesses with learning difficulties may find the criminal justice process especially stressful, and on occasion, traumatic. High stress reduces the person's ability to participate and respond to questioning, or effectively recall events in order to assist the fact finding process of the criminal justice system. The student notes associated with this module look at pre-trial support to aid this process. |
| Victims and witnesses | This looks at the code of practice for the victims of crime and specifically deals with vulnerable and intimidated witnesses. |
| Strategies for dealing with persons suffering from mental disorder | This module specifically covers learning in relation to the legal term of learning disabilities' within the Mental Health Act 1983. It also covers identifying people with learning difficulties and court appearances for people with learning difficulties. |
| Mental health | The module includes a chapter dedicated to dealing with and interviewing people with learning difficulties and mental disorders. It looks at communication and memory difficulties and responses to perceived aggression. The mental Capacity Act 2005 is explored to ensure that officers have an understanding of Section 44 of the Act - Ill Treatment or Neglect. It fully explains the concept of lacking capacity, inability to make decisions and acting in the best interests of the individual. |

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many complaints people with learning difficulties have made against police officers in each of the last five years. [303984]

Mr. Hanson [holding answer 3 December 2009]: The Home Office does not hold this information centrally. It is a matter for each police force to retain such information.

The Police Reform Act, 2002 places a duty on all police forces to record all complaints made by members of the public about the conduct of those serving with the police. The Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) is responsible for the collation and publication of complaints statistics for England and Wales.

Complaints made by people with learning difficulties, is not a category currently used by the IPCC in the collation of its complaints statistics. The IPCC have however recently requested that forces provide information relating to complainant disability and they are working with forces to ensure the consistent and accurate recording of these data going forward.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations he has received from hon. Members on the conduct of police officers dealing with people with learning difficulties. [303987]

Mr. Hanson [holding answer 3 December 2009]: Since February 2008 I am aware that four hon. Members have written to Home Office Ministers regarding the conduct of police officers in dealing with people with learning difficulties. These include one from the hon. Member himself, to the Home Secretary, in June of this year.

Since the representations concerned police training matters they were passed to the Chief Executive of the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) for consideration and a reply.

Political Activities

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the cost of policing party political conferences in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [304215]

Mr. Hanson: We have provided a total of £9.08 million in 2007-08 and £11.2 million in 2008-09 in special grant to police authorities for policing party political conferences.

Special grant is intended to provide financial assistance in exceptional circumstances to help meet costs where additional expenditure, incurred by the force, would otherwise create a serious threat to the authority's financial stability and would threaten seriously to compromise the force's capacity to deliver normal policing.

Radicalism

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with which civil society organisations his Department has entered into partnerships and agreements to support the delivery of policies related to extremism in the last five years. [300480]

Mr. Hanson: Extremism may take many forms. As regards the community-based organisations undertaking work in support of the Prevent agenda, these are funded through Communities and Local Government. However, the Office for Security and Counter-Terrorism Prevent Interventions Unit have also sponsored Prevent work with a range of community-based organisations during the past five years. This includes the funding of projects based on sports, education and mentoring in various environments.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what partnerships and initiatives designed to tackle the spread of extremism on the internet his Department has entered into with overseas authorities and agencies in the last 10 years. [300482]

Mr. Hanson: The Government are actively engaged in multilateral and bilateral discussions to explore options available to tackle online violent extremist material. For example, we participated actively in a year-long European project which has just been completed and are currently discussing a follow-up project with European partners. The Government are also assisting with the development of a Europol hosted web portal which is available to investigating agencies across the EU, to share information on open access terrorism related websites and content. Law enforcement agencies have also engaged with partner organisations on operational matters.

The internet hate crime action plan contains actions to improve co-operation with other states in addressing internet hate crime, including prejudice motivated extremism.

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what research his Department has evaluated on the root causes of extremism; and what steps he has taken to tackle them. [301467]

Mr. Hanson: Extremism takes many forms. Our assessment is that the main violent extremist threat to the UK is from al-Qaeda or al-Qaeda inspired groups. Experience here and abroad has identified a range of factors that in combination can lead to individuals supporting or becoming violent extremists. The main objectives of the Prevent strand of CONTEST are informed by this work.

Radicalism: Crime Prevention

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment he has made of the adequacy of information on extremism available to (a) his Department and (b) the police to enable them to tackle it; and if he will make a statement. [301403]

Mr. Hanson: My Department and the police rely on high quality reporting from a wide range of sources appropriate to different forms of extremism including the Joint Terrorism Analysis Centre and community tension monitoring information gathered by the police. Through websites, bulletins and bespoke reports relevant information is made available to those at the frontline in the police service and the wider public sector.

Stop and Search: Greater London

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many stop-and-searches were carried out under (a) section 1 of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 and (b) section 60 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994 in each London borough in each month since May 2007; and how many searches resulted in (i) an arrest and (ii) a conviction for each type of search. [304307]

Mr. Hanson: Information on stop-and-searches in 2007-08 (the latest period available) under section 1 of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 and section 60 of the Criminal Justice and Public Order Act 1994, in the Metropolitan police force area and City of London, broken down by quarter, are provided in the following table.

Data broken down by month and London borough are not available as the information reported to the Home Office on stop and searches are broken down by police force area and quarter only.

Information on stops and searches conducted in 2008-09 is scheduled to be published in March 2010.

Terrorism: Detainees

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he plans to bring forward proposals to increase the maximum period for pre-charge detention for terrorist suspects; and if he will make a statement. [304030]

Mr. Hanson: There are no plans for the Home Secretary to bring forward legislation to extend the maximum period for pre-charge detention at this time.

Work Permits

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of the work permits granted on the basis of intra-company transfer in respect of non-EU IT contractors in the last five years were valid on the latest date for which figures are available. [303040]

Mr. Woolas: The work permit arrangements closed on 26 November 2008 and were replaced by the Points Based System.

The number of work permits granted during the period 1 January 2004 to 26 November 2008 on the basis of intra-company transfers in respect of non-EU IT employers that were still valid on 27 November is 31,660.

Figures are rounded to nearest 5.

The figures quoted are not provided under National Statistics protocols and have been derived from local management information and are therefore provisional and subject to change.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for a work permit on the basis of intra-company transfer were (a) made and (b) granted in respect of non-EU IT contractors in each of the last (i) five years and (ii) eight quarters; and if he will make a statement. [303041]

Mr. Woolas: The work permit arrangements closed on 26 November 2008 and were replaced by the Points Based System.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) under what circumstances service personnel serving in Afghanistan are not issued with a personal morphine capsule; [300265]

(2) whether all service personnel entering theatre in Afghanistan have been issued with a personal morphine capsule. [300266]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 23 November 2009]: Personal morphine auto injectors are issued to service personnel in Afghanistan rather than personal morphine capsules. They should be issued to all service personnel who deploy "outside the wire" of the main operating bases. Those staff who work in the main operating bases, Camp Bastion and Kandahar Airfield, are issued with personal morphine auto injectors if the threat level dictates they should.

The only circumstance when personal morphine auto injectors should not be issued to service personnel in Afghanistan is when they are based in a main operating base where the threat level does not require it.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) minor injuries, (b) serious injuries and (c) fatalities among Afghan civilians have been recorded by his Department in Afghanistan in each year since 2001. [303808]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The UK Government do not collate or publish figures for civilian casualties in Afghanistan because of the immense difficulty and risks of collecting robust data. Every effort is made to avoid civilian casualties and any that are the result of action by UK armed forces are always a matter of profound regret.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 7 July 2009, Official Report, column 657W, on Afghanistan peacekeeping operations, how many helicopters have been deployed to Afghanistan as a direct result of the UK-French helicopter initiative. [304349]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The first three helicopters will deploy to Afghanistan this month. We expect a further four helicopters to deploy from late 2010 and up to a further four by 2013.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with his NATO counterparts on sourcing the requirement for ISAF's Operational Reserve Force; and what progress has been made in these discussions. [304361]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The operational reserve force for ISAF has not been filled since 2007. NATO's priority has been to generate operational forces for deployment into theatre rather than the reserve, and this has been the focus of discussions in the alliance.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Pakistani military personnel are (a) assigned, (b) attached and (c) embedded with coalition military forces in Regional Command South. [304368]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are currently no personnel from the Pakistani armed forces assigned to, attached to or embedded with coalition armed forces in regional command (south). There is a small team of Pakistani military personnel based at the official border crossing point in regional command (south); they are working with Afghan and coalition partners to help facilitate border crossing activity.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British military personnel are (a) embedded with Pakistani military units and (b) based in Pakistan to co-ordinate military operations in support of British military operations in Regional Command South. [304372]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are currently no UK military personnel embedded with Pakistani military units. There are three UK military staff based at the British high commission in Islamabad, who provide a liaison and co-ordination function between the Pakistani military and UK and NATO operations in Afghanistan, which includes regional command (south).

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what records his Department keeps in respect of civilian contractors killed while working in support of UK operations overseas; how many such contractors have been killed while supporting UK operations in Afghanistan since 2005; and if he will make a statement. [304744]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We have a record of the civilian contractors killed supporting UK forces in Iraq who have been recorded on the memorial wall at the National Memorial Arboretum in Alrewas, Staffordshire. We hold some records that have been provided by contractors supporting UK forces in Afghanistan.

Detailed and reliable information on the number of contractors killed while supporting UK operations in Afghanistan is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Collating comprehensive data on fatalities suffered by our contractors is very difficult due to the variety of contractors and the various ways in which they are employed.

We greatly value the work done by our civilian contractors in supporting operations in Afghanistan and we take very seriously our responsibilities towards them.

Air Force: Military Bases

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) name and (b) rank is of the RAF Commander at (i) RAF Croughton, (ii) RAF Menwith Hill, (iii) RAF Fairford, (iv) RAF Molesworth, (v) RAF Feltwell, (vi) RAF Lakenheath, (vii) RAF Mildenhall, (viii) RAF Upwood, (ix) RAF Barford St John, (x) RAF Alconbury, (xi) RAF Wyton, (xii) RAF Digby, (xiii) RAF St Mawgan, (xiv) RAF Blenheim Crescent and (xv) RAF Welford; and how many RAF personnel are based at each. [303580]

Bill Rammell: The rank of the RAF Commander and the name and rank of the Station Commander, together with the number of RAF personnel based at the RAF bases in the table are as follows:

| Base | Position | Name/rank | Number of RAF personnel |

Armed Forces: Casualties

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the policy is of each of the armed forces on the confirmation of acting ranks held by members of the armed forces killed in active duty. [303617]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The award of acting rank is given to service personnel who are required to undertake the role and responsibilities of a higher rank, either for a limited period of time, where they have been selected for promotion but their promotion has yet to be confirmed by the individual service authorities, or they have not yet completed pre-requisite promotion courses.

In the event of death while holding acting rank, personnel will continue to be referred to by the rank with which they were formally addressed by immediately prior to their death.

Armed Forces: Housing

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints Modern Housing Solutions received about animal infestations in service accommodation in each of the last five years. [304331]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The requested information is not recorded separately and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints were received by Modern Housing Solutions about accommodation for service personnel and their families in each of the last 12 months. [304332]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Modern Housing Solutions (MHS) is responsible for the repair and maintenance of some 44,000 service family accommodation properties in England and Wales, and attend some 200,000 response repair jobs each year.

The following table details the total number of complaints received about all aspects of the maintenance and repair service provided for the last 12 months:

| Month | Complaints |
| 2008 | |
| November | 467 |
| December | 390 |
| 2009 | |
| January | 534 |
| February | 465 |
| March | 497 |
| April | 532 |
| May | 480 |
| June | 497 |
| July | 573 |
| August | 518 |
| September | 584 |
| October | 561 |

These figures include calls about all aspects of the repair and maintenance service provided by MHS, ranging from missed or late appointments and duration of work, to vehicle parking and debris left on site.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints were received by Modern Housing Solutions on the maintenance of service accommodation in (a) Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency, (b) the Highlands and (c) Scotland in each month in 2009 to date. [304651]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Housing Prime Contract with Modern Housing Solutions covers England and Wales only. Service family accommodation (SFA) in Scotland is repaired and maintained by Turner Estate Solutions, the regional prime contractor for Scotland, who repair and maintain some 3,000 SFA properties in Scotland.

It is not possible to provide information in the format requested, however, the total number of complaints received about the repair and maintenance service in Scotland for 2009 is provided in the following table.

| | Number of complaints |
|---|---|
| January | 9 |
| February | 9 |
| March | 7 |
| April | 11 |
| May | 8 |
| June | 2 |
| July | 2 |
| August | 1 |
| September | 6 |
| October | 3 |

Armed Forces: Pensions

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what pension is payable to a soldier who retires after 15 years in the British Army on 30 April 1997 as a sergeant in a (a) Gurkha regiment and (b) regiment recruited in the UK. [304704]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 29 June 2009, Official Report, column 43W.

Armed Forces: Telephone Services

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many complaints have been received in the last 12 months about the effectiveness of the emergency contact numbers provided for the families of serving personnel. [304671]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The MOD does not maintain records on the number of complaints made on the effectiveness of the emergency contact numbers provided for service families. However, all calls made on these numbers are recorded.

Climate and Energy Security Envoy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the objectives are of his Climate and Energy Security Envoy. [304475]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The objectives for the joint MOD/FCO climate and energy security envoy are:

To broaden and deepen the debate on the security implications of climate change in key countries;

To ensure increased understanding of climate change risks within the security and defence communities and share best practice;

To address the consequences of climate change for regional and global stability, including the benefits for the military in reducing its own carbon footprint;

To help develop a comprehensive policy approach for climate security across the UK Government.

Cyprus

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the environmental policy for bird protection on his Department's land in Cyprus; [304189]

(2) what account his Department's policy on the trapping of wild birds on its land in Cyprus takes of the provisions of the EU environmental legislation; [304191]

(3) what legislative provisions of the EU Birds Directive apply to the Sovereign Base Areas (SBAs) in Cyprus; and what steps are being taken to reduce levels of trapping and killing of wild birds in the SBAs. [304467]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The provisions of the EU environmental legislation on the trapping of wild birds, contained in the EU Birds Directive, have been replicated within the Sovereign Base Areas through the enactment of the Game and Wild Birds Ordinance of 2008.

The Sovereign Base Area Administration (SBAA) has taken a policy decision to adopt all relevant EU legislation relating to the protection of the environment. The SBAA is also committed to meeting the obligations arising from the Bern Convention on the Conservation of European Wildlife and Natural Habitats, and will introduce Special Areas of Conservation (SAC) next year.

The Sovereign Base Areas Police has mounted 64 operations and committed in excess of 3,900 hours this year combating illegal trapping. This has resulted in 56 arrests. The Sovereign Base Areas Administration works closely with the Game Fund of the Republic of Cyprus and NGOs such as Birdlife Cyprus to exchange information and combine our efforts to tackle this activity.

Education also plays a big part in the process, through school and community liaison visits, and particularly through our Environmental Centre at Akrotiri which receives in the region of 10,000 visitors per year, approximately 5,000 of whom are Cypriot school children.

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of trends in the level of bird trapping through (a) liming and (b) mist netting on his Department's land in Cyprus in the last five years. [304189]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The following tables provides the number of offences detected by the sovereign base areas police in each of the sovereign base areas over the past five years.

Eastern sovereign base area

| | 1 April 2009 to 31 March 2010 | 1 April 2008 to 31 March 2009 | 1 April 2007 to 31 March 2008 | 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007 | 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2006 |

DA Notices

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what criteria his Department applies in determining when to issue a D notice regarding troop movements; and if he will make a statement. [304550]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Defence Advisory (DA) Notice System provides guidance to the UK Media on the public disclosure of sensitive national security information. It is an entirely voluntary system, is not supported by any form of sanction, and the advice offered under it can be accepted or rejected in whole or in part. The five standing DA Notices define the limits of the System. DA Notice No 1—which deals with military operations, plans and capabilities—sets out the criteria applied to the public disclosure of information about troop movements. Specifically, it asks that DA Notice advice should be sought before publishing or broadcasting information about the:

> 'operational movements of .... individual units or formations (as distinct from routine movements unconnected with operations)'.

It is for the DA Notice Secretary to provide this advice by applying the general guidance given in the DA Notices to specific public disclosure cases. In doing so, he seeks expert advice when necessary from appropriate staffs and takes into account relevant information already widely available in the public domain.

Defence: Procurement

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Mk7 helmets (a) have been ordered, (b) have been delivered to theatre and (c) are planned to be delivered to theatre; and over what period the latter are planned to be delivered. [304673]

Mr. Quentin Davies: 15,000 Mk7 helmets have been ordered, of which 5,000 have been delivered to theatre. A further 7,000 will be delivered to theatre early next year. Defence Clothing is seeking to contract for more Mk7 helmets to meet requirements over and above the 3,000 remaining from the original contract.

Because helmets are a personnel issue item, theatre stocks will be continually replenished as service personnel return to the UK with their helmet at the end of their tour of duty.

Departmental Contracts

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what contracts his Department has entered into since January 2009; and what the (a) name of the contracting company, (b) monetary value, (c) purpose and (d) date of each was. [303350]

Mr. Quentin Davies [holding answer 1 December 2009]: I will place the requested information in the Library of the House.

Departmental Cost Effectiveness

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what efficiency savings projects (a) his Department and (b) its agencies put in place under the Operational Efficiency Programme; on what date each such project was initiated; how much each such project was expected to contribute to departmental savings; how much had been saved through each such project on the latest date for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [300926]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The MOD is firmly committed to delivering the recommendations of the Operational Efficiency Programme (OEP). My hon. Friend the Minister for Veterans, my hon. Friend the Member for North Durham, (Mr. Jones) has been appointed Value for Money (VFM) Minister and is supported by a board composed of the Minister for Strategic Defence Acquisition Reform, the Vice Chief of the Defence Staff, the second permanent under-secretary and the directors general finance and strategy, ensuring senior ownership for driving efficiency throughout the Department. A single programme has been established to deliver the VFM agenda.

MOD's response to the OEP was a £450 million increase in its comprehensive spending review 2007 (CSR07) VFM target to a total of £3.15 billion VFM savings by 2010-11. There is no separate OEP target in this spending review period beyond this contribution to the CSR07 £35 billion cross government target.

By the end of FY 2008-09 MOD had achieved around £650 million VFM savings. An indicative breakdown of the initiatives that make up this figure, along with their anticipated savings by FY 2010-11 are described as follows.

| Initiative | VFM savings at end of FY 2008-09 | Approximate VFM savings expected by FY 2010-11 |
|---|---|---|
| Improvements in corporate enabling services | 200 | 390 |
| Improvements in the way we support defence equipment | 70 | 253 |
| Driving down costs in the nuclear warhead capability sustainment programme | 60 | 178 |
| Savings following a review of Headquarters British Forces Cyprus | 3.3 | 4.3 |
| Drawdown in both military and civilian personnel in Northern Ireland | 114 | 114 |
| Reprioritisation of research programmes | 25 | 25 |
| Over-delivery from SR04 (agreed with HMT) | 267 | 267 |

Additional VFM savings are being delivered through the Department's planning round, which includes discrete efficiency initiatives and allocative savings, where the Department has chosen to reprioritise its expenditure to ensure its highest priority, delivering success on operations, is supported most effectively. Further progress will be reported in our autumn performance report, which will report VFM savings of around £1.2 billion in the first 18 months of the CSR07 period. We are therefore broadly on track for delivery of the £3.15 billion target.

Work is also in progress to deliver the specific OEP recommendations, which will contribute to the £9 billion which will be delivered across Government in the next spending review. Progress to date includes:

An annual benchmarking of Defence (including trading funds) finance, human resource, estates, information technology, and back office costs;

A review of several MOD assets (the Met Office, the Oil and Pipelines Agency, the Defence Storage and Distribution Agency); and Exploration of collaborative procurement opportunities.

A number of VFM studies to explore further savings within the Department.

Departmental Domestic Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions he visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [303486]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I have visited Scotland four times, Wales twice and Northern Ireland twice in an official capacity in the last 12 months.

Departmental Drinking Water

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 30 November 2009, Official Report, column 415W, on departmental drinking water, what the reasons are for the increase in expenditure against the contract between November 2008 and October 2009. [304519]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The increase towards the end of the 12 month period was primarily due to support to Operation Panther's Claw, including provision to members of the Afghan national army and US forces.

Departmental Security

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many security passes his Department has issued to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months. [303949]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The requested information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Taxis

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many miles (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department travelled by taxi in the course of their official duties in each year since 1997; and at what cost to the public purse in each such year. [302713]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Taxis are used where it is the most cost-effective and economical way of conducting business travel. The mileage accrued when travelling is not recorded. Due to the way that expense data are recorded, the Department is not able to identify expense claims for taxi travel. This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Travel

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date he last travelled by (a) bus and (b) taxi in the course of his official duties. [302737]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I have not travelled by bus in the course of my official duties, and last travelled by taxi on 30 July 2009.

Devonport Dockyard

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department paid to Rolls Royce for work on the refuelling capabilities of Devonport dockyard; and how much his Department originally budgeted for the project. [304778]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The nuclear refuelling facilities at Devonport Royal Dockyard were upgraded as part of the D154 contract, to support Vanguard class submarine refits. Rolls-Royce was a subcontractor for this work; the prime contractor was Devonport Management Ltd.

The original budget for the Rolls-Royce element of this work, when it first started in 1996-97, was £20.4 million. By the completion of the work in 2002, £126 million had been paid to Rolls-Royce.

Ex-servicemen: Radiation Exposure

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what legal costs have been incurred by his Department in the case of the nuclear test veterans (a) since the start of the litigation, (b) since 6 February 2009, (c) in relation to the appeal alone and (d) for barristers' fees. [302180]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The legal costs incurred in the case of the nuclear test veterans are as follows:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| (a) Total since the start of the litigation | 2,661,225.10 |
| (b) Since 6 February 2009 | 669,967.34 |
| (c) In relation to the appeal alone | 189,338.23 |
| (d) Barristers' fees alone | 1,555,389.50 |

These are the actual costs as invoiced to 27 November 2009.

In addition, the High Court ordered the Department to make an interim payment of £7,500,000 on account of costs to the claimants' legal representatives Rosenblatt Solicitors although the Ministry of Defence was given leave to appeal the High Court judgment.

At the conclusion of his judgment Mr. Justice Foskett said:

> "The Government is, of course, pledged to settle legal cases by alternative dispute resolution in all suitable cases whenever the other party agrees to it. In my view, this is such a case."

The Ministry of Defence has adhered to the judge's wish but, unfortunately, I cannot reveal the contents of the negotiations because this would breach the confidentiality agreement between the parties. However, I can say that genuine negotiations have taken place between the parties respective counsels and a settlement proposal was made by the Ministry of Defence, although I cannot disclose the amount. To date, no response has been received from the claimants' counsel or the law firm representing them (Rosenblatts). This is obviously disappointing, but we remain open to meaningful discussions. In the meantime, we have been left with no option but to proceed with our appeal for which the High Court judge has given us permission. I understand the appeal is listed for a three week window starting on 4 May 2010.

HMS Endurance

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects HMS Endurance to be (a) repaired and (b) back on operations. [304360]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for New Forest, East (Dr. Lewis) on 2 November 2009, Official Report, column 648W.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many commercial (a) aeroplanes and (b) ships were hired to assist with the withdrawal of British forces from Iraq; and at what cost. [304364]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: A total of 62 commercial passenger aircraft flights were chartered to assist the withdrawal of British forces from Iraq between 19 April and 31 August 2009. The cost of these flights was £6.11 million.

A total of 29 commercial freight aircraft flights were chartered to assist the withdrawal of British forces from Iraq between 19 April and 31 August 2009. The cost of these flights was £1.77 million.

No ships were hired specifically to assist with the withdrawal of British forces from Iraq and there were no costs in this area. The majority of equipment, vehicles and stores were withdrawn from Iraq on five sailings using the ro-ro ships operated by Foreland on behalf of the MOD under the 25-year private finance initiative arrangement entered into in 1999. A limited quantity of equipment was transported back to the United Kingdom in containers under normal commercial arrangements with contractors using commercially scheduled sailings.

Low Flying

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his policy is on the low flying of military aircraft over populated areas. [304914]

Mr. Kevan Jones: To minimise disturbance pilots are instructed to avoid large centres of population, towns with over 10,000 inhabitants. Fixed wing aircraft are to avoid overflight of these areas below 2,000 feet minimum separation distance (MSD). Light aircraft and rotary wing are to avoid overflights below 1,000 feet MSD. Aircraft conducting authorised flypasts may overfly the area at 1,000 feet MSD if approved by MOD.

Military Bases: Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he has taken to develop smart power grids for UK military bases. [304478]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Ministry of Defence is in the process of better understanding its energy consumption through the introduction of smart metering on electricity, gas and oil supplies and these may then have the potential to link into smart grids as they develop across the UK.

The Department has, however, not taken any steps so far to introduce smart power grids on its estate but will be considering "Smarter Grids: The Opportunity" published by the Department of Energy and Climate Change on 2 December 2009.

NATO Response Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what units form the British commitment to the NATO Response Force in 2010. [304159]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: From January to June 2010, the UK's commitment to the NATO Response Force will be an Anti-Submarine Warfare Escort Ship and supporting Logistic Ship; a Deployable Air Operating Base, with six Fighter Bomber Aircraft, six Air Defence Aircraft, two Airborne Early Warning Aircraft, two Air to Air Refuelling Aircraft, and a Nuclear Biological and Chemical Response Company.

From July to December 2010, the UK will contribute an Anti-Submarine Warfare Escort Ship and a Mine Hunter Ship; six Air Defence Aircraft, six Fighter Bomber Aircraft, two Airborne Early Warning Aircraft, and two Air to Air Refuelling Aircraft.

Navy: Discharges

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people (a) requested and (b) were granted a discharge from the Royal Navy on grounds of ill health in the last five years. [304193]

Mr. Kevan Jones: During the period November 2004 to November 2009 the Naval Service Medical Board of Survey and Naval Service Medical Employability Board considered the cases of 835 Royal Navy personnel who expressed a desire to be invalided from the service. Of this number 766 were discharged on medical grounds.

Nigeria and Sierra Leone: Peacekeeping Operations

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what expenditure his Department has incurred on engaging private security companies and private military companies for work undertaken in (a) Nigeria and (b) Sierra Leone in each of the last three years. [304645]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: None.

Territorial Army

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answers of 7 July 2009, Official Report, columns 662-3W, on the Territorial Army, when he expects to place the information in the Library. [304322]

Bill Rammell: I have written to the hon. Member. A copy of this information was placed in the Library of the House on 12 November 2009.

Trident Missiles

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in which country the gas reservoirs for Trident nuclear warheads are filled with tritium; and if he will make a statement. [303891]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 3 December 2009]: This information is being withheld for the purpose of safeguarding national security.

USA: Defence

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether there have been any changes to the range of nuclear weapons-related information and material which can be exchanged between the US and the UK since 2003. [303889]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the reply my predecessor gave on 2 March 2009, Official Report, column 1370W to the hon. Member for North Devon (Nick Harvey), on a related question which confirms there has been no extension to the scope of the Mutual Defence Agreement under which nuclear-related information and material can be exchanged between the US and the UK.

Anti-Semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent steps he has taken to reduce the incidence of anti-Semitism in (a) football and (b) other sports; what recent representations he has received on that matter; what recent meetings he has had with the Football Association on that matter; and if he will make a statement. [303921]

Mr. Sutcliffe: While I have received no recent representations or held any recent meetings on the issue of tackling anti-Semitism in sport, I remain fully committed to a sporting landscape free from all forms of discrimination. To this end:

(a) Football treats anti-Semitism as it does all forms of racism as an offence under the ground regulations, giving the clubs and Police powers to deal with it should it occur. The Football Association's (FA) close working relationship with the clubs, the Police and the Crown Prosecution Service also ensures that all incidents of discrimination in football are brought to justice. In addition, The FA's anti-Semitism and Islamophobia working group, chaired by my hon. Friend the Member for Bassetlaw (John Mann) and established in July 2008, continues to explore the issues and make recommendations to the FA Board. With the Premier League and the Professional Footballer's Association, the FA also provides funding for the "Kick It Out" campaign, which tackles anti-Semitism and other forms of discrimination.

(b) Other sports that receive Government funding through Sport England and UK Sport do so on the basis of their compliance with the Equality Standard for Sport. The standard forbids discrimination on the grounds of gender, marital status, race, colour, religion, disability, age, occupation, religion or political opinion other than that in accordance with legal justification.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what payments Sport England has made to (a) Blue Rubicon, (b) Edelman and (c) FD-LLM and FD-Public Affairs in the last 12 months for which figures are available; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contracts under which such payments have been made. [305143]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information you have requested is not held centrally and is a matter for Sport England.

Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Simon: Although we continue to make good progress on the development of these spaces in liaison with our local authority and music industry partners, and expect to make further offers of grant shortly, for the moment the position remains as set out in the answer of 21 July 2009.

Olympic Games 2012: East Sussex

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the likely legacy from the London 2012 Olympics for participation in sport in East Sussex (a) in general and (b) by children under 14 years old. [304280]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Since the publication of the Government's Legacy Action Plan in June 2008, there has been significant progress on delivering our aims for a lasting community sport legacy from the 2012 Olympics and Paralympics across the UK.

We are investing £480 million, through Sport England's Whole Sport Plan process, in the National Governing Bodies (NGBs) of sport during the run up to the games, in order to drive up participation so 1 million more people are doing more sport. The PE and Sport Strategy for Young People sets out how the £780 million of DCMS and DCSF investment is targeted at getting more children to do five hours of sport per week. The huge range of programmes under these strategies will help to ensure that the sporting system in 2012 and beyond is in the best shape possible.

In addition, regional partners are capitalising on national programmes of delivery like Change 4 Life, Living Well and Free Swimming to encourage innovation through partnerships at all levels to create a real and lasting legacy from the 2012 games for East Sussex.

Portland PR: Public Relations

Sports: East of England

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been allocated for expenditure per resident on sports and leisure facilities in each (a) district and (b) unitary local authority area in the Eastern region in 2009-10. [303186]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested is not held centrally in the manner requested; to provide it would incur disproportionate costs.

Sports: Finance

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on sport in (a) Yorkshire and the Humber and (b) City of York local authority area in each year since 1996-97. [304511]

(a) Sport England's figures on this breakdown go back to 2002-03 and the following table shows the amount spent on sport in Yorkshire and the Humber in each year since then. This does not include the significant investment that will benefit Yorkshire and the Humber, and the city of York, through the £480 million worth of National Governing Body investment through Sport England's Whole Sport Plans.

Yorkshire Forward has estimated that the following amounts were spent in supporting tourism in the region from 2003:

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 1 December 2009, Official Report, column 596W, on the UK School Games, how much was spent on work with each ambassador. [304819]

JUSTICE

Ashwell Prison

Mr. Ronnie Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on what date he expects the report on the riot at HM Prison Ashwell to be published. [302182]

Mr. Straw: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) has drawn up an action plan in response to each of the recommendations in the report, all of which were accepted by Ministers. I placed a copy of the action plan in the Libraries of the House in response to a question from the hon. Member for Harborough (Mr. Garnier) on 11 November 2009, Official Report, column 462W.

It would not be appropriate to publish a restricted report, containing sensitive information and while a police investigation is continuing. Key findings were, however that the incident could not have been foreseen; that the prisoners held at Ashwell were appropriate for the prison; and that staffing levels were also appropriate.

A strategic review of Ashwell is well underway, and I will report to the House once further decisions have been taken.

C-NOMIS Database Project

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether any officials of his Department who were working on the C-NOMIS database project up until October 2008 have since moved to private organisations who have won contracts from his Department in respect of the C-NOMIS project. [300958]

Maria Eagle: A senior manager who had worked on the C-NOMIS project is on secondment to an incumbent supplier, which has had a contract change notice awarded. In addition, a senior manager employed by the probation service and who was seconded to the National Offender Management Service to work on the NOMIS Programme has, following retirement, taken up employment with an incumbent supplier, which has had a contract change notice awarded.

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he is taking against officials in his Department for not following Government procurement procedures in respect of the C-NOMIS database project. [300957]

Maria Eagle: Officials working on the C-NOMIS project followed Government procurement procedures.

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate the C-NOMIS database project board had made of the cost of the project in the period up to October 2007. [300959]

Maria Eagle: A C-NOMIS Project finance manager was recruited in late 2006. He undertook a comprehensive review and informed the C-NOMIS project board that the total cost of completion (one off investment and ongoing live support until 2020) was estimated to be £690 million. The Minister, David Hanson MP, was briefed accordingly and he stopped the project in 2007.

The National Offender Management Service has since confirmed that the cost of the C-NOMIS project from inception to December 2007 was £160.7 million (which excludes depreciation and cost of capital). The majority of this work has been re-used in the Prison-NOMIS project, which now forms part of the NOMIS Programme.

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will initiate an inquiry into the application of Government procurement procedures in respect of the C-NOMIS database project. [300785]

Maria Eagle: Procurement of the C-NOMIS project was carried out in accordance with the public services contracts regulations.

Convictions : Personnel

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many employees of his Department and its agencies were convicted of a criminal offence of each type in each year since 1997. [302188]

Mr. Straw: As the Ministry's disciplinary processes, are devolved to a local level, there is no central recording of the total number of criminal convictions incurred by staff. To determine the number of employees convicted of any criminal offences would require contacting all work areas within the Ministry. To do so would incur disproportionate cost.

However, the Ministry's conduct policy requires all employees to notify their managers about a criminal conviction and, depending on the circumstances of the case, disciplinary proceedings may be instigated at a local level. Where such a procedure is invoked it is possible to identify employees with convictions. The Ministry collates this information centrally but the reasons are not held in every case.

For the period 1997 to 2007 (up to the date of the establishment of the Ministry), the number of disciplinary cases related to convictions can be sourced only at a disproportionate cost. Since 2007, the number of staff in the Ministry's staff subject to formal disciplinary action following receipt of a criminal conviction/police caution is detailed in the following table:

| Period | Number of cases |
|---|---|
| 9 May 2007 to 8 May 2008 | 59 |
| 9 May 2008 to 8 May 2009 | 36 |
| 9 May 2009 to 31 October 2009 | 14 |
| Total | 109 |

The total number of people employed by the Ministry of Justice varies from day-to-day. The cases above are from an employment population of circ. 79,840 in 2007-08 and 80,750 in 2008-09. The staff numbers used are published headcount figures on 31 March 2009 held on the Office for National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk

Courts: Domestic Violence

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much funding the Government has allocated to specialist domestic violence courts in England and Wales in each year since 2006. [303971]

Maria Eagle: Specialist domestic violence courts are based on a partnership approach to domestic violence by the police, prosecutors, court staff, the probation service and specialist support services for victims. They therefore involve the approach of the wider criminal justice system, rather than simply a court building or jurisdiction. Agencies work together to identify, track and risk assess domestic violence cases, support victims of domestic violence and share information better so that more offenders are brought to justice.

The funding allocated by the Government to specialist domestic violence courts is for two components of the system; Independent Domestic Advisers and Multi Agency Risk Assessment Conferences. In 2006-07, the Government allocated £3 million. In 2007-08 this figure rose to £4.85 million. In 2008-09 and 2009-10 £6.1 million per year has been allocated for the continued roll-out of Independent Domestic Violence Advisers and Multi Agency Risk Assessment Conferences, some of which are not linked to specialist domestic violence courts.

All other components of the model are either met through existing services or by adapting existing work practices.

Dangerous Driving: Invalid Vehicles

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what programmes his Department has for people who have committed an offence of riding mobility scooters in a dangerous way. [302133]

Mr. Khan: I have been asked to reply.

There is no offence in law of riding a mobility scooter in a dangerous manner, therefore there are no mandatory driver rehabilitation programmes in place.

Departmental Domestic Visits

A copy of this report was placed in the House of Commons Library. A copy can be obtained using the following link:

Departmental Travel

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on what date he last travelled by (a) bus and (b) taxi in the course of his official duties. [302724]

Mr. Straw: The information is as follows:

(b) 17 September 2009.

Departmental Working Hours

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of staff of his Department, its executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies work flexibly or part-time; and what his Department's policy is on making jobs available on a job-share or flexible basis. [301329]

Mr. Straw: In the Ministry of Justice (MOJ), the number and proportion of staff who work part-time is shown in the following table.

Table of Part-timers and Full-timers in the Ministry of Justice

| | Part Time (PT) | PT (%) | Full Time (FT) | FT (%) | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Total | 11,259 | 14.1 | 68,604 | 85.9 | 79,863 |

Note:

ONS Data as at 30m June 2009

These figures include civil servants employed in the MOJ, its executive agencies and Wales Office plus MOJ staff on secondment to Scotland Office all of which are recorded on the central HR databases.

Managers consider all requests to work flexibly. Many of these requests for flexible working may be made informally and therefore will not be formally recorded. Information concerning how many staff participate in such arrangements is not collated centrally and could not be provided without incurring disproportionate cost.

In the MOJ all jobs are available on a job-share or flexible basis, unless there is a business reason why this cannot be granted.

Driving Offences

Nadine Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people in (a) Mid Bedfordshire constituency, (b) the East of England and (c) England were disqualified from driving as a result of (i) drink driving, (ii) speeding and (iii) dangerous or reckless driving in each of the last 10 years. [302925]

Claire Ward: The number of disqualifications imposed at all courts in the Bedfordshire police force area, the East of England Government office region and England for driving after consuming alcohol or taking drugs, speed limit offences, dangerous and careless driving offences, is given in Tables 1, 2 and 3 from 1998 to 2007 (latest available).

There is no specific offence of reckless driving, thus information included in the table is for offences of dangerous and careless driving.

Court proceedings data are not available at parliamentary constituency level.

Data for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

[1] It is known that for some police force areas, the reporting of court proceedings, in particular those relating to summary motoring offences, may be less than complete.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Driving Offences: Norwich

Chloe Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many fines for speeding offences have been (a) issued to and (b) paid by residents of Norwich North constituency in each year since 1997. [301700]

Maria Eagle: Information held by the Ministry of Justice, on the Court Proceedings Database, on the number of court imposed fines issued for speed limit offences in the Norfolk police force area, from 1997 to 2007 (latest available) is given in table 1. Data held centrally are not available at parliamentary constituency level.

Court proceedings data for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

In addition to court fines, information provided by the Home Office on the number of fixed penalty notices (FPNs) issued by the police for speeding offences, in the Norfolk police force area, for the period 1997 to 2007 (latest available) are provided in table 2.

It is not possible to separately identify FPNs issued to residents of Norwich, North constituency as the data reported to the Home Office are broken down by police force area only. Additionally, information on payment rates of fixed penalty notices for speeding offences are not available as the data reported to the Home Office are not broken down by offence. Data for 2008 are scheduled to be published in March 2010.

Her Majesty's Courts Service advise that it is not possible, from revenue received, to separately identify fines registered by the courts for speeding offences.

Drugs: Crime

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have been convicted of offences of drug (a) possession and (b) dealing in (i) Reading East constituency and (ii) Berkshire in the last 12 months. [303328]

Claire Ward: Information showing the number of persons found guilty at all courts for drug possession and dealing in the Thames Valley police force area in 2007 (latest available) is shown in the following table.

Data are not available at constituency or county level; police force area data are given in lieu.

Data for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

Numb[illegible] guilty at all courts for the possession and dealing of [illegible] Thames Valley police force area, 2007[1,2]

|---|---|
| Having possession of a controlled drug | 1,310 |
| Having possession of a controlled drug with intent to supply | 188 |
| Supplying or offering to supply a controlled drug | 65 |

[1] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

East Sutton Park Prison: Prisoner Escapes

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what discussions he has had with the Prison Service on the transfer and subsequent absconsion of Jane Andrews from HMP East Sutton; and if he will make a statement. [303207]

Mr. Straw: Ministers would not be routinely informed about the transfer of a prisoner from one open prison to another, and I was not informed in this case. I was informed that this prisoner had absconded, my office was regularly briefed during the time she was unlawfully at large, and I was informed when she was apprehended by Kent Police. An investigation into her abscond is under way. The interim report should be completed by 3 December.

Females: Prisoners

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what progress he has made in the implementation of the recommendations of the Corston Report on women with particular vulnerabilities in the criminal justice system. [300952]

Maria Eagle: The Government are committed to diverting vulnerable women, who are not serious or dangerous offenders, from custody. Our strategy is to strengthen services in the community, tackling the complex needs of women who offend and offering viable alternatives to custody; and to ensure that those who do go to prison are treated in ways that are informed by their needs and are gender sensitive.

In line with this approach this year we have awarded 31 grants to third sector organisations to develop additional services in the community for women offenders or those at risk of offending. The Together Women Projects will also continue to meet the multiple and complex needs of women in the community.

Along side this the National Offender Management Service implemented new full search arrangements that take a risk-based approach reducing the frequency of full searches. In addition, gender specific standards which ensure an appropriate response to women prisoners were implemented in all women's prisons this year.

A full progress update will be made to Parliament this December.

Fixed Penalties: Royal Parks

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 10 March 2009, Official Report, column 241W, on fixed penalties: Richmond Park, what progress has been made on determining a timeframe for implementing regulations to establish fixed penalties for nuisance offences in Richmond Park. [301017]

Claire Ward: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 10 March 2009, Official Report, column 243W, by the Minister of State, my hon. Friend the Member for Liverpool, Garston (Maria Eagle). The Government have decided not to proceed with proposals to add the regulations which prohibit littering, dog-fouling and illegal cycling in the Royal Parks, to the Penalty Notice for Disorder (PND) scheme. Given the range of other disposals available to the police and courts, we have decided not to extend the scheme to any new offences at this time. On 9 November, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor (Jack Straw) announced a review of the use of out of court disposals including PNDs to look at whether they were being used inappropriately by the police and Crown Prosecution Service.

Hollesley Bay Prison

Mr. Gummer: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) whether any prisoners convicted of murder are being held at HMP Hollesley Bay; [302251]

(2) whether any prisoners serving life sentences are being held at HMP Hollesley Bay; [302252]

(3) what categories of prisoner are held at HMP Hollesley Bay. [302253]

Maria Eagle: There are currently 17 prisoners convicted of murder at HMP Hollesley Bay.

There are currently 34 prisoners serving indeterminate sentences. Of these 26 have life sentences, seven have imprisonment for public protection (IPP) sentences and one has a detention for public protection (DPP) sentence.

All prisoners at Hollesley Bay are category D.

Transfer of any prisoner to open conditions will only take place if continued detention in closed conditions is no longer necessary for the protection of the public. Open conditions allow prisoners to find work, re-establish family ties and reintegrate into the community. All these are essential components for successful resettlement and an important factor in protecting the public.

Homicide: Prisoners Release

Mr. Wallace: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people convicted of murder and subsequently released on compassionate grounds since 1993 have died (a) within three months of and (b) more than three months after their date of release. [303545]

Maria Eagle: We do not hold this information centrally. To provide this information would require a manual examination of paper records and inquiries with agencies responsible for the prisoners' health and welfare following their release at a disproportionate cost.

Immobilisation of Vehicles

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department and its predecessor have paid in vehicle clamping charges incurred on (a) privately-owned and (b) publicly-owned land in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [302743]

Mr. Straw: The policy of the Ministry is that the vehicle user is personally responsible for any fines incurred while the vehicle is allocated to them, including associated administration charges where applicable. This includes fines incurred by other users to whom the user has authorised use of the car i.e. additional drivers. The Ministry has not therefore incurred any expenditure on vehicle clamping charges.

Legal Services Commission: Fees and Charges

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what interest rate the Legal Services Commission is allowed to charge when taking possession of houses; and if he will make a statement. [303552]

Maria Eagle: Members of the public who receive civil legal aid for a money or property dispute, and who succeed in obtaining a financial benefit from their case, are required to repay their legal aid costs, so resources can be recycled to help others. If someone is unable to repay their legal aid costs immediately, these can be postponed as a statutory charge on their property. Where charges are postponed against property, persons are not obliged to make any repayments, or to repay the charge in full until their financial circumstances change, or the property changes hands. The Legal Services Commission will not force anyone to sell their home. However, in order to encourage clients to repay their postponed charge where they can, the charge accrues simple interest, the rate for which is set out in regulations. The current rate is 8 per cent. A written ministerial statement was made concerning this issue by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State for Justice (Mr. Wills) on 8 June 2009, Official Report, columns 23-24WS.

Lord Chancellor's Advisory Council

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice who the members are of the Lord Chancellor's Advisory Council; and what the relevant qualifications are of each of them. [304149]

Mr. Wills: As of December 2009, the members of the Lord Chancellor's Advisory Council on National Records and Archives are:

Chairman: Lord Neuberger of Abbotsbury, Master of the Rolls

Ms Else Churchill, Genealogy Officer of the Society of Genealogists

Professor Harry Dickinson, Emeritus Professor of British History, University of Edinburgh

Dr. Jeevan Deol, Affiliated Research Associate, Faculty of Asian and Middle Eastern Studies, University of Cambridge

Dr. Jennifer Haynes, Archives and Manuscripts Manager at the Wellcome Library

Mr. Graeme Herd, Head of Information Technology at Slough Borough Council

Professor Arthur Lucas CBE, Emeritus Professor of Science Curriculum Studies at, and was formerly Principal of, Kings College London

Ms Catherine Maxwell Stuart, Owner of the private family and estate archive at Traquair House, Innerleithen, Peeblesshire

Professor Heidi Mirza, Professor of Equalities Studies in Education at the Institute of Education, University of London

Professor Michael Moss, Professor of Archival Studies at the University of Glasgow

Right hon. the Lord Roper, Formerly Chief Whip for the Liberal Democrats in the House of Lords

Ms Janet Smith, County Archivist of Hampshire

Mr. Ian Soutar, Formerly British Ambassador to Bulgaria and Ambassador to the Conference on Disarmament, Geneva

Ms Stephanie Williams, Author, Journalist and user of archives

National Offender Management Service: Information and Communications Technology

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment his Department has made of the adequacy of arrangements for co-ordination of information and technology systems available to the Probation Service. [301253]

Maria Eagle: The assessment of Information Technology (IT) systems available to the National Probation Service (NPS) is co-ordinated by the NPS ICT Board, supported by the ICT Business team who consider the systems available.

Senior probation managers are regularly consulted about the adequacy of current IT systems as part of a wider consultative process intended to support business planning.

IT system development takes place with the authority of the NPS ICT Board once a project has been commissioned, there is a requirement to submit a monthly report, detailing progress to date, the current financial position and highlighting any significant risks or issues facing the project.

A recent example of arrangements for co-ordinated delivery of an IT system within NPS is the NOMIS Programme, which encompasses five projects, three of which will directly benefit the probation service, as follows:

Probation Case Management System (PCMS) will replace a variety of probation systems with a centralised version based on a redevelopment of the existing Delius system;

A data sharing system will be developed and implemented, enabling staff in both probation and in the prisons, to share core information required to support Offender Management; and

The two existing Offender Assessment Systems (OASys), used by prisons and probation, will be replaced by an improved, centralised system that will also have an interface with PCMS.

Offenders: Mentally Ill

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether training is provided to prison service staff on working with mentally ill female offenders. [302327]

Maria Eagle: Training for newly recruited prison officers provides officers with an understanding of mental health disorders and how to respond effectively to all prisoners (including women) experiencing mental ill health. Further training is available to prison officers throughout their career depending on their role within their prison. Training makes specific reference to issues affecting women, where appropriate. All training provides prison officers with the knowledge to identify offenders with mental health issues and refer to appropriate health care professionals.

Prison Service Order 4800, published in April 2008 for implementation in all women's prisons in 2009, provides a set of gender specific standards for women prisoners. The standards draw from existing best practice and cover all areas of regime provision including reception into custody, day to day living in the prison environment and planning for resettlement, as well as discrete groups of women. The main thrust of the standards is about being sensitive and responsive to gender specific needs and addressing them appropriately, in particular through the positive engagement of staff. It is largely a case of good staff training and support, and the introduction of the Women's Awareness Staff Programme training has therefore been key.

Prison Accommodation

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of cells in each prison in England and Wales were unoccupied on the most recent dates for which figures are available; and for what reasons such cells are not in use. [301249]

[1] Identifies those prisons whose predominant function is to hold juveniles or which hold juveniles
[2] Identifies those prisons whose predominant function is to hold female prisoners

The total number of unoccupied places according to the table is approximately 3,000. This represents the difference between the total operational capacity of the estate and the population (at the end of October). In some cases, prisoners will be held in accommodation that does not feature in a prison's operational capacity (for example, are temporarily located in a segregation unit or in the health care centre, units that do not usually feature in operational capacity) or will be on temporary licence. However, these prisoners would ordinarily be accommodated in the general accommodation of the prison and therefore it is appropriate to include them in the calculation. Reductions in operational capacity because accommodation is not available for current use (for example, because of sustained damage, as in the case of HMP Ashwell, or substantial refurbishment programmes) have been discounted.

The level of unoccupied cells does not reflect the level of free, useable capacity in the estate. Places might be temporarily out of use, for example, where a cell has been damaged or is under going short-term maintenance. Some places cannot be used because they are in double cells required for single occupancy following a safety risk assessment. More generally, the demographics of the population mean that it is impossible in practice to make use of every operationally viable place. This is reflected in the operating margin: an allowance of 2,000 places that is removed from total operational capacity figures to provide the estate's useable operational capacity. The above table suggests that there is useable headroom of around 1,000 places in the estate, which is the current difference between useable operational capacity and the population.

Prison Accommodation: Sussex

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoner places are available at each prison serving the Sussex area when at full capacity; and how many prisoners were serving sentences at each such prison on the latest date for which figures are available. [304758]

Mr. Straw: The following table gives the numbers of prisoners serving sentences in the two prison establishments in Sussex at the end of June 2009, the latest date for which figures are available:

| | Establishment | |
|---|---|---|
| | Ford | Lewes |
| Operational capacity | 557 | 723 |
| Sentenced population | 529 | 451 |
| Held on remand and civil offenders | 0 | 213 |
| Total held in custody | 529 | 664 |
| Places available | 28 | 59 |

The operational capacity of a prison is the total number of prisoners that an establishment can hold taking into account control, security and the proper operation of the planned regime. It is determined by area managers on the basis of operational judgment and experience.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prison Visitors: Drugs

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many visitors to prisons were found to be in possession of illegal drugs in 2007-08; how many such visitors were referred to the police; and what steps were taken in respect of those not referred to the police. [302260]

Maria Eagle: The data are not available in the format requested.

It is the National Offender Management Service's policy for all prison visitors found in possession of illicit drugs to be referred to the police. As a result of which in 2007-08 the police made 424 arrests of prison visitors the majority of which would have been for drug offences.

Irrespective of the subsequent action taken by the police, prisons will impose visiting bans and/or closed visits on the visitor concerned. The precise measures imposed will be decided locally, on a case-by-case basis dependant on the precise circumstances of the incident. These measures can also be imposed on the basis of suspicion, without the visitor found to be in possession of drugs.

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system. The data are not subject to audit.

Prisoner Escapes

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many category D prisoners have absconded from prison in each of the last five years. [304756]

Maria Eagle: Data are shown in the following table of prisoners who have absconded from open prisons in England and Wales in the last five years broken down by (a) year (b) number of absconds.

Number of absconds from all prisons in England and Wales in each of the last five years

The number of absconds has been falling year on year. Last year was the lowest number of absconds on record.

All prisoners are assessed for suitability to be categorised as category D before allocation to an open prison. Open prisons monitor prisoners' attitude and behaviour for indicators of potential to abscond, however not all incidents of abscond can be predicted.

Following an abscond, the incident is reported to the police. The current rate of arrest and return to custody is 96 per cent.

These figures have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system.

Prisons

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Eastleigh of 27 October 2009, Official Report, column 334W, on prisons: convictions, for what reasons the information requested is not held. [303463]

Maria Eagle: NOMS' central reporting systems do not record this type of information. The only way to obtain this type of information would be to contact all Prison Service establishments, requesting a check of their local records. This would incur disproportionate cost. Details of prosecutions and convictions, moreover, are not directly the responsibility of NOMS.

However, from April 2009, indictable and triable-either-way offences contained in the Offender Management Act have been included in the Home Office Counting Rules for Recorded Crime. Offences recorded by police will be published in next year's annual statistical bulletin, Crime in England and Wales (July 2010).

Prisons: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many instances of alcohol abuse were reported in each prison in England in each of the last five years. [303546]

Maria Eagle: Instances of alcohol use in prisons are treated as a miscellaneous incident and recorded centrally on the Prison Service Incident Reporting System. These incident reports are currently in a format that cannot readily be interrogated electronically. To provide the information requested would involve the manual inspection of more than 100,000 incident records which could only be achieved at disproportionate cost. The National Offender Management Service has in place a strategy to reduce both the supply and the demand for alcohol with a comprehensive range of security measures and searching techniques to detect items of contraband, including alcohol, and prevent smuggling into establishments. It is a criminal offence to convey alcohol into prison and prisoners caught in possession of alcohol within prison will face disciplinary action. Alcohol consumption is a cause of criminality in society and many prisons have programmes in place to assist prisoners to lessen their dependence on alcohol.

Prisons: Drugs

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Eastleigh of 11 November 2009, Official Report, columns 492-4W, on prisons: drugs, how many prisoners have tested positive for drugs on (a) one, (b) two, (c) three and (d) four or more occasions in each prison in 2008-09. [303464]

Maria Eagle: The information is not held centrally. To provide the data would require a detailed investigation into each prison's mandatory drug testing records, which would be at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many body orifice security scanners are (a) installed and (b) in use in each prison. [303547]

Maria Eagle: This year NOMS purchased and delivered at least one BOSS chair to every prison that did not already have one, with the exception of immigration removal centres, where the use of mobile phones is not prohibited. Some chairs have since been moved between prisons to better match local risk.

In a survey of BOSS chair usage between 17 and 25 September, 115 prisons reported that the BOSS chair was in use. Reasons for non-operation included awaiting building work to accommodate the chair, and chairs awaiting repair or return from repairs. The pattern of use will vary over time and it is not possible to say how many BOSS chairs are operational on any given day.

NOMS Headquarters have not mandated how BOSS chairs must be used. As is the case for many searching technologies and techniques, the decision on how to use the BOSS chairs is for individual Governors to make, and will depend on their local circumstances, including their existing local searching strategies. The relevant Prison Service Instruction (PSI) states:

> "The frequency of searches using the BOSS and policies for its use are for local discretion".

Prisons deploy a range of activities and equipment, including hand-held detection wands, as effective alternatives to BOSS chairs.

Mr. Vara: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in which prisons the searching of (a) visitors and (b) staff is not mandatory; and if he will make a statement. [303549]

Maria Eagle: The National Offender Management Service's (NOMS) policy requires that in all prisons, procedures are in place for the searching of prisoners, staff, domestic, official and professional visitors and contractors and that this is set out as part of a written local security strategy agreed with the regional manager.

While the searching of visitors and staff will be carried out in all prisons, the level and frequency of such searching at individual establishments is determined by local security and control needs and this is set out in each prison's local searching strategy.

In the majority of prisons, this will mean a programme of routine searches of both staff and visitors in addition to searches based on suspicion or on receipt of intelligence. In some prisons, particularly some open prisons, a better use of resources may be achieved by carrying out only targeted, intelligence-led or random search programmes.

Reoffenders

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the recidivism rate is for offenders convicted of (a) drug-related crime and (b) all other crimes. [303036]

Claire Ward: Table 1 shows the one year adult reoffending rates for offenders in England and Wales released from custody in the first quarter (1 January to 31 March) of the years 2000 to 2007, who commenced a court order under probation supervision, or who were discharged from a custodial sentence given for a drug-related offence. The table shows the proportion of offenders who committed at least one further offence and the frequency of offences per 100 offenders. It also shows reoffending rates for the whole cohort.

Table 1: One-year reoffending rates, offenders commencing a court order or discharged from a custodial sentence, 2000-07 who were convicted for a drug-related offence

| | | Number of offenders | Actual reoffending rate (Percentage) | Number of offences per 100 offenders |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Drug-related offences | 2000 Q1 | 3,045 | 31.1 | 92.9 |
| | 2002 Q1 | 2,802 | 32.3 | 110.7 |
| | 2003 Q1 | 2,832 | 33.2 | 117.4 |
| | 2004 Q1 | 2,761 | 29.4 | 102.4 |
| | 2005 Q1 | 2,991 | 31.4 | 100.5 |
| | 2006 Q1 | 3,353 | 28.7 | 86.8 |
| | 2007 Q1 | 3,900 | 30.6 | 93.1 |
| All offences | 2000 Q1 | 42,734 | 43.0 | 185.0 |
| | 2002 Q1 | 43,247 | 45.5 | 212.7 |
| | 2003 Q1 | 44,093 | 45.4 | 205.3 |
| | 2004 Q1 | 46,512 | 42.9 | 181.3 |
| | 2005 Q1 | 43,429 | 41.2 | 165.7 |
| | 2006 Q1 | 50,281 | 36.6 | 144.0 |
| | 2007Q1 | 50,085 | 39.0 | 147.3 |

Notes:
1. Data for 2001 are unavailable due to problems with archived data.
2. Any offences committed in the one-year follow up period are not necessarily of the same offence type as the index.

Please note that drug-related offences includes offences for importing and exporting drugs, for production and supply of drugs, and for drugs possession and small scale supply. There may be a range of offences that have a drug-related element which are not included in these data, but are contained within another offence group.

The table does not show reoffending rates for all drug-related crime as offenders only enter the cohort when they were convicted for their drug-related offence.

Further information on the one-year rates of reoffending can be found at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/reoffendingof adults.htm

The figures for reoffences include offences of all types. An offender whose original offence was drug-related and who reoffended, may not have committed any more drug-related offences.

Sentencing

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many prisoners sentenced to a custodial term of three months served (a) three months, (b) six weeks or less and (c) one week or less in each year since 1997; [302312]

(2) how many prisoners sentenced to a custodial term of six months served (a) six months, (b) three months or less and (c) six weeks or less of their sentence in each year since 1997. [302313]

Claire Ward: Automatic release at the halfway point of sentence was introduced by the Criminal Justice Act 1991. Prisoners who are sentenced to three months therefore normally serve six weeks in prison and prisoners who are sentenced to six months normally serve three months in prison. Adult prisoners sentenced to less than 12 months are not subject to supervision by the probation service on release from custody. However, they are 'at risk' of return to custody by the courts, to serve the unexpired portion of the sentence, if they commit an imprisonable offence before the expiry date of the original sentence. Young offenders (those under the age of 22 released from a term of detention in a YOI) are subject to a minimum of three months supervision. Juvenile prisoners sentenced to a detention and training order are supervised as part of the conditions of these sentences.

The actual amount of time served in prison, following sentence, will depend on a number of factors, including time spent as a remand prisoner or credit for time spent on tagged bail if directed by the court, any added days and release on either home detention curfew or end of custody licence.

Data for 1997 and 1998 are not available.

For those prisoners discharged between 1999 and 2008 having been sentenced to three months, the amount of time served is shown in the following table.

| | One week or less | Six weeks or less | Over six weeks and less than three months[1] | Three months | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1999 | 10 | 3,600 | 4,100 | 20 | 7,700 |
| 2000 | 10 | 3,700 | 4,000 | 10 | 7,800 |
| 2001 | 20 | 3,500 | 3,700 | 20 | 7,200 |
| 2002 | 20 | 3,600 | 3,300 | 80 | 7,000 |
| 2003 | 20 | 3,400 | 3,100 | 90 | 6,600 |
| 2004 | 20 | 3,100 | 3,300 | 90 | 6,500 |
| 2005 | 20 | 2,100 | 3,300 | 50 | 5,400 |
| 2006 | 10 | 1,300 | 3,200 | 70 | 4,600 |
| 2007 | 10 | 1,300 | 3,000 | 90 | 4,300 |
| 2008 | 10 | 700 | 3,100 | 80 | 3,900 |

[1] Around 90 per cent. of prisoners in the over six weeks and less than three months category have served within two to three days of exactly six weeks.

For those prisoners discharged between 1999 and 2008 having been sentenced to six months, the amount of time served is shown in the following table.

| | Six weeks or less | Over six weeks and up including to three months | Over three months and less than six months | Six months | Total |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1999 | 80 | 6,400 | 1,000 | 10 | 7,500 |
| 2000 | 90 | 6,500 | 1,000 | 10 | 7,600 |
| 2001 | 80 | 6,300 | 1,000 | 20 | 7,400 |
| 2002 | 120 | 6,400 | 900 | 10 | 7,400 |
| 2003 | 170 | 6,200 | 600 | 10 | 7,000 |
| 2004 | 110 | 6,200 | 600 | 10 | 6,900 |
| 2005 | 60 | 5,500 | 600 | 10 | 6,100 |
| 2006 | 90 | 4,900 | 600 | 10 | 5,600 |
| 2007 | 70 | 5,000 | 600 | 10 | 5,700 |
| 2008 | 60 | 5,000 | 590 | 20 | 5,700 |

Numbers below 1,000 have been rounded to the nearest 10. Numbers over 1,000 have been rounded to the nearest 100.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Young Offenders: Education

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much was spent on the provision of educational courses for offenders serving custodial sentences in the latest 12 months period for which figures are available. [303775]

Maria Eagle: Offender Learning and Skills Service (OLASS) in England on 31 July 2006. OLASS funds the delivery of skills for offenders (aged 15 and over) held in English Public Sector prisons for both sentenced prisoners and those held on remand.

The allocation for the provision of education for prisoners aged 15 to 17 in public sector young offender institutions in England in the academic year 2008/09 was £19.4 million. The allocation for adult prisoners (post 18) held in English Public Sector prisons for the academic year 2008/09 was £142 million.

In Wales, from April 2006, commissioning responsibilities for offender learning and skills provision became the responsibility of Director of Offender Management in Wales. The allocation for adult prisoners held in Welsh Public Sector prisons for the academic year 2008/09 was £2.3 million. Responsibilities for learning and skills provision for those in custody in Wales transferred to the Welsh Assembly Government with effect from 1 April 2009.

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what language courses are offered to offenders serving custodial sentences. [303776]

Maria Eagle: Courses in French, German, Spanish, British Sign Language and English for speakers of other languages are offered through the Learning and Skills Council's Offender Learning and Skills Service to offenders in English Public Sector prisons. During the last 12 months, offenders in custody have studied Open University courses in French, German, Spanish and Italian.

– In Wales, taught courses are available in English Literature and Language, along with Welsh, French and German in some prisons. Self study and distance learning are also available for a variety of languages as requested.

The central aim of the Offenders' Learning and Skills Service (OLASS) is to improve each offender's chances of gaining sustainable employment, thus contributing to a reduction in re-offending rates. Having the right skills and qualifications has a positive impact on offenders' well-being and ability to adopt a positive role in society. Learning also has an intrinsic value in its own right—and some learning has the effect of stimulating and encouraging participation and further learning. Language teaching and learning has this engaging and progression supporting effect—and in some cases direct employability impacts.

Young Offenders: Sentencing

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much was spent on (a) custodial and (b) community sentences for people under the age of 18 years resident in each Youth Offending Team area in the last five years for which figures are available. [303589]

Maria Eagle: The Youth Justice Board (YJB) has responsibility for purchasing all the places within the secure estate for children and young people. The requested information is not recorded centrally by YOT area.

Community sentences for those aged under 18 are provided by Youth Offending Teams (YOTs). YOTs are funded from a range of central and local sources and data are not collected centrally on what proportion of this funding is spent on community sentences

Youth Custody

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many children aged 10 to 17 years were given a custodial sentence after pleading guilty to a first time offence in each of the last three years. [303452]

Maria Eagle: The following table shows the number of offenders under 18, with no previous reprimand, warning or conviction, who received an immediate custodial sentence in the three years 2006-07 to 2008-09. Data on guilty pleas in relation to first offenders are not available. These figures have been drawn from the police's administrative IT system, the police national computer, which, as with any large scale recording system, is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing. The figures are provisional and subject to change as more information is recorded by the police.

| | First-time under-18 offenders receiving custodial sentence |
|---|---|
| 2006-07 | 374 |
| 2007-08 | 396 |
| 200[illegible]09 | 377 |

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Caparo Group

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether his Department holds any contracts with any of the companies forming part of the Caparo Group. [302866]

Joan Ruddock: The Department of Energy and Climate Change does not hold any contracts with any of the companies forming part of the Caparo Group.

Carbon Sequestration

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what projects to deploy carbon capture and storage technology are taking part in the competition for funding for this technology. [303394]

Joan Ruddock: There are two projects taking part in the current competition launched in 2007 to support a commercial-scale demonstration of carbon capture and storage technology on a coal fired power station. Eon and Scottish Power are each leading the project.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many projects to deploy carbon capture and storage technology have expressed an interest to his Department in being part of the competition for funding for this technology. [303395]

Joan Ruddock: There were nine bids in the pre-qualification stage in the current demonstration competition launched in 2007.

Climate Change

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what agreements were made at the G8 Summit in L'Aquila on energy and climate change related matters. [304467]

Joan Ruddock: The energy and climate change agreements made at the G8 summit in L'Aquila can be found in the G8 Communiqué entitled 'Responsible Leadership For A Sustainable Future', accessible electronically at:

http://www.g8italia2009.it/static/G8_Allegato/G8_Declaration_08_07_09_final,0.pdf

The relevant paragraphs are: 39-44, 60-93.

Coal Authority: Cap Gemini

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the monetary value of contracts between the Coal Authority and Cap Gemini (a) was in each of the last five financial years and (b) is in 2009-10. [303389]

Mr. Kidney: Expenditure under the Coal Authority's contract with Capgemini over the last five financial years was as follows:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 2.7 |
| 2005-06 | 2.6 |
| 2006-07 | 2.9 |
| 2007-08 | 2.7 |
| 2008-09 | 2.5 |

In 2009-10 contractual payments will be an estimated £2.6 million.

Coal Authority: Information and Communications Technology

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Tunbridge Wells of 12 October 2009, Official Report, columns 459-60W, on departmental ICT, which companies tendered to deliver the Coal Authority's Inferis IT project. [303502]

Mr. Kidney: Three companies tendered to deliver the Coal Authority's Inferis IT project. They were Capgemini, Mouchel Management Consulting Ltd. and SciSys UK Ltd.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Tunbridge Wells of 12 October 2009, Official Report, columns 459-60W, on departmental ICT, if he will place in the Library a copy of the invitation to tender issued in respect of the Coal Authority's Inferis IT project. [303503]

Mr. Kidney: A copy will be placed in the Library of the House.

Departmental Buildings

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Tunbridge Wells of 12 October 2009, Official Report, column 456W, on departmental buildings, on what date the move of his Department's staff into 3 Whitehall Place was completed. [303506]

Joan Ruddock: The first phase of the moves of 973 Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) staff was completed on weekend 6-7 June 2009. 23 DECC staff currently remain in 1 Victoria street for business reasons and are expected to move into 3 Whitehall Place in April 2010.

Energy: Housing

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change on what date he expects the first Pay as You Save pilot to commence. [303511]

Joan Ruddock: The Home Energy Pay As You Save pilot projects will be announced shortly. Work on the pilot projects will begin immediately following that announcement. We expect the first properties to receive measures in the new year.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many households he expects to be included in the Pay as You Save pilots in (a) 2009-10, (b) 2010-11 and (c) subsequent years. [303513]

Joan Ruddock: We anticipate up to 500 households being involved in the Home Energy PAYS pilots, the actual number will depend on the level of investment required for each property. Retrofitting these properties will be undertaken over the financial year 2009-10 and 2010-11. The capital funding for the pilots ends in April 2011 and therefore no further households will be included after that date.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he expects to announce the locations at which the first Pay as You Save pilots announced in Low Carbon Transition Plan will take place. [303514]

Joan Ruddock: The Home Energy Pay As You Save pilot projects will be announced shortly.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what role his Department plans for local authorities in the Pay as You Save pilots announced in the Low Carbon Transition Plan. [303515]

Joan Ruddock: One of the objectives for the Home Energy PAYS pilots is to test consumer attitudes and preferences to elements of the Pay As You Save model. We are looking for at least one of the projects to include the local authority as the billing route and the major delivery partner.

Environment Protection: ICT

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment his Department has made of the effect on the environment of adopting environmentally-friendly ICT policies across all Government departments. [304198]

Ms Butler: I have been asked to reply.

In September 2009 the Government published "Greening Government ICT—Efficient, Sustainable, Responsible" a one-year-on progress report which assesses the Government's Green ICT strategy. This was committed to by all Government Departments.

The report is available at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/media270265/1_year_on.pdf

Fuel Poverty

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what requirement the Government puts on energy supply companies to include a benefits health check in their fuel poverty reduction programmes. [304497]

Mr. Kidney: There is no requirement in the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target (CERT) or the Community Energy Saving Programme (CESP) for energy suppliers to provide benefit entitlement checks.

Warm Front is the Government's flagship programme for tackling fuel poverty in the private sector. All Warm Front applicants, whether initially eligible for the scheme or not, are offered a benefit entitlement check.

In 2008-09 Warm Front completed over 78,000 benefit entitlement checks. A new or an additional eligible benefit was identified in 45 per cent. of cases, resulting in an average weekly increase in household income of £31 per applicant.

Equivalent schemes in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland are the responsibility of the devolved Administrations.

Fuel Poverty: Health

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent assessment he has made of the effects of fuel poverty on health. [304338]

Mr. Kidney: The Government recognise the effects of fuel poverty on health and has a strong package of measures to tackle the three root causes: poor energy efficiency, high fuel prices and low household income. It has not carried out a detailed assessment of the impacts of fuel poverty on health.

Since 2000, over £20 billion has been spent on a range of benefits and programmes to tackle fuel poverty. Improving the energy efficiency of a home is key to assisting those at risk from the cold and the Government have a number of established and new initiatives such as Warm Front, the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target and the Community Energy Savings Programme to help. We improve the income of vulnerable households through winter fuel and cold weather payments alongside the wider tax and benefit system and look at ways to cut the cost of energy that is supplied to them through a robust system of regulation aiming to protect all consumers. The recently introduced Energy Bill will set a framework for schemes that will require energy suppliers to provide a specified level of social price support (direct assistance with energy bills) to more of the most vulnerable customers.

Each year the Department of Health launches its "Keep Warm, Keep Well" campaign, offering important advice to older people on how to stay fit and healthy through the winter. The Department of Health's involvement in four major health related campaigns to target Warm Front grants increased referral numbers over the previous year by around 8 per cent. In addition, their seasonal flu vaccination programme is one of the most successful in Europe.

KBR

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether his Department has entered into any contracts with Kellogg, Brown and Root or its subsidiaries since January 2009. [303335]

Joan Ruddock: The Department for Energy and Climate Change has not entered into any contracts with Kellogg, Brown and Root or its subsidiaries since January 2009.

Local Government: Carbon Emissions

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the reduction in carbon dioxide emissions attributable to the Carbon Trust's local authority carbon management programme in each year of the programme. [303461]

Joan Ruddock: The Carbon Trust's public sector carbon management programme began in 2003-04 and I am informed by the trust that to date 236 local authorities have participated.

$CO_2$ emission reductions to date for each year of the programme are set out in the following table. The Carbon Trust inform me that they expect that implemented savings from the two most recent years, 2007-08 and 2008-09, will exceed the carbon savings implemented in earlier years but that there is a time lag in actual implementation which has resulted in the lower levels of savings made to date.

|---|---:|
| 2004-05 | 369,896 |
| 2005-06 | 271,198 |
| 2006-07 | 504,589 |
| 2007-08 | 359,649 |
| 2008-09 | 107,684 |

Renewable Energy: Developing Countries

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent discussions he has had with his counterparts in (a) Bangladesh, (b) Ethiopia, (c) India, (d) Kenya and (e) Nepal on technology transfer to enable those countries to harness renewable energy and to combat climate change. [304405]

Joan Ruddock: The Government are pushing for an ambitious, effective and fair agreement at the 15th Conference of Parties of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change in Copenhagen that will drive the development of climate technologies and their deployment in developing countries.

Ministers from the Department of Energy and Climate Change have met with Ministers from Bangladesh, Ethiopia, India, Kenya and Nepal at international meetings throughout the last year to discuss these and related issues. The Secretary of State also visited India and Bangladesh in September, to see the impacts of climate change at first hand and meet with counterparts to discuss climate change and renewable energy.

Afghanistan and Pakistan: Overseas Aid

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the Prime Minister's Statement of 30 November 2009, Official Report, columns 831-54, on Afghanistan and Pakistan, what programmes funded by his Department are expected to (a) create 20,000 jobs in 2009 and (b) raise the incomes of 200,000 people by 2013; on what basis each estimate was arrived at; and if he will make a statement. [304323]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) has recently launched a £36 million, four-year programme called Supporting Employment and Enterprise Development (SEED), which aims to create 20,000 jobs and raise the incomes of 200,000 people by 2013.

SEED expects to create 20,000 jobs as follows:

Jobs created from lending to small and medium sized enterprises: 2,000

Jobs created through vocational training: 3,000

Jobs created through support to the World Bank's Afghanistan Rural Enterprise Development Programme (AREDP): 10,000

Jobs created through the new challenge fund: 5,000

SEED expects to raise the incomes of 200,000 people as follows:

Incomes improved through AREDP interventions: 100,000

Individuals who benefit from improved business practices and hence increased incomes as a result of challenge fund support: 100,000

Afghanistan: Overseas Aid

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding the Government have provided (a) as aid and (b) for reconstruction in Afghanistan in each year since 2007. [304450]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Most Official Development Assistance (ODA) to Afghanistan is managed by the Department for International Development (DFID) and used to support the Afghan Government to deliver essential services such as health and education, promote economic growth, address the humanitarian situation, and undertake large infrastructure projects in Helmand province. DFID's budget was £108.9 million in 2007-08, £143 million in 2008-09, and £127.5 million in 2009-10.

In addition, a proportion of DFID's contributions to multilateral organisations were spent in Afghanistan. £33.1 million was spent this way in 2007-8. Figures for later years are not yet available.

DFID, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and the Ministry of Defence(MOD) also have access to the Stabilisation Aid Fund (SAF), which seeks to promote political settlement and undertake reconstruction after conflict, particularly in Helmand province. The SAF budget was £28.4 million in 2007-08, £53 million in 2008-09, and £68 million this year.

Details of Gross Public Expenditure on development are published in "Statistics on International Development" and available online at www.dfid.gov.uk

Afghanistan: Reconstruction

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support he is giving to the Afghan Reconstruction Trust Fund to improve the energy infrastructure in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [304461]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Since 2003, the Department for International Development (DFID) has contributed £38.5 million to the Afghanistan Reconstruction Trust Fund to support the National Solidarity Programme (NSP), which funds projects developed by local communities themselves. Approximately 17 per cent. of NSP funding has been used for small-scale energy infrastructure projects.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps he is taking to improve public access to reliable electricity in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [304462]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) is co-financing the rehabilitation of the Gereshk hydropower plant and associated transmission and distribution system in Helmand province. On completion, the project is expected to increase the supply and reliability of electricity to around 200,000 people.

Since 2003, DFID has also contributed £38.5 million to the National Solidarity Programme (NSP) which funds projects developed by local communities themselves. Approximately 17 per cent. of NSP funding has been used for small-scale energy infrastructure projects.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress has been made on the refurbishment of the Gereshk hydropower plant in Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [304463]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The refurbishment of the Gereshk hydropower plant is proceeding according to schedule. The detailed design period is now complete. Through the Provincial Reconstruction Team in Helmand, a competitive tender for the upgrade of the 2.5 km access road to the plant has been won by a local Afghan contractor. We are also designing two police checkpoints to be positioned along the access road to improve site security.

The next step is to conclude co-financing arrangements with our investment partners, the Asian Development Bank and the Embassy of Denmark. This agreement will be followed in early 2010 by procurement for civil, mechanical and electrical contracts.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress has been made in the provision of electricity networks and supply throughout Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [304464]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Information relating to progress made in the provision of electricity networks and supply throughout Afghanistan is published on the website of the Afghan Energy Information Center (AIEC) at:

http://www.afghaneic.org/index.html

Africa: Overseas Aid

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what role his Department is playing in the implementation of the Nile Basin Initiative. [303799]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) plays an active role in support of the Nile Basin Initiative (NBI) along with the World Bank and other development partners. We have contributed £13.7 million. We separately provide finance to help civil society organisations engage with the initiative through the Nile Basin Discourse.

Departmental Official Cars

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of providing official cars for the use of (a) Ministers and (b) officials in the last 12 months. [301188]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement about the cost of ministerial cars made by the Under-Secretary of State for Transport, the hon. Member for Gillingham (Paul Clark) on 16 July 2009, Official Report, columns 79-80WS.

For the cost of cars to officials, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the Under-Secretary of State for Transport, the hon. Member for Gillingham (Paul Clark) on 2 December 2009, Official Report, column 762W.

Departmental Security

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many security passes his Department has issued to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months. [303943]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: All consultants who require access to a Department for International Development (DFID) office, whether they are providing consultancy or other services, are issued with a temporary security pass after security clearance procedures have been completed. Those contractors providing services without a need to work in a DFID office are not issued a security pass. Disaggregating the number of security passes issued to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months would incur disproportionate costs.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Alternative Curriculum

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps are being taken to ensure that local authorities have information about third sector providers of alternative curriculum provision for excluded children or those at risk of exclusion; and if he will make a statement. [301945]

Mr. Coaker: Since the Department published the "Back on Track" White Paper in May 2008, we have carried out a determined programme of work to improve the quality of alternative provision and access to it.

In October 2008, we published guidance on commissioning alternative provision, covering how local authorities and schools can identify providers able to meet the needs of pupils who require alternative provision. At the same time, we launched an online directory of alternative providers across England which gives local authorities and schools ready access to information on almost 400 providers. The directory had approximately 29,700 hits between 1 January 2009 and 23 November 2009.

The Department has also run trade fairs for alternative providers across England, giving them the opportunity to inform potential commissioners of their services. We have also established pilots to explore a range of innovative ways of delivering alternative provision, supported by up to £26.5 million over 2008-11. Of these 12 pilots, nine involve third sector providers.

Building Schools for the Future Programme: Asbestos

Paul Rowen: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools in the Building Schools for the Future programme have had an asbestos survey as part of their redevelopment; in how many such schools was asbestos found; and from how many such schools asbestos was removed. [304199]

Mr. Coaker: Information on the number of schools in the Building Schools for the Future programme that have had an asbestos survey; whether asbestos was found; and whether it was removed is not held centrally. Local authorities are responsible for managing the process and hold this information.

Children: Databases

Phil Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate has been made of the amount of savings in practitioner time as a result of the introduction of ContactPoint. [304728]

Dawn Primarolo: A principal benefit of ContactPoint will be freed up unproductive time, previously spent by frontline staff in trying to identify and then contact other practitioners who are involved with a child. We estimate conservatively that ContactPoint will save five million practitioner hours, equivalent to £88 million a year, once all projected users are engaged. This means that practitioners can spend more time working with children and families and less time on administration activities.

Phil Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much is expected to be spent on the ContactPoint directory in each of the five years from June 2010. [304729]

Dawn Primarolo: The expected expenditure on ContactPoint in each of the next five years from June 2010 is as follows:

£ million

| | Set up | Operating | Total |
|---|---|---|---|
| June 2010 to March 2011 | 21.7 | 29.2 | 50.9 |
| April 2011 to March 2012 | 2.4 | 40.6 | 43.0 |
| April 2012 to March 2013 | 0.0 | 41.0 | 41.0 |
| April 2013 to March 2014 | 0.0 | 41.0 | 41.0 |
| April 2014 to March 2015 | 0.0 | 41.0 | 41.0 |
| April 2015 to May 2015 | 0.0 | 10.3 | 10.3 |

Citizenship and History: Secondary Education

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of pupils at maintained mainstream schools at the end of Key Stage 4 took examinations in (a) citizenship but not history, (b) history but not citizenship, (c) citizenship and history and (d) neither history nor citizenship in each of the last five years. [301040]

Mr. Coaker: The information required is given in the following table.

Departmental Advertising

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department's predecessor spent on advertising in 2006-07; how much his Department has so spent in 2009-10; and if he will make a statement. [302319]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: The media total for advertising in 2006-07 was £6,573,885. In 2009-10 so far, the spend to date has been £4,260,609. This information was attained from the Central Office of Information where the information is centrally held.

Departmental Legal Costs

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the (a) cost and (b) purpose was of legal (i) representation and (ii) advice sought by his Department and its agencies in each year since May 1997. [300371]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: The purpose of legal representation is to ensure that the Secretary of State is represented before a court or tribunal where a decision is under challenge. The purpose of legal advice is to enable the Department to operate effectively within the law and develop legislation to deliver its policies, minimising legal risk and achieving best legal outcomes.

There are no centrally held figures for the costs of legal representation in the Department for Children, Schools and Families, and its predecessors, the Department for Education and Employment, and the Department for Education and Skills.

Departmental Legislation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what criminal offences have been (a) abolished and (b) created by primary legislation sponsored by his Department since 1 May 2008. [303248]

Family and Parent Institute: Finance

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much money his Department and its predecessors have spent on supporting the Family and Parent Institute in each year since 2005; and if he will make a statement. [304059]

Dawn Primarolo: The Family and Parenting Institute have a long-standing relationship with the Department. Since 2005, the Family and Parenting Institute have received funding support through a strategic grant from The Strengthening Families (SFG) Grant programme (2005/06) and The Children, Young People and Families (CYPF) Grant programme (2006/07 to 2009/10). The CYPF is a national programme to fund work by the third sector to improve outcomes for children, young people and families.

GCSE

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which secondary schools are in each decile of the numbers of students achieving five GCSEs at grades A* to C including English and mathematics in the latest period for which figures are available. [301635]

Mr. Coaker: The request is essentially for a list of all English secondary schools ordered into deciles. The main way school level information is published is in the secondary school achievement and attainment tables on the Department's website at the following link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/performancetables/schools_08.shtml

A user-friendly Excel version of school level data, from which rankings and deciles of all schools can be derived, has also been placed in the House of Commons Library.

The 2009 secondary school achievement and attainment tables will be published in January 2010.

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of 16-year-olds did not achieve five GCSEs at grades A* to C in (a) England, (b) the North East and (c) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in the latest period for which figures are available. [303141]

Mr. Coaker: The following table gives the percentage of pupils, in their last year of compulsory education who did not gain five or more GCSEs at A*-C and equivalent.

Percentage of pupils[1] not gaining five or more GCSE at A-C and equivalent, 2007/08*

| Area | Percentage |
|---|---|
| England and Wales[2] | 35.1 |
| England[2] | 34.7 |
| North East[3] | 33.6 |
| Middlesbrough and South East Cleveland[3] | 40.8 |

[1] In England pupils at the end of key stage 4, in Wales pupils aged 15 at the start of the academic year.

[2] All schools.

[3] Maintained schools only.

GCSE: Young Offenders

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of females of school age in custody gained five GCSEs at grade A* to C in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [301632]

Mr. Coaker: No females aged under 18 in HM Prison Service Young Offender Institutions achieved a GCSE at grade A* to C while in custody in the 2007/08 academic year.

The data above refer only to achievements that were secured by young females who took the examination while they were in custody. Those who were released before the examination date may have continued study and taken examinations in the community.

Some young people in young offender institutions are still registered at schools and colleges in the community and therefore any GCSEs that they achieve while in custody will be reflected in the achievement figures of their respective school or college.

The female population aged under 18 in HM Prison Service Young Offender Institutions was on average 65 females under 18 in custody in 2006/07 and an average of 65 in 2007/08.

HM Prison Service Young Offender Institutions make up part of the custodial estate for under-18s and achievements of GCSEs in secure children's homes, secure training centres, or private prisons are not recorded centrally.

Home Education

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children of school age are registered as receiving home education in each education authority in (a) Wales and (b) England. [304661]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: There are no registration arrangements for children receiving home education in England so we do not hold this information. The total number of electively home educated children known to the 74 local authorities that provided a response to Graham Badman's supplementary data request in September can be found at http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/everychildmatters/etc/independentreviewofhomeeducation/irhomeeducation/

Home education in Wales is a matter for the Welsh Assembly Government.

National Curriculum Tests

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the cost to the public purse of standard assessment tests was in each of the last five years. [303115]

Mr. Coaker: The Qualifications and Curriculum Development Agency's (QCDA) estimates of the costs of delivering the national curriculum tests for Key Stage 1, Key Stage 2 and Key Stage 3 in each of the last five years are as follows:-

| | £ thousand |
|---|---|
| | Total cost of NCT |
| 2008-09 | 21,755 |
| 2007-08 | 50,570 |
| 2006-07 | 51,559 |
| 2005-06 | 51,743 |
| 2004-05 | 43,828 |

Statutory Key Stage 3 national curriculum tests have been discontinued and were not administered in 2009. Costs quoted for the 2008-09 financial year are net of the £19,500,000.00 cash settlement received by QCDA, following termination of the test operations contract with ETS Global BV (ETS) in 2008.

Pupil Exclusions

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what steps his Department is taking to reduce the number of children who have been excluded or at risk of exclusion from school who are subsequently classified as not in education, employment or training; and if he will make a statement; [301872]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the causes of exclusion of children from school; what recent steps his Department has taken as a consequence of that assessment; and if he will make a statement. [301873]

Mr. Coaker: We accept that a significant minority of excluded pupils can go on to be not in education, employment or training (NEET). We also know that exclusions are now at their lowest ever level since 1997/98, with permanent exclusions dropping 6.4 per cent. between 2006/07 and 2007/08.

We support heads when taking the tough decision to exclude. It is right that head teachers should use their powers to exclude disruptive pupils when this is in the interests of other pupils. However, our focus must be on preventing bad behaviour from degenerating to the point where exclusion—and particularly permanent exclusion—is necessary.

Data on school exclusion are collected through the school census and published annually. The latest data were published as SFR 18/2009 "Permanent and Fixed Period Exclusions from Schools in England 2007/08" which can be accessed at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000860/index.shtml

Table 9 gives a breakdown of the reasons for exclusion. Persistent disruptive behaviour was the most common reason for exclusion, representing 30.9 per cent. of permanent exclusion and 23.2 per cent. of fixed period exclusion.

Good behaviour is fundamental to school standards, and Ofsted recently reported (24 November) that 80 per cent. of secondary schools are good or outstanding on behaviour, up from 72 per cent. in 2007/08. In September my Department launched a Behaviour Challenge with an ambition that, by 2012, all schools will have a good or outstanding Ofsted rating on behaviour or be on track to achieve one. Support and challenge will be provided to schools through local authorities, the National Strategies, and School Improvement Partners. We have also asked National Strategies colleagues to support local authorities with high exclusion rates, and high rates of multiple fixed period exclusion, to help their schools increase the use of early intervention to improve behaviour and minimise the need for exclusion.

We are making all 16 and 17-year-olds an offer of suitable place in learning through the September Guarantee. My Department has asked local authorities to focus in particular on those who are disengaged from education or missing school. The 14-19 curriculum reforms are creating a range of different learning opportunities suit all young people, including those who need help to re-engage in learning. Connexions services provide tailored support and advice, both on accessing education, employment or training, and on personal issues.

My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister announced on 18 November plans to extend the guarantee to any 16 and 17-year-old who is not in education, employment or training (NEET) in January. This will give those who were not ready to engage in learning in September, or who have since left, a further opportunity to get the skills they need to succeed.

The Apprenticeships, Skills, Children and Learning Act, 2009 introduced tough statutory disciplinary powers to strengthen teachers' rights to punish bad behaviour in and out of the classroom. These include a strong statutory power to punish pupils in school and en route to and from school; a statutory power to reasonably confiscate mobiles or music players used disruptively; and reaffirming powers to use physical force to break up fights and restrain pupils. The Act also introduced a duty for schools to work together in partnership to improve behaviour and reduce absence.

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average length of a fixed-period exclusion for pupils from (a) primary, (b) secondary and (c) all schools was in the last 12 months. [304893]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: The latest available data on the average length of fixed period exclusions for the 2007/08 academic year are published at http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000860/index.shtml Table 5.

Data for 2008/09 are expected to be published in July 2010.

Pupils: Abuse

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidelines his Department provides to teachers who suspect abuse or maltreatment of a pupil on action to be taken in such circumstances. [304404]

Dawn Primarolo: Guidelines on the actions that anyone, including a teacher, should take if they have concerns about abuse or maltreatment of a child are set out in "What to do if you are Worried a Child is being Abused." This practice guidance tells people about the procedures to follow when passing on concerns and what will then happen. Guidance on the wider responsibilities of local authorities and governing bodies of schools and FE colleges in relation to safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children is contained in "Safeguarding Children and Safer Recruitment in Education."

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent estimate is of the average annual cost of educating a secondary school child in a pupil referral unit in (a) England and (b) each local authority area. [301871]

Mr. Coaker: The Department published the White Paper "Back on Track" in May 2008 setting out proposals to transform the quality of alternative provision, including pupil referral units. At that time, we estimated a cost of around £15,000 a year for a full-time placement in a pupil referral unit. Pupil numbers in pupil referral units can be volatile and the calculation was based on pupil numbers at a fixed point in time. This may not be fully representative of the average number of pupils over a year.

We have not made any further estimates since that time, and the figure has not been broken down by local authority area. The figure is likely to vary considerably between different local authority areas.

Pupils: Weapons

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what record his Department maintains relating to the number of pupils who, following a search, were found to be in the possession of (a) a knife, (b) another weapon and (c) drugs on school premises; [303561]

(2) how many pupils in England were found to be in the possession of (a) a weapon and (b) drugs on school premises in each of the last three years. [303562]

Mr. Coaker: The Department does not record the number of pupils found to be in possession of a knife, other weapon, or drugs, whether following a search or otherwise.

In 2007 we gave head teachers the power to search, without consent, any pupil suspected of carrying a knife or other offensive weapon. Schools can also screen pupils at random or search with consent. However, we do not require schools to tell us when such an article has been found. They should inform the police, to whom they must pass the article.

We have recently extended the power to search without consent so that schools can search pupils without consent for illegal drugs (and for alcohol and stolen property) with effect from September 2010.

Schools: Finance

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average funding per capita was for (a) urban areas and (b) rural areas under dedicated schools grant in the latest period for which figures are available. [301516]

Mr. Coaker: The latest figures available are shown in the following table below (2007-08). Figures for 2008-09 are still to be collected and validated by the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

Combined local authority and school-based expenditure per pupil,[1] 2007-08: Cash terms figures as reported by local authorities in England as at 23 November 2009[2, 3]

| | Total combined LEA and school-based expenditure[1] (£ per pupil) |
|---|---|
| England | 5,050 |
| Predominantly urban local authorities[2] | 5,040 |
| Predominantly rural local authorities[2] | 5,110 |

1. Combined local authority and school-based expenditure includes all expenditure on the education of children in local authority maintained establishments and pupils educated by the authority other than in maintained establishments. This includes both school-based expenditure and all elements of central LA expenditure except youth and community and capital expenditure from revenue (CERA). Certain elements of central local authority expenditure cannot be attributed to a particular phase of education and consequently a sector breakdown is not available. Pupil figures include all pre-primary pupils, including those under-5s funded by the authority and being educated in private settings, pupils educated in maintained mainstream schools and any other local authority maintained pupils. All pupil numbers are adjusted to be on a financial year basis.

2. The classification of local authorities into those which are predominately urban and predominately rural is based upon The Rural and Urban Area Classification (2004) sponsored by the Countryside Agency (CA), the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (DEFRA), Office for National Statistics (ONS), the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister (ODPM) and the Welsh Assembly Government. Predominantly rural local authorities are classified as those which consist of more than 50 per cent. rural Output Areas.

3. Figures are rounded to the nearest £10.

Schools: Herefordshire

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding was provided per child under the dedicated schools grant in Herefordshire in 2009-10. [301515]

Mr. Coaker: The guaranteed funding per pupil for Herefordshire for 2009-10 is £3,830. The amount of dedicated schools grant that local authorities receive is dependent on the number of pupils on roll. Herefordshire has received just over £87 million for 2009-10.

Schools: Rural Areas

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what funding is provided towards other educational programmes for rural areas other than through the dedicated schools grant. [301517]

Mr. Coaker: Local authorities are responsible for the distribution of funding (including funding provided through the dedicated schools grant (DSG)) to schools in their area. The overall DSG settlement for 2009-10 is £29.6 billion and of this settlement £194.87 million is notionally for sparsity. This funding is allocated to rural authorities in recognition that they need small schools which are more expensive to run. The Department does not provide additional education funding outside of the DSG specifically for rural areas.

Schools: Standards

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools were given notices to improve by Ofsted in (a) September, (b) October, (c) November and (d) December 2008. [304660]

Mr. Coaker: The following table gives the requested information:

Schools given a notice to improve by Ofsted during autumn term 2008

| 2008 | Number |
|---|---|
| September | 11 |
| October | 16 |
| November | 18 |
| December | 7 |
| Total for term | 52 |

Secondary Education: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families who is responsible for the implementation in Gloucestershire of the recommendations made in the report of the Badman review of secondary education. [301350]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: It is the responsibility of Gloucestershire local authority to implement the recommendations made in the report of the Badman review of the National Challenge.

Secondary Education: Outdoor Education

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what research his Department has undertaken into a link between the uptake of fieldwork in secondary schools and the number of post-16 students taking science, technology, engineering and mathematics subjects; [301438]

(2) what steps he is taking to increase the uptake of fieldwork by pupils in secondary schools. [301441]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: The Department has not commissioned research to examine the link between take up of fieldwork in secondary schools and the number of post-16 students taking science, technology, engineering and mathematics subjects.

The Government are doing much to increase the take up of fieldwork by pupils in secondary schools. This includes:

Contracting with the Association for Science Education to run a support programme to improve the use of practical work in science across secondary schools.

Sending Practical Work in Science booklets to all secondary schools which include good examples of fieldwork activity.

Continuing to fund the National Network of Science Learning Centres to provide continuing professional development opportunities for teachers including those that support the use of fieldwork across all stage of the curriculum.

Publishing the STEM directory of science enhancement and enrichment activities which lists a vast range of activities, including fieldwork related ones, that schools can access to enliven science teaching and learning.

Developing online resources and guidance through Government funding for the Action Plan for Geography, which is managed by the Royal Geographical Society and the Geographical Association to help teachers with fieldwork. These are available on the Geography Teaching Today website which includes a virtual fieldwork and local learning centre to help teachers make the most of geography in their local areas. This includes expert advice and planning on embedding fieldwork in the curriculum.

The Learning Outside the Classroom Manifesto which was launched in November 2006 and aims to provide all young people with quality learning experiences outside the classroom covering the whole curriculum. This is made explicit in the new secondary curriculum which also provides that practical and enquiry skills are something that pupils need to learn to make progress in their science and geography learning.

Teachers: Pay

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of teachers and teaching staff in maintained schools earn more than £50,000 per annum. [300811]

Mr. Coaker: In March 2008, an estimated 30,000 full-time qualified teachers employed in local authority maintained schools in England and Wales earned £50,000 or more per annum. This is 8 per cent. of the total number.

The source of the salary information is the Database of Teacher Records (DTR) and is provisional. Overall teacher numbers from the Annual Survey of Teachers in Service and Teacher Vacancies, 618g and the Welsh Stats 3 survey were apportioned by the information from the DTR to provide the estimate of the numbers of teachers receiving these salaries.

Teachers: South East

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) teachers and (b) classroom assistants were employed in each local education authority area in the South East in each year since 1997. [301280]

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) teachers and (b) classroom assistants were employed in maintained schools in each local authority in the South East in each year since 1997. [301353]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested for 1997, 2001 to 2009 is published in tables 19 and 26 of the Statistical First Release (SFR) "School Workforce in England (including Local Authority level figures) January 2009 (Revised)" published on 29 September 2009. The SFR is available at the following web link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000874/Tables19to27_Vals.xls

The information requested for 1998 to 2000 is published in tables 18 and 24 of the Statistical First Release (SFR) "School Workforce in England (including pupil:teacher ratios and pupil:adult ratios), January 2006 (Revised)" published on 28 September 2006. The SFR is available at the following web link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000681/index.shtml

Teachers: Training

Mr. Pelling: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent estimate he has made of the proportion of schools funding which is retained by schools for the professional development of teachers. [301558]

Mr. Coaker: Funding for the continual professional development (CPD) of teachers is included within school's delegated budgets for the whole work force. It is for schools to determine how to spend this based on individual teacher needs, identified and agreed through the performance management process, and the school's own development/improvement priorities.

However, Section 52 outturn data—which are the Department's source of information on expenditure across all local authority maintained schools—suggest that in the financial year 2007-08 maintained schools in England spent £180 million from delegated budgets on development and training for staff in schools; representing around 0.5 per cent. of total expenditure in schools. This includes expenditure on:

- development and training costs for all staff (directly and not directly employed) at the school;
- cost of all in-service training courses and other development opportunities; and
- cost of equipment and resources to provide in service training.

Teenage Pregnancy

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many girls aged 13 to 17 years became pregnant in each local authority area in 2007. [304743]

Dawn Primarolo: The latest (2007) data for each top-tier local authority are available on the 'Every Child Matters' website at the following link:

> http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/everychildmatters/healthandwellbeing/teenagepregnancy/statistics/

This provides the number and rate of conceptions and the proportion of conceptions that resulted in an abortion. The final column also shows the percentage change in the local conception rate between 1998 (the baseline year for the Teenage Pregnancy Strategy) and 2007.

At a national level, there has been a 10.5 per cent. fall in the teenage conception rate over this period. Within this decline in teenage conceptions overall, there has been a 23.3 per cent. decline in teenage births.

Although annual data for 2008 are not yet available, ONS has published quarterly conception data for the first three quarters of 2008. This shows a further reduction in the under 18 conception rate in each quarter compared to the corresponding quarters in 2007.

Youth Services: Greater London

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the (a) net expenditure on youth services, (b) local education authority net expenditure on youth services and (c) per pupil average spend on youth services or nearest equivalent was in each London borough in 1999-2000. [304523]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government do not set a budget for spending on youth services. Local authorities decide what should be the expenditure, taking into account Government policy and local needs. The following table shows, for each London borough, the net expenditure and the net revenue expenditure on youth services and the revenue expenditure per head of the 14 to 19-year-old population in 1999-2000.

The Education (Outturn Statements) (England) Regulations LA based net expenditure on youth services[1] per head of population (aged 14-19)[2] in 1999-2000

2. Population of 14 to 19-year-olds is based on ONS mid-year estimates for each local authority. A weighting of 3/4-1/4 has been given to the 2007 and 2008 figures in order to give an estimate for the financial year.

3. Data are provided as reported by the Las in the 1999-2000 outturn exercise. Values of zero for Wandsworth and Hackney LA may be because of discrepancies in the data and this should be acknowledged in any further use of the data. All data matches that published for the 1999-2000 outturn exercise.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many days each hospital started at a (a) level three, (b) level four and (c) level five bed state in accident and emergency in each of the last five years; and how many days each hospital issued a red alert concerning accident and emergency in each of the last five years. [304245]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: This information is not collected centrally. Bed capacity management systems are a matter for local trusts. There is no national definition of particular bed states nor of particular colour alerts.

Ambulance Services: Crimes of Violence

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many physical assaults against staff of ambulance trusts serving the South East Region were reported in each county in each of the last three years. [304757]

Ann Keen: The information is not available centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Since 2004-05, the number of physical assaults against staff reported by national health service bodies in England has been collected annually by the NHS Security Management Service (SMS).

The numbers of physical assaults against NHS staff reported by the South Central Ambulance Service NHS trust and the South East Coast Ambulance Service NHS trust in the years 2006-07 to 2008-09 are shown in the following table.

| | 2006-07 | 2007-08 | 2008-09 |
|---|---|---|---|
| South East Coast Ambulance Service NHS trust | 81 | 69 | 107 |

The NHS SMS can assist employers through guidance on assessing risks and acting to protect staff from assaults and, where incidents do occur, on taking action against offenders. The NHS SMS also works with stakeholders, including the Social Partnership Forum, to promote the safety and security of NHS staff.

Arthritis: Health Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to ensure that the NHS Indicators for Quality Improvement include greater reference to the treatment of musculoskeletal disorders, with reference to the recommendations of the National Audit Office report on Service for People with rheumatoid arthritis. [304420]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department has asked the National Quality Board to advise on priorities for quality indicator development across national health service services and they will be reporting back in 2010. Indicators for treatment of musculoskeletal conditions will be considered as part of that process.

Biofuels: Air Pollution

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 2 November 2009, Official Report, column 672W, on biofuels: air pollution, if he will estimate the levels of (a) mortality and (b) morbidity arising from additional emissions of (i) between 1.7 and 6.3 kt of fine particles and (ii) between 1.3 and 7.6 kt of coarser particles consequent upon achieving the biomass targets set out in the renewable energy strategy. [301637]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have been asked to reply.

The health impacts on air quality of the increase in particle emissions referred to in the question were converted to monetary values, using advice from the Department of Health on the health effects of particles and economic methodologies agreed by the Interdepartmental Group on Costs and Benefits. The impacts of fine and coarse particles were not assessed individually.

The impacts on morbidity resulting from the uptake of biomass as a renewable energy source were also not assessed during the analyses.

The available estimates of the number of life years lost in 2020 from the impact on air quality of the increased biomass combustion was estimated to be 340,000 for an uptake of 38 TWh of biomass with appliances with the very lowest emission on the market emitting 1.3 kt of coarse particles and 1,300,000 for medium quality units representing what is typical of the currently available units emitting annually 7.6 kt of coarse particles.

The results presented above are for the whole of the UK and are given in their raw output form. The analysis is subject to considerable uncertainty in the underlying assumptions.

Care Homes: Patients' Rights

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding under the Dignity in Care campaign each local authority has received; which care homes in each local authority area were awarded extra funding from this allocation to improve dignity; how much each such home received; what the funding was proposed to be used for in each case; and what monitoring was undertaken to ensure the funding was spent on the objectives of the campaign. [304244]

Phil Hope: As part of the Dignity in Care campaign, local authorities received a £67.725 million capital grant for improving the care home environment for older people in 2007-08. Local Authority Circular (2006) 16 set out how this one-off capital grant was to be allocated and provided conditions for its use. A copy has been placed in the Library.

The grant was made available to local authorities, for distribution to homes with whom they hold a contract, and in which a majority of patients are over 65 years of age. All arrangements for publicising the grant, deciding how to allocate the money and informing applicants of the outcome were made locally.

Requests for information on homes benefiting from these grants should be made to the relevant local authorities. Detailed information is not held centrally by the Department.

Complementary Medicine: Regulation

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he plans to publish his Department's response to its consultation on the statutory regulation of practitioners of acupuncture, herbal medicine, traditional Chinese medicine and other traditional medicine systems practised in the UK. [304008]

Ann Keen: The Department has received a large number of responses to the recent consultation on the statutory regulation of practitioners of acupuncture, herbal medicine, traditional Chinese medicine and other traditional medicine systems practised in the United Kingdom. Once these have been analysed, the Department will publish its response. This is not expected to be before summer 2010.

Departmental Official Cars

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of providing official cars for the use of (a) Ministers and (b) officials in the last 12 months. [301174]

Phil Hope: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement about the cost of ministerial cars made by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark) on 16 July 2009, Official Report, columns 79-80WS.

For the cost of cars to officials, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Transport (Paul Clark) on 2 December 2009, Official Report, column 762W.

Departmental Scientists

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 1 December 2009, Official Report, column 653W, on departmental scientists, how many (a) scientific advisers and (b) civil servants in scientific posts work at (i) Richmond House, (ii) Quarry House and (iii) other of his Department's offices. [304452]

Phil Hope: Information about the number of scientific advisers and civil servants in scientific posts is not held centrally, so it is not possible to give an accurate figure by building.

Departmental Security

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many security passes his Department has issued to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months. [303945]

Phil Hope: In the period from 1 December 2008 to 30 November 2009, there were 234 new contractor records on the Department's Business Management System. In the same period, there were 115 new consultant records.

A security pass cannot be issued without a suitable record on the Department's Business Management System.

Dr. Foster

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what dates (a) Ministers and (b) officials of his Department have met Dr. Foster Ltd in the last 12 months. [304702]

Phil Hope: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Eyesight: Testing

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many eye tests were funded by the public purse in each region in each of the last two years; and what percentage of those who had eye tests subsequently received (i) spectacles for the first time and (ii) replacement or repairs of spectacles funded by the public purse. [303574]

Ann Keen: Information on the number of sight tests paid for by the national health service in England, is provided in Table 1 of the 'General Ophthalmic Services: Activity Statistics for England and Wales—Year ending 31 March 2009' report. Information is provided for the years ending 31 March, 2000 to 31 March 2009.

Sight test information by strategic health authority (SHA) and by primary care trust (PCT) level for the years 31 March 1997 to 31 March 2009 is available in Table B1 of Annex C of the above report.

The number of those who receive spectacles for the first time is not collected centrally.

Table 9 of this report shows the number of vouchers for spectacles or contact lenses paid for by the NHS in England for the years ending 31 March 2000 to 2009.

Table 15 of the above report shows the number of items for repair or replacement, in England, for the years ending 31 March 2000 to 2009.

Information on the numbers of vouchers and the numbers of items for repair or replacement by SHA and by PCT for the years ending 31 March 1997 to 31 March 2009 is available in Tables B1 of Annex D and A1 of Annex E of the above report.

This report, published on 19 August 2009, has already been placed in the Library and is available online at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/eye-care/general-ophthalmic-services:-activity-statistics-for-england-and-wales-year-ending-31-march-2009

All the reports have been published by The NHS Information Centre for health and social care.

Forensic Science: Offences Against Children

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what clinical and governance standards apply to health facilities used to obtain forensic evidence from children subject to sexual assault in order to assist in the potential prosecution of criminal offences. [302644]

Ann Keen: Governance arrangements for health facilities used to obtain forensic evidence from children subject to sexual assault will be for local determination and should be in keeping with national guidance on safeguarding children.

The Department of Health, the Home Office and the Association of Chief Police Officers published joint guidance in October 2009 which sets out the minimum elements essential for providing high quality Sexual Assault Referral Centres for adults and children who are victims of sexual assault. This covers forensic medical examination.

Clinical standards, 'Physical Signs of Child Sexual Abuse—An Evidence Based Review and Guidance for Best Practice', was published by the Royal College of Paediatrics and Child Health in March 2008. The standards describe physical signs of sexual abuse, the strength of evidence of those signs being due to sexual abuse and issues for clinical practice. Good practice in history taking, obtaining consent, examination technique, photo documentation, forensic sampling and testing for sexually transmitted diseases is described.

In addition, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence published clinical guidelines in July 2009 on how to recognise child maltreatment which includes how to recognise signs of sexual abuse.

Health Professions: Manpower

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) GPs, (b) dentists, (c) optometrists and (d) pharmacies there were in each region in each of the last two years; and how many this equated to per 100,000 resident population in each category. [303576]

Ann Keen: The numbers of general practitioners (GPs) per 100,000 resident population are available as at 30 September 2007 and 2008, for England and by strategic health authority (SHA) and primary care trust (PCT).

Data as at 30 September 2007 are available in the 'General and Personal Medical Services. Detailed Results' report. This report, published on 14 March 2008, has been placed in the Library and is also available on the NHS Information Centre website at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/pharmacies/general-pharmaceutical-services-in-england-1999-2000-to-2008-09

Data on the numbers of pharmacists working within the pharmacies are not collected by the NHS Information Centre and therefore is not available centrally.

Health Services: Sight Impaired

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will take steps to increase the provision of information to blind or partially-sighted people on their (a) diagnosis and (b) treatment. [303362]

Ann Keen: Under the Disability Discrimination Act 1995, service providers are required to make reasonable adjustments for disabled people. This means they must take reasonable steps to change any practice, policy or procedure which makes it unreasonably difficult for a disabled person to make use of their services. This may include producing information about the diagnosis and treatment of medical conditions in different formats, depending on an assessment of the person's needs. It is up to individual service providers as to how they make any necessary reasonable adjustments.

HIV Infection: Circumcision

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has evaluated on the effects of male circumcision on the risk of contracting HIV. [304406]

Gillian Merron: The Expert Advisory Group on AIDS, which provides the Department with expert scientific advice on HIV, keeps the evidence on the effect of male circumcision on prevention of HIV transmission under review.

Male circumcision has been demonstrated to reduce heterosexual (female-to-male) transmission of HIV by around 60 per cent. in randomised controlled trials in Africa.

HIV Infection: Health Education

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps his Department has taken to reduce HIV-related stigma. [304693]

Gillian Merron: "The National Strategy for Sexual Health and HIV" (2001) included reducing HIV stigma as one of its goals. The Department funded the Medical Foundation for AIDS and Sexual Health (MedFASH) who published in October 2009, "Tackling HIV Testing", a resource pack for hospital staff which addresses the impact of stigma on accepting and offering an HIV test.

The Department has also contributed to the African HIV Policy Network's "Changing Perspectives" campaign and the publication in June 2009 of HIV toolkits for African faith leaders which address issues linked to stigma.

This is additional to work funded following publication by the Department of "Tackling Stigma" in May 2007, which included a National AIDS Trust campaign on improving accurate press coverage of HIV and work with employers, as well as a booklet produced by NAM publications on "HIV Stigma and You" for people living with HIV (second edition published 2009).

Hospitals: Crimes of Violence

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many hospital staff in England were physically assaulted while on duty in each of the last three years; [303575]

(2) how many hospital staff in England were hospitalised as a result of assault while on duty in each of the last three years. [303577]

Ann Keen: Information on the number of hospital staff in England physically assaulted while on duty is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Information on the number of hospital staff in England hospitalised as a result of assault while on duty is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Information on the number of reported physical assaults against national health service staff in 2006-07 and 2007-08 is contained in the 'Tables showing number of reported physical assaults on NHS staff from 2004-05 to 2007-08, broken down by NHS trust/PCT' which have already been placed in the Library.

Information on the number of reported physical assaults against NHS staff in 2008-09 is contained in the 'Tables showing number of reported physical assaults on NHS staff in 2008-09, broken down by NHS trust/PCT' which have already been placed in the Library.

The NHS Security Management Service (NHS SMS) can assist employers through guidance on assessing risks and acting to protect staff from assaults and, where incidents do occur, on taking action against offenders. The NHS SMS also works with stakeholders, including the Social Partnership Forum, to promote the safety and security of NHS staff.

Hospitals: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were issued with parking fines following parking in hospital car parks in Milton Keynes in each of the last five years. [304344]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: These data are not collected centrally.

The management of national health service car parking is the responsibility of the NHS organisations locally. This includes the use of parking fines if the NHS consider it appropriate to reduce congestion and deter misuse of the facilities provided.

Hospitals: Standards

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of Monitor in assessing clinical performance at NHS hospitals. [303857]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The National Health Service Act 2006 requires Monitor (the statutory name of which is the Independent Regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts) to be accountable to Parliament and to exercise its functions effectively, efficiently and economically.

Influenza: Stockport

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many doses of seasonal influenza vaccine had been distributed to health centres in the Stockport Primary Care Trust area in the 12 months to 1 December 2009. [304125]

Gillian Merron: Seasonal influenza vaccine is ordered by general practitioner (GP) practices direct from the manufacturers. The Department is not involved in the ordering process and does not have information about amounts ordered or distributed. Seasonal influenza vaccine is distributed from mid-September onwards, with most GP practices starting vaccination from early October.

Members: Correspondence

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidance he has issued to strategic health authorities on the length of time within which they should aim to reply to correspondence from hon. Members; [303173]

(2) if his Department will issue guidance to NHS trusts on the length of time within which they should aim to reply to correspondence from hon. Members; [303174]

(3) what directions the NHS issues to staff of (a) NHS trusts and (b) strategic health authorities on the (i) provision and (ii) timeliness of replies to correspondence from hon. Members. [304152]

Ann Keen: In March 2009, the following guidance was issued to NHS chief executives via the NHS chief executive's monthly bulletin of "key messages":

Handling correspondence from MPs

> "NHS organisations are reminded of the importance of handling correspondence from MPs in the appropriate manner. NHS organisations will receive letters from MPs on a variety of topics and these should receive the personal consideration and response of the Chief Executive or, in some situations, it may be appropriate for the Chair to respond in behalf of their organisations. Some of these letters will be written on behalf of patients and carers and these may need to be handled as part of the complaints system but this does not mean that they should not be given the same priority as letters from MPs on any topic."

NHS: East of England

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations he has received from the East of England strategic health authority on the performance of NHS trusts in its area. [303814]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department holds strategic health authorities to account for the performance of the national health service in its area using the results of the Care Quality Commission Annual health check, the NHS performance framework and other relevant information as a guide in that process.

NHS: Essex

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when (a) Basildon and Thurrock NHS Foundation Trust and (b) Colchester Hospital NHS Foundation Trust received visits from (i) the East of England strategic health authority, (ii) the Health Protection Agency, (iii) the NHS Patient Safety Agency, (iv) the Care Quality Commission, (v) Monitor, (vi) the Health and Safety Executive and (vii) the NHS Litigation Authority in the last 12 months. [303855]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The chairman of Monitor (the statutory name of which is the Independent Regulator of NHS Foundation Trusts) will write to the hon. Member with the information he requested, and a copy of this letter will be placed in the Library.

Nurses: Graduates

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of new entrants to registered nursing in the NHS were graduates in each of the last 10 years. [303579]

Ann Keen: The information is not collected centrally.

Work force planning, including training, in the national health service is managed and led at a local level by the strategic health authorities taking into account the national policy direction.

Local NHS organisations are best placed to determine the levels of service and resource required to meet the health needs of the local population.

Nutrition Action Plan Delivery Board

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the letter sent by the Minister of State for Care Services to the hon. Member for Eddisbury of 4 November 2009, ref MS(CS)500124, if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of each meeting of the Nutrition Action Plan Delivery Board to date. [304246]

Phil Hope: All the meeting minutes of the Nutrition Action Plan Delivery Board have been placed in the Library.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the letter sent by the Minister of State for Care Services to the hon. Member for Eddisbury of 4 November 2009, ref MS(CS)500124, for what reasons Ministers need to consider the recommendations contained in the final report of the Nutrition Action Plan Delivery Board before the final report is published. [304247]

Phil Hope: The report makes recommendations addressed to Government and other organisations. Ministers are considering how to respond to those recommendations.

Palliative Care

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what definition his Department uses of (a) palliative and (b) end-of-life-care. [304942]

Phil Hope: The Department uses the following definitions, based on those used by the World Health Organisation and the National Council for Palliative Care:

> Palliative care is the active holistic care of patients with advanced progressive illness, focusing on the management of pain and other symptoms and the provision of psychological, social and spiritual care; and
> End-of-life care is care that helps all those with advanced, progressive, incurable illness to live as well as possible until they die. It enables the supportive and palliative care needs of both patients and family to be identified and met throughout the last phase of life and into bereavement. It includes management of pain and other symptoms and provision of psychological, social, spiritual and practical support.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the (a) median, (b) mean and (c) maximum lifespan of those receiving palliative care. [304945]

Phil Hope: This information is not collected centrally.

Patient Choice Schemes

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidelines his Department has issued on patient access to treatment by extended choice network providers; and what recent assessment he has made of the range of conditions for which patients are being treated by extended choice network providers. [304108]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: All approved extended choice networks (ECN) providers must agree to the ECN rules and sign up to a membership agreement prior to service commencement.

ECN providers undertake adult elective procedures. The range of procedures is listed in the ECN rules.

As at 30 September 2009, more than 105,000 patients have been treated under the extended choice and free choice networks.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients were refused a referral to an extended choice network provider by such a provider in each of the last three years. [304109]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department does not hold this information as extended choice network providers are not required to submit data on refused patient referrals to the Department. Patient referral issues will be monitored locally by the appropriate primary care trust.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which psychiatric disorders are included in the list of conditions in relation to which providers in the extended choice network may refuse a patient referral. [304111]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: To help safeguard patient safety, Extended Choice Network rules state that a facility providing elective care should not treat a patient who has a current and significantly unstable psychiatric disorder where it cannot reasonably be expected to accommodate the patient's needs.

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what criteria providers in the extended choice network are permitted to refuse referrals relating to (a) patients with psychiatric disorders and (b) other patients. [304112]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: National health service patients are assessed to ensure that they are treated in a clinically appropriate setting.

The Extended Choice Network rules list the patient and procedure exclusions.

The listed exclusions are:

Patient:

any person under the age of 18-years-old;

any patient with an American Society of Anaesthesiologists (ASA) score of three (who is unstable), unless the appropriate critical care facilities that meet the "Levels of Critical Care for Adult Patients" Standards and Guidelines (Intensive Care Society 2002) are available;

any patient with an ASA score higher than three (whether stable or unstable), unless the appropriate critical care facilities that meet the "Levels of Critical Care for Adult Patients" Standards and Guidelines (Intensive Care Society 2002) are available; and a patient who has a current and significantly unstable psychiatric disorder where the approved facility cannot reasonably be expected to accommodate the patient's needs.

Procedure:

clinically urgent procedures (being patients that require surgery within 10 days for a clinical reason); procedures related to maternity services;

termination of pregnancy;

surgery indicated to be for cosmetic reasons;

any procedure that is likely to require critical care, unless the appropriate critical care facilities that meet the "Levels of Critical Care for Adult Patients" Standards and Guidelines (Intensive Care Society 2002) are available; and in vitro fertilisation treatment for a patient that exceeds the number of procedures that would in the same circumstances be offered to that patient in his/her local NHS area or which is not in compliance with the licensing regulations laid down by the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority.

Scientists

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many occasions he has met (a) the Government Chief Scientific Adviser and (b) his Department's Chief Scientific Adviser in the course of his official duties in the last 12 months. [303969]

Phil Hope: In the course of the last 12 months and in their capacity as Secretary of State for Health my right hon. Friend the Member for Kingston upon Hull, West and Hessle (Alan Johnson) and my right hon. Friend the Member for Leigh (Andy Burnham) have met the Government Chief Scientific Adviser on three occasions and the Department's Chief Scientific Adviser on four occasions.

Selly Oak Hospital

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) patients and (b) military personnel have been treated for noise-induced hearing loss at Selly Oak Hospital in the last five years. [304009]

Phil Hope: No patients or military personnel have been admitted to Selly Oak Hospital with noise effects on the inner ear, which includes but is not limited to noise-induced hearing loss, as a primary or secondary diagnosis in the last five years (2004-05 to 2008-09). Data for the number of outpatients treated for noise effects on the inner ear are not collected centrally.

Sickle Cell Diseases

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he has visited any sickle cell disorder support groups in the last 12 months. [302905]

Ann Keen: Ministers have not visited any sickle cell disorder support groups in the last 12 months.

However I met with representatives from the Wolverhampton Sickle Cell Care and Social Activity Centre on 29 October 2008 and the UK Thalassaemia Society on 21 April 2009 to discuss respectively, care of sickle cell anaemia and thalassaemia patients. I also provided a statement of support in July 2009 for the All Party Parliamentary Group publication 'Sickle Cell Disease and Thalassaemia: A Health Check to raise awareness of these conditions'.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps his Department has taken to improve the standard of services for those diagnosed with sickle cell anaemia. [302909]

Ann Keen: The planning, delivery and improvements in services for people diagnosed with sickle cell anaemia are the responsibility of local commissioners, providers and their relevant stakeholders.

We are working with a range of commissioners and stakeholders to improve the integration of health and social care services for people with sickle cell anaemia and to ensure that they receive the information and support that they need to manage their condition effectively.

Siemens

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has entered into any contracts with Siemens or its subsidiaries since February 2009. [303761]

Phil Hope: Since February 2009, the Department has entered into one contract with Siemens.

Social Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) with reference to the answer of 12 October 2009, Official Report, column 702W, on departmental publications, if he will publish each detailed model for the proposals outlined in the Green Paper, "Shaping the Future of Care Together", apart from that relating to the provision of free personal homecare to certain users; [304212]

(2) for what reason he did not publish the economic modelling for the "Shaping the Future of Care Together" consultation before the consultation was concluded. [304241]

Phil Hope: The Department is working towards publishing a White Paper on care and support in early 2010. We have been working with the Personal Social Services Research Unit (PSSRU) to provide the modelling and analysis to underpin our policy development. We were provided with an interim report from PSSRU in November but that was based on a view of the system when the Green Paper was published. Our core modelling assumptions have changed quite significantly since then as a result of our stakeholder engagement, responses to our consultation and developments such as the Prime Minister's announcement on free personal care. The report is therefore only part of the story and we have come to the conclusion that to publish it now could be unhelpful to the wider debate on the future of care and support.

The whole methodology of the interim report was published in July on the PSSRU's website at:

http://www.pssru.ac.uk/pdf/dp2644.pdf

The top-level costs and benefits are in the impact assessment published with the Green Paper and available on the Big Care Debate website at:

http://careandsupport.direct.gov.uk/greenpaper/the-green-paper-and-supporting-documents/

PSSRU continue to model the costs and benefits of a new National Care Service based on revised assumptions.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 4.5 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, for what reasons re-ablement will not be made available to those receiving palliative care. [304813]

Phil Hope: It would be for local councils to assess whether or not an individual would benefit from re-ablement.

In the vast majority of cases, where people are receiving palliative care at the end of their lives, it is likely that such an intervention would be both entirely inappropriate and of no benefit to them.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will estimate, on the basis of the assumptions in the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, the cost to the Exchequer of the free personal care proposed to be provided in each year to 2030. [304941]

Phil Hope: The impact assessment estimates the first full year costs of extending free personal care at home to those with the highest needs at £537 million. It also estimates the costs of providing re-ablement services over the same period at £130 million, bringing the total costs of the proposals to approximately £670 million.

The impact assessment only covers the period from October 2010 to the end of 2012-13. Estimating beyond this point is problematic because of the uncertainties involved. The proposals here are intended as a step towards a fully integrated National Care Service, at which point a different set of assumptions may need to be applied.

Strokes: Health Education

Laura Moffatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has for the future of his Department's FAST campaign to raise stroke awareness. [303447]

Ann Keen: The FAST campaign was re-launched on television in November and will run until the end of December this year. Further adverts accompanied by a national print media campaign are planned to run from February to March next year.

The Department's FAST website has been updated and now includes a simple online exercise enabling people to test their knowledge of FAST. Further work which aims to embed the FAST message in first aid manuals and training programmes, ensuring sustained delivery of the campaign message, is ongoing.

In the coming months we will continue to monitor the impact of the campaign and plans for future activity in 2010-11 will build on the outcome of this work.

Swine Flu: Vaccination

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment has been made of the adequacy of supplies of the H1N1 vaccine to GP practices in order to meet the initial prioritisation of at-risk groups. [304151]

Gillian Merron: The Department has been monitoring the supply of swine flu vaccines to the national health service very closely and is in regular contact with the vaccine manufacturers and distributor.

As of 2 December 2009, 14.9 million doses of Pandemrix had been received in the United Kingdom, which was sufficient for all of the initial high-risk priority groups. An initial distribution of 500 doses of Pandemrix to every general practitioner (GP) practice in England was completed by 13 November 2009. From 12 November 2009 primary care trusts (PCTs) have been able to order additional supplies of vaccine for their GPs by using the Department's online ordering system.

While the timing of our overall delivery schedule has been reliant on predicted supplies from the manufacturer, we have taken action to ensure that supplies are pushed out to the national health service as fast as possible.

Graham Stringer: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects to reach agreement with the British Medical Association on procedures and policy for vaccinating children between the ages of six months and five years against swine influenza. [304230]

Gillian Merron: As of 3 December 2009, negotiations between the British Medical Association General Practitioners Committee and NHS Employers were continuing. The Department is seeking a prompt conclusion to the negotiations to enable the NHS to begin protecting children over six months and under five years from the H1N1 swine flu virus as soon as possible.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Youth Unemployment

15. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment she has made of the causes of changes in the level of youth unemployment in the last 12 months. [304076]

Jim Knight: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Romford (Andrew Rosindell).

23. Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment she has made of the reasons for changes in the level of youth unemployment in the last 12 months. [304084]

Jim Knight: Rising youth unemployment is one consequence of the global recession.

Unemployment is rising because more people are becoming unemployed in the recession and not because fewer people are leaving unemployment.

Long-term youth unemployment remains significantly below levels seen in previous recessions.

New Deal for Lone Parents

19. Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress has been made on the new deal for lone parents. [304080]

Yvette Cooper: Since new deal for lone parents was introduced in October 1998, it has helped over 635,000 lone parents into work.

Maintenance Payments: Absentee Fathers

20. Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if she will bring forward proposals to require absentee fathers of the children of teenage mothers to make maintenance payments when they are in work; and if she will make a statement. [304081]

Helen Goodman: Under the current rules absentee fathers are obliged to pay £5 a week when they are on benefit and, as they enter work, their child maintenance calculation increases correspondingly as a proportion of their income.

Economically Inactive Population

21. James Duddridge: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of the working age population in (a) the UK and (b) Rochford and Southend East constituency was economically inactive on the latest date for which figures are available. [304082]

Jim Knight: Data from the Annual Population Survey show that from April 2008 to March 2009, the percentage of the working age population in Rochford and Southend, East that is inactive was 24.3 per cent. and in the UK it was 21.3 per cent.

The inactivity rate in the UK is lower today than it was in 1997 and, excluding full-time students, is 2.3 percentage points lower.

Long-term Unemployment

24. Jim Sheridan: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps she is taking to reduce levels of long-term unemployment. [304085]

Jim Knight: Since 2008, the Government have made available £5 billion to provide substantial new support to get all unemployed jobseekers back to work.

This Government will not write off any individual and leave them languishing on benefits. That is why, through the new deal and the flexible new deal, people claiming benefits for 12 months or more will get the help they need to return to work.

Christmas

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many Christmas parties his Department plans to host in 2009; what has been budgeted for each such reception; what estimate she has made of the proportion of (a) lamb, (b) beef, (c) chicken, (d) pork, (e) turkey, (f) other meats, (g) vegetables, (h) fruit and (i) alcohol to be served at each such function which is produced in the UK; and if she will make a statement. [300863]

Jonathan Shaw: Departmental funds are not normally used to fund internal staff parties or recreational events. The cost of staff parties, including Christmas parties, are normally met by those staff attending. In an organisation of the size of DWP, such events are numerous and are not systematically recorded by the Department or its agencies. No information is held centrally on the food served at these events nor could the plans for such events in 2009 be made available without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Domestic Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on how many occasions she visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [303496]

Jim Knight: The Secretary of State has visited both Scotland and Wales once in her official capacity in the last 12 months. She has not visited Northern Ireland.

Departmental Taxis

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what contracts her Department has with private hire taxi companies; and what expenditure her Department has incurred against each such contract in each of the last three years. [300841]

Jim Knight: The Department of Work and Pensions currently has no contracts with private hire taxi companies and has not had any such contracts during the last three years.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if she will assess the merits of introducing an automatic call-back request feature for callers to her Department's telephone helplines to minimise the cost to callers. [301086]

Jim Knight [holding answer 24 November 2009]: Where a customer calling the Department for Work and Pensions' 0800 or 0845 services asks us to, or raises concerns over the cost of the call, we will offer to call them back. In addition to this, Jobcentre Plus has recently introduced a further improvement in customer service for customers calling their 0800 and 0845 benefit enquiry numbers from mobile phones. From October 2009, all customers calling these numbers from a mobile phone are now automatically offered a call-back.

The Department has also asked our telephony provider to investigate how we might employ automated interventions that allow customers to leave call-back numbers without waiting for connection to an agent. Potential solutions may involve either saving a customer's place in line or scheduling a call back time convenient to each customer.

Departmental Travel

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on what date she last travelled by (a) bus and (b) taxi in the course of her official duties. [302720]

Jim Knight: The Secretary of State has not travelled by bus or taxi in the course of her official duties.

Employment Services: Autism

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent steps her Department has taken to assist young people with autism find long-term employment. [304205]

Jonathan Shaw: We are fully committed to supporting young disabled people, including those diagnosed with autism, to find suitable and sustainable work. The Department will, following the recent consultation exercise on the Autism Bill, work closely with the Department of Health and others across government on the planned Autism Strategy.

The Department offers a number of programmes and services which help people with autism to find, and stay in employment.

Disability employment advisers in Jobcentre Plus, for example, can advise a customer about suitable job opportunities and specialised support available to disabled people. If necessary they can also advocate on a customer's behalf (by negotiating with employers), refer customers for an occupational health assessment, and use the professional expertise of work psychologists, who specialise in working with disabled people.

The Department has a number of specialist programmes that help disabled people move into paid work, some of which are only accessible through disability employment advisers. These programmes include work preparation, residential training and Workstep (a programme of supported employment).

Disabled people going into paid work may also be able to benefit from Access to Work, which provides practical advice and support to disabled people and their employers to help overcome work related obstacles resulting from disability. Access to Work provides a system of grants which contribute towards the cost of providing support, such as a job coach for a short period to help settle an autistic customer into work. Support can also be given to the customer in the form of awareness training on autism which can be delivered to the customer's colleagues.

Jobcentre Plus staff are also provided with training in the skills required to manage a range of behaviours demonstrated by customers, covering a variety of health conditions. This approach ensures that they are equipped to deal with diverse circumstances whilst treating customers as individuals. Advisers look at the interaction between the person, the job and an individual's ability and ensure that job goals relate to the customer's abilities and that work solutions are sought to overcome any challenges a customer might face in a particular job.

Incapacity Benefit

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were in receipt of incapacity benefit in each month since January 2004. [302350]

Jonathan Shaw: The available information is in the table.

1. Case load figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Employment and support allowance replaced incapacity benefit and income support paid on the grounds of incapacity for new claims from 27 October 2008.
3. The figures relating to employment and support allowance have been thoroughly quality assured to National Statistics standard. However, it should be noted that this is a new benefit using a new data source which may not have reached steady state in terms of operational processing and retrospection. Hence most recent data shown is provisional.

Jobcentre Plus

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of days were lost through sickness absence of Jobcentre Plus staff in each (a) region and (b) country of the UK in each of the last three years; what the rate of (i) early retirement and (ii) resignation on grounds of stress and ill health was amongst Jobcentre Plus staff in each (A) region and (B) country of the UK in each of the last three years; and what the rate of staff turnover was in Jobcentre Plus in each (1) region and (2) country of the UK in (y) 2007-08 and (z) 2008-09. [302246]

Jim Knight: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus, Darra Singh. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Darra Singh:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking what percentage of days were lost through sickness absence of Jobcentre Plus staff in each a) region and b) country of the UK in each of the last three years; what the rate of a) early retirement and b) resignation on grounds of stress and ill health was amongst Jobcentre Plus staff in each a) region and b) country of the UK in each of the last three years; and what the rate of staff turnover was in Jobcentre Plus in each a) region and b) country of the UK in i) 2007/08 and ii) 2008/09. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

The table in the following annex provides details by region/country of the percentage of days lost as a result of sick absence in Jobcentre Plus. This sets out the position for 2008/09 and the latest point we have information for, i.e. the 12 month period from November 2008 to October 2009. Unfortunately, we do not hold any earlier information covering working days available and working days lost for each region/country to calculate percentage absence rates. Jobcentre Plus reports its attendance management performance in terms of average working days lost and those are the details we retain to monitor progress.

We do not have details of resignations that arose due to stress or ill health. However, we do maintain details of numbers of ill health retirements. These are contained in the following annex for each of the last three years. The figures comprise all ill health retirement cases that arose in Jobcentre Plus during the period in question.

Details of staff turnover for 2007/08 and 2008/09 are set out in the table in the annex.

Jim Knight: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the acting chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Mel Groves. I have asked him to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Mel Groves:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how many Jobcentre Plus staff were employed in a) Sussex and b) the South East in each of the last 10 years. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Acting Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

New Deal for Young People

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 11 November 2009, Official Report, column 583W, on work experiences: young people, how Jobcentre Plus secures placements on each of the (a) work, (b) voluntary sector and (c) environmental taskforce options for participants in the New Deal for Young People. [302240]

Jim Knight: Jobcentre Plus does not directly secure placements for the New Deal for Young People options. It is the New Deal providers, as part of their contract with Jobcentre Plus, who source and secure suitable placements for all three options according to customer demand.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 11 November 2009, Official Report, column 583W, on work experience: young people, what steps Jobcentre Plus is taking to monitor the efficacy of each option available under the New Deal for Young People in helping the participant into work. [302247]

Jim Knight: DWP welfare to work providers are required to meet the quality and delivery standards set out in the contract specification for New Deal for Young People , and are subject to contract management and monitoring by DWP.

New Deal Prime Contracts are subject to external inspection by Ofsted in England and Estyn in Wales. This is to provide independent assurance, through the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, that publicly funded provision is delivering a quality experience to our individual customers.

In addition, providers are expected to follow the DWP Quality Framework which promotes the commitment to quality improvement through continuous self-assessment and development planning. Areas for improvement identified through self-assessment and inspection are addressed through the DWP contract management review process.

An external inspection regime will be introduced in Scotland by Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Education (HMIE) from January 2010.

Social Security Benefits: Drugs

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate she has made of the number of people on the trial programme to have lost benefit entitlement as a result of testing positive for drugs. [301380]

Jim Knight: The Department for Work and Pensions is not currently running any trial programme in which people have lost, or indeed could lose, benefit entitlement as a result of testing positive for drugs.

Arrangements are included in the Welfare Reform Act November 2009 to enable pilots for problem drug users within the benefit system, to take place from autumn 2010 in Central London, Cumbria and Lancashire, Merseyside, West Yorkshire, Birmingham and Solihull.

These pilots will offer additional support to those problem drug users already in treatment. In return, and in order to receive benefit payments, they will also test an approach in which claimants with a drug dependency that is a barrier to employment, and who are not already receiving drug treatment, will be required to sign up to a rehabilitation plan that will outline how they will engage with the help that is available to them to overcome their addiction. That is to say that doing nothing will no longer be an option for this group.

While these provisions will also allow for people on benefits to be required to take drug tests in certain limited and prescribed circumstances, there will be no loss of entitlement as a result of any positive test.

Unemployment: Young People

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps her Department is taking to reduce the level of youth unemployment; and if she will make a statement. [304063]

Jim Knight: We have launched a number of targeted initiatives to tackle youth unemployment.

From next month, the young person's guarantee will ensure all 18 to 24-year-olds on JSA will be guaranteed either the offer of a job, work-focused training or meaningful activity. They will then be required to take up one of these opportunities.

The Future Jobs Fund will create 150,000 jobs. Around 95,000 jobs have already been approved and some have already started.

But the Government can not prevent youth unemployment on our own. That is why we launched backing Young Britain and I am delighted to report that as a result over 330 employers are already pledging new opportunities for young people.

WALES

Departmental Freedom of Information

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 his Department received in 2008; and how many of these received a substantive response within 20 days. [305487]

Mr. Hain: In 2008-09 the Wales Office received 49 requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000. 42 of these were answered within 20 days.

Departmental Manpower

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what changes to senior officials in his Department there have been during his present appointment as Secretary of State. [305095]

Mr. Hain: A new director has been appointed and three senior civil servant posts have been filled substantively.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many posts at each grade in his Department are unfilled. [305184]

Mr. Hain: There are six posts vacant currently. One at band A (grade 7), one at band C (higher executive officer), three at band D (executive officer) and one at band E (administrative officer).

Departmental Security

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many security passes his Department has issued to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months. [303957]

Mr. Hain: None.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

BAE Systems

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Solicitor-General whether the Attorney-General has had recent discussions with ministerial colleagues on the Serious Fraud Office's announcement that it intends to seek the Attorney-General's consent for prosecution in relation to charges against BAE Systems. [304096]

The Solicitor-General: The Attorney-General has had no such discussions.

Departmental Assets

Dr. Cable: To ask the Solicitor-General what assets of the Law Officers' Departments are planned to be sold in each year from 2009-10 to 2013-14; what the (a) description and (b) book value of each such asset is; what the expected revenue from each such sale is; and if she will make a statement. [300207]

The Solicitor-General: The Law Officers' Departments hold only minimal freehold assets, and in line with core Government policy actively manage their estates with a view to operational efficiency. Currently there are no plans to sell any assets in the years 2009-14.

The Government have stated their intention to realise £16 billion in asset disposals over the period 2011-14 and will publish further details of opportunities to commercialise business assets in the coming weeks.

Departmental Data Protection

Angela Browning: To ask the Solicitor-General what security requirements are made by the Law Officers' Departments in respect of (a) people employed to provide audio transcription services to his Department from home, (b) the premises in which work to provide such services is carried out and (c) arrangements for the transfer of data between such premises and the Law Officers' Departments. [302692]

The Solicitor-General: The Attorney-Generals' Office, the Serious Fraud Office, Treasury Solicitors, the National Fraud Office and HM Crown Prosecution Services Inspectorate do not employ people to provide this service.

In the case of the Revenue and Customs Prosecution Service any such services used are supplied by HM Revenue and Customs, who are responsible for ensuring that their security requirements are complied with.

The CPS has contracts with the providers of audio transcription services that require the greatest possible degree of security commensurate with the value of the data and the risks, so as not to compromise the confidence of the vulnerable and intimidated witnesses who have provided the evidence, and to prevent misuse of the recordings, or transcripts for criminal or other unauthorised purposes.

The contract states that "the contractors shall store or process data only at sites specifically agreed in writing by the CPS". No permission has been sought or granted to any supplier to work outside their sites, or for any of their staff to work from home.

The four suppliers used by CPS set out their physical security arrangements for the premises as part of the tender. The details met the requirements of the CPS. The sites have subsequently been inspected and approved by staff from the Serious and Organised Crime Agency (SOCA).

All transfer of data between such premises and the CPS is carried out by Royal Mail—Special Delivery or Tracked Document Exchange (DX) or by hand in exceptional circumstances. This accords with the conditions set out in the Cabinet Office Security Policy Framework.

Departmental Leave

Mr. Laws: To ask the Solicitor-General how many days off in lieu (a) the Law Officers' Departments and (b) its agency granted to staff for working (i) during their lunch breaks and (ii) at other times outside contracted working hours in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [303734]

The Solicitor-General: The exact figures for time taken in lieu within the Law Officers' Departments and agency could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Sentencing: Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Solicitor-General on how many occasions sentences handed down in courts in Northern Ireland have been subject to a referral to the Court of Appeal by the Attorney-General on grounds of undue leniency in the last five years; and on how many such occasions the sentence was amended as a result. [304585]

The Solicitor-General: The matter falls to me to answer as the power to make a reference to the Court of Appeal rests with the Attorney-General for Northern Ireland.

The figures requested are as follows:

| | | | Number of offenders with sentence unchanged | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Number of offenders referred to Court of Appeal | Number of offenders with sentence increased by Court of Appeal | Court found sentence to be unduly lenient | Court found sentence not to be unduly lenient | Number of offenders with reference withdrawn |
| 2005 | 14 | 7 | 5 | 2 | 0 |
| 2006 | 6 | 3 | 1 | 1 | 1 |
| 2007 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 |
| 2008 | 9 | 5 | 2 | 1 | 1 |
| 2009[1] | 10 | 6 | 2 | 0 | 1 |

[1] One case referred in 2009 awaits hearing

Terrorism: USA

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Solicitor-General (1) when Law Officers were informed by the Crown Prosecution Service that there was no or insufficient evidence to maintain a prosecution against Lotfi Raissi with regard to the terrorist attacks in New York and Washington DC on 11 September 2001; [304137]

(2) when Law Officers and officials of the Law Officer's Departments discussed with representatives of the security services, the police, the Crown Prosecution Service or the US Federal Bureau of Investigation progress in the criminal investigation into the alleged activities of Lotfi Raissi with regard to the terrorist attacks in New York and Washington DC on 11 September 2001; [304138]

(3) when Law Officers and officials of the Law Officer's Departments were informed of the contents of the Crown Prosecution Service report on its conduct of the case relating to the alleged involvement of Lotfi Raissi in the terrorist attacks in New York and Washington DC on 11 September 2001. [304139]

The Solicitor-General: I will answer the three questions together. Due to the passage of time which has elapsed since the events in question, it has not been possible to establish when communications passed between the CPS and the Law Officers, or their officials, about the case of Lotfi Raissi in 2001-02. Given the high profile and sensitive nature of the case, the Law Officers would have been kept informed and told promptly of any significant developments. The Law Officers were informed in September 2008 of the contents of the CPS report.

PRIME MINISTER

10 Downing Street

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Prime Minister what records are archived on the premises of 10 Downing street. [304999]

The Prime Minister: The arrangements for the retention of records for the Prime Minister's Office are informed by "Operational Selection Policy OSP 12 (Records of the Central Direction and Oversight of Government Policy and Programmes, 1970-2000)" issued by The National Archives and available on The National Archives' website.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Consultants

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many external consultants work for his Department. [303239]

Paul Goggins: As at 27 November 2009, the Northern Ireland Office core and its Executive agencies employed five consultants on a full-time equivalent basis.

Departmental Disabled Staff

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of his Department's guidelines in relation to the recruitment and employment of disabled people in the Northern Ireland Office. [303474]

Mr. Woodward: As the majority of staff in the Northern Ireland Office are Northern Ireland civil servants on secondment from the Department of Finance and Personnel, the Northern Ireland Office follows the NICS policy on the recruitment and employment of disabled people, which is a devolved matter.

Departmental Security

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many security passes his Department has issued to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months. [303941]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office has not issued any security passes to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months.

Departmental Travel

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on what date he last travelled by (a) bus and (b) taxi in the course of his official duties. [302728]

Mr. Woodward: In accordance with advice the Secretary of State does not travel by bus or taxi for security reasons. All of my travel arrangements are undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

Prisons: Alcoholic Drinks

Mrs. Iris Robinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on how many occasions illicit alcoholic beverages have been found in the Sperrin unit of HM Prison Magilligan in the last five years. [305000]

Paul Goggins: There have been no illicit alcoholic beverages found in Sperrin House during the last five years.

Racially Aggravated Offences

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people were convicted of a racially-motivated crime in Northern Ireland in each of the last two years. [305007]

Paul Goggins: The information sought on convictions for racially-motivated crimes is not available. Conviction would be for the simple offence (e.g. assault) without reference to any racial motivation. Court conviction data do not contain background information in relation to offences committed, and it is therefore not possible to separate out the number of convictions for offences with a racial motivation.

Serious Organised Crime Agency: Northern Ireland

Mr. Dodds: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the operation of the Serious Organised Crime Agency in Northern Ireland. [303468]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I have been asked to reply.

The purpose of the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) is to prevent and detect serious organised crime and to mitigate its harms by other means throughout the UK. It discharges these functions in Northern Ireland as it does in the rest of the UK and reports its results in its annual report each year.

Sexual Offences

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many people were (a) prosecuted for and (b) convicted of (i) assault and (ii) sexual assault on teachers in Northern Ireland in each of the last two years. [305245]

Paul Goggins: The information requested is not available. Court prosecution and conviction data do not contain background information in relation to offences committed, and it is therefore not possible to separate out the number of prosecutions and convictions for assault and sexual assault on teachers.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Manpower

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will take steps to ensure sufficient agriculture engineers are trained to service the UK agricultural and food industry markets. [303802]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The issue of improving skills in the farming industry is best managed by the industry itself. Lantra, the Sector Skills Council for the Environmental and Land based industries, which includes the agricultural sector, has the role of representing the needs of the industry to Government.

DEFRA is working with a number of industry stakeholders, including Lantra, on an industry led action plan called Skills for Farming. This action plan has recently been discussed directly with the Secretary of State and work is ongoing. The action plan will cover all skill areas in the industry, including technical skills, as well as business, environmental management and low carbon farming skills.

Agriculture: Subsidies

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on administering non-compliance penalties issued under the Single Payment Scheme in each of the last five years. [303614]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Penalties, reductions and exclusions may be applied to Single Payment Scheme applications for a number of reasons if an application is found to be non-compliant. In answering this question we have taken 'non-compliance penalties' to mean all cases where a reduction has been made to farmers' payments under the Single Payment Scheme.

It is not possible to identify separately the costs of administering non-compliance penalties from overall administrative costs.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he made of the costs associated with the Rural Payments Agency's practice of resizing fields in each of the last three years. [303624]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Rural Payment Agency's (RPA) annual business as usual running costs of maintaining the Rural Land Register (RLR) mapping system by adjusting fields are as follows:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2008-09 | 2.9 |
| 2007-08 | 2.9 |
| 2006-07 | 4.3 |

In addition to the business as usual costs, RPA has projected a budget of £21.4 million (covering the period January 2007 to April 2010) to complete the programme of work which includes updating the RLR data with the latest mapping information and confirming the link between each land parcel and a specific claimant.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what assessment he has made of the average amount of personal debt incurred by farmers due to late Single Payment Scheme payments; [303626]

(2) what recent assessment his Department has made of the effect on farmers of late payments under the Single Payment Scheme. [303629]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Since the Single Payment Scheme (SPS) was introduced in 2005, the timing of payments to English farmers has improved year on year. That progress continued under the 2009 scheme when over 80 per cent. of farmers received payment on the opening two days of the regulatory seven month payment window.

Regrettably, some farmers are paid after the end of the payment window, but only under the 2005 scheme has the amount concerned exceeded the 4 per cent. 'franchise' in EU regulations that triggers late payment penalties. The 4 per cent. franchise exists in acknowledgment that some claims are particularly complex or involve legal issues, such as probate, which take additional time to resolve. Payments made after the end of the payment window may have an impact on individuals' financial position, but the Department is not aware of any data that would identify specifically related cases of debt. In order to minimise any such impacts, the Rural Payments Agency will continue its efforts to make outstanding payments as early as possible and pay interest in lieu of compensation, above a deminimis of £50, in cases where this is not possible until after the end of the payment window.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department (a) has been required and (b) is likely to be required to pay in financial penalties for non-compliance with European Commission requirements in respect of the Single Payment scheme in each year since 2005; and if he will make a statement. [304016]

Jim Fitzpatrick: To date, financial penalties of order of £64 million for late payments and £5 million for a shortfall in cross-compliance inspections have been imposed in respect of the 2005 Single Payment scheme. In addition, provisions have been made in DEFRA's accounts for potential 'disallowance' totalling £205 million in respect of the 2005 and 2006 Single Payment schemes combined. However, the European Commission has yet to complete its deliberations on this issue. No penalties/disallowance have been imposed or provisions made in respect of subsequent scheme years.

Agriculture: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the financial implications for farming incomes in Wales of the interpretation by (a) the European Court of Auditors and (b) the European Commission of the rules regulating EU agri-environmental schemes. [305183]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Welsh agri-environment schemes are funded by the Rural Development Plan (RDP) for Wales. The RDP for Wales is the responsibility of the Welsh Assembly Government and as such, any decisions on the implications for farming incomes in Wales are a matter for them.

Dangerous Dogs

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the reasons for trends in the number of cases of people attacked by dogs in the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [304118]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have made no such assessment.

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many arrests have been made for offences under the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 in (a) Merseyside and (b) England since the Act came into force. [304119]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested on arrests is not collected centrally.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level, covering categories such as violence against the person and robbery. Offences under the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991 are not notifiable offences and do not form a part of the collection.

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the (a) genetic and (b) other factors affecting the likelihood of different breeds of dogs being involved in attacks on people. [304120]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We have made no such assessment. However in April this year we commissioned new research into dog aggression against humans. The project will last for 15 months and will entail an analytical study into the risk factors associated with past aggressive dog behaviour towards people.

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people have been convicted for offences related to attacks by their dogs on (a) children and (b) other people in the last five years. [304121]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Information from the court proceedings database held by the Ministry of Justice provides information on the number of defendants proceeded against and found guilty for offences under the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991. The database does not hold specific information on offences beyond descriptions provided by the statutes under which prosecutions are brought, and for this offence cannot separately identify whether the individual attacked was a child or adult.

Defendants found guilty for selected offences under the Dangerous Dogs Act 1991, England and Wales, 2003 to 2007[1, 2]

| Offence description | Section of the Act | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 | Number2007 |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Owner or person in charge allowing dog to be dangerously out of control in a public place injuring any person | S.3(1) | 302 | 350 | 403 | 458 | 456 |
| Owner or person in charge allowing dog to be dangerously out of control in a public place, no injury being caused | S.3(1) | 171 | 167 | 168 | 160 | 205 |
| Owner or person in charge allowing dog to enter a non-public place and injure any person | S.3(3) | 33 | 25 | 25 | 29 | 27 |
| Owner or person in charge allowing dog to enter a non-public place causing reasonable apprehension of injury to a person | S.3(3) | 10 | 5 | 9 | 11 | 15 |

[1] The number proceeded against and number found guilty statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces and the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many dogs have been seized and put down in (a) Southport constituency, (b) Merseyside and (c) England in the last 12 months. [304122]

Jim Fitzpatrick: These figures are not held centrally.

Flood Control

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he plans to take to give the Fire Service a statutory duty to carry out flood rescues as recommended in the Pitt Report. [304334]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Following completion of the Flood Rescue National Enhancement Project, for which £2,000,000 has been allocated from DEFRA's funding to implement Sir Michael Pitt's recommendations, the Government will assess the improved flood rescue capability. We will also consider whether there is a need for a statutory duty to underpin the role of any of the agencies involved.

Land: Registration

Mr. Howard: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many and what proportion of maps issued have been returned due to error during the course of the 2009 update of the Rural Land Register; what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of work arising from maps returned due to error; and if he will make a statement. [302807]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 1 December 2009]: The Mapping Update project was undertaken to update the land information held on the Rural Land Register (RLR) by improving the quality of data and providing farmers with an accurate and up-to-date record of their land in respect of subsidy claims.

As at 27 November 2009, more than 107,000 maps have been sent to farmers and we have received 44,360 requests for changes. This represents some 41 per cent. of the maps issued and remains within the project's expectations.

The cost of making the requested edits and re-issuing maps is included in the overall RLR programme cost of £21.4 million was set out in my answer to the hon. Member for Cotswold (Mr. Clifton-Brown) 21 July 2009, Official Report, column 1167W.

While the latest Ordnance Survey data and recent aerial photography have been used, the maps will not show any changes to the land carried out more recently by farmers and the Rural Payments Agency (RPA) ask farmers therefore to confirm that the maps are correct, or what changes are necessary.

Each year the Rural Payments Agency receives about 25,000 business as usual requests for land changes from farmers. In 2009 many of these will be included in the Mapping Update requests.

Livestock: Animal Welfare

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many and what proportion of ships departing from UK ports carrying live animals have been subject to inspection for animal welfare purposes in each of the last five years. [303611]

Jim Fitzpatrick: All livestock vessels (other than roll-on, roll-off vessels which are exempt from the need to be formally approved) are inspected and approved prior to use. This is a requirement of Council Regulation (EC) No 1/2005 on the protection of animals during transport. It is not possible to provide figures for the previous five years since these data are not available centrally.

River Tame: EU Law

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to ensure the Tame River catchment meets the requirements of the EC Water Directive. [302895]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The consultation on the Humber River Basin Management Plan, which covers the River Tame catchment, ran from 22 December 2008 to 22 June 2009. The responses were used to further develop the plan which was sent to Ministers for approval on 22 September 2009.

There are a number of pressures on the Tame catchment, such as physical modifications due to urbanisation, flood protection, point source discharges from sewage works and diffuse run-off from urban areas.

Some of the key actions that will be implemented in the River Tame, subject to the River Basin Management Plan being approved, include:

Improvement to the quality of the final effluent from sewage treatment works, to reduce levels of nutrients in the catchment, including phosphorus via the Asset Management programme.

Targeted pollution prevention campaigns around industrial areas throughout the catchment.

Targeted discussions with local authorities on their contribution to the required actions.

Investigations into sources of poor water quality in water bodies and the impact of any abstractions within the catchment. Projects include "It's a Washout"   a study on identifying and tackling areas of urban diffuse run-off in the Upper Tame catchment.

Tackling diffuse pollution across the catchment with the use of projects involving local communities, local authorities and water companies.

Initiatives include the Washwood Heath Brook improvement project and the Thimble Mill Brook improvement project.

Tackling historic industrial pollution issues, for example, the leaching of heavy metals from contaminated land to the Rough Brook and also at Bentley Mill Way.

Projects for the improvement of fish populations within the River Tame catchment include creating refuges to shelter fish from pollution and flooding and improving the river   habitat, for example, by re-profiling projects at Tamworth and Croxall.

Feasibility reports for fish passes to allow fish to migrate to spawning habitats and re-colonise the river.

River restoration projects along the Tame and its tributaries, including channel braiding, gavel introduction, tree planting, floodplain habitat creation and reconnecting the river to its floodplain.

The first set of River Basin Management Plans for the period 2009-15 are due to be published on 22 December 2009.

Rural Payments Agency: Manpower

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) full-time, (b) part-time, (c) permanent and (d) temporary staff have been employed at the Rural Payments Agency in each year since 2005; and if he will make a statement. [304015]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Table 1 details the number of permanent and temporary staff employed at the Rural Payments Agency (RPA) in each year since 2005.

Table 1

| | 2005-06 | 2006-07 | 2007-08 | 2008-09 |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Permanent[1] | 2,555 | 2,666 | 2,344 | 2,829 |
| Temporary[2] | 1,949 | 1,801 | 1,953 | 871 |

[1] Includes only civil servants with permanent employment contracts

[2] Includes all staff who do not have permanent employment contracts, for example fixed-term and casual civil servants, employment agency workers and contractors

Table 2 shows how many full-time and part-time civil servants were employed at RPA in each year since 2005. RPA has not historically kept records on whether agency staff or contractors are full or part time.

Table 2

| | 2005-06 | 2006-07 | 2007-08 | 2008-09 |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Full time civil servants | 2,854 | 2,812 | 2,966 | 2,991 |
| Part time civil servants | 237 | 275 | 574 | 348 |

Sewers: Private Sector

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment his Department has made of the effect of the proposed provisions of the Private Drains and Sewers Transfer Bill on the drainage contracting industry. [305348]

Huw Irranca-Davies: At each stage of the Review of Private Sewers DEFRA has published Impact Assessments to accompany consultations and decisions. The latest Impact Assessment accompanied Hilary Benn's announcement of the decision to proceed with transfer in November 2008 and is available at:

www.defra.gov.uk/environment/quality/water/industry/sewers/documents/impact-assessment-private-sewers.pdf

The Small Firms Impact Test within this Impact Assessment acknowledged that some smaller independent drainage contractors perceive transfer as a threat. Some do see opportunities, such as CCTV work for example, because of course the work on sewers and laterals will still need to be undertaken.

A further Impact Assessment will accompany the consultation on proposals for implementation regulations on which I anticipate consulting this winter (2009-10), prior to presenting the final regulations to Parliament for approval.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consultation his Department undertook with the drainage contracting industry regarding the transfer of private drains to water companies in 2011. [305349]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In July 2003 DEFRA published the 'Review of Existing Private Sewers and Drains in England and Wales' consultation paper that sought views on a range of strategic options to deal with the problems of private sewers. The Government published a response to this consultation in October 2004. 81 per cent. of stakeholders favoured a change of ownership, and of these, 90 per cent. held the view that sewerage undertakers should take over responsibility. DEFRA acknowledged the strength of support for this solution and undertook to look at it in more depth.

Subsequently, representatives of 50 stakeholder groups were invited to a private sewers seminar in January 2005. This included a workshop looking at the potential impacts on small businesses.

Because of the drainage industry's fragmented nature and the fact that no national body specifically represents the views of smaller drainage companies it has been particularly difficult to seek contractors' views. However, following the workshop DEFRA undertook a telephone survey of over 130 contractors to identify the potential impacts of any transfer on them. DEFRA has also included the Society of British Water and Wastewater Industries and the National Sewerage Association, together with the Enterprise Directorate (formerly the Small Business Service), on a stakeholder steering group. These organisations have consistently made representations about the potential impact of transfer on smaller drainage businesses.

In February 2007 the Government published their decision paper and committed to consult on options for the implementation of transfer. A consultation paper on implementation options was published in July 2007, and Hilary Benn announced on 15 December 2008 the Government's decision to proceed with transfer from 2011.

Copies of the 2003 and 2007 consultation papers and the Government's 2004 response to the review were placed in the Library of the House on publication. A Summary of Responses to the 2007 Consultation on Implementation Options was published in March 2008 and is available from DEFRA.

Further consultation on the content of regulations to implement transfer will be published this winter and DEFRA continues to work closely with a range of interested stakeholders in developing proposals for implementation.

Water Charges: Concessions

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to the answer of 14 October 2009, Official Report, column 950W, on water charges, in which financial year he expects such concessionary schemes to commence; and what prior steps he is taking to assist voluntary organisations which are subject to surface water drainage charges. [305259]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Legislation to enable water and sewerage companies in England and Wales to operate concessionary schemes for community premises for the purpose of surface water drainage charges was included in the Flood and Water Management Bill. This was presented to Parliament on 19 November.

Currently four of the 10 water and sewerage companies in England and Wales have switched to site area charging for surface water drainage for non-household customers. Most of the problems originally occurred with United Utilities and it is currently looking at options to ensure that community groups do not face unaffordable surface water drainage charges ahead of the Government's legislation being in place.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Departmental Official Hospitality

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on (i) alcohol and (ii) entertainment in the last 12 months. [305543]

Mr. Simon: All expenditure on entertainment is incurred in accordance with the principles of Managing Public Money and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

The overall expenditure on entertainment by the Department in the last 12 months (to November 2009) was £126,470. It is not possible to disaggregate the spend on alcohol except at disproportionate cost.

The Royal Parks, the Department's agency, does not record information against these expenditure headings and it would incur disproportionate cost to obtain it by manually reviewing the year's underlying paperwork.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what payments Digital UK has made to (a) Weber Shandwick and (b) Fishburn Hedges in the last 12 months; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contracts under which such payments have been made. [305136]

Mr. Simon: The information you have requested is not held centrally and is a matter for Digital UK.

Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what payments the British Museum has made to Weber Shandwick Public Affairs in the last 12 months for which figures are available; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contracts under which such payments have been made. [305145]

Margaret Hodge: The information you have requested is not held centrally and is a matter for the British Museum.

Accordingly, I have asked the director to write to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Departmental Security

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many security passes his Department has issued to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months. [303950]

Mr. Simon: While the Department holds a record of security passes that have been issued to contractors, this is not broken down into those providing consultancy services and those who are not.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many telephone lines with the prefix (a) 0870, (b) 0845 and (c) 0800 his Department (i) operates and (ii) sponsors; how many calls were received to each number in the last 12 months; and whether alternative numbers charged at the BT local rate are available in each case. [305219]

Mr. Simon: My Department operates one of these, an 0800 number, and 1,422 calls were made to that number in last 12 months. No alternative number charged at the BT local rate is available as it is not necessary.

Holiday Accommodation: Overseas Visitors

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his latest estimate is of the use by overseas visitors of self-catering holiday accommodation in this country in each of the last three years. [303360]

Margaret Hodge: VisitBritain makes available data from the Office for National Statistics' International Passenger Survey. The data capture the number of inbound visitors, the number of nights spent in Britain by inbound visitors, and the amount spent on trips within the UK broken down by accommodation categories, though not specifically self-catering holiday accommodation. This information can be accessed at:

http://www.visitbritain.org/Images/acomm08pivot_tcm139-167995.xls

Horserace Totalisator Board

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made in preparations for the sale of the Tote. [305045]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government are preparing for the sale of the Tote in line with my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's announcement on 12 October 2009. The current intention is that a sale process would start in summer 2010 and be completed around March 2011.

Leisure: Expenditure

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) how many (a) playing fields and (b) swimming pools, there are in each (i) district council and (ii) unitary authority area in the East of England; [304577]

(2) what information his Department holds on expenditure on running costs for sports and leisure facilities at district and unitary council areas in the East of England. [304993]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England has supplied the information in the following table for the number of grass pitches and swimming pools in each district council and unitary authority area in the East of England.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to reply to the letter from the hon. Member for Tamworth of 16 October 2009. [303774]

Margaret Hodge: A response to your letter was sent out on 6 December 2009.

Museums and Galleries: Yorkshire and Humberside

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people visited each of the national museums in Yorkshire and the Humber in each year since 1996-97. [304513]

Margaret Hodge: The number of visits to the national museums which fall within the Yorkshire and Humber region are as follows.

[2] The National Media Museum was partially closed in 1997-98 and 1998-99 for refurbishment.

Tourism: Cumbria

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what support (a) his Department and (b) the Regional Development Agency is providing to assist Cumbria's tourism industry to recover from the recent flooding. [305044]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is as follows.

(a) My Department is part of the Government's Flood Recovery group and is monitoring the situation closely. We have been working with our partners to provide assistance for the tourism industry in the area. For example, Cumbria Tourism has set up a helpline to provide advice to visitors (01539 825070) and web pages to detail events going ahead. This will be supported by a pre-Christmas marketing campaign. English Heritage has ensured that one of their Historic Buildings advisors is free to provide specialist advice: it is still too early to know the full extent of the damage or the scale of response required, but this will become clearer over the coming weeks.

(b) The North West Development Agency (NWDA) announced a £1 million Flood Recovery Grants package for small and medium enterprises which includes support for tourism businesses. It was announced that this would be supplemented with an additional £100,000 to support the national marketing campaign, noted above, led by Cumbria Tourism. NWDA has also placed adverts in national papers promoting tourism businesses in the area and the NWDA tourism marketing team is pursuing similar lines to promote tourism in Cumbria. This activity is all in addition to the ongoing funding of Cumbria Tourism which will receive core funding of £1.4 million from NWDA in 2009-10.

TRANSPORT

Buses: Safety

Graham Stringer: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many buses were subject to (a) pre-notified and (b) un-notified safety inspections by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency in each of the last five years; and what proportion of these were issued with (i) immediate and (ii) suspended prohibition notices. [304680]

Paul Clark: The Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) have conducted the following tests on passenger service vehicles over the last five years:

| | Number of checks | Number prohibited |
|---|---|---|
| 2008-09 | 16,503 | 3,170 |
| 2007-08 | 14,362 | 2,651 |
| 2006-07 | 16,849 | 3,200 |
| 2005-06 | 17,510 | 2,772 |
| 2004-05 | 17,746 | 2,840 |

Note:

VOSA does not separately record (a) pre-notified and (b) un-notified safety inspections.

These data and further information are available in VOSA's effectiveness report available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/vosa/publications/corporatereports/2008-2009reportsuite/2008-2009reportsuite.htm

Graham Stringer: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport if he will place in the Library a copy of each report of research projects conducted by (a) his Department, (b) the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency and (c) the Traffic Commissioner on safety risks to the public in respect of the bus industry in the last 10 years. [304783]

Paul Clark: Any research conducted by the Department for Transport concerning safety risks to the public in respect of the bus industry would already be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Any research conducted by the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) is sponsored by the central Department. VOSA's enforcement figures regarding all public service vehicles are published in its Effectiveness report, a copy of which can be found in the Libraries of the House.

The Traffic Commissioners do not conduct research but may inform VOSA of any specific areas of concern they have. Any reference to safety risks by the bus industry would be found in the Traffic Commissioners Annual Report, a copy of which has been placed in the Libraries of the House.

Graham Stringer: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how much funding his Department allocated through the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency for the monitoring of performance in relation to bus services in each of the last three years; and how much funding he plans to allocate for such purposes in each of the next three years. [304784]

Paul Clark: Funding allocated by the Department to the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency for bus punctuality enforcement for the last three financial years is set out in the following table. Decisions about funding for the next three years are still to be taken.

| Financial year | Funding (£) |
|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 650,000 |
| 2008-09 | 713,750 |
| 2009-10 | 700,000 |

Capita Group

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport whether any contracts between Capita Group plc and his Department and its predecessors have been cancelled before completion since 1997; and whether Capita Group plc has been liable for any penalties arising from failings in the administration of contracts since 1997. [[illegible]]

Chris Mole: Since the Department for Transport was formed in May 2002, there have been no contracts prematurely terminated with Capita Group plc. During this period Capita Group has been liable for settlements in respect of assorted delays incurred on projects to the aggregated value of £2.738 million.

Departmental Assets

Dr. Cable: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what assets of his Department are planned to be sold in each year from 2009-10 to 2013-14; what the (a) description and (b) book value of each such asset is; what the expected revenue from each such sale is; and if he will make a statement. [[illegible]]

Chris Mole: The Government have stated their intention to realise £16 billion in disposals over the period 2011-14 and will publish further details of opportunities to commercialise business assets in the coming weeks.

The Department for Transport is considering a number of opportunities for asset sales. However, the timing of any sale is subject to market conditions being right.

Details on value cannot be released due to the need to protect the Department's position in future sale negotiations.

Two high profile examples are Dartford Crossing and the Channel Tunnel Rail Link (HS1).

Dartford Crossing

The A282 Dartford Crossing comprises the Queen Elizabeth II Bridge, which provides four southbound lanes, while two tunnels under the Thames provide a four-lane northbound facility. Use of the crossing is subject to a congestion charge in both directions paid at a plaza located to the south of the Thames.

The Department is working with HM Treasury and the Shareholder Executive to consider the commercial options for realising value for the taxpayer from the Dartford Crossing. No estimate of the saleable value of the Dartford Crossing has been made. Any such valuation would depend on the nature of any commercial agreements for a sale, including, but not exclusively, the length of those arrangements, the level of future charges and forecast future traffic volumes. The Department is planning to provide initial views from the analysis on future capacity options in early 2010. This will provide a basis for deciding which commercialisation option to pursue.

It is not possible to say when a sale might be finalised.

Channel Tunnel Rail Link—High Speed 1 (HS1)

High Speed 1 (formerly known as the Channel Tunnel Rail Link) is the high speed line which operates between St. Pancras International Station and the Channel Tunnel. It is operated by HS1 Ltd which is owned by London and Continental Railways (LCR).

The Department is currently engaged in a restructuring of London and Continental Railways. Following this, it is the Department's intention, as market conditions allow, to sell a long-term concession for High Speed 1 in such a way as to maximise value for money for the taxpayer. The Government would not wish to publish its estimate of the expected proceeds at this stage; to do so might condition the competitive sale process and damage value.

It is not possible to say when a sale might be finalised.

London City Airport

James Brokenshire: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what recent discussions (a) he and (b) officials in his Department have had with (i) National Air Traffic Services (NATS) and (ii) the Civil Aviation Authority on the decision to modify the flight routings of aircraft using London City Airport; and for what reasons such revised routings did not form part of the further public consultation on the NATS Terminal Control North proposal. [303851]

Paul Clark: The revised standard instrument departure (SID) routings at London City airport were implemented in accordance with the independent airspace change process under which it is for the airspace change sponsor to develop and consult upon proposals. It is then for the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA), the independent airspace regulator, to assess the proposals against regulatory requirements and either approve or reject the proposal.

The Terminal Control North (TC North) proposals, of which the London City SID changes originally formed a part, are a package of measures designed to reduce delay whilst maintaining safety and improving environmental performance in one of the most complex areas of airspace in the world. Following the outcome of last year's public consultation, NATS decided to review the TC North design options. However, the London City airport SID change element was aimed at meeting already established International Civil Aviation Organisation design standards. In the circumstances, the London City SID changes were removed from the TC North proposals and progressed as a stand alone proposal. The CAA considered that further consultation on the London City airport SID changes were not needed as they had already been included in the full TC North consultation.

Motor Vehicles: Excise Duties

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many people renewed their vehicle excise duty online in (a) 2008 and (b) 2009 to date. [304531]

Paul Clark: During 2008 the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency's Electronic Vehicle Re-licensing and SORN service completed 16,299,242 successful transactions, broken down into 14,141,505 re-licensing transactions and 2,157,737 SORN transactions.

To date in 2009, there have been 18,107,026 successful transactions. 15,794,997 of these were re-licensing transactions and 2,312,029 were SORN transactions.

Network Rail

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what discussions he has had with train operating companies on proposals that they take control of the railway network from Network Rail. [304220]

Chris Mole: The Department for Transport has not had any recent formal discussions with train companies on proposals that they take control of the railway network from Network Rail.

Norwich-London Railway Line

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport on how many occasions Ministers in his Department travelled on the Norwich to London railway line in the course of their official duties in each of the last 10 years. [304214]

Chris Mole: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport (1) how many (a) road traffic accidents, (b) road traffic fatalities, (c) accidents involving motorcyclists, (d) fatalities involving motorcyclists, (e) accidents involving cyclists and (f) fatalities involving cyclists there were in (i) Berkshire and (ii) Reading East constituency in each of the last five years; [304632]

(2) how many road traffic accidents in (a) Berkshire and (b) Reading East constituency involved motorbikes in each of the last five years; and how many of these resulted in loss of life in each of those five years; [304633]

(3) how many road traffic accidents which occurred in (a) Berkshire and (b) Reading East constituency involved loss of life in each of the last five years. [304634]

Paul Clark: The information requested is given in the following tables:

Reported personal injury road accidents and fatalities in Berkshire 2004-08

| | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 | 2007 | 2008 |

[1] Based on 2004 constituency boundaries.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport (1) how many fatal road traffic accidents there have been in Reading, East constituency where the major contributory factor was (a) speed, (b) excess alcohol and (c) failure to maintain the vehicle in each of the last five years; [304635]

(2) how many individuals were injured as a result of road accidents attributed to (a) road surface defects, (b) road works and (c) defective road signs in (i) Berkshire and (ii) Reading, East constituency in each of the last five years. [304637]

Paul Clark: Information on contributory factors to road accidents is not available below Government office region level.

Information about contributory factors can be found in Article 4 in the Reported Road Casualties Great Britain: 2008 Annual Report, copies of which have been deposited in the Libraries of the House.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what statistics his Department collects on road traffic accidents involving newly-qualified drivers; and how many such accidents occurred in Reading, East constituency in the last five years. [304636]

Paul Clark: Information regarding the length of time individuals involved in road accidents have held a driving licence is not routinely collected by the Department for Transport.

The Department has published research into new and learner drivers, Road Safety Research Report No. 81 — Cohort II: A Study of Learner and New Drivers, part of which looked at their involvement in road accidents.

A copy of this report has been deposited in the Libraries of the House.

Siemens

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport whether his Department has entered into any contracts with Siemens or its subsidiaries since February 2009. [303762]

Chris Mole: The Department for Transport has awarded one contract through the Highways Agency for Regional Control Centre Operational Telephony Service Management to Siemens plc on 20 August 2009. The value of the contract on award was £3,320,000.

Siemens has several hundred subsidiary companies and to carry out a search across the Department for contacts with all of these companies would incur disproportionate costs.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Armed Forces

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent estimate he has made of the number of soldiers of the Afghan national army who are fully trained; and what proportion of these are serving in Helmand province. [303910]

Bill Rammell: The total number of Afghan national army currently stands at approximately 96,000. This total includes soldiers that have completed training and those who are still going through training.

As announced by the Prime Minister on 14 October 2009, Official Report, column 300, there were only 4,200 Afghan soldiers in Helmand last year; this year there are already an extra 50 per cent, more than 6,000, and more on the way.

As recently made clear by the Prime Minister, we will continue to work closely with the Government of Afghanistan and the International Community to build the capacity of the Afghan national security forces.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he has taken to improve the energy efficiency of forward operating bases in Afghanistan. [304477]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Work is in hand to ensure equipment deployed at forward operating bases in Afghanistan is configured, managed and used to minimise energy consumption as far as is practicable. This includes monitoring and analysing energy use, insulating operational accommodation, and making more efficient use of diesel generators. We are also exploring options such as the use of solar power, advanced thermoelectric generators and energy storage devices. A number of the proposals are being evaluated for potential deployment to further reduce energy use and vulnerability at forward operating bases.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will introduce groin protection plates as an addition to personal body armour for armed forces personnel deployed in Helmand province. [304727]

Mr. Quentin Davies: We are continually seeking ways to further protect our personnel, and work is well under way to research ways of providing additional protection including for the whole of the perineal area.

Air Force: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average unit tour interval of each Royal Air Force regiment was at the latest date for which information is available. [304375]

Bill Rammell: The average unit tour interval for the RAF Regiment Field Squadrons, i.e. the interval between overseas deployments, is 15 months as at 3 December 2009. This figure continues to improve reflecting increased recruitment and action taken earlier this year to increase the RAF Regiment. An additional Force Protection Wing and Force Protection Squadron have been added to the Regiment's strength, bringing the total to seven Force Protection Wings and Squadrons.

Aircraft Carriers

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the planned in-service dates are for the two new aircraft carriers. [304348]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 2 November 2009, Official Report, column 649W, to the hon. Member for New Forest, East (Dr. Lewis).

The latest cost and time estimates are currently going through the Department's approval process. As is normal practice, we will not make any announcements until this process has completed.

Armed Forces: Absence Without Leave

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces personnel have been absent without leave in each month of 2009 to date. [304366]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The information is not held in the format requested. Centrally held information relates to the number of Absent Without Leave incidents and not to the number of personnel. Additionally, data are only available by month in respect of the Royal Navy and Royal Air Force. In respect of the Army, only the year to date total is held centrally and to obtain this information by month will require a manual search of records which could only be provided at disproportionate cost. The available figures are provided in the following table.

AWOL statistics are recorded by the number of incidences reported, because the figures may include Service Personnel who have been AWOL on more than one occasion. Furthermore, following the reporting of an incidence of AWOL, information may later come to light of extenuating circumstances for that unauthorised absence, such as compassionate, hospitalisation or travel delays beyond the individual's control. In such cases a service person may not be formally charged but the incidence is still recorded.

| | Royal Navy | Army | Royal Air Force |
|---|---|---|---|
| January | 5 | — | 1 |
| February | 10 | — | 0 |

| | Royal Navy | Army | Royal Air Force |
|---|---|---|---|
| March | 10 | — | 0 |
| April | 5 | — | 0 |
| May | 10 | — | 0 |
| June | 10 | — | 0 |
| July | 10 | — | 0 |
| August | 5 | — | 1 |
| September | 10 | — | 0 |
| October | 10 | — | 1 |
| November | 5 | — | 3 |
| Total | 80 | [1]1,695 | 6 |

[1] This is the number of recorded incidences, not the number of people AWOL or the number of charges brought.

Note:

Figures for the Royal Navy and Army rounded to nearest 5.

Armed Forces: Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the amount of energy consumed by HM forces in the last year. [304479]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The estimated energy consumed across the MOD in financial year 2008-09 and the associated $CO_2$ emissions are provided in the following table.

In many areas of Defence, civil servants work alongside serving members of the Armed Forces. This makes it impossible to distinguish between energy used by HM Armed Forces and that used by civil servants. As such, the figures provided are for the MOD as a whole.

| | | Motive fuel | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Estate energy | Ground | Aviation | Marine | Business administrative travel | Total |
| Energy (TWh) | 6.0 | 0.9 | 10.3 | 2.7 | n/a | 19.9 |
| $CO_2$ (Mt) | 1.6 | 0.2 | 2.7 | 0.7 | 0.2 | 5.6 |

These data have been calculated using the DEFRA 2008 conversion factors. This is to ensure that Estate emissions data are comparable with previous years, enabling us to demonstrate a 12.5 per cent. reduction against our 1999-2000 baseline—thus meeting the Government target two years early.

The DEFRA conversion factors do not provide a mechanism for converting miles travelled on business into TWh so the data have only been provided as $CO_2$ emissions.

Further information about the calculation of MOD energy use can be found on the UK Defence Statistics Website at the following link:

http://bravo.dasa.r.mil.uk/modintranet/UKDS/UKDS2009/c7/sec1intro.html

Armed Forces: Housing

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will bring forward proposals to build new soldier accommodation in (a) Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency, (b) the Highlands and (c) Scotland. [304650]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Department is in the process of finalising its 2010 Planning Round which sets out its plans for the coming years. It would be premature to provide details but the building of new accommodation in Scotland will be given due consideration in the context of other defence priorities.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many houses owned by his Department in (a) Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency, (b) the Highlands and (c) Scotland are rated as grade (i) one, (ii) two, (iii) three and (iv) four. [304652]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Service family accommodation (SFA) is assessed by Standard for Condition (SfC), an objective assessment of the physical condition of the property. Properties are rated from S1fC (the highest) to S4fC (the lowest). The Ministry of Defence (MOD) no longer allocates properties at S4fC, and no family is required to live in properties at S4fC other than by personal choice.

Properties at S3fC are only allocated where no other property is available. The MOD aims to have all UK SFA at Standard 1 or 2 for Condition by 2013, and all properties at S1fC by 2020. It is not possible to provide the information in the format requested, however, current SfC data for Scotland are provided in the following table:

| Standard for Condition (SfC) | Number |
|---|---|
| S1fC | 3,102 |
| S2fC | 123 |
| S3fC | 1 |
| Total | 3,226 |

In addition, SFA is assessed by Grade for Charge (GfC), an assessment that sets the level of charges that families pay. This assessment takes into account not only the physical condition of the property but also environmental factors, such as noise and proximity to local amenities. It is therefore possible for SFA to have a high SfC assessment but a low GfC. Again, it is not possible to provide the information in the format requested, however SFA in Scotland is at the following GfC:

| Grade for Charge | Number |
|---|---|
| Grade 1 | 1,116 |
| Grade 2 | 1,336 |
| Grade 3 | 481 |
| Grade 4 | 293 |
| Total | 3,226 |

Armed Forces: Pay

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) overpayments and (b) underpayments of salary there were to armed forces personnel resident in Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency in each month since January 2008; and of what amount in each case. [304648]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 20 October 2009, Official Report, column 1363W, to the hon. Member for Dunfermline and West Fife (Willie Rennie).

Armed Forces: Pensions

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many veterans receive pensions under the provisions of the (a) Gurkha Pension Scheme, (b) Armed Forces Pension Scheme 2005 and (c) Armed Forces Pension Scheme 1975; and if he will make a statement. [304770]

Mr. Kevan Jones: As at 30 September 2009 the number of members and dependants receiving pensions under the Gurkha Pension Scheme was 24,164, the Armed Forces Pension Scheme 2005 was 1,281 and the Armed Forces Pension Scheme 1975 was 371,140.

British Atomic Veterans' Claimants Group

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent representations he has received from the British Atomic Veterans' Claimants Group. [303470]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I received a letter dated 11 November 2009 on behalf of the British Atomic Veterans Claimant Group. I understand that a similar letter was sent to all Members of Parliament with one or more atomic veterans in their constituency.

The letter explains that many of the veterans view recognition as more important than substantial compensation. I should therefore like to reiterate the statement I made in the House on 22 October 2008, Official Report, columns 421-24, which is that the Ministry of Defence recognises the debt of gratitude we have to the servicemen who took part in the nuclear tests. They were important tests that helped to keep this nation secure at a difficult time in terms of nuclear technology. There is a memorial to British Nuclear Test Veterans at the National Memorial Arboretum in Staffordshire.

At the conclusion of his judgment Mr. Justice Foskett said

> "The Government is, of course, pledged to settle legal cases by alternative dispute resolution in all suitable cases whenever the other party agrees to it. In my view, this is such a case".

The Ministry of Defence has adhered to the judge's wish but, unfortunately, I cannot reveal the contents of the negotiations because this would breach the confidentiality agreement between the parties. However, I can say that genuine negotiations have taken place between the parties respective counsels and a settlement proposal was made by the Ministry of Defence (although I cannot disclose the amount). To date, no response has been received from the claimants' counsel or the law firm representing them (Rosenblatts). This is obviously disappointing, but we remain open to meaningful discussions. In the meantime, we have been left with no option but to proceed with our appeal for which the High Court judge has given us permission. I understand the appeal is listed for a three week window starting on 4 May 2010.

Capita

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether any contracts between Capita Group plc and his Department have been cancelled before completion since 1997; and whether Capita Group plc has been liable for any penalties arising from failings in the administration of contracts since 1997. [303064]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions Capita Gro~~up plc~~ tendered for contracts let by his Department in each of the last five years; how many such tenders were successful; how much his Department paid to Capita Group plc for the execution of contracts in each such year; how many contracts which terminate after 2010 Capita Group plc hold with his Department; and what the monetary value is of all outstanding contracts between his Department and Capita Group plc. [303154]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Information regarding how many occasions Capita Group plc has tendered for contracts let by MOD in each of the last five years, and how many such tenders were successful, is not held centrally and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

In the last five complete financial years, the amount of money paid to companies that are part of the Capita Group plc is provided in the following table:

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 4.4 |
| 2005-06 | 4.6 |
| 2006-07 | 3.3 |
| 2007-08 | 3.5 |
| 2008-09 | 4.2 |

Note
Rounded to nearest £100,000

The MOD Financial Management Shared Service Centre (FMSSC) contracts database currently shows seven contracts with Capita Group plc that are expected to terminate after 31 December 2010 at a current total value of £52 million (rounded to the nearest million).

Cluster Munitions

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether cluster munitions are stored at (a) RAF Lakenheath and (b) other RAF bases occupied and controlled by US visiting forces. [303581]

Bill Rammell: The United States Visiting Force (USVF) stores various weapons in the UK. The USVF inventory of weapons is declared annually to the Ministry of Defence who ensure all weapons are appropriately licensed and stored. For operational and security reasons, and to ensure relations between the UK and US are not prejudiced, it would be inappropriate to disclose the numbers, types and locations of such weapons.

Defence Equipment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many equipment failure reports (a) were filed in each year since 2003 and (b) have been filed for each armoured vehicle type in (i) 2008 and (ii) 2009. [304373]

Mr. Quentin Davies: As reported by the users, the approximate number of equipment failure reports filed in each year since 2003, for each armoured vehicle types are provided in the following table.

| Vehicle type | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 | 2007 | 2008 | 2009 (so far) |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| AS90 | 408 | 237 | 179 | 101 | 56 | 136 | 119 |

The Equipment Failure Reporting System (EFRS) is the mandated system for equipment users to report failures, such as accidental damage, maintenance related failures and breakdowns, or the failure of an item fitted to the vehicle. It does not incorporate the results of subsequent investigations and therefore does not differentiate between what might later prove to have been a problem caused by operator error or damage sustained as a result of operations. Nor do these dates record the severity of a failure which might have no discernible impact on operational capability or safety.

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what equipment over the value of £100,000 his Department has authorised the armed forces to gift to other nations in each of the last five years. [305055]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The following equipment gifts to other nations, valued above £100,000, were authorised by the Department in the last five years:

2009-10

Four permanent structures and contents, located within the contingency operating base, Basra, were gifted to the United States of America on the withdrawal of UK forces. Details of the transfer were notified to the House of Commons in a departmental minute dated 8 May 2009. Value £456,886.

Defence Medical Services: Manpower

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel in each medical and dental personnel division in the Defence Medical Services are (a) required and (b) trained. [304825]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 3 December 2009, Official Report, columns 906-07W.

Defence: International Cooperation

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many flights the United Kingdom have used under the NATO Strategic Airlift Interim Solution since March 2006; and what the (a) total cost and (b) cost per flight has been. [303000]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Since March 2006 there have been 141 one way flights undertaken using the NATO Strategic Airlift Interim Solution, at a total cost of £25 million. The estimated cost per flight is £178,000.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) pallets and (b) tonnes of military equipment and cargo have been shipped to Afghanistan by (i) the Royal Air Force and (ii) aircraft leased under the NATO Strategic Airlift Interim Solution. [303001]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Information regarding the number of pallets airlifted is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Between 1 November 2008 and 31 October 2009 a total of 7,726 tonnes of freight have been airlifted to Afghanistan by RAF transport aircraft.

In the same time period 2,460 tonnes have been delivered using aircraft chartered under the NATO Strategic Airlift Interim Solution.

Departmental Contracts

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what criteria his Department uses in determining the award of contracts; and how much his Department has spent on the advertisement of tenders for Government contracts since 1997. [303130]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Ministry of Defence uses the most economically advantageous tender as the criterion for determining the award of contracts. This includes sub-criteria such as quality, price, technical merit, functional and environmental characteristics. Straightforward, low-value purchases may, however, be made on the basis of the tender that meets our requirement and offers the lowest price.

The Ministry of Defence has not spent any money on the advertisement of tenders for Government contracts since 1997, when following a competition the Department placed a contract to provide this service, which is funded by subscriptions from potential tenderers.

EU Battlegroups

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what unit will form the UK's commitment to the EU battle group in the first half of 2010. [304370]

Bill Rammell: The UK's commitment to one of the two EU Battlegroups on standby in the first half of 2010 will be formed from 42 Commando and the Joint Force Headquarters.

Ex-servicemen: Radiation Exposure

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of service veterans who were present at atomic weapons tests in the 1950s and 1960s who have died of conditions connected to their service in each of the last five years. [305185]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The War Pensions Scheme provides no-fault compensation to all former service personnel where illness, injury or death is caused by service before 6 April 2005.

Although the war pension computer system contains details of medical conditions relating to claims for war disablement pensions, details of the specific causes of these medical conditions are not recorded. Therefore to provide the information requested would require the manual search of many thousands of files and this could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Germany: British Forces Post Office

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his most recent assessment is of the future of the British Forces Post Office in Germany. [304328]

Bill Rammell: From September 2010, BFPO 109 (Ramstein) will see an adjusted service. Armed forces personnel will no longer fulfil the postal functions and some counter services will cease, however, we will employ dependants and civilians locally to run a basic postal receipt and despatch facility. Critically, the BFPO number, which is so useful for administrative purposes such as banking and internet shopping, will be retained. No further changes to British Forces Post Offices in Germany are currently planned.

Iraq and Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what reports he has received of allegations of rape involving members of (a) UK forces and (b) private security firms registered in the UK in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan since 2001; and what steps he has taken in response to those reports. [304055]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In respect of UK Forces only, the information is not held in the format requested.

Any allegation of an offence involving UK Forces is fully investigated by the relevant Service Police authorities and if there is sufficient evidence to refer a disciplinary or criminal charge they will do so in accordance with the Armed Forces Act of 2006.

Private security firms are not the responsibility of the Ministry of Defence and as such are not subject to military law where the service police have jurisdiction.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) court cases and (b) courts martial remain outstanding regarding accusations against British troops involved in the Iraq conflict. [303567]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: 15 judicial review proceedings have been issued relating to accusations of mistreatment and challenging the extra-territorial application of the ECHR in Iraq. In addition, proceedings have been issued in 46 personal injury claims. The MOD has also been notified of 36 potential judicial reviews, and letters of claim have been received in 21 personal injury claims. Some of these cover the same alleged incidents and claimants. All allegations are investigated as fully as possible.

There are no such cases where courts-martial are outstanding.

Kentigern House

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many staff were employed at his Department's Kentigern House site in Glasgow in each of the last 10 years. [305280]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The approximate number of staff working at Kentigern House in Glasgow over the past 10 years is shown in the table.

| | Total |
|---|---|
| 2009 | 1,400 |
| 2008 | 1,510 |
| 2007 | 1,800 |
| 2006 | 1,750 |
| 2005 | 1,740 |
| 2004 | 1,660 |
| 2003 | 1,750 |
| 2002 | 1,700 |
| 2001 | 1,800 |
| 2000 | 1,540 |

Roughly 60 per cent. of staff work for the Army personnel centre and the remainder are either attached to various other MOD organisations or contractors.

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the maintenance costs were for his Department's Kentigern House site in Glasgow in each of the last 10 years. [305282]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The following table illustrates the maintenance costs for the Kentigern House site since Financial Year (FY) 2004-05.

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 820,616 |
| 2005-06 | 930,733 |
| 2006-07 | 450,475 |
| 2007-08 | 312,072 |
| 2008-09 | 425,701 |

Records of specific maintenance costs prior to 2003 which were provided under a different system are not available.

Reserve Forces

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what savings or efficiency measures are being made from the (a) Royal Naval Reserve and (b) Royal Auxiliary Air Force budgets in 2009-10. [304376]

Bill Rammell: The budget for training Royal Naval Reserve and Royal Marine Reserve for financial year 2009-10 has been reduced by £0.189 million. The reduction is being managed by individual units.

The budget for RAF Honnington, which runs eight Royal Auxiliary Air Force squadrons, has been reduced by £0.5 million for financial year 2009-10. This has been achieved by reducing the number of training days.

Neither of these reductions will affect bounty payments, or support to current operations.

Scientists

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions he has met (a) the Government chief scientific adviser and (b) his Department's chief scientific adviser in the course of his official duties in the last 12 months. [303963]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I have not met the Government chief scientific adviser since my appointment. As with other senior departmental advisers, I meet with the Ministry of Defence chief scientific adviser as required in the course of my official duties.

Somalia: Piracy

Mrs. Curtis-Thomas: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the terms of reference for Operation Atalanta are; what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the operation to date; how many war ships from each country are involved in the operation; and if he will make a statement. [300485]

Bill Rammell: Operation Atalanta does not have terms of reference as such. The tasks of the mission, set out in a mandate agreed by member states, are the protection of vessels of the WFP (World Food Programme) delivering food aid to displaced persons in Somalia; the protection of vulnerable vessels cruising off the Somali coast; and the deterrence, prevention and repression of acts of piracy and armed robbery off the Somali coast.

The conduct of the mission is governed by an operation plan (OPLAN) drawn up by the operation commander (currently Rear Admiral Peter Hudson Royal Navy) and agreed by member states.

Our assessment is that Operation Atalanta continues to be an effective counter piracy operation. Pirate activity in the Gulf of Aden has dramatically reduced and we are seeing unprecedented coordination between international navies and merchant shipping. Furthermore, as at 13 November 2009 the EU naval force had successfully escorted 51 World Food Programme (WFP) vessels, carrying 290,000 tons of aid to Somalia.

The number of warships assigned to Operation Atalanta (as of 20 November) are as follows:

| Country | Number of ships |
|---|---|
| France | 1 |
| Germany | 1 |
| Netherlands | [1]1 |
| Belgium | 1 |
| Greece | 1 |
| Norway | 1 |
| Spain | [2]1+1 |

[1] Flag ship

[2] The second Spanish frigate is available to the operation commander.

Trident Missiles

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to modify the gas transfer system of the Trident warhead as part of the Mk4A refurbishment programme; and in which country the gas transfer system will be manufactured. [304340]

Mr. Quentin Davies: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State for Defence on 3 December 2009, Official Report, column 911W. As for any modifications planned for this system, it is Ministry of Defence policy not to comment on details of UK warhead design as to do so would, or would be likely to, prejudice national security and defence in the UK.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the projected cost is of the Mk4A refurbishment programme for Trident warheads; and what proportion of this expenditure he expects to be incurred in the United States. [304341]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The overall cost to the UK of procuring the Mk4A component was an element of the estimated future costs of the Atomic Weapons Establishment as set out in chapter five of the White Paper 'The Future of the United Kingdom's Nuclear Deterrent' (Cmd 6994), published in December 2006.

I am withholding further details on the costs of the Mk4A programme as their release would, or would be likely to, prejudice national security and defence in the UK.

USA: Defence

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason (a) the classification guidelines CG-UK-2 for the exchange of material between the UK and the US were produced in 2006 and (b) the new classification guidelines CG-US-UK-NUC-1 were produced in 2008. [303887]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Both of these documents were produced jointly by the UK and US in an effort to harmonise security classification guidance relating to sensitive nuclear information.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Prices

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether he has had recent discussions with the devolved administrations on steps to reduce levels of crime by reducing the availability of cheap alcohol. [304208]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has not had any recent discussions with devolved Administrations relating to the impact of cheap alcohol on levels of crime.

Antisocial Behaviour: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make an assessment of the likely effects on the level of anti-social behaviour of a minimum unit price for alcohol. [304206]

Mr. Alan Campbell: We understand that there is a real concern about the possible links between cheap alcohol and antisocial behaviour. However, the evidence is inconclusive as to whether the introduction of a minimum unit price would reduce alcohol related crime and disorder. While there is evidence that cheap alcohol is linked to people drinking more and subsequent harm to their health, it is important that any Government interventions reduce harm without impacting unduly on the majority of responsible drinkers. We will look to develop further the evidence base in this area with a view to identifying concrete proposals for action which reduce irresponsible, harmful and/or binge drinking without impacting unduly on the majority of responsible drinkers.

Asylum

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department from which 50 parliamentary constituencies the UK Border Agency received the highest number of enquiries regarding asylum cases that are (a) legacy cases, (b) non-legacy cases and (c) out-of-country visa applications ranked from highest to lowest in each of the last four years. [302097]

Mr. Woolas: The information requested is not available in the format required and could be obtained only by the detailed examination of individual records at disproportionate cost.

British Nationality: Assessments

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much the administration of the citizenship tests has cost since the inception of such tests. [303110]

Mr. Woolas: UKBA have a commercial contract with the Ufi (formerly University for industry) to provide the Life in the UK test. Candidates taking the Life in the UK test pay a fee of £34 to the test centre. There is no limit on how many times a candidate may take the test and the fee is payable each time a test is taken. The fee is set at a level to meet the costs of delivering the overall testing service, there are no costs incurred by UKBA.

Burglary

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many burglaries were recorded by police in (a) England and (b) North East Cambridgeshire in each of the last 10 years. [303641]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on the number of burglaries recorded by the police in England is given in the following tables. Data for North East Cambridgeshire are not collected centrally.

Table 1: Offences of burglary recorded by the police in England—2000-01 and 2001-02

| | Number of offences |
|---|---|
| 1999-2000 | 869,704 |
| 2000-01 | 803,144 |
| 2001-02 | 846,301 |

Table 2: Offences of burglary recorded by the police in England—2002-03 to 2008-09[1]

| | Number of offences |

| 2002-03 | 851,988 |
| 2003-04 | 783,970 |
| 2004-05 | 649,973 |
| 2005-06 | 617,726 |
| 2006-07 | 594,297 |
| 2007-08 | 556,259 |
| 2008-09 | 555,137 |

[1] The National Crime Recording Standard was introduced in 2002/03 and data before and after that date are not directly comparable.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many reports of burglary were received by the police in (a) Ashford constituency and (b) Kent in each year since 2005. [304924]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on reports of burglary received by the police is not available centrally. The available information relates to offences of burglary recorded by the police in the Ashford local authority area and the Kent police force area and is given in the following table.

Offences of burglary recorded by the police in the Ashford local authority area and the Kent police force area

|---|---|---|
| | Ashford | Kent |
| 2005-06 | 987 | 16,518 |
| 2006-07 | 971 | 16,708 |
| 2007-08 | 970 | 14,591 |
| 2008-09 | 877 | 12,822 |

Crime and Disorder Act 1988

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people under the age of 16 years have been convicted of an offence under section 1(10) of the Crime and Disorder Act 1988 in each of the last five years. [301794]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information is provided by the Ministry of Justice on how many people under the age of 16 years have been convicted of an offence under section 1(10) of the Crime and Disorder Act 1988 in each of the last five years.

Centrally collected data on breaches of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) are currently available for ASBOs issued between 1 June 2000 and 31 December 2007. The available published data show that during that period 3,853 persons aged between 10 and 17 were convicted of breaching their ASBO on at least one occasion. No breakdown by year is available.

Crime: Offensive Weapons

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes involving the use of a knife were recorded by police in (a) England and (b) North East Cambridgeshire constituency in each of the last 10 years. [303187]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has collected data on knife and sharp instrument offences since April 2007 via a special additional data collection. Data are therefore only available for two years. The data are collected at force level only, so data for North East Cambridgeshire are not available.

In 2007-08, the data collection covered the following offences: attempted murder, GBH and robbery. The total number of offences involving the use of a knife/sharp instrument recorded by the police in England in 2007-08 was close to 24,000.

In 2008-09, the collection was expanded to include threats to kill, ABH, rape and sexual assaults. Therefore, the figures between the two years are not comparable. The total number of offences involving the use of a knife or sharp instrument recorded by the police in England in 2008-09 was close to 35,000.

There is a further reason why the figures are not fully comparable. Some forces in 2007-08 included, for technical reasons, a number of 'unbroken' bottle offences, which is outside the defined scope of the collection. For 2008-09, the majority of forces within England could supply data excluding unbroken bottles, with four Home Office forces still unable to remove them from their returns.

These figures do not include homicide, as these are collected from the separate Homicide Index. In 2007-08, there were 259 knife or sharp instrument homicides in England. Figures for 2008-09 are pre-announced to be published on the 21 January 2010.

DNA: Databases

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) whether any Government Ministers have a record on the National DNA Database; [304025]

(2) how many (a) hon. Members, (b) police officers, (c) children, (d) old age pensioners, (e) members of the House of Lords and (f) judges have records on the National DNA Database. [304026]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The National DNA Database (NDNAD) is an intelligence database which matches DNA found at crime scenes with DNA profiles of individuals. It also provides police with potential leads on the identity of an offender. An individual may have their DNA profile loaded onto the NDNAD if they have been arrested for a recordable offence or if they have volunteered their DNA to assist in a criminal investigation and also provided separate written consent for the resulting profile to be loaded onto the NDNAD.

The NDNAD stores only limited personal information about the identity of those with a profile held on it. Only an individual's name, date of birth, gender and ethnic appearance are recorded. Details of occupation are not held therefore it is not possible to say how many Government Ministers, hon. Members, Members of the House of Lords or judges have a DNA profile held on the NDNAD.

As with the other occupations listed in the question, it is not possible to give the number of police officers with a profile held on the NDNAD. A police officer may have voluntarily given a DNA sample for the NDNAD, or, like any other citizen, a police officer arrested for a recordable offence may have a DNA sample taken as a result.

However, there is also a separate DNA database known as the Police Elimination Database (PED) which holds the DNA profiles of serving police officers, who are potentially capable of leaving DNA at a crime scene in the course of their duties. PED searches are carried out only if a senior investigating officer requests a comparison of DNA profiles from a specified officer or officers with a DNA profile from a specified crime, unlike NDNAD searches which compare all profiles from crime scenes with all profiles from known individuals. Since 1 August 2002, all new recruits to the police service have been required to give a DNA sample as a condition of employment. As at 30 September 2009 there were 118,699 records held on the PED for England and Wales police forces. However, as the PED also holds the profiles of certain police staff such as scenes of crime officers and vehicle examiners and does not contain the details of people's professions, we are not able to state how many of these records relate to police officers.

As the date of birth of an individual is recorded alongside their profile it is possible to provide information on the number of profiles belonging to children and over 65s held on the NDNAD. This information (for England and Wales police forces only) is provided in the table and reflects the individual's age on 16 October 2009.

The number of profiles is not the same as the number of individuals. This is because some of the profiles held on the NDNAD are replicates, that is, an individual may have more than one profile held on the NDNAD. This may happen if, for example, an individual gives a different name on different arrest occasions. The existence of replicates does not affect the integrity or effectiveness of the NDNAD. The current replication rate across the entire NDNAD is 13.8 per cent.

The data presented are based on a snapshot of the NDNAD as at 16 October 2009. The data on the NDNAD are constantly changing as records are added and removed, hence the figures are a snapshot of the records at a single point in time. The data are management information and have not been formally assessed for compliance with the Code of Practice for Official Statistics.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the report of the Human Genetics Commission entitled Nothing to hide, nothing to fear, whether he has received evidence of people being arrested for the purposes of adding their DNA samples to the National DNA Database; and if he will make a statement. [304027]

Mr. Alan Campbell: There is no objective evidence to suggest that the police are arresting people for the purpose of obtaining their DNA. The taking of a person's liberty by arresting them is not undertaken lightly. That is why the power of arrest is subject to a test of necessity, set out in section 24 of the Police and Criminal Evidence Act 1984 (PACE). Police officers are also required to have regard to the statutory guidance in the exercise of the power of arrest, which is set out in Code of Practice G, one of the codes of practice issued under PACE.

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of (a) black, (b) Asian and (c) white males aged between 18 and 35 years have records on the National DNA Database. [304060]

Mr. Alan Campbell: It is not possible at present to calculate accurately the proportion of members of ethnic groups in the population as a whole who are on the NDNAD. This is because the data held on the NDNAD are not directly comparable with census population data. The NDNAD does not hold self-reported ethnicity data on arrested persons who have a DNA sample taken, but on their 'ethnic appearance'. The ethnic appearance data is based on the judgment of the police officer and is recorded for police intelligence purposes to assist in subsequent identification. It uses six broad ethnic categories (plus 'unknown') whereas census data are based on 16 ethnic groups self-reported by individuals.

Estimates of the proportion of different ethnic groups on the NDNAD calculated by simply dividing the number of profiles by the population data will give an inaccurate estimate as a number of other factors also need to be taken into account. Examples of these factors are the number of profiles from persons of mixed race, the number of profiles of unknown ethnicity, the number of replicate profiles and the use of comparable up-to-date population data. The National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) is working to produce an estimate which is as accurate and robust as possible.

Data are available on the number of DNA profiles from people with black, asian or white ethnic appearance aged between 18 and 35 years on the NDNAD. The following table displays the number of subject profiles retained on the NDNAD as at 16 October 2009 for males aged 18-35 inclusive (based on current age as at 16 October 2009) for England and Wales police forces, including the British Transport Police (BTP). The figures cover all subject profiles.

The number of profiles is not the same as the number of individuals. This is because some of the profiles held on the NDNAD are replicates, that is, an individual may have more than one profile held on the NDNAD. This may happen if, for example, an individual gives a different name on different arrest occasions. The existence of replicates does not affect the integrity or effectiveness of the NDNAD. The current replication rate across the entire NDNAD is 13.8 per cent.

The data presented are based on a snapshot of the NDNAD as at 16 October 2009. The data on the NDNAD are constantly changing as records are added and removed, hence the figures are a snapshot of the records at a single point in time. The data are management information and have not been formally assessed for compliance with the Code of Practice for Official Statistics.

Domestic Violence

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people reported incidents of domestic abuse in each of the last three years. [304223]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on how many incidents of domestic abuse are reported to the police is not centrally available because it is not possible to identify cases of domestic violence reported to and recorded by the police; such offences are not specifically defined by law and details of the individual circumstances of offences are not collected.

However, the British Crime Survey (BCS), which includes crimes not reported to the police, routinely provides information on the number of incidents of domestic violence in England and Wales; that is, violent incidents perpetrated by a partner, ex-partner or family member. The 2008-09 BCS estimates 293,000 incidents of domestic violence, 343,000 in the 2007-08 BCS and 407, 000 in the 2006-07 BCS (representing a statistically significant fall between 2006-07 BCS and 2008-09 BCS). Of these incidents, the proportion where the victim reported the incident to the police was 47 per cent. in the 2008-09 BCS, 40 per cent. in 2007-08 and 44 per cent. in 2006-07 (no statistically significant change in proportions).

Domestic Violence: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his Department has made an assessment of a link between alcohol misuse and the incidence of domestic violence. [304207]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The British Crime Survey 2007-08 reports that 37 per cent. of domestic violence incidents involve offenders who are perceived to be under the influence of alcohol.

There are a number of Alcohol Arrest Referral schemes in operation which aim to reduce re-offending among people arrested for alcohol-related offences. People who are arrested on suspicion of alcohol-related domestic violence in AAR pilot areas may be referred to a domestic violence specialist adviser and encouraged to address their behaviour and the consequences of their unsafe drinking.

We will continue to work with our stakeholders to better understand the role that both alcohol and drugs play in contributing to incidents of domestic violence.

Driving Offences

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department on what date the Motoring Offence and Breath Test statistics for (a) 2008 and (b) 2009 will be published; and if he will make a statement. [303834]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on police action in relation to motoring offences, as well as breath tests conducted in 2008 will be published as a part of the Home Office Bulletin 'Police Powers and Procedures, England and Wales 2008/09'. The bulletin is scheduled to be published in March 2010 and will be available on the Home Office RDS website at

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/police-powers.html

The publication date for the same bulletin covering 2009-10 data has yet to be agreed.

Entry Clearances

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many permits have been granted under (a) Tier 1 (general), (b) Tier 1 (post study entry), (c) Tier 2 (shortage occupation), (d) Tier 2 (intra-company transfer), (e) Tier 2 (resident labour market test), (f) Tier 4 (students) and (g) Tier 4 (working holiday makers) scheme in each month since they came into operation. [302154]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 30 November 2009]: The following tables provide detail of the numbers of in-country grants of leave to remain and out of country visas issued under (a) Tier 1 (General), (b) Tier 1 (Post Study Work), (d) Tier 2 (Intra-Company Transfer), (f) Tier 4 (students) and (g) Tier 5 (Youth Mobility Scheme) in each month since they came into operation. The working holidaymaker scheme ended on 26 November 2008. A similar scheme Youth Mobility Scheme has been introduced within Tier 5 of the Points Based System. Figures for that scheme are as follows:

Entry Clearances: Overseas Students

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether there are plans to change the student visa process; and if he will make a statement. [301427]

Mr. Woolas: There are no current plans to change the student visa process introduced on 31 March 2009 with the introduction of tier 4 of the points based system. A review of certain aspects of the system was announced on 12 November.

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many applications for entry to the UK under the points-based immigration system had been made by overseas students on the latest date for which figures are available; how many such applications were granted, and in respect of how many such applications the customer service standards set by his Department in relation to such applications were not met. [303281]

Mr. Woolas: The number of visa applications for entry as a student under tier 4 of the points based system that were (a) received, and (b) refused, since the implementation of tier 4 on 31 March to September 2009 was 245,915 and 36,434, respectively.

Processing times for tier 4 applications against UK Border Agency customer service standards are shown in the following table.

Firearms: Injuries

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people in (a) England, (b) Wales, (c) the North East and (d) Middlesbrough, South and East Cleveland constituency were (i) fatally and (ii) non-fatally wounded by a firearm in each year since 1997. [302928]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Available information relates to crimes recorded by the police in which firearms (excluding air weapons) were reported to have been used, resulting in fatal and non-fatal injury in England and Wales, England, the North East region and Cleveland police force area. Constituency level data are not collected centrally. Data for the period 1997-98 up to and including 2007-08 are given in the following table. Figures for 2008-09, including a breakdown by police force area, will be published on 21 January 2010.

Firearms are taken to be involved in a crime if they are fired, used as a blunt instrument or used as a threat.

[7] More explicit guidelines for the classification of weapons introduced on 1 April 2004 may have increased the recording of firearm offences, particularly those committed by imitation weapons.

Fraud: Credit Cards

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many incidents of credit card fraud relating to remote gambling websites have been recorded in each of the last 10 years. [303707]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is not available centrally. Offences of credit card fraud relating to remote gambling websites are included in Home Office offence classification 53C 'Fraud by false representation: cheque, plastic cards and online bank accounts'. These offences cannot be separately identified from other offences recorded within that offence classification.

Homophobia: Crime

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes of violence against the person with a homophobic motive there have been in (a) Merseyside and (b) Wirral in the last (i) six months, (ii) 12 months, (iii) two years and (iv) five years. [304220]

Mr. Alan Campbell: There has not been a recent assessment of conviction rates for those accused of crimes of violence with homophobic motives in Merseyside.

In September 2009 we launched the Cross-Government Hate Crime Action Plan which contains a number of action points designed to reduce numbers of crimes of violence across all five hate crime strands, including sexual orientation. In particular, it commits the Home Office to produce guidance for Crime and Disorder Partnerships on preventing and responding to hate incidents and hate crimes.

There is also a range of activity taking place in the North West to combat hate crime targeted at lesbian, gay and bisexual (LGB) individuals. For example, bar owners and door staff in and around the areas of Liverpool frequented by LGB communities have recently received hate crime awareness-raising training.

Further, Liverpool's Hate Crime Reduction Forum which brings stakeholders together from across Liverpool to address all strands of hate crime, funded the As One programme which was an educational awareness programme focused on youth centres in the Kensington area encompassing antisocial behaviour and diversity awareness.

Identity Cards

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many individuals who do not work for his Department, its executive agencies, or sponsored non-departmental public bodies, had applied for a voluntary national identity card on the latest date for which figures are available. [305275]

Meg Hillier: Since 20 October, and up to and including 3 December, 2,054 applicants have been enrolled or have made an enrolment appointment for an identity card.

The information held on the national identity register does not include the occupation of an individual.

Immigrants: Detainees

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will make it his policy not to detain asylum seekers and immigrants whose deportation is not imminent and who are not considered to be a serious threat to society; and if he will make a statement. [303633]

Mr. Woolas: Detention is an essential component in maintaining an effective immigration control. It is usually appropriate in the following circumstances: initially, while a person's identity or basis of claim is being established; where there are reasonable grounds for believing that a person will fail to comply with the conditions attached to the grant of temporary admission or release; as part of a fast-track asylum process; or to effect removal.

The decision to detain is made on case by case basis taking account of the individual circumstances in each case. Imminence of removal and risk of harm to the public are factors, among others, considered in reaching a decision.

Detention is kept to the minimum period necessary for the purpose for which it was authorised and is not unduly prolonged. Individuals may prolong their own detention by, for example, refusing to cooperate with the redocumentation process or by frustrating lawful attempts at removal. Detention in each individual case is subject to review at increasingly senior levels within the UK Border Agency to ensure that it only lasts as long as it continues to be justified and necessary.

We believe that the current policies support a requirement to enforce our immigration laws and we therefore have no intention of changing them at this time.

Immigration

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department by what date he expects the target of deciding all applications for a residence card as the spouse of an EEA national within six months to be met. [303647]

Mr. Woolas: UKBA has made significant progress to bring European applications within service standards. All new complete applications for residence cards submitted from 29 July 2009 onwards are being dealt with within six months.

UKBA has significantly reduced the number of outstanding older cases.

Of the remaining cases, a significant proportion are complex or were not submitted with adequate supporting information. To address this issue the agency has written to affected applicants and once the required documentation is provided—the cases will be concluded. All such cases should be resolved by early 2010.

Dr. Evan Harris: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps he is taking to ensure that the target of deciding all applications for a residence card as the spouse of an EEA national within six months is met. [303640]

Mr. Woolas: UKBA has made significant progress to bring all European applications within service standards. All new complete European applications submitted from 29 July 2009 onwards are being dealt with within service standards with complete EEA1 applications currently decided and dispatched within a matter of working days.

UK Border Agency has reduced the number of outstanding cases from approximately 77,000 in April to 38,000 in November. This has been done through a combination of interventions; increased resources, process improvement and performance management focus.

Of the remaining cases, a significant proportion are complex or were not submitted with adequate supporting information. To address this issue the Agency has written to affected applicants and—once the required documentation is provided—the cases will be concluded. All such cases should be resolved by early 2010.

Individual Support Orders and Intervention Orders: Finance

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much his Department has spent on (a) individual support orders and (b) intervention orders in each of the last three years. [301881]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office grant to the Youth Justice Board for prevention work has been £15 million for 2009-10, £18 million for 2008-09 and £21 million for 2007-08. This forms part of the overall Youth Justice Board budget of £32 million for evidence-based targeted prevention programmes such Youth Inclusion Support Panels. ISOs are one of the interventions funded from this budget.

The Home Office does not directly fund intervention orders. However, funding to tackle drugs related crime and antisocial behaviour is provided to local areas to deliver drug intervention programmes. These programmes are delivered through Drug Action Teams (DATs), using Criminal Justice Integrated Teams (CJITs) who adopt a case management approach to working with drug-misusing offenders, some of whom will be subject to intervention orders.

KBR

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his Department has entered into any contracts with Kellogg, Brown and Root or its subsidiaries since January 2009. [301329]

Mr. Woolas: The Home Department and its agencies have not entered into any new contracts with Kellogg Brown and Root or its subsidiaries since January 2009.

The Home Department has one existing contract in place with Kellogg Brown and Root for the provision of National Emergency Mortuary Arrangements which was awarded in 2006 and expires in 2016.

Parenting Orders

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many parenting orders have been (a) issued and (b) breached in each year since 1997. [302440]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Parenting orders were piloted between 30 September 1998 and 31 March 2000 and commenced in England and Wales in June 2000.

Data showing the breakdown of parenting orders issued for the period 30 September 1998 and 31 March 2000 are not available. The Youth Justice Board (YJB) has since April 2000 collected the number of parenting orders issued by youth offending team (YOT) area, as reported to it by youth offending teams including education-related orders where the YOT has been involved. Since September 2004, the Department for Children, Schools and Families has collected data on the number of parenting orders issued in England related to non-attendance of children at school and exclusion from school at local authority level.

The number of parenting orders relating to crime or antisocial behaviour and those related to education as reported to the YJB by YOT area are shown in table A.

Breach of a parenting order is a criminal offence. Information showing the number of persons proven at court to have breached a parenting order from 2003 to 2007 (latest available) is shown in table B. Data for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[1] Figures include reprimands and final warnings

These figures have been drawn from the police's administrative IT system, the police national computer, which, as with any large scale recording system, is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing. The figures are provisional and subject to change as more information is recorded by the police.

Guidance to the police and Crown Prosecution Service is clear that if an offender has previously received a simple caution, then a further caution should not normally be considered unless there has been a sufficient lapse of time to suggest that a previous caution had a deterrent effect (two years or more), or if the current offence is trivial or unrelated to any previous offences. Repeat offenders should not receive cautions and ought to be prosecuted at court.

In response to concerns, Ministers announced a review of the use of out-of-court disposals on 9 November. The terms of reference for this review will be announced shortly.

Raves: Sussex

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the number of illegal raves which have taken place in each district council area in East Sussex in each of the last five years; and how many (a) crimes and (b) accidents arising from such events were reported in each such year. [304278]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office does not hold this information.

Repatriation

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what factors his Department took into account in determining (a) the repatriation to Malaysia of Agnes Wong and (b) the sum which she was awarded under the Facilitated Returns Scheme; and if he will make a statement; [303322]

(2) what the maximum sum in assistance is that a foreign national can claim under (a) the Facilitated Returns Scheme, (b) reintegration assistance and (c) each other form of assistance provided by his Department. [303324]

Mr. Woolas: In accordance with the provisions of the Data Protection Act, since the hon. Member is not acting on behalf of this individual I am unable to disclose details of her case, the UK Border Agency can not disclose an individual's data to third parties without the consent of the said individual.

The Facilitated Returns Scheme accounted for around a third of the 5,395 foreign national offenders removed in 2008.

The Facilitated Return Scheme offers non European economic area foreign national detainees the opportunity to volunteer to return to their home country rather than await removal by the UK Border Agency. This option saves the United Kingdom taxpayer the considerable costs of detaining foreign nationals and the costly process of pursuing deportation through the courts.

Eligible detainees are those who can be released because they have completed their sentence and are being detained solely under immigration powers (time served); those eligible for the Early Removal Scheme; or non European economic area nationals from countries with which the United Kingdom has a prisoner transfer agreement.

Foreign national offenders removed under this scheme will now receive the equivalent of a discharge grant payable to British prisoners on their release, which is £46. This is paid on departure from the United Kingdom. In addition to this, a further sum of £454 on a pre-paid card will be given on departure which is for use on arrival in the home country.

Those who volunteer to go home at the end of their sentence could receive a grant up to £3,000 when their sentence is finished. A large part of this is in kind.

Road Traffic Offences

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many traffic offences of each type were recorded by police in (a) England and (b) North-East Cambridgeshire in each of the last 10 years. [304580]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested on arrests is not collected centrally.

The Home Office collects data on notifiable offences recorded by the police. Data are available for causing death by dangerous driving, causing death by careless driving whilst under the influence of drink or drugs and dangerous driving. Traffic offences such as parking and speeding etc. are not included in the police recorded crime data.

Information on police action relating to motoring offences (penalties issued by the police such as written warnings and fixed penalty notices) can be found in chapter 3 of the Home Office Statistical Bulletin, 'Police Powers and Procedures', which can be viewed on the web link.

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/police-powers.html

Data on court proceedings for motoring offences can be found in the Ministry of Justice Bulletin 'Criminal Statistics - England and Wales', which can be viewed on the web link.

Shoplifting: Arrests

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many shoplifters were reported to police in (a) England and (b) North East Cambridgeshire in each of the last 10 years. [304583]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information is not available centrally on the number of shoplifters reported to the police. The available data relate to the number of offences of shoplifting recorded by the police in England and the figures are given in the following tables. Data for North East Cambridgeshire are not collected centrally.

Table 1: Offences of shoplifting recorded by the police in England 1999-2000 and 2001-02

| 2008-09 | 302,499 |

[1] The National Crime Recording Standard was introduced in 2002-03 and data before and after that date are not directly comparable

Mr. Ev[illegible]: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) arrests and (b) subsequent convictions for offences of shoplifting there have been in each of the last five years. [304774]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 7 December 2009]: The information requested on arrests is not collected centrally.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level only, covering categories such as robbery and theft and handling stolen goods. It is not possible to separately identify arrests for shoplifting from within these offence groups. The arrest collection does not include any information on the outcome of arrests.

Information provided by the Ministry of Justice, showing the number of defendants found guilty at courts for shoplifting in England and Wales, 2003 to 2007 (latest available) can be viewed in the following table.

Data on court proceedings for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

Number of defendants found guilty at all courts for shoplifting[1] England and Wales, 2003 to 2007[2, 3]

| Offence | Statute | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 | 2007 |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Stealing from shops and stalls (shoplifting) | Theft Act 1968 Section 1 | 74,928 | 69,542 | 64,076 | 58,536 | 62,565 |

[2] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Tobacco: Young People

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences by (a) confectioners and tobacconists and (b) other retailers related to selling tobacco products to those aged under 16 years were recorded in 2008; how many police cautions for such offences were issued in each year; how many fines were imposed in each year; and what the average fine imposed in each year was. [302259]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on the number of recorded offences of retailers selling tobacco products to those aged under 16 years is not collected centrally. This is a summary offence and is not included in the police recorded crime statistics.

Statistics on the number of police cautions issued, the number of fines imposed and the average fines are collected by the Ministry of Justice. Statistics for 2008 will be published on 28 January 2010. The Ministry of Justice have advised that for 2007, the latest available year, there was one police caution issued. There were 49 fines imposed and the average fine was £324.

UK Border Agency: Manpower

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many of the staff of the Risk and Overseas Liaison Network of the UK Border Agency are UK citizens. [302532]

Mr. Woolas: The risk and overseas liaison network of the UK Border Agency has 102 officers acting as immigration liaison managers and immigration liaison officers (formerly risk assessment managers and airline liaison officers), all of whom are British citizens. They are supported by locally engaged staff.

United Kingdom Human Trafficking Centre

John Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans he has for the future (a) management and accountability structures and (b) location of the UK Human Trafficking Centre; and if he will make a statement. [303756]

Mr. Alan Campbell [holding answer 7 December 2009]: We are currently considering how to enhance the role and status of the UK Human Trafficking Centre. No decision has yet been taken.

Video Games: Young People

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences in respect of retailers selling video games or DVDs to underage customers (a) in England and Wales and (b) in each police force area were recorded in 2007 and 2008; how many related (i) police cautions and (ii) fines were issued in each of those years; and what the average such fine was in each such year. [302258]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information on the number of recorded offences of retailers selling video games or DVDs to underage customers is not collected centrally. This is a summary offence and is not included in the police recorded crime statistics.

The Ministry of Justice have advised that there were no cautions given or fines issued for this offence in 2007. Data for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Capita

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether any contracts between Capita Group plc and his Department have been cancelled before completion since 1997; and whether Capita Group plc has been liable for any penalties arising from failings in the administration of contracts since 1997. [303085]

Chris Bryant: This information is not held centrally and is available only at disproportionate cost.

Childbirth

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many UK citizens have (a) given birth whilst abroad and (b) registered a birth at a British embassy in each of the last five years. [305279]

Chris Bryant: Figures collated by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's Consular Directorate relate only to births registered at our Missions overseas.

The number of births registered by consular staff overseas for the last five years are:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| April 2004 to March 2005 | 8,620 |
| April 2005 to March 2006 | 8,764 |
| April 2006 to March 2007 | 8,778 |
| April 2007 to March 2008 | 8,813 |
| April 2008 to March 2009 | 8,189 |

Departmental Assets

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assets of his Department are planned to be sold in each year from 2009-10 to 2013-14; what the (a) description and (b) book value of each such asset is; what the expected revenue from each such sale is; and if he will make a statement. [300201]

Chris Bryant: The Treasury set the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) a property sales target of £18 million for each of the three financial years 2008-11. In 2008-09 disposal of land and buildings by the FCO generated over £61 million, exceeding the full three-year target by £7 million.

FCO's revised 2009-10 property sales target is £8 million of which we have already sold £5.632 million. This is made up of three office buildings, one residence, eight units of staff accommodation, one amenity building and two plots of land at various overseas Posts. A further £3 million (approximately) former office building is under offer.

For financial years 2010-11 to 2013-14 our asset managers have identified, and intend selling, 106 properties as potentially redundant. Their current book values total £71 million. The properties comprises four office buildings, six Heads of Post residences, 86 units of staff accommodation, four plots of land, three amenity complexes and three ancillary buildings.

More sales are likely to arise as part of our active asset management. We continue to keep our entire property portfolio under review, ensuring it provides value for money, fitness for purpose, and security for our staff.

In order to maximise the price received for the sale of our assets, it is not our policy to release details of our sales programme, nor the price we expect to receive, in advance of formal marketing. Details of sales completed are reported quarterly to the Foreign Affairs Committee.

The book value for each property is usually based on open market value as assessed by independent chartered surveyors commissioned as part of our rolling programme of estate revaluations. In most cases, this gives the best indicator of anticipated revenue.

Embassies: Closures

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British (a) embassies, (b) high commissions and (c) consulates have closed since 1997; what arrangements have been made to safeguard British interests in these circumstances; and if he will make a statement. [301878]

Chris Bryant: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 9 July 2009, Official Report, column 948W and the answer by my right hon. Friend, the then Minister for Europe, (Mr. Hoon) on 6 February 2007, Official Report, column 821W.

Of the 31 diplomatic posts closed, 18 were consulates or other subordinate posts in countries where our Embassy or High Commission remains open. Elsewhere, we have made arrangements to safeguard British interests through the non-resident accreditation of a British Ambassador based in a neighbouring country, or the appointment of an Honorary Consul.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office continuously reviews the deployment of its resources and aligns them flexibly in line with UK interests to the benefit of the British taxpayer.

Equatorial Guinea: Human Rights

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what further steps his Department plans to take to seek to ensure that the Government of Equatorial Guinea improves its human rights record, with particular reference to prison conditions. [303705]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We remain concerned about the human rights situation in Equatorial Guinea, including reports by the UN Special Rapporteur on the question of torture, Manfred Nowak, of poor conditions in Equato-Guinean Prisons.

The UK will raise its human rights concerns during Equatorial Guinea's forthcoming Universal Periodic Review in the Human Rights Council this month. The Government welcomed the visit to Equatorial Guinea by the UN Special Rapporteur and the co-operation given by the authorities for the visit. The UK engages in the interactive dialogue for every country going through the review—one of the most important innovations of the Human Rights Council, as it has the potential to result in real improvements in the human rights situation on the ground—and we will do the same for Equatorial Guinea. Our ambassador to Equatorial Guinea, located in Abuja, will also continue to raise concerns with the Equato-Guinean authorities on his visits to the country.

Iraq

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had on oil concessions in Iraq. [303570]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Government have regular discussions on Iraqi energy issues with the Government of Iraq and with international oil companies. These exchanges include discussion of Iraq's recent and upcoming oil licensing rounds through which the Iraqi Government are acquiring international expertise in order to increase oil production and exports.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the number of (a) death sentences imposed by the incumbent Iraqi regime and (b) people sentenced to death who were associated with the previous regime. [304023]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The administration of justice and the punishment of criminal activities in Iraq, including the imposition of the death penalty, is a matter for the elected Government of Iraq. Death sentences have been given to those found guilty of murder or terrorist crimes whether or not they are associated with Saddam Hussein's regime.

The Iraqi Human Rights Minister told UK officials recently that about 900 prisoners had been given the death sentence but it was not clear from when these sentences were imposed. The EU has reported that 117 prisoners have been executed this year.

The position of the UK and of our EU colleagues towards the use of the death penalty is well known to the Government of Iraq, and we continue to raise our opposition to it regularly.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of bribery allegations relating to the private security company Blackwater in respect of the deaths of civilians in Iraq. [304056]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not received any allegations of bribery relating to Blackwater in respect of the deaths of civilians in Iraq.

Iraq Committee of Inquiry

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what position each official in his Department seconded to the Iraq Committee of Inquiry held between January 2001 and December 2003; and for what matters each was responsible in each such year. [303147]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right. hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office, the Minister for the Cabinet Office (Tessa Jowell), on 3 December 2009, Official Report, columns 974-75W.

Jerusalem: Religious Freedom

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the safety of Christians living in the City of Jerusalem. [303760]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have made no recent assessment of the safety of Jerusalemites along specific religious lines. We call on all parties in Jerusalem to avoid actions that inflame tensions and to respect the religious sensitivities that exist in Jerusalem.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the number of (a) rockets and (b) mortar bombs launched into Israeli territory from (i) Lebanon and (ii) Gaza since 1 January 2009; and if he will make a statement. [303915]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Estimates on the exact numbers of rockets and mortar bombs differ; we condemn the firing of any rockets and mortar bombs into Israeli territory. It is unacceptable that militants in the Gaza Strip have continued to fire rockets into southern Israel. In 2009 we have also been concerned by and condemn the sporadic incidents of rocket fire into northern Israel by militants in Lebanon.

Middle East: Religious Freedom

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions (a) each Minister and (b) officials in his Department have had with (i) Arab states and (ii) the government of Israel on discrimination against Jewish communities in Arab states; what the outcomes were of such discussions; and if he will make a statement. [303918]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In the past 12 months the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) has been active in taking forward initiatives designed to counter discrimination against Jewish communities across the world, including in Arab states. In February the FCO co-hosted the inaugural conference of the Inter-Parliamentary Coalition for Combating Anti-Semitism, attended by parliamentarians from around the world. Subsequently we have been committed to advancing the objectives set out in the London Declaration on Combating Anti-Semitism which aspires to combat any manifestations of anti-Semitism and of discrimination against Jewish people.

Middle East: Trade

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the level of trade between Israel and the Palestinian Authority in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [303919]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We have received no reports on the level of trade between Israel and the Palestinian Authority in 2008.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the level of agricultural exports from the Palestinian Authority to Israel in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008; and if he will make a statement. [303920]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has received no specific reports on the level of Palestinian agricultural exports to Israel in 2007 and 2008.

Overseas Price Mechanism

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) what recent assessment has been made of the effect on his Department's budget of adverse currency movements following the withdrawal of the Overseas Price Mechanism in Autumn 2007; [301984]

(2) what proportion of his Department's budget was spent on foreign currency transactions in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [301986]

(3) what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of managing the system of forward purchases of currencies in the latest year for which figures are available; and how many staff have responsibilities connected to this function; [301987]

(4) how much was (a) claimed from and (b) returned to the Treasury under the Overseas Price Mechanism in each year since the mechanism's adoption; [301989]

(5) with reference to the answer of 16 March 2009, Official Report, column 219W, on departmental public expenditure, how many UK overseas posts have required additional funding to maintain the purchasing power of their local budget since Autumn 2007; and how much additional funding was provided for that purpose; [301999]

(6) which UK posts overseas have reported a further decline in the purchasing power of their local budget since that answer was given; and what the value in UK sterling was of the total reported decline. [302000]

David Miliband: Over half the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) spend is in foreign currencies. Exchange rate pressures impact FCO in three main areas: overseas Posts' spending in foreign currencies; contributions to international organisations and peacekeeping; and spending in sterling on items affected by exchange rates. Until 2007, FCO and the Treasury used the Overseas Price Movements (OPM) mechanism to maintain the local purchasing power of our Posts (the first category) despite any movements in exchange rates and differential inflation rates. Recent OPM transfers between FCO and HM Treasury are:

| Financial year | Impact on Posts (million) | Notes |
|---|---|---|
| 2004-05 | -14.1 | Returned to HMT |
| 2005-06 | -4.9 | Returned to HMT |
| 2006-07 | -9.6 | Returned to HMT |
| 2007-08 | +1.4 | HMT Funded FCO Pressure |
| 2008-09 | +59.2 | OPM withdrawn |
| 2009-10 | +80.0 | |

The withdrawal of OPM became effective from April 2008. Since then, 190 of our Posts have faced exchange rate and inflationary pressures. In 2008-09 the exchange and inflation rate pressure on our Posts' budgets was £59.2 million. In 2009-10 the exchange and inflation rate pressures on our Posts' budgets is expected to be £80 million. I have placed details in the Library of the House. Additional exchange rate pressures have impacted our international organisations subscriptions, peacekeeping assessed contributions and some other budgets spent in sterling but impacted by exchange rate movements.

The FCO monitors the impact of foreign currency movements on budgets on a continuing basis. The FCO Board of Management has met frequently and offered me advice on how best to meet the estimated impact (including OPM) of over £100 million in 2009-10.

FCO's discretionary budget from which Posts are funded is £830million (which includes FCO's contributions to UKTI, but excludes all our contributions to UN Peacekeeping and the costs of International Organisations subscriptions). Our Posts have responded impressively with a range of efficiency savings. Programme spend has also been reduced to meet the new budgets.

The foreign currency forward purchase programme to help manage our foreign exchange needs is carried out through our Strategic Treasury Team of three people, drawing on wider skills as and when necessary. A number of more senior staff, including the FCO's Finance Committee, have overseen the operation. HiFX Intelligent Financial Services also provide specialist support at the cost of £41,400 per year.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department conducted a formal assessment of the effect of the proposed withdrawal of the Overseas Price Mechanism during negotiations for the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review; and if he will make a statement. [301985]

David Miliband: I refer the right hon. Member to the replies I gave on 1 April 2009, Official Report, columns 1194-95W.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions between 28 June 2007 and 9 October 2007 he held meetings to discuss the Overseas Price Mechanism and proposals for its withdrawal. [301988]

David Miliband: I refer the right hon. Member to the reply I gave him on 1 April 2009, Official Report, column 1194W.

Palestinians: Christianity

Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the rights of Christians in the Palestinian territories with regard to (a) travel, (b) housing, (c) residency and (d) equal taxation. [303772]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The last report by our British Consulate-General in Jerusalem on Palestinian Christians was dispatched on 11 May 2009. It covered the social conditions of Palestinian Christians living in the Occupied Palestinian Territories (OPTs), reasons for Christian emigration from the OPTs (mainly the occupation and opportunities afforded to them elsewhere), and relations with the majority Muslim Palestinian community. Other than the usual issues of travel around the West Bank and between the West Bank and East Jerusalem, which affect all Palestinians, the report did not focus on travel, housing, or residency. Nor did it touch on the issue of equal taxation. We have not made a separate assessment of these points.

Philippines: Politics and Government

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his Filipino counterpart on the situation in Mindanao following the recent outrages there; and what support the Government are providing to enable next year's election in the to take place peacefully. [303569]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We continue to support efforts to strengthen democratic processes in the Philippines. We are working with the both the Commission for Elections and the Commission for Human Rights in the Philippines to ensure that marginalised voters such as the elderly are able to take up their democratic rights. We also provide support to local efforts to prevent election related violence. For example, we are supporting the National Ulama Conference of the Philippines, a national body of Islamic scholars who have spoken out against the incident and called on those affected not to carry out reprisals.

More broadly the Government are actively involved in promoting peace and stability in Mindanao. We have accepted an invitation to join an International Contact Group in order to assist the peace process between the Government of the Philippines and the Moro Islamic Liberation Front aimed at bringing an end to the long running conflict in Mindanao between the Front, an Islamic separatist group, and the Government of the Philippines.

Scientists

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions he has met (a) the Government Chief Scientific Adviser and (b) his Department's Chief Scientific Adviser in the course of his official duties in the last 12 months. [303968]

Chris Bryant: Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers meet regularly with officials during the normal course of business.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to page 12 of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission (CMEC) Business Plan, 2009-10, by what means the CMEC plans to collect robust and assured data on private arrangements; and if she will make a statement. [300983]

Helen Goodman: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance and system. I have asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested and I have seen the response.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to page 12 of the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission (CMEC) Business Plan 2009 if she will set out how CMEC plans to collect robust and assured data on private arrangements; and if she will make a statement. [300983]

The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is in the process of commissioning work to build an annual survey which will provide an estimate of the number of separated families and the proportion with effective arrangements in place whether statutory or private . The survey findings are expected in 2010.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Children: Maintenance

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate she has made of the number of people contacting the Child Maintenance Options service who have established private maintenance arrangements; and if she will make a statement. [300982]

Helen Goodman: The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission is responsible for the child maintenance system. I have asked the Child Maintenance Commissioner to write to the hon. Member with the information requested and I have seen the response.

Letter from Stephen Geraghty:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Child Maintenance Commissioner.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if she will estimate the number of people contacting the Child Maintenance Options service who have established private maintenance arrangements; and if she will make a statement. [300982]

The Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission has recently conducted an in-house survey of Child Maintenance Options customers to gain an initial indication of outcomes. The survey was carried out in September 2009 and involved people who had contacted the service between August 2008 and August 2009.

From this survey, we estimate that approximately 38,000 effective private arrangements have been put in place following contact with the Options service and approximately 60,000 children are benefiting from these arrangements.

It should be noted that the survey is in-house, not independently assured and does not provide robust findings but provides an early indication of outcomes. The Commission has recently commissioned an independent survey to more effectively establish the impact the service has had and it expects the findings in 2010.

I hope you find this answer helpful.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many residential properties her Department owns; and how many (a) are occupied and (b) have been empty for more than six months. [304003]

Jim Knight: DWP does not own any residential properties.

Departmental Conditions of Employment

Andrew Selous: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of staff of her Department, its executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies work flexibly or part-time; and what her Department's policy is on making jobs available on a job-share or flexible basis. [301334]

Jim Knight: The information held at the end of September 2009 on part-time flexible working contracts for the Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) and its agencies is in the following table.

Working pattern

| | Part-time | |
|---|---|---|
| Agency | Number | Percentage |
| Jobcentre Plus | 28,049 | 31 |
| Pensions Disability and Carers Service | 6,079 | 37 |
| Corporate Shared Services | 3,153 | 24 |
| Total | 37,281 | 31 |

The information held on part-time flexible working contracts for non-departmental public bodies is in the following table.

Working pattern

| | Part-time | |
|---|---|---|
| Non-departmental public body | Number | Percentage |
| Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission (CMEC) | 2,813 | 36 |
| Health and Safety Executive (HSE) | 927 | 24 |
| Independent Living Fund (ILF) | 67 | 36 |
| Pension Protection Fund (PPF) | 14 | 7.3 |
| Pensions Ombudsman (PO) and Pensions Protection Fund Ombudsman (PPFO) | 4 | 11 |
| Personal Accounts Delivery Authority (PADA) | 1 | 0.7 |
| Remploy Ltd. | 500 | 10 |
| The Pensions Advisory Service (TPAS) | 6 | 15 |
| The Pensions Regulator (TPR) | 40 | 13.5 |

DWP recognises the advantage of having a range of different flexible working arrangements to meet business needs. Current selection policy encourages applications from employees looking to job share and work flexibly.

The Department's HR work force planning team produces a monthly pocket facts report, this includes staffing—headcount analysis. The report is available on the departmental intranet with the last publication being for September 2009, this showed 82,344 employees as full time and 37,281 part-time. This equates to 69 per cent. and 31 per cent. respectively. The difference between the 82,344 from pocket facts and the 82,335 in our data (nine) is based on the working pattern not being recorded on RM.

Departmental guidance on working hours and working patterns was amended to include advice for employees on how employees can find potential job-share partners by linking to the civil service jobs on line internet site.

Data on non-departmental public bodies have been provided by the departmental governance team.

Departmental Disclosure of Information

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many allegations of victimisation for whistleblowing have been made to her Department by its staff since 6 June 2006. [301490]

Jim Knight: Information on the numbers of staff in the Department for Work and Pensions who made allegations of victimisation for whistleblowing since 6 June 2006 is not available in the format requested.

The Department for Work and Pensions records the numbers of staff raising grievances and complaints of harassment, discrimination and bullying but does not record information under the specific category requested. To extract more detailed information from individual records under the category requested would be at disproportionate cost.

Civil Servants are required to act in accordance with the standards and core values set out in the Civil Service Code. The Civil Service Code also provides for civil servants to raise matters of concern with the independent Civil Service Commissioners if they do not receive what they consider to be a reasonable response following departmental internal procedures. The Commissioners will also consider taking a complaint direct. Further guidance on whistleblowing is set out in the Civil Service Management Code and the Directory of Civil Service Guidance.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much money her Department (a) lost in each year since 2005 and (b) expects to lose in each of the next three years through administrative error. [303401]

Jim Knight: The available information is in the following table.

Estimated overpayments due to official error since 2005-06

| | Overpayments due to Official Error (administrative error) (£ billion) | Overpayments due to Official Error (administrative error) as a percentage of overall benefit expenditure |
|---|---|---|
| 2005-06 | 0.9 | 0.7 |
| 2006-07 | 0.9 | 0.8 |
| 2007-08 | 0.9 | 0.7 |
| 2008-09 | 0.8 | 0.6 |

Source:
National Statistics publication 'Fraud and Error in the Benefit System: April 2008 to March 2009'

The Department does not produce projections for future losses as a result of administrative error. However, the Department has a strategic objective to reduce overpayments as a result of fraud, official error and customer error combined to 1.8 of overall benefit expenditure per cent by March 2011.

Departmental Security

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many security passes her Department has issued to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months. [303959]

Jim Knight: Information regarding the number of security passes the Department has issued to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months is not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Employment and Support Allowance

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many individuals aged under 25 years commenced a claim for (a) incapacity benefit, (b) work-related employment and support allowance and (c) support group employment and support allowance in each of the last 12 quarters. [301787]

Jonathan Shaw: Information is not presently available separately for work-related and support group employment and support allowance.

The available information is in the tables.

| May 2008 | 25,180 |
| August 2008 | 29,500 |
| November 2008 | 20,630 |
| February 2009 | 2,870 |
| May 2009 | 2,250 |

Notes:
1. The figures represent the total number of spells on this benefit that commence within the quarter. A person may flow on and off the same benefit more than once during a quarter.
2. The figures do not include numbers where people move out of one area and into another while remaining on the benefit. The figures also miss around 8 per cent. of short duration flows onto the benefit every quarter, where the claimant has flowed on and off the benefit between the six weeks scan.
3. Case load figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
4. Employment and support allowance replaced incapacity benefit and income support paid on the grounds of incapacity for new claims from 27 October 2008, any incapacity benefit on flows after that date will be claimants electing to reclaim incapacity benefit within the 52 week linking rules.

Notes:
1. Case load figures are rounded to the nearest 10.
2. Employment and Support Allowance replaced incapacity benefit and income support paid on the grounds of incapacity for new claims from 27 October 2008.
3. The figures relating to employment and support allowance have been thoroughly quality assured to National Statistics standard however it should be noted that this is a new benefit using a new data source which may not have reached steady state in terms of operational processing and retrospection. Hence most recent data shown are provisional.

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what changes she plans to make to the work capability assessment; what steps she is taking to ensure such changes take into account the needs of those with (a) autism and (b) fluctuating conditions; and what estimate she has made of the change in the number of people receiving employment support allowance as a result of such changes. [303636]

Jonathan Shaw: As announced in the White Paper 'Raising expectations and increasing support: reforming welfare for the future', published in December 2008, we are currently conducting a Department-led review of the work capability assessment in consultation with medical experts and representative groups including the National Autistic Society. How the assessment considers individuals with fluctuating conditions forms part of the review and estimation of the effects of any changes will be made once the review is complete.

Employment and Support Allowance: Medical Examinations

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average time taken by Atos Healthcare is to deliver to a claimant's GP a report following a work capability assessment; and if she will make a statement. [305268]

Jonathan Shaw: Atos Healthcare medical examination reports are not sent to claimant's GP's. The medical assessment reports completed by Atos Healthcare are sent directly to the business user of the medical services contract.

Employment and Support Allowance: Sight Impaired

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many new claims for employment and support allowance which were granted were made on the grounds of problems with vision, including visual acuity and visual fields, between October 2008 and February 2009; and how many people assessed for employment and support allowance on the basis of problems with vision, including visual acuity and visual fields, have been judged (a) suitable for the Support Group, (b) suitable for the Work Related Activity Group and (c) as fit for work. [304540]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 7 December 2009]: The information requested is not available.

Home Responsibilities Protection

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many applications for home responsibilities protection have been refused on the grounds that the applicant was unmarried and caring for children while a partner worked in the last 12 months. [303939]

Angela Eagle: None. Whether a couple are married is not one of the criteria used to determine whether home responsibilities protection can be awarded to the partner of a child benefit recipient where the recipient herself has gained a qualifying year through paid work.

Incapacity Benefit: Older Workers

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans her Department has for introducing pilots to help incapacity benefit claimants over the age of 50 years to move off benefit and into work; how many such pilot schemes are planned and in which areas in the country; for how long such pilot schemes will last; and when she expects them to commence. [304541]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 7 December 2009]: On 13 October 2009, the Secretary of State announced a review of the employment support provided to disabled people and those with health conditions. As part of that review we are considering the help we should make available to incapacity benefits claimants over age 50. The underpinning principles of our future reforms of the Pathways to Work programme will be included in the shortly to be published "Back to Work" White Paper. We will publish full proposals in the spring.

Jobseeker's Allowance: South East Region

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average duration of a jobseeker's allowance claim was in each local authority area in the South East in each of the last (a) 12 months and (b) five years. [301277]

Jim Knight: The requested information has been placed in the Library.

KBR

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether her Department has entered into any contracts with Kellogg, Brown and Root or its subsidiaries since January 2009. [303287]

Jim Knight: The Department has not entered into any contracts with Kellogg Brown and Root or its subsidiaries since January 2009.

Pensioners: Income

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of the total income of pensioners came from the (a) public purse and (b) private pension provision in the latest period for which figures are available; and what estimate has been made of the equivalent figures for (i) 2030, (ii) 2040 and (iii) 2050. [304386]

Angela Eagle: In 2007-08, the percentage of total income of pensioners which comes from the public purse is 42 per cent. on average. The percentage of total income of pensioners which comes from a private pension, on average, is 28 per cent. The remaining 30 per cent. on average, comes from investment income, earnings and other income streams.

No estimates have been made of these breakdowns for 2030, 2040 or 2050.

Poverty

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what recent estimate she has made of the number of people with an income below the before housing costs poverty threshold who pay income tax. [300393]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not available.

Sickness Benefits: EU Law

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if she will place in the Library a copy of her substantive response to the letter sent to her by the European Commission on 1 October 2009 giving factual notice in respect of the UK Government's failure to comply with the ECJ ruling on exportable sickness benefits. [303358]

Angela Eagle: The European Commission wrote to the UK Government on 8 October giving formal notification of infraction proceedings challenging how the UK has implemented a 2007 decision of the European Court of Justice relating to Disability Living Allowance (care component), Attendance Allowance and Carer's Allowance.

Correspondence between the European Commission and the member states (including the UK) on such cases is generally regarded by both parties as confidential between them.

As we are currently in dialogue with the European Commission we will not be making our replies to their correspondence public.

Social Security Benefits

Mr. Leech: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate she has made of the cost to the public purse of the Work for Your Benefit scheme pilots. [303807]

Jim Knight: The overall budget for the Work for Your Benefit pilots is £20 million, of which £15 million has been allocated to the provider-led Work for Your Benefit contracts.

We will also deliver an alternative regime of support for jobseekers reaching 24 months on jobseeker's allowance, which we will be comparing to the provider-led programme in the pilot areas. This will be delivered by Jobcentre Plus.

Social Security Benefits: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many former claimants of jobseeker's allowance in Peterborough constituency have moved on to (a) pension credit, (b) a training allowance, (c) the self-employment credit and (d) a Future Jobs Fund job in each month of the last two years. [302013]

Jim Knight [holding answer 30 November 2009]: Data on people who flow off jobseeker's allowance onto pension credit are not collated centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The information requested on people who have flowed off jobseeker's allowance onto training allowance in the Peterborough constituency in each month of the last two years is given in the following table.

Number of people in the Peterborough parliamentary constituency flowing from Jobseeker's Allowance to Government-supported training schemes-each month of the last two years

| July 2009 | 90 |
| August 2009 | 60 |
| September 2009 | 15 |
| October 2009 | 10 |

Notes:
1. Data are rounded to the nearest five.
2. This information is published on the Nomis website at: www.nomisweb.co.uk
3. The percentage of people leaving with an unknown destination recorded has increased over the last 10 years. This is because the completion levels of the JSA40 (forms filled in by people leaving jobseeker's allowance) have decreased over this period. This should be taken into account when interpreting these statistics, as many of these 'unknown' leavers will have moved into employment or other benefits.

Information on the number of people who have flowed off jobseeker's allowance to receive the self-employment credit is not available at constituency level. I refer the hon. The information requested on people who have flowed off jobseeker's allowance into a Future Jobs Fund job is not available.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how many staff worked in 10 Downing Street other than in the Prime Minister's office in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08. [301303]

Angela E. Smith: Other than its own employees the Cabinet Office does not keep records of staff who work in Downing street such as the Metropolitan Police.

Departmental Travel

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office on what date she last travelled by (a) bus and (b) taxi in the course of her official duties. [302718]

Tessa Jowell: All travel I undertake is in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

Ministers

Mr. Bone: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what criteria determine the order in which Cabinet Ministers are listed in the list of Cabinet Ministers on page two of the List of Ministerial Responsibilities, dated October 2009. [305096]

Tessa Jowell: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence on 9 November 2009, Official Report, column 83W.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the cost to the Government Equalities Office was of the provision of office facilities to (a) special advisers and (b) press officers in the 2008-09 financial year. [302962]

Michael Jabez Foster: The cost to accommodate GEO's private and press office staff in 2008-09 was £90,272. This figure covers the office facility costs for one special adviser, two press office posts and the wider private office. It is not possible to separate out specific costs for special advisers and press office.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Africa: Overseas Aid

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will hold discussions with his (a) Egyptian, (b) Sudanese and (c) Ethiopian counterpart to seek progress on re-negotiating the terms of the Nile Basin Initiative. [illegible]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) is not engaging directly in the negotiations for a new agreement on Nile waters. Negotiations are led by the basin countries. DFID along with all partners to the Nile Basin Initiative are following the process closely.

Developing Countries: Educational Visits

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funding his Department has provided for children and young people from each local authority area to visit developing countries in each of the last five years. [304342]

Mr. Michael Foster: To collect the disaggregated spend on young people visiting developing countries by local authority would incur disproportionate costs.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has spent in each local authority area on school-based learning about international development in each of the last five years. [304430]

Mr. Michael Foster: We are unable to provide data on how much has been spent on school-based learning about international development in each local authority area, as this information is either unavailable or would incur disproportionate costs to collect.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) how many contracts to provide publicly-funded visits for children and young people to developing countries his Department has funded in the last 12 months; what the monetary value of each contract is; when each such contract expires; what assessment has been made of their effectiveness and value for money; and if he will make a statement; [304432]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the merits of providing public funding for children and young people from the UK to visit developing countries. [304431]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has two contracts which provide publicly funded visits for children and young people to visit developing countries. These are Platform2, DFID's youth volunteering programme for less advantaged young adults, and the Global School Partnership (GSP) programme which links schools in the UK and developing countries. The monetary value and expiry date of each contract is provided in the table.

| Name of contract | Contract expiry date | Value of contract (£) |
|---|---|---|
| Platform2 | 31 December 2010 | 9,935,361 |
| GSP | 31 March 2012 | 21,364,646 |

A recent independent external evaluation of Platform2 concluded that it is successfully changing attitudes towards international development, engaging young people and generating activism around development issues. Furthermore two recent independent evaluations found that GSP has had a substantial impact on schools in the UK and developing countries and that school partnerships result in positive impacts on children's knowledge and understanding of global issues.

Overseas Aid

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much aid his Department provided to each overseas country in each of the last three years. [304227]

Mr. Michael Foster: A summary of the level of aid provided by the Department for International Development (DFID) to each overseas country in each of the five years to 2008-09 is published in Statistics on International Development a copy of which is available in the Library or on the DFID website:

www.dfid.gov.uk

TREASURY

Banks: Government Assistance

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the agreement between the Bank of England and HBOS and RBS providing collateral in excess of £100 billion for the emergency liquidity assistance given to those banks. [302697]

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what interest rate was set for repayment of the loan made to (a) RBS and (b) HBOS in October 2008; what guarantees were obtained by the Bank of England as security against each such loan; and whether he discussed those matters with the Governor of the Bank of England prior to the Governor's appearance before the Treasury Committee on 24 November 2009. [302967]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: As disclosed by the Governor of the Bank of England in his letter to the Chairman of the Treasury Committee dated 23 November, collateral with a total value of over £100 billion was taken by the Bank as security to support its loans to HBOS and RBS. The assets taken as collateral comprised Government issued debt, residential mortgages, and personal and commercial loans. These assets were of types eligible to be taken in securitised form in the Bank's market wide facilities.

From 16 October any additional lending under the facilities was conducted under an indemnity by HM Treasury, which covered the residual risk on the loan after significant collateralisation. At its peak this indemnity covered £18 billion of the support provided.

The rate charged to the two banks was a penal rate, broadly equivalent to a cost of funds around 2 per cent. above the equivalent market funding rate.

The Chancellor and the Governor of the Bank of England have a regular dialogue on a wide range of financial and economic issues as well as matters relating to emergency liquidity assistance.

Information about the Bank's market-wide facilities is available on the Bank's website:

http://www.bankofengland.co.uk/markets/marketnotice090925ltr.pdf

http://www.bankofengland.co.uk/markets/marketnotice090925dwf.pdf

http://www.bankofengland.co.uk/markets/marketnotice090925sls.pdf

Details of arrangements between the Bank of England and the two banks are a matter for the Bank of England.

Beer: Prices

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what percentage of the average retail price of a pint of beer comprised tax in each of the last three years. [304167]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: HMRC publish data on the percentage of the average price of a pint of beer that constitutes tax in the Alcohol Factsheet. This can be found in Tables 3.5 and 3.7 at:

https://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=factalcohol

Data for 2009 are not yet available.

Cheques

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with British banks on allowing their customers to retain the right to continue to use cheques indefinitely; and if he will make a statement. [304139]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Treasury Ministers and officials have discussions with a wide variety of organisations in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such discussions.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Heald: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost to his Department was of provision of office facilities to (a) special advisers and (b) press officers in the 2008-09 financial year. [302964]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Information on HM Treasury's administration costs is published in its Annual Report and Accounts each year. The 2008-09 Report (HC611) was published on 20 July 2009 and is available from:

www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/annual_report09.htm

The Department does not hold the information requested relating to specific staff groups, and could provide it only at disproportionate cost.

Energy: Conservation

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) individuals and (b) private landlords have submitted claims under the Landlord's Energy Saving Allowance in each year since the inception of the scheme. [304740]

Mr. Timms: The numbers of non-corporate landlords that have used the Landlord's Energy Saving Allowance (LESA) since 6 April 2004 are shown in the following table. HM Revenue and Customs' administrative systems do not capture information for companies.

| | Individuals | Partnerships | Total |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 1,430 | 30 | 1,460 |
| 2005-06 | 1,470 | 20 | 1,490 |
| 2006-07 | 1,740 | 50 | 1,790 |
| 2007-08 | 2,300 | 60 | 2,360 |

Post Offices: Bank Services

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what timetable he has set for bringing forward proposals to enable the Post Office to provide more banking services. [301965]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

A 12 week national public consultation on Post Office banking was launched on 2 December.

Rent A Room Scheme

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the effect on (a) room availability and (b) revenue of an increase in the tax-free threshold of the rent-a-room scheme. [304741]

Mr. Timms: No such assessment has been made.

An increase in the threshold to £9,000 has been estimated to reduce Exchequer revenue by £10 million.

Taxation: Business

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) small and medium-sized and (b) other enterprises have made Time to Pay arrangements with HM Revenue and Customs to defer tax through the Business Payment Support Service to date; how much tax liability has been deferred as a result of such arrangements; and if he will make a statement. [304410]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs measures the Business Payment Support Service through the number and value of agreements reached, and not by the size of business. To 29 November 2009 just under 238,000 Time to Pay arrangements have been agreed worth £4.17 billion.

The agreements do not defer payment but agree the payment of tax by instalments over a period of time. Since the service was introduced on 24 November 2008, over 90 per cent. of the value of payments due has been paid by the agreed time.

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much tax HM Revenue and Customs forecasts will be written off as bad debts as a result of (a) small and medium-sized and (b) other enterprises which have made Time to Pay arrangements with HM Revenue and Customs to defer tax through the Business Payment Support Service not being able to meet their tax liabilities in (i) January 2010, (ii) February 2010, (iii) March 2010, (iv) April 2010, (v) May 2010, (vi) June 2010, (vii) July 2010, (viii) August 2010 and (ix) September 2010; and if he will make a statement. [304411]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not readily available and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) includes an overall provision for doubtful debt each year in its annual accounts but does not routinely disaggregate this figure. The most recent provisions are included in the accounts to 31 March 2009, available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/about/hmrc-accs-0809.pdf

However, over 90 per cent. of the value of tax that has become due under Time to Pay arrangements agreed through the Business Payment Support Service, launched in November 2008 is being paid in line with agreed instalments.

Arrangements are available to businesses that are in genuine financial difficulty and unable to pay tax on time, but that are likely to be able to pay the tax due if given more time.

HMRC looks at each Time to Pay proposal on its individual merits against general risk-based criteria, which it has since the service's introduction to reach decisions on a case-by-case basis.

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) small and medium-sized and (b) other enterprises which have made Time to Pay arrangements with HM Revenue and Customs to defer tax through the Business Payment Support Service are scheduled to pay their tax liability in (i) January 2010, (ii) February 2010, (iii) March 2010, (iv) April 2010, (v) May 2010, (vi) June 2010, (vii) July 2010, (viii) August 2010 and (ix) September 2010; and if he will make a statement. [304413]

Mr. Timms: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Working Tax Credit: Expenditure

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of his Department's expenditure on the childcare element of working tax credit in (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [305300]

Mr. Timms: No such forecast has been produced.

JUSTICE

Access to Justice Act 1999

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what amendments have been made to the Access to Justice Act 1999; and if he will make a statement; [303893]

(2) what (a) statutory instruments, (b) departmental circulars and (c) other documents he (i) has issued since 1999 and (ii) plans to issue in the next 12 months consequent on the provisions of the Access to Justice Act 1999; and if he will make a statement; [303894]

(3) what recent representations he has received on the operation of the Access to Justice Act 1999; what assessment he has made of the effects of the provisions of that Act on people accused of a criminal offence; and if he will make a statement. [303905]

Bridget Prentice: The Access to Justice Act 1999 covers a very wide range of areas, including civil and criminal legal aid, conditional fee and litigation funding agreements, legal services regulation, judges, and the courts, and therefore this information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Administration of Justice: Females

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what gender-sensitive policies and procedures his Department has introduced for women in the criminal justice system in the last five years. [304443]

Maria Eagle: The information requested is as follows:

We have:

(a) agreed funding for a total 31 Women's Community Projects to provide additional services in the community to women at risk of offending and previous offenders;

(b) introduced gender specific standards which ensure an appropriate response to women prisoners, including on searching, implemented in all women's prisons this year;

(c) published in May 2008 an Offender Management Guide for working with women and National Service Framework to improve services to women offenders.

In addition a Consultation Paper by the Sentencing Advisory Panel addressing important principles of sentencing of women offenders was issued in December 2008.

C-NOMIS Database Project Board

Alan Duncan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment he has made of the accuracy of the information provided to Ministers in his Department by the C-NOMIS database project board in respect of the (a) cost and (b) timeliness of the project as it progressed. [300784]

Maria Eagle: There have been no recent assessments. The National Audit Office conducted a review of the NOMIS programme which reported in March 2009 informing the Public Accounts Committee's November 2009 report. We are responding to the PAC report and anticipate publication of the response in January 2010.

Constitutions

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) Ministers, (b) officials, (c) representatives of local authorities and (d) (i) invited and (ii) non-invited members of the public attended the deliberative event of 28 November on rights and responsibilities and a written constitution. [303991]

Mr. Wills: The deliberative event on 28 November 2009, which is one of a series designed to support qualitative research, was attended by the following persons:

(a) One Minister—The right hon. Michael Wills MP, Minister of State, Ministry of Justice.

(b) Five officials from the Ministry of Justice.

(c) No representatives from local authorities.

(d) (i) 110 invited members of the general public.

(d) (ii) The deliberative events were open only to those who were invited to constitute a broadly representative sample of the population as a whole. It follows that no non-invited members of the general public attended the event on 28 November.

Crimes of Violence: Merseyside

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of conviction rates for those accused of crimes of violence with homophobic motives in Merseyside. [304226]

Mr. Alan Campbell: I have been asked to reply.

There has not been a recent assessment of conviction rates for those accused of crimes of violence with homophobic motives in Merseyside.

In September 2009 we launched the Cross-Government Hate Crime Action Plan which contains a number of action points designed to reduce numbers of crimes of violence across all five hate crime strands, including sexual orientation. In particular, it commits the Home Office to produce guidance for Crime and Disorder Partnerships on preventing and responding to hate incidents and hate crimes.

There is also a range of activity taking place in the North West to combat hate crime targeted at lesbian, gay and bisexual (LGB) individuals. For example, bar owners and door staff in and around the areas of Liverpool frequented by LGB communities have recently received hate crime awareness-raising training.

Further, Liverpool's Hate Crime Reduction Forum which brings stakeholders together from across Liverpool to address all strands of hate crime, funded the As One programme which was an educational awareness programme focused on youth centres in the Kensington area encompassing antisocial behaviour and diversity awareness.

Debts: Advisory Services

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to respond to his Department's consultation on debt management schemes. [305188]

Bridget Prentice: The consultation paper Debt Management schemes—delivering effective and balanced solutions for debtors and creditors was published on 18 September. The consultation does not close until 18 December.

Responses received will be subjected to both a numerical and a qualitative analysis and Ministers will consider the evidence early 2010. A Response Paper setting out the Government's position in the light of this evidence will be published after that.

Departmental Legislation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what criminal offences have been (a) abolished and (b) created by primary legislation sponsored by his Department since 1 May 2008. [303254]

Claire Ward: The criminal offences abolished and created by primary legislation sponsored by my Department are provided in the following list. The information has been obtained by a manual trawl of the legislation.

Departmental Security

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many security passes his Department has issued to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months. [303942]

Mr. Straw: We do not hold central records of the number of security passes which are issued locally across the Ministry of Justice (MoJ) estate. While some parts of MoJ produce separate passes for contractors we do not identify which of those are issued for consultancy purposes. Identifying the numbers would involve disproportionate cost.

Departmental Taxis

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many miles (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department and its predecessor travelled by taxi in the course of their official duties in each year since 1997; and at what cost to the public purse in each such year. [302703]

Mr. Straw: The requested information is not held in the administrative or finance systems of the Ministry of Justice (MoJ) or its predecessor bodies. To answer this question, the MoJ would need to collect the information manually and the costs of collection would exceed the disproportionate cost threshold. So far as I can recall I have used a taxi on three occasions since 1997 on official duties.

The Civil Service Management Code sets outs regulations and instructions to departments and agencies regarding the terms and conditions of service of civil servants and the delegations which have been made by the Minister for the civil service under the Civil Service (Management of Functions) Act 1992 together with the conditions attached to those delegations.

The Code can be accessed at the following website:

http://beta.civilservice.gov.uk/about/work/codes/csmc/index.aspx

Paragraph 8.2 deals with travel and under this section departments and agencies must ensure that staff use the most efficient and economic means of travel in the circumstances, taking into account any management benefit or the needs of staff with disabilities.

Driving Offences

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of drivers who were convicted of causing death by dangerous driving in each of the last 10 years had previously been banned from driving. [302351]

Claire Ward: The data held centrally by the Ministry of Justice on the court proceedings database for England and Wales do not contain information about the circumstances behind each case, including whether an offender found guilty at court had previously been banned from driving.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of people who were convicted of dangerous driving in each of the last 10 years were not insured to drive the vehicle in which the offence was committed. [302352]

Claire Ward: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only by analysing approximately 50,000 cases which would require manual collation at a disproportionate cost.

Nadine Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many convictions for (a) offences of drink driving and (b) each other motoring offence resulted in a custodial sentence in (i) Mid Bedfordshire constituency, (ii) the East of England and (iii) England in each of the last 10 years. [302926]

Maria Eagle: The number of defendants found guilty at all courts in the Bedfordshire police force area, the East of England Government office region and England for driving after consuming alcohol or taking drugs and other motoring offences (by offence type) is given in tables 1, 2 and 3 from 1998 to 2007 (latest available). Sentences of immediate custody imposed at all courts are given in tables 4, 5 and 6.

Court proceedings data are not available at parliamentary constituency level.

Data for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

Table 1: Defendants found guilty at all courts in the Bedfordshire police force area, for motoring offences,[1] by offence type, from 1998 to 2007[2, 3]

[1] Offence groups are shown only where data have been reported within the period given.

[2] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[1] Offence groups are shown only where data have been reported within the period given.

[2] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Drugs: Newcastle

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) trials and (b) convictions there have been for drug offences in Newcastle between 2000 and 2009. [302533]

Claire Ward: Information showing the number of defendants proceeded against and found guilty at Newcastle Upon Tyne Petty Sessional Area (PSA), including those found guilty at the Crown court where Newcastle Upon Tyne PSA was the committing court for drug offences, 2000 to 2007 (latest available) is shown in the following table.

Data for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

Number of defendants proceeded against and found guilty at Newcastle Upon Tyne petty sessional area (PSA), including those found guilty at the Crown Court where Newcastle Upon Tyne PSA was the committing court for indictable drug offences[1], 2000 to 2007[2, 3]

Electoral Register

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much income local authorities have received from the sale of electoral register details to (a) businesses and (b) charities in each of the last seven years. [303904]

Mr. Straw: The Government do not collect information from local authorities on the revenue received from the sale of the electoral register.

The fees charged for the sale of the registers are set with a view to the recovery of reasonable administration costs. In August 2008, the Local Government Association and the Association of Electoral Administrators surveyed local authorities on the overall income generated by the sale of the edited version of the electoral register. 204 local authorities responded to the survey, which found that the overall revenue received was an average of £1,900 per annum.

The Government are currently consulting on the future of the edited register. The consultation opened on 24 November 2009 and closes on 23 February 2010.

Henry VIII Clauses

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what Henry VIII powers were enacted in legislation passed in the 2008-09 Parliamentary Session. [303908]

Mr. Straw: The Government do not routinely collect or hold information about the number of Henry VIII provisions. However in response to an earlier question from the hon. Member for Eddisbury (Mr. O'Brien) on the number of Henry VIII powers that had been enacted up until that point in the 2008-09 Session, a detailed exercise was undertaken to collate the information.

The Minister of State, my right hon. Friend the Member for North Swindon (Mr. Wills) wrote to the hon. Member for Eddisbury on 10 November 2009 with the following information:

> As you know, a Henry VIII clause is a power in a Bill which enables primary legislation to be amended or repealed by secondary legislation. Such provisions are included in legislation for a variety of reasons.
> Due to the diverse nature of this type of power, we cannot be sure that we have captured every instance. However we estimate that there are around 70 such powers contained within legislation enacted so far this Session. At least 10 of these powers are not new, but have been re-enacted this Session and at least 15 of the powers are provisions allowing for consequential amendments. The majority of the remaining powers are narrow in scope, applying in specific circumstances, including 18 powers in the Finance Act 2009.
> 15 of the 70 powers are contained in the Banking Act 2009, which was passed in response to the recent period of sustained disruption in global financial markets. The more substantive of these 15 powers are necessary to ensure that the special resolution regime can be used effectively to resolve a failing bank or building society, in order to protect depositors and maintain financial stability.
>
> Parliament has long—and rightly—been hostile to the principle of Henry VIII powers, and so have I and my colleagues. They are only used when there is substantial call for them: no practical alternative of dealing with the issue in the original legislation; and such powers are rarely wide-ranging. The exercise of any Henry VIII power will be subject to subsequent parliamentary approval, either by way of the negative resolution procedure (for example where the change is technical, consequential or minor) or, as in most cases, the affirmative resolution procedure.
> All of the powers themselves were subject to parliamentary scrutiny prior to their enactment and were accepted as necessary by Parliament having considered the views of the Delegated Powers and Regulatory Reform Committee.

In order to answer this question fully, a similar exercise is being undertaken to take account of the Acts that have received Royal Assent since 10 November and I will write to the hon. and learned Member as soon as this exercise is complete. A copy will be placed in the House Library.

Legal Aid: Asylum

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many asylum seekers were in receipt of legal aid on 1 November 2009. [303818]

Bridget Prentice: The Legal Services Commission (LSC) only records the number of claims from providers of asylum work rather than the number of publicly funded asylum seekers at any given point. In the period from April 2008 to March 2009, the LSC funded 46,628 asylum matter starts.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department budgeted for legal aid to asylum seekers in 2009-10. [303819]

Bridget Prentice: There is not a separate budget for legal aid in respect of asylum seekers. Asylum seekers may seek legal aid in categories of law other than asylum and like all those seeking legal aid, must satisfy the means and merits tests where it is required in respect of civil categories of law and the means test and interests of justice test where it is required for criminal law.

Monarchy

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent discussions on the order of succession he has had with his Commonwealth counterparts. [303835]

Mr. Straw: I have had some informal and inconclusive discussions with some of my Commonwealth counterparts on this over the years. We have no record of any formal discussion on this.

NHS: Reciprocal Arrangements

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) whether he has had discussions with the Secretary of State for Health on the implications for the Isle of Man of the decision to cancel the reciprocal agreement between the NHS and the Isle of Man with effect from 1 April 2010; and if he will make a statement; [305186]

(2) whether he had discussions with the Secretary of State for Health on the implications for (a) Jersey and (b) Guernsey of the cancellation of the reciprocal agreement between each island and the NHS from 1 April 2009 prior to the decision to cancel the agreement; and if he will make a statement. [305187]

Mr. Wills: There were no discussions between Ministry of Justice and Department of Health Ministers. The decision to cancel the agreement was a matter for Department of Health Ministers alone, but prior to the decision being taken discussions took place between officials of both Departments.

Personal Injury: Compensation

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent research he has commissioned to assess changes in the distribution of payments in respect of personal injury litigation between (a) insurers, (b) solicitors, (c) claimants and (d) defendants since the 1996 Woolf Report on Access to Justice; and if he will make a statement. [301919]

Bridget Prentice: Research has not been commissioned recently which assesses changes in the distribution of payments in respect of personal injury litigation.

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the consequences of the introduction of a fixed costs regime in personal injury litigation with regard to road traffic accidents; and if he will make a statement. [301921]

Bridget Prentice: No new research has been commissioned. However, data on current costs were made available to the representative organisations involved in the mediation process which resulted in the agreed fixed costs.

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent research he has commissioned on models of funding for personal injury litigation. [303354]

Bridget Prentice: I have not recently commissioned research specifically on models of funding for personal injury litigation. However, in June 2008 my Department commissioned a scoping project on 'no win no fee' agreements covering a number of areas including personal injury. We expect to publish the report of the scoping project shortly.

Prison Accommodation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of prisoners were held in accommodation classified as overcrowded in each year since 1997. [302495]

Maria Eagle: A prison's "certified normal accommodation" (CNA) is its agreed capacity when there is no crowding. A prison's "operational capacity" is the maximum number of prisoners it is allowed to hold over and above CNA taking into account control, security and the proper operation of regimes. Operational capacity in prisons is set by the Director of Offender Management on behalf of the Secretary of State.

Operational managers must ensure that each cell used for the confinement of prisoners has sufficient heating, lighting and ventilation and is of adequate size for the number of prisoners to be held in it.

The figures requested are available from 1998-99 onwards and are set out in the following table.

| | Average number of prisoners in overcrowded accommodation | Average percentage of prison population in overcrowded accommodation |
|---|---|---|
| 1998-99 | 13079 | 20.0 |
| 1999-2000 | 13083 | 20.1 |
| 2000-01 | 11780 | 18.2 |
| 2001-02 | 13018 | 19.2 |
| 2002-03 | 16684 | 23.3 |
| 2003-04 | 18300 | 24.8 |
| 2004-05 | 18214 | 24.3 |
| 2005-06 | 18356 | 24.0 |
| 2006-07 | 19438 | 24.6 |
| 2007-08 | 20377 | 25.3 |
| 2008-09 | 20452 | 24.7 |

Prisons: Drugs

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what progress has been made in the review of Prison Rule 39 on privileged prisoner correspondence recommended by the Blakey Review on disrupting the supply of illicit drugs into prisons; and if he will make a statement. [303435]

Maria Eagle: While not making this a formal recommendation in his report David Blakey highlighted the potential for abuse of Rule 39 mail for smuggling drugs. The Government undertook that the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) would review Rule 39 mail to maintain legal privilege while reducing misuse.

The National Offender Management Service takes very seriously the principle of confidential communications between prisoners and their legal representatives which is embodied in Prison Rule 39. Any interference in these communications needs to be against a background of reasonable cause to believe that the communication is being made with the intention of furthering a criminal purpose.

Legally privileged mail can already be opened and read in the presence of the prisoner, where there is specific intelligence to justify it.

Since the report NOMS is consulting with the operational field and its law enforcement partners to establish the threat posed by current Rule 39 procedures and will shortly engage the Law Society to investigate whether and if so how these can be improved.

Prisons: Females

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many agency staff are working in female prisons. [302326]

Maria Eagle: All figures as follows are provided in full-time equivalent (FTE). As at 31 October 2009, there were a total of 33 agency staff and contractors working in public sector female prisons (13 operational support grades, 11 administration grades, eight nursing grades, and one psychology grade). There were a total of 2,970 staff working in female public sector prisons.

There were a total of three agency staff (all healthcare grades) working in contracted out private female prisons. There were a total of 894 staff working in female contracted out private prisons. Kalyx (the private prison contractor) are currently running a recruitment campaign for nurses.

Agency staff and contractor figures provided for the public sector prisons are collected from manual staffing returns supplied by stakeholders in individual establishments and are therefore liable to inaccuracies associated with records of this type. Information for the contracted out private prisons was provided by Kalyx. Information on the number of agency staff and contractors is not held separately within NOMS/HMPS. The figure shown for public sector female prisons therefore relates to the cumulative total of agency staff and contractors.

Prisons: North Wales

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what projects under what budget headings were funded by the £324,000 plus value added tax spent on due diligence work in connection with the proposed prison site at Caernarfon. [303836]

Maria Eagle: Due diligence expenditure on the Dynamex, Caernarfon site fell under three main headings: legal, environmental assessment/valuation, and independent valuation.

The actual expenditure to date on due diligence work is £228,261 plus VAT. The quoted figure of £324,000 plus VAT was the amount originally budgeted for the work.

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) when he expects to announce his decision on the site of a new prison in North Wales; [303837]

(2) how many sites for a new prison in North Wales his Department is considering. [303838]

Maria Eagle: A fresh site search was announced on 27 October 2009 for further sites for new prisons. This will focus in or near areas where the demand for prison places is greatest, including North Wales. Potential sites are in the process of being identified and a shortlist will be drawn up and published in spring 2010.

Scientists

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many occasions he has met the Government Chief Scientific Adviser in the course of his official duties in the last 12 months. [303882]

Mr. Straw: None.

Sentencing: Offensive Weapons

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 11 November 2009, Official Report, columns 482-3W, on offensive weapons, how many of the six offences receiving the maximum sentence relate specifically to possession of an article with a blade or point. [303789]

Claire Ward: Since 12 February 2007 the maximum custodial sentence for knife or offensive weapon possession offences is 4 years. Therefore the answer gives data from March 2007 to June 2009 (the most recent published data from the Knife Crime Sentencing Quarterly brief). Further information is available at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/knife-crime-sentencing.htm

With reference to the answer of 11 November 2009, Official Report, columns 482-83W, on offensive weapons, which stated six offences received the maximum sentence of four years custody for possession of a knife or offensive weapon, two of these offences (committed by two offenders) were for possession of an article with a blade or a point.

Maximum penalties are set at a level to provide for the most serious conceivable case of a particular offence and therefore are rarely imposed.

More custodial sentences are being given for knife and offensive weapon possession and those that are sent to jail are serving longer sentences. The proportion of immediate custodial sentences given for possessing a knife or offensive weapon increased from 17 per cent. to 19 per cent. of all sentences between the second quarter of 2008 compared with the same period in 2009. The average sentence length in the second quarter 2009 was 194 days which is a 42 per cent. increase from the same quarter in 2008.

These figures have been drawn from the police's administrative IT system which, as with any large scale recording system, is subject to possible errors with data entry and processing. The figures are provisional and subject to change as more information is recorded by the police.

Sexual Offences: Rehabilitation

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the timeliness of the delivery of (a) internet sex offender programmes and (b) community sex offender programmes against scheduled delivery timetables in each probation area in each of the last three years. [303934]

Mr. Straw: Delivery for the completion of sex offender treatment programmes (SOTP) is scheduled against annual targets. Targets for the number of completions of SOTP have been negotiated and agreed locally between Probation Areas or Trusts and the NOMS regional (and Wales) offices since 2007-08. In 2006-07 there were no area-level targets for SOTP completions, only a national target. Monthly milestones for delivery throughout the year are also agreed locally. These targets cover the overall provision of SOTP and are not broken down by the programme type.

The targets are included in the Service Level Agreements (or contracts for Probation Trusts) setting out the agreed level of service delivery for each financial year and are signed off by the Regional Offender Manager or now the Director of Offender Management. Performance relative to targets and milestones is assessed quarterly through the Integrated Probation Performance Framework (IPPF), which provides the basis for the published provider ratings.

Sex offender treatment programmes are delivered as a requirement of either a community sentence or release on a post-custodial licence. They are delivered alongside a supervision requirement, which is overseen by an Offender Manager. Supervision commences as soon as the offender is sentenced or released from custody and involves assessment of risk and treatment needs in addition to sentence planning and preparing the offender to engage in treatment. Other measures designed to protect the public may also be put in place, such as Multi-Agency Public Protection Arrangements (MAPPA). Supervision requirements for sex offenders are usually longer (up to three years) in order to allow sufficient time for treatment to be completed.

The following table sets out the actual delivery of accredited sex offender treatment programme completions against targets for each probation area since 2006-07.

Probation sex offender treatment programme delivery targets

Terrorism: Compensation

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will assess the merits of introducing retrospective compensation for British victims of terrorism overseas. [304134]

Claire Ward: The Government are considering proposals to establish a scheme to compensate the victims of overseas terrorist attacks. There are a number of complex issues to consider, including whether such a scheme should apply to past terrorist attacks. I expect a decision to be made shortly.

Truancy

Mr. Moss: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many parents appeared in court in relation to their children's truancy in (a) England and (b) North East Cambridgeshire in each of the last 10 years. [303716]

Claire Ward: Information showing the number of persons proceeded against in relation to their children's truancy in England and Cambridgeshire police force area from 1998 to 2007 (latest available) can be found in the following table.

Data are not available at constituency level; police force area data have been provided in lieu. Data for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

Number of persons proceeded against at magistrates' courts for offences relating to truancy[1] in Cambridgeshire police force area and England, 1998 to 2007[2, 3]

| Proceeded against | 1998 | 1999 | 2000 | 2001 | 2002 | 2003 | 2004 | 2005 | 2006 | 2007 |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|

[1] Includes the following:
(i) Failure to secure regular attendance at school. (Education Act 1996 S.444 (1)(8))
(ii) Parent knows that their child is failing to attend school regularly and fails without reasonable justification to cause him or her to attend school. (Education Act 1996 S.444(1A)(8a) added by Criminal Justice and Court Services Act 2000 S.72).
(iii) Offences against the Education Acts 1944-2002. (This classification to be used when a person is prosecuted for an offence under 'The Education Acts')
(Not to be used where there is a specific code for an offence under one of the Education Acts or for offences under (i) or (ii)).
[2] The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.
[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Young Offenders: Foster Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice for what reasons the evaluation of the Youth Justice Board's intensive fostering scheme has not been completed in accordance with the original timetable; what estimate he has made of the effects on the costs of the evaluation of its extended duration; and when he expects the outcomes of the evaluation to be published. [305353]

Maria Eagle: The timetable for the Intensive Fostering Evaluation was extended by nine months from 1 March 2008 to 31 December 2008 to allow extra time for the recruitment of the sample and the control group, as the initial setting up of the pilot programmes and referrals of children into the programme took longer than initially anticipated. The additional cost for this extension was £34,090.00.

The first draft of the Intensive Fostering Evaluation report was received by the Youth Justice Board in December 2008. Since then it has been revised and then sent out to peer review. The peer review comments and questions are in the process of being dealt with and it will be available for publication in the first quarter of 2010. The delays have not affected the cost of the evaluation as dealing with reviews and comments is built in to the initial contract.

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments: Greater London

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information his Department holds on the number of patients using accident and emergency services in the London North Central District in each of the last five years. [304554]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Information is collected on first attendances in accident and emergency (A&E) departments. This excludes follow up visits for the same condition, but counts each attendance by the same patient for different conditions separately. The following table shows reported first attendances for north central London.

First attendances at A and E departments, minor injury units and walk in centres, NHS organisations in London North Central District, 2004-05 - 2008-09

Care Homes

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of residential care homes that would convert to sheltered accommodation or extra care housing as a result of the implementation of his legislative proposals on personal care at home. [304855]

Phil Hope: It is open to any residential care home to reshape their service, subject to appropriate registration of the new service. Comments are welcomed on the likely impact of these proposals in the current consultation, "Personal Care at Home: a consultation on proposals for regulations and guidance", and this is something that we will wish to explore with relevant stakeholders. A copy of the document has already been placed in the Library.

Care Homes: Standards

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether a care home requires a valid planning consent in order to comply with the national minimum standards for care homes set out by his Department. [305350]

Phil Hope: It is for local planning authorities to determine whether planning consents are required in individual cases.

Under the Care Standards Act 2000 and the Health and Social Care Acts 2003 and 2008, the Government have set up an independent regime of inspection and regulation of health and social care providers. All care homes in England are regulated—registered and inspected—by the Care Quality Commission (CQC).

CQC regulates care homes in accordance with statutory regulations—the Care Homes Regulations 2001—and national minimum standards. The regulations set out what providers must do by law. The Government introduced national minimum standards to set out clearly what care homes are expected to provide to demonstrate that they comply with the regulations.

Care Quality Commission: Expenditure

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the Care Quality Commission has spent on (a) public relations, (b) public affairs and (c) surveys of hon. Members since its creation. [303023]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Care Quality Commission (CQC) took over from the Healthcare Commission, the Mental Health Act Commission and the Commission for Social Care Inspection on 1 April 2009.

CQC has informed us that expenditure on CQC's media and public affairs from 1 April 2009 to 31 October 2009 was £439,508 for staff costs and £156,672 for non-staff costs. CQC does not have a budget for public relations activity.

Since 1 April 2009, CQC has commissioned part of one survey of hon. Members. This survey is ongoing. The CQC is an independent organisation and has told us that the cost to CQC is £14,985 not including VAT.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 his Department received in 2008; and how many of these received a substantive response within 20 days. [305503]

Phil Hope: In 2008, the Department received 1,349 requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

Within these 1,349 requests, 1,167 received a substantive response within 20-days.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Eddisbury of 23 June 2009, Official Report, column 853W, on departmental public relations, what the (a) remit and (b) purpose was of hiring each public affairs consultancy for each of the listed bodies; and what company was hired in each case. [305025]

Phil Hope: The information requested is not held centrally.

The data requested is operational detail that can be obtained directly from the bodies concerned. Those bodies which procured work from public affairs consultancies between 1999-2000 and 2008-09 were identified in the answer of 23 June 2009, Official Report, column 853W. More detailed information about this work can be sought from the individual bodies concerned.

Dieticians: Qualifications

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding on average his Department provides for a four year dietetics degree which allows the holder to register as a registered dietician with the Health Profession Council. [303777]

Ann Keen: The Department provides funding to strategic health authorities to commission training places on dietician degree courses. In 2008-09, the bench mark price for the cost of tuition in that year for a four year dietetics degree was £8,830 per national health service funded student. Eligible students on this course also receive a means tested NHS bursary from the NHS Student Bursaries Unit. In 2008-09 the average NHS bursary per eligible student was £2,482 for that year.

In addition to the NHS bursary, dietician students are also eligible to apply for a non means tested student loan from the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills.

Driving

Dr. Ladyman: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms are in place to ensure that staff who drive (a) a vehicle for which (i) his Department and (ii) one of its executive agencies is responsible have valid driving licences and (b) their own vehicles in the course of their official duties for (A) his Department and (B) one of its executive agencies have valid driving licences and insurance; what guidance is issued to those staff in respect of road safety while carrying out official duties; what steps are taken to monitor compliance with that guidance; what requirements there are on such staff to report to their line managers accidents in which they are involved while driving in the course of their official duties; and whether such reports are investigated. [302164]

Phil Hope: Staff in the Department and its agencies do not use departmental vehicles. Those staff who use their own vehicles for business use, are personally responsible for ensuring that insurance and other driving documentation requirements are met. This must be confirmed on each claim for reimbursement of such expenses.

No specific guidance is issued in respect of road safety. Road traffic accidents are not reportable under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995.

Exercise

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment his Department has made of the effects of regular exercise on the health of people aged (a) 18 to 25, (b) 26 to 49, (c) 50 to 69 and (d) 70 years old and more. [304219]

Gillian Merron: The Chief Medical Officer's report "At least five a week"—Evidence on the impact of physical activity and its relationship to health—sets out the evidence for the health benefits of regular physical activity for children and adolescents, adults and older adults. It was published in 2004 and a copy of the report has already been placed in the Library.

To take in to account more recent research, the Department is currently working with Welsh Assembly Government, Public Health Agency for Northern Ireland and NHS Health Scotland to review the existing United Kingdom recommendations for the "dose" of physical activity required for general health benefits.

Gender Identity Disorder: Prisoners

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the Prison Service Order on gender dysphoria to be published. [304662]

Phil Hope: A draft Prison Service Order (PSO) on guidelines for the management, treatment and care of prisoners who have or have had gender dysphoria is currently undergoing revision following the ruling of a recent Judicial Review in which the claimant, a pre-operative transgender prisoner, applied for Judicial Review of a decision of the defendant Secretary of State for Justice refusing to transfer her from a male prison to a female prison. The application was accepted and the outcome ruled in favour of the claimant.

The Department is currently reviewing the health aspects of the draft PSO and will provide advice to officials at the Ministry of Justice who are responsible for all other aspects within the PSO.

There is no agreed date as yet for publication of the PSO. The final PSO will be comprehensive as it deals with very complex issues such as the general position in law on the Gender Recognition Act 2004 and Disclosure of Information as well as general principles concerning the treatment of prisoners living 'in role', and guidance around searching. This PSO will ensure that all staff are fully aware and understand the protocols for managing prisoners who have or have had gender dysphoria.

General Social Care Council

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when he expects the General Social Care Council's report for 2008-09 to be published. [303704]

Ann Keen: The General Social Care Council's Annual Report and Accounts for 2008-09 are expected to be published on 7 December 2009.

Health Services: Crown Dependencies

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what (a) the total monetary value was of elective health treatment purchased from the NHS by the Isle of Man government in each of the last 20 years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement; [301050]

(2) with which (a) countries, (b) overseas territories and (c) other jurisdictions the National Health Service has reciprocal agreements comparable to the agreement between the NHS and the Isle of Man; and if he will make a statement; [304444]

(3) on what statutory basis he cancelled the reciprocal agreement between the NHS and (a) Jersey and (b) Guernsey in respect of (i) Scotland, (ii) Northern Ireland and (c) Wales; and if he will make a statement; [304549]

(4) what discussions (a) Ministers and (b) officials of his Department had with their counterparts in (i) the Northern Ireland Executive, (ii) the Scottish Executive and (iii) the Welsh Assembly Government on the discontinuance of reciprocal health arrangements between the NHS and (A) Guernsey and (B) Jersey with effect from 1 April 2009; and if he will make a statement; [304529]

(5) what discussions (a) Ministers and (b) officials of his Department have had with their counterparts in the Scottish Executive on the discontinuance of reciprocal health arrangements between the NHS and the Isle of Man with effect from 1 April 2010; and if he will make a statement. [304832]

Gillian Merron [holding answer for PQ301050 25 November 2009]: In addition to the Isle of Man, the United Kingdom Government currently have reciprocal healthcare agreements with Australia, Barbados, British Virgin Islands, Falkland Islands, Gibraltar, Montserrat, New Zealand, Russia, St. Helena, Turks and Caicos Islands, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Georgia, Kazakhstan, Moldova, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, Uzbekistan, Ukraine, Serbia Montenegro, Croatia, Bosnia and Herzegovina and Macedonia.

All of these agreements are similar in that they provide healthcare cover for tourists from non European Union member states.

The Overseas Territories of Anguilla, the British Virgin Islands, Montserrat, St. Helena and Turks and Caicos can each refer, to the national health service, four patients per year, specifically for elective treatment.

In the case of the Isle of Man and Gibraltar, a financial allocation is set aside each year and is made available for elective treatment following clinical referral.

The following table shows the allocation provided by the UK to the Isle of Man under the terms of the bi-lateral healthcare agreement. This allocation is used to fund elective NHS healthcare. The Isle of Man may also have commissioned elective treatment outside of the terms of the agreement but this information is not held by the Department of Health centrally.

Allocation made available to the Isle of Man under reciprocal healthcare agreement:

Allocation to Isle of Man

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2008-09 | 2.80 |
| 2007-08 | 2.65 |
| 2006-07 | 2.50 |
| 2005-06 | 2.35 |
| 2004-05 | 2.21 |

Note
Prior to 2004-05 allocation was uncapped

The agreement with the Isle of Man contained a six-month notice period; the UK Government exercised that right and a termination date of 31 March 2010 was agreed with the Isle of Man. The Department gave notice on the agreements with both the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man on behalf of the UK. Prior to this, departmental officials consulted with the Ministry of Justice and with officials from the devolved Administrations.

Hospitals: Hygiene

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the level of hand hygiene among (i) doctors, (ii) nurses, (iii) other NHS staff, (iv) patients and (v) visitors to hospitals in the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [304158]

Gillian Merron: The Department's policy research programme has funded an independent four year research study to assess the implementation of the clean your hands campaign, its sustainability, and the impact on hand hygiene and on health care associated infection. The evaluation has shown that, as a result of the campaign, there has been a sustained change in hand hygiene behaviour in acute hospitals nationally, with a three-fold rise in procurement and use of alcohol hand rub and soap; and that there appears to be a strong association between reductions in methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus bacteraemia and use of alcohol hand rub.

Further information about the evaluation is available online at:

www.idrn.org/nosec.php

Impact Assessments

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many Regulatory Impact Assessments published by his Department have cited peace of mind as a policy objective since 1997. [304952]

Phil Hope: The information requested could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mental Capacity Act 2005

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) amendments have been made to and (b) representations he has received on the Mental Capacity Act 2005 in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [303895]

Phil Hope: There have been no amendments made to the Mental Capacity Act 2005 in the last 12 months.

A number of representations have been made in the last 12 months as shown in the following table.

| Case type | Total |
|---|---|
| Parliamentary questions | 3 |
| Departmental e-mails | 52 |
| Correspondence | 24 |
| Telephone inquiry | 1 |
| Total | 80 |

Mental Health Services: Prisoners

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Justice on services for people in the criminal justice system with mental health conditions; and if he will make a statement. [304678]

Phil Hope: Ministers and officials at the Department of Health and Ministry of Justice work closely together to improve the health care available for people in the criminal justice system.

Improving Health, Supporting Justice, the national delivery plan of the health and criminal justice programme board was published on 17 November. It includes the Government's response to Lord Bradley's review of people with mental health problems or learning disabilities in the criminal justice system.

NHS: Finance

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding was allocated to the NHS research and development budget in each of the last five years; and how much such funding had not been disbursed at the end of each such financial year. [303702]

Gillian Merron: The information requested is shown in the following table.

£ million

| | National health service research and development budget | Funding not disbursed to research and development at year end |
|---|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 601 | 2.1 |
| 2005-06 | 617 | 0 |
| 2006-07 | 659 | 0 |
| 2007-08 | 730 | [1]28.8 |
| 2008-09 | 702 | 2.7 |

[1] Includes £26 million reallocated to meet other departmental priorities.

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department spent per capita in each primary care trust in England in each of the last three years. [304457]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information has been placed in the Library.

NHS: Procurement

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the NHS spent on medical supplies and equipment in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [304252]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Total revenue expenditure on clinical supplies and services taken from the national health service audited summarisation schedules was £4,922,822,000 in 2008-09, which is the latest period for which figures are available.

Revenue expenditure on clinical supplies and services is taken to include drugs, dressings, medical and surgical equipment, x-ray equipment and supplies, laboratory equipment, appliances (e.g. artificial limbs and wheelchair hardware) and the maintenance of equipment. The Department does not collect information that allows capital expenditure on medical equipment to be disaggregated from total capital expenditure.

NHS: Yorkshire and the Humber

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many full-time equivalent (a) medical consultants, (b) other medical staff, (c) nurses, (d) other professional staff, (e) administrative and clerical staff and (f) auxiliary staff were employed by (i) Pontefract and Pinderfields NHS Trust and (ii) Dewsbury NHS Trust between 1996 and 2002. [303935]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested. In 2002, Pinderfields and Pontefract NHS Trust and Dewsbury Health Care NHS Trust merged to form the Mid Yorkshire Hospitals NHS Trust. Therefore the figures for the individual trusts are not available for 2002. The information that is available is shown in the following table:

Social Enterprise Investment Fund

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) which organisations have received grants from his Department's Social Enterprise Investment Fund since July 2008; and how much each has received; [304254]

(2) on what date each organisation in receipt of a grant from the Social Enterprise Investment Fund (a) applied for and (b) received its grant; [304255]

(3) how much funding his Department has assigned to the Social Enterprise Investment Fund for (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10; [304256]

(4) what criteria are used to assess applications to his Department's Social Enterprise Investment Fund. [304257]

Phil Hope: The allocations for the Social Enterprise Investment Fund (SEIF) are as follows.

| | Revenue (£ million) (Revenue includes fund manager costs) | Capital (£ million) |
|---|---|---|
| 2008-09 | 8.534 | 11 |
| 2009-10 | 9.294 | 26 |

The criteria used to assess applications are published on the Department's website, and are as follows:

you have to be a social enterprise according to the Government definition—"a business with primarily social objectives whose surpluses are principally invested for that purpose in the business or in the community, rather than being driven by the need to maximise profit for shareholders and owners"; your proposed services have to deliver health and/or social care outcomes;

the ultimate beneficiaries of your proposal must be based in England;

you have to be unable to secure funding from a commercial bank;

you must be able to repay the investment and be able to show how you plan to do so; and your proposal must help meet the aims of SEIF.

The organisations that have received investment from the SEIF are in a table which has been placed in the Library.

To date in 2009-10 the following organisations have been beneficiaries of the SEIF from Social Investment Business

| Organisation | Business development grant | Revenue grant | Revenue loan | Capital loan |

Social Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will estimate the cost of implementing the provisions of personal care as set out in the Personal Care at Home Bill using a definition of personal care which includes the services listed in paragraph 4.9 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill. [304787]

Phil Hope: It is not appropriate to do so, as Instrumental Activities of Daily Living are outside the definition of Personal Care as set out under the draft regulations being made under sections 8 and 20 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 4.6 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, if he will publish by the end of 2009 (a) the model and (b) the costing produced by the model. [304788]

Phil Hope: As stated in the Impact Assessment, work on this is ongoing. We are currently modelling costs and will be consulting more widely with stakeholders to test those costing assumptions. The consultation will run until 23 February 2010.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 5.2 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, whether the expectation of costs of providing personal care reflects an expected use in (a) unit costs, (b) costs to councils or (c) other costs. [304789]

Phil Hope: The point being made in paragraph 5.2 of the Impact Assessment is that the 'do nothing' option will not impose any additional costs beyond those currently met by councils or individuals. In addition, those individuals who currently make a means-tested contribution to their care costs will not, under the 'do nothing' option, be protected against any future increases in the care charges levied by councils.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to table 2 and Annex 1 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, if he will publish the logistic model used to calculate each individual's need for formal care; and from what source data were derived to populate that model. [304796]

Phil Hope: The logistic regression model referred to in Annex 1 is used to estimate a continuous measure of need for individuals 65 and over in the third wave of the English longitudinal study of ageing (ELSA). The data used to populate the model was from the third wave of ELSA. The specification of the model is as follows:

$$\text{logit}(p) = b_0 + b_1X_1 + b_2X_2 + b_3X_3 + b_4X_4 + b_5X_5 + b_6X_6 + b_7X_7 + b_8X_8 + b_9X_9$$ where p is the probability of receiving formal care (either state, private or voluntary sector funded)

$b_0$ is a constant term

$b_1$ to $b_9$ are co-efficients on the independent variables $X_1$ to $X_9$

$X_1$ is the individual's age in years

$X_2$ is the square of the individual's age in years

$X_3$ is 1 if the individual has difficulty with dressing and 0 if not

$X_4$ is 1 if the individual has difficulty with walking and 0 if not

$x_5$ is 1 if the individual has difficulty with bathing and 0 if not

$x_6$ is 1 if the individual has difficulty with eating and 0 if not

$x_7$ is 1 if the individual has difficulty with going to bed and 0 if not

$x_8$ is 1 if the individual has difficulty with going to the toilet and 0 if not

$x_9$ is 1 if the individual lives alone and 0 if not

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to Annex A of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, from what source the assumption that home care represents 74 per cent. of overall community care costs and personal care represents 85 per cent. of that is derived. [304798]

Phil Hope: The figure of 74 per cent. is derived from Personal Social Services EX1 expenditure data for older people and estimated by expressing the expenditure on home care services in terms of overall expenditure. In the absence of data on the share of home care costs represented by personal care we have made a conservative, illustrative assumption of 85 per cent.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 5.9 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what methodology was used to reach the estimate that a further 108,964 persons already have their personal care needs met free of charge; and what the equivalent estimated figure is for (a) 2015, (b) 2020, (c) 2025 and (d) 2030. [304800]

Phil Hope: The Personal Social Services Research Unit (PSSRU)'s micro-simulation model for older people estimated a volume of fair access to care services (FACS) critical individuals who already receive state-funded care at home.

This figure was broken down into those who are FACS critical and report difficulty with four or more activities of daily living (ADLs) by using the information in the English longitudinal study of ageing, which is presented in table 1 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill. The 108,964 represents the residual volume of FACS critical individuals from PSSRU's model—i.e. those reporting difficulty with less than four ADLs.

The figures in the impact assessment cover the period from October 2010 to the end of 2012-13. Estimating beyond this point is problematic because of the uncertainties involved. For instance, the proposals here are intended as a step towards a fully integrated national care service, at which point a different set of assumptions may need to be applied.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons the net present value costs identified in table 3 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill are inconsistent with the present value costs identified on page 2. [304801]

Phil Hope: Table 3 of the impact assessment shows the net present value costs of extending the offer of free personal care at home to those in highest need—i.e. individuals who are estimated to be fair access to care services critical and who report difficulty with four or more activities of daily living. The net present value costs reported in the summary sheet on page 2 also include the costs of offering re-ablement services, estimated to be £130 million in 2011-12.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the inherent uncertainties referred to in paragraph 5.10 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill are. [304802]

Phil Hope: The uncertainties are those aspects of people's behaviour that will change as a result of the introduction of these proposals. An accurate forecast of these therefore cannot be made. The impact of the policy will be reviewed after 12-18 months to ensure that it is being applied properly and that there are no perverse incentives.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 5.11 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what his Department's (a) minimum and (b) maximum estimate of re-ablement costs are. [304803]

Phil Hope: We understand that there is wide variability in costs of re-ablement in different councils. The Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill makes clear that the £1,000 cost of re-ablement per person is an assumption—paragraph 5.15 states, "If we assume the cost of a package of re-ablement is £1,000 per person..."—and its derivation is clearly and transparently stated in Annex B. Given the uncertainties associated with alternative cost figures and the relatively conservative stance taken with regard to potential benefits, the £1,000 per person estimate used in the impact assessment is not considered to be unreasonable.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to paragraph 5.12 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, if he will place in the Library a copy of the model referred to. [304804]

Phil Hope: The model referred to in paragraphs 5.12, 5.13 and Annex B of the Impact Assessment is still under development. For this reason, its output has not been incorporated into any of the figures reported in the Impact Assessment. The model will continue to be updated and refined as more information becomes available.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill; whether he plans to make individuals eligible for more than one package of re-ablement funded by the taxpayer. [304805]

Phil Hope: This is something that we invite comments on as part of the consultation, 'Personal Care at Home: a consultation on proposals for regulation and guidance', a copy of which has already been placed in the Library. There are currently no proposals to restrict packages of re-ablement. It will be for councils to determine who might benefit from this intervention and whether it is appropriate to repeat this at a later date.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 4.6 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, in what cases he expects the indicative sum to be administered (a) by the council and (b) through an individual budget or direct payment. [304812]

Phil Hope: It will be for individuals to choose whether they wish the council to provide services through a personal budget on their behalf or whether they wish to take a direct payment and arrange services for themselves.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what re-ablement schemes he expects to be available; and what home additions might be made under such schemes. [304814]

Phil Hope: This would be a matter for local discretion based on the assessment of an individual's needs. In our consultation, 'Personal Care at Home: a consultation on proposals for regulations and guidance', we suggest that this could include physiotherapy, occupational therapy, installation of telecare or adaptations to the house. A copy of the document has already been placed in the Library.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to Annex B of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, how the average number of hours of personal care per week of 6.54 was calculated; and whether the (a) calculation and (b) figure of 6.54 hours has been published by his Department previously. [304815]

Phil Hope: The model referred to in paragraphs 5.12, 5.13 and Annex B of the Impact Assessment is still under development. For this reason, its output has not been incorporated into any of the figures reported in the Impact Assessment. The model will continue to be updated and refined as more information becomes available.

The assumption used for the average number of hours of personal care per week of 6.54 was used for illustrative purposes. It is derived by converting the cost and volume estimates from the Personal Social Services Research Unit's (PSSRU) micro-simulation model for older people into an equivalent weekly number of hours. Although this figure has not been previously published, a reference to a technical paper giving further details of PSSRU's micro-simulation model is given in Annex A of the Impact Assessment.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 5.13 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what his Department's (a) minimum and (b) maximum estimates of net savings are. [304816]

Phil Hope: The model referred to in paragraphs 5.12, 5.13 and Annex B of the impact assessment is still under development. For this reason, its output has not been incorporated into any of the figures reported in the Impact Assessment. The model will continue to be updated and refined as more information becomes available.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) with reference to Table 4 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what methodology was used to calculate each estimate; [304837]

(2) with reference to paragraph 5.21 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, on what grounds he made his illustrative assumptions; and when the further work in paragraph 5.23 will be (a) undertaken and (b) published; [304853]

(3) with reference to the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what methodology was used to calculate the figure given for total benefit. [304949]

Phil Hope: A technical paper that addresses these points has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to collect centrally data relating to (a) Fair Access to Care Services critical people and (b) reablement. [304845]

Phil Hope: The consultation document, "Personal Care at Home: a consultation on proposals for regulations and guidance", has sought views from councils on what data may be required and how they might be collected. A copy of the document has already been placed in the Library.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he plans to operate his policy on free personal care as set out in the Personal Care at Home Bill by means of individual budgets. [304846]

Phil Hope: The consultation document, "Personal Care at Home: a consultation on proposals for regulations and guidance", makes it clear that we intend that the free personal care component would form part of a personal budget and could be used flexibly to meet agreed outcomes. A copy of the document has already been placed in the Library.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Explanatory Notes for the Personal Care at Home Bill, whether external legal advice was sought on the effects on human rights of the proposals in the Personal Care at Home Bill. [304849]

Phil Hope: Legal advice relating to legislation is generally provided by departmental lawyers. No external legal advice was sought on this matter.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether children would be eligible to receive taxpayer-funded personal care under his proposals for personal care as set out in the Personal Care at Home Bill. [304850]

Phil Hope: These proposals are for adults over the age of 18. Children will continue to be covered, as they are now, under separate legislation.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 7.10 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what (a) events and (b) submissions have contributed to the consultation being undertaken on effects on particular regions; and if he will publish (i) the responses to and (ii) the outcomes of this consultation by the end of December 2009. [304854]

Phil Hope: Comments on the impact of the policy on different councils are invited in the consultation document, "Personal Care at Home: a consultation on proposals for regulations and guidance", a copy of which has already been placed in the Library. The consultation will run until 23 February and a response will be published following that.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 7.10 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, how many beneficiaries he expects there to be in each local authority area in England. [304858]

Phil Hope: This information is not available at a local authority level.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of people assessed as critical under the Fair Access to Care Services (FACS) eligibility framework in each of the last five years were subsequently assigned to another FACS band. [304859]

Phil Hope: This information is not held centrally.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether free personal care under his proposed changes to the care system would continue if a person assessed as critical under the Fair Access to Care Services eligibility framework was subsequently assessed at a different level. [304860]

Phil Hope: Councils are under a duty to regularly assess an individual's needs and adjust the support available to them as needs change. Under our proposals, if an individual should no longer meet the criteria they would no longer be eligible for free personal care.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what assessment he has made of the effects of enactment of his legislative proposals on competition in the care home sector. [304946]

Phil Hope: This policy is designed to support individuals who want to live at home for as long as possible where this is what they wish. With an ageing population there will continue to be a need for residential care, and this will remain an appropriate setting in which to meet some people's care needs.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, for what reasons the impact assessment does not include costings for policy enforcement by local authorities. [304947]

Phil Hope: An estimate of the associated administrative costs of the policy for local authorities is included in table 2 of the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill and these have been estimated at £27 million.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the merits of a national resource allocation system for the provision of free personal care; and if he will make a statement. [305028]

Phil Hope: The Department has looked at the merits of a national resource allocation system (RAS). The range of provision varies substantially between different local authorities, which makes a national RAS unrealistic at the present time.

As part of the Regulations and guidance which will inform the working of the Personal Care at Home Bill, the Department plans to develop a national assessment tool for all authorities to use to ensure a consistent application of the eligibility criteria for free personal care at home. The consultation document, Personal Care at Home: a consultation on proposals for regulations and guidance, asks for comments on three options as to how available resources and funding might be allocated to individuals by councils. The consultation document has already been placed in the Library.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment has been made of the capacity of local authorities to provide free personal care under the terms of the Personal Care at Home Bill; and if he will make a statement. [305029]

Phil Hope: The plans for free personal care at home for those with the highest care needs should build on the most innovative practices already adopted by many local authorities and primary care trusts. We have already begun engaging with local authority stakeholders to discuss the workings of the scheme, and councils are invited to respond to the consultation document, "Personal Care at Home: a consultation on proposals for regulations and guidance". The consultation document has already been placed in the Library.

Social Services: Finance

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to his Department's Personal Care at Home consultation document, from what budgets the £420 million of central funding will be drawn. [304700]

Phil Hope: Changes to planned expenditure in 2010-11 to cover the Department's £420 million contribution to the funding of the Personal Care at Home Bill include nearly £50 million from indicative advertising and communications spending, over £60 million from management consultancy spending and over £20 million in reduced administration costs.

In addition, a saving of £62 million will be achieved by transferring responsibility for research activity from other departmental budgets to the Department's ring-fenced research and development budget. That budget will rise to over £1 billion in 2010-11. The research it currently funds will continue as planned.

Tuberculosis: Health Services

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will establish a national programme to co-ordinate the provision of prevention and control services for tuberculosis. [303794]

Gillian Merron: Tuberculosis (TB) services delivered by the national health service are recommended to follow the advice contained in the Chief Medical Officer's Action Plan Stopping Tuberculosis in England published in 2004, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidance Clinical diagnosis and management of tuberculosis and measures for its prevention and treatment published in 2006, and the Department's TB Toolkit Tuberculosis prevention and treatment: a toolkit for planning, commissioning and delivering high-quality services in England issued in 2007. Copies of the plan and toolkit have already been placed in the Library.

Organisation and delivery of TB services are the responsibility of NHS management, and we have held stakeholder meetings to work with local services to review the overall strategy for TB control.

We have also delivered a number of initiatives to TB services across England; including:

Free treatment drugs for all TB patients have been provided; and Systematic screening of prisoners for TB in key prisons is being implemented.

In addition, we are funding an awareness raising strategy, aimed at primary healthcare professionals with locally targeted messages to high-risk groups to improve early detection.

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) criteria and (b) methodology his Department uses to determine the effectiveness of the port of entry system in the monitoring of tuberculosis. [303795]

Gillian Merron: Screening at ports of entry is a Home Office policy, and managed by the Health Protection Agency (HPA). Therefore, the Department has no specific criteria for determining the effectiveness of the port of entry tuberculosis (TB) screening programme.

The HPA indicate that just over 0.1 per cent. of those screened by X-rays at Gatwick and Heathrow are reported to have pulmonary TB.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Home Information Packs

18. Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment his Department has made of the effects of home information packs on the housing market since their introduction. [304614]

Mr. Ian Austin: We are currently working up proposals to evaluate the effectiveness of the HIPs programme and expect the results to be available in 2010. Early independent research undertaken by Europe Economics and published in November 2007 concluded that the introduction of HIPs would not have a negative impact on the housing market.

Business Rates Revaluation

19. Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if he will conduct an impact assessment on the effect on businesses of the 2010 business rates revaluation. [304615]

Barbara Follett: Regular revaluations are a standard part of the business rates system and are required by statute. Therefore, no impact assessment has been undertaken by my Department on the overall implementation of the 2010 business rates revaluation.

A final impact assessment of our £2 billion transitional relief scheme for revaluation 2010 was published on 17 November.

Northumberland Unitary Authority

20. Sir Alan Beith: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if he will visit Northumberland to discuss the funding of the new unitary authority. [304616]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I can reassure the right hon. Gentleman that I have already had discussions with Northumberland about funding.

My right. hon. Friend the Secretary of State, along with my right hon. Friend the Minister for the North East met the leader and chief executive of Northumberland in the summer.

In addition, officials are maintaining a regular dialogue with council officers, with their next meeting being in Morpeth on Friday this week.

Kirkby: Regeneration

22. Mr. George Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what his policy is for the regeneration of Kirkby; and if he will make a statement. [304618]

Mr. Denham: Her Majesty's Government recognise the importance of regeneration in Kirkby, as demonstrated by the £72 million of public and European investment that has been made into Kirkby and the surrounding areas.

My right hon. Friend met yesterday with my right hon. Friend the Minister for the North West (Mr. Woolas), to explore opportunities for the development of Kirkby town centre. It was agreed that a proposal would be produced for the redevelopment of the town centre to create enhanced retail, leisure, office and public sector facilities for the residents of Kirkby. Key regional bodies will be working with partners in Knowsley to develop this proposal, and I have asked my officials to keep closely involved in supporting and monitoring progress on this work.

The Regional Minister will chair a further meeting in early January to take stock of progress.

Tenants Rights

23. Chris McCafferty: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent steps he has taken to protect the rights of tenants; and if he will make a statement. [304619]

John Healey: The Government's response to Julie Rugg's independent review of the private rented sector set out a range of proposals aimed at improving the quality and professionalism of the sector for tenants.

Fire-setting

24. Ms Barlow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent steps fire and rescue services have taken to discourage fire-setting behaviour in juveniles and adults. [304620]

Mr. Malik: The Fire and Rescue Service is increasingly engaged in a range of youth work activities, specifically targeting youths at risk from social exclusion, and those who show signs of fire play, including adults, as part of their community safety work. To support Fire and Rescue Services CLG is working with the Arson Control Forum to help steer the direction of their work programme. This will include encouraging further Fire and Rescue Service activity to address fire related antisocial behaviour activity by children and adults, as research shows that intervention can help reduce the problem.

Out-of-town Supermarkets

25. Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what account the planning guidance issued by his Department takes of the effect on town centres of the location of out-of-town supermarkets. [304621]

John Healey: Planning Policy Statement 6 (PPS6) requires a sequential approach to site selection to ensure that the most central sites are considered first. It also requires local authorities to consider whether unplanned edge or out-of-centre proposals will result in any unacceptable impacts on existing centres. PPS6 will soon be replaced with Planning Policy Statement 4: Planning for prosperous economies (PPS4) which will strengthen the approach to assessing the impact of development proposals for town centre uses.

Worklessness

Lindsay Roy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent representations he has received on the role of local authorities in reducing worklessness. [304617]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I, my ministerial colleagues and my officials, are in regular contact with a range of organisations on this important issue, including individual local authorities and the Local Government Association.

Local authorities and their partners play a vital role in tackling worklessness, through leading, co-ordinating and delivering integrated partnership responses to worklessness that are tailored to local needs.

That is why we topped-up the £1.5 billion Working Neighbourhoods Fund with an additional £40 million last month, and that is why local authority-led partnerships are responsible for around half of the 95,00 Future Jobs Fund jobs announced so far.

Business and Community Safety Forum

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether he plans to extend the appointment of Councillor Les Byrom as Chair of the Business and Community Safety Forum; and if he will make a statement. [304831]

Mr. Malik: Arrangements for an extension to Councillor Byrom's appointment as Chair of the Business and Community Safety Forum are currently being finalised. The extension would mean Councillor Byrom continuing in the role of Chair until March while a review of the forum's effectiveness is undertaken.

Council Housing: Finance

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much local authority housing debt has been removed following large-scale voluntary transfers since 1997. [304425]

Mr. Ian Austin: Since 1997 the amount of local authority housing debt the Department has paid to the Public Works Loans Board following large scale voluntary transfers is £4.226 billion.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much historic housing debt remains a local authority responsibility. [304426]

Mr. Ian Austin: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs Spelman) on 29 October 2009, Official Report, column 519W.

Local authorities are responsible for all the housing related debt that they hold.

Derelict Land

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made on the London Brownfield Sites Database; and whether he plans to extend the database across England. [304822]

Mr. Ian Austin: The London Brownfield Sites database was launched on 8 October 2009 by the London Development Agency and the Homes and Communities Agency. The database is a freely available online tool. It is being used by all 33 London local planning authorities and other stakeholder groups including the Environment Agency, Natural England and English Heritage. Visitors to the database website are able to identify sites suitable for development, and explore and understand a site's context due to the themed data made available. Data include transport routes, deprivation, social infrastructure, as well as heritage and natural environment assets. The Homes and Communities Agency is considering options for the development of similar systems in other English regions. As part of this process HCA will monitor the effectiveness of the London Brownfield sites database over the coming months.

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what progress has been made on establishing the National Brownfield Forum; and whether the forum will include non-governmental environmental organisations. [304826]

Mr. Ian Austin: The first meeting of the National Brownfield Forum was held in February 2009. It has since met twice further. Membership of the forum is made up of both governmental and non-governmental organisations, including Environmental Protection UK, the Environmental Industries Commission and the Chartered Institute of Environmental Health.

Disabled Facilities Grants

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what recent assessment he has made of the level of (a) demand and (b) funding available for disabled facilities grants in Somerset; and if he will make a statement; [303736]

(2) what his latest estimate is of disabled facilities grant allocations in each local authority in England as a percentage of assessed grant need in the latest year for which information is available; and if he will make a statement. [303744]

Mr. Ian Austin: Communities and Local Government provided local authorities in Somerset with £1.7 million in 2009-10 towards their disabled facilities grant budgets.

The 2009-10 estimates on the disabled facilities grant allocations as a percentage of assessed need is available on Communities and Local Government website at http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/supportandadaptations/housingadaptations/localauthoritydfgallocations/

Local authorities are required to complete an annual claim and monitoring form to the Department for disabled facilities grants. This includes information on the level of contribution claimed from central government, levels of expenditure and levels of demand. The most recent data collection exercise, which has been expanded in 2009-10 to gather more information on levels of grant need, is nearly complete and we will be publishing the figures early in the new year.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much his Department has allocated for disabled facilities grants (DFG) in each local authority (a) per head of population, (b) per person of retirement age and (c) per person in receipt of disability living allowance and/or attendance allowance in 2009-10; and if he will make a statement. [303743]

Mr. Ian Austin: Communities and Local Government provided £158 million in 2009-10 to support local authorities in their responsibilities to deliver disabled facilities grants. Funding has grown steadily from £57 million in 1997-98. That funding is allocated to local authorities using a formula which takes into account regional level data from the English House Condition Survey on the number of disabled people in each region living in unsuitable housing and a regional building cost index. For each local authority there is also a local needs indicator, based on the number of individuals in that authority in receipt of either disability living allowance or attendance allowance.

The levels of funding ranked by head of population, per person of retirement age and per person in receipt of disability living allowance and/or attendance allowance are not collected by Communities and Local Government.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent estimate he has made of the average time taken for the award of disabled facilities grants in each local authority in Somerset; and if he will make a statement. [303735]

Mr. Ian Austin: Communities and Local Government does not collect information from local authorities on the average time taken for the award of disabled facilities grants. Responsibility for the management and delivery of the programme rests with local housing authorities.

Eco-Towns: Biodiversity

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment he has made of the proposals on protecting and enhancing biodiversity in eco-towns published by the Town and Country Planning Association on 1 December 2009. [304586]

John Healey: The biodiversity worksheet published by the Town and Country Planning Association on 1 December is part of a series of best practice worksheets to support those taking forward eco-town proposals. Like all the worksheets in the series it is advisory and not a statement of Government policy. All the worksheets have been produced with the input of a range of stakeholders, including from Government and agencies.

Fire Services

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether a business continuity assessment will be included in the comprehensive area assessment in respect of the fire and rescue service in the next assessment period; and if he will make a statement. [304782]

Mr. Malik: Effective contingency planning and emergency preparedness by authorities is a performance expectation set out within the Government's National Framework for the Fire and Rescue Service. An assessment of general preparedness in each fire and rescue authority has already taken place as a part of this year's comprehensive area assessment and will be publicly reported on 9 December on the new "oneplace" website.

Further assessment of specific business continuity preparedness will take place as a part of the next period of comprehensive area assessment.

Fires

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether he plans to make a formal response to the ministerial submission of 2 April 2009 from the Business and Community Safety Forum on the fires in timber-framed constructions; and if he will make a statement. [304780]

Mr. Malik: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State, Department for Transport on 28 May 2009 to the joint ministerial submission from the Business and Community Safety Forum and Practitioners Forum. I have placed a copy of the reply in the Library.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions he has had with (a) the Chief Fire Officers Association, (b) the Health and Safety Executive, (c) local authorities and (d) the Building Research Establishment on regulation of the construction of timber-framed buildings on construction sites; and if he will make a statement. [304781]

Mr. Malik: The implications for fire safety on timber framed construction sites was discussed at my meetings with the joint Business and Community Safety Forum and the Practitioners' Forum on 13 October and, in the light of the recent fire in Peckham, with the Chief Fire Officers Association Presidential Team on 1 December.

Officials are in regular contact with representatives from all these organisations on a wide range of issues, including fire safety on construction sites where timber-framed buildings are being erected. Most recently, officials met on 3 December with representatives from the fire service, local authority building control bodies, Association of Consultant Approved Inspectors and the Health and Safety Executive to consider what use could be made of the statutory consultation process between Building Control bodies and the fire safety departments of local Fire and Rescue Services to aid their operational pre-planning.

Housing

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of all households were in (a) private owner-occupied, (b) private rented and (c) social rented accommodation in each London local authority area in each of the last five years. [304516]

Mr. Ian Austin: Figures are reported for dwellings and not households.

Local authorities report the number of private and total dwellings within their local authority area in their Housing Strategy Statistical Appendix returns. There is no distinction between owner-occupiers and private renters. Table 1 provides the percentage of all dwellings that were privately owned.

Additionally, local authorities also report the number of dwellings owned by local authorities and registered social landlords in their local authority area. Table 2 provides the percentage of all dwellings, within the social sector.

Total dwellings also include other public sector dwellings and therefore figures in tables 1 and 2 will not add to 100 per cent.

Housing: Carbon Monoxide

Tom Levitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if he will review the ventilation standards for vehicle garages attached to domestic properties with a view to reducing the risk of carbon monoxide poisoning. [304115]

Mr. Ian Austin: Ventilation standards for buildings are set in Part F of the Building Regulations (England and Wales), but the standards do not currently cover garages attached to dwellings.

The Department has recently consulted on proposed changes to Part F intended to ensure that health standards are not undermined by making buildings more airtight and hence energy efficient.

The consultation document did not contain any proposals to extend Part F ventilation requirements to domestic garages. However, we will consider any evidence of a need to do so as part of the next review of Part F standards starting in 2010.

Housing: Prices

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average sale price of a home in a rural area was in each year since 1997. [305094]

Mr. Ian Austin: The average sale price of a home in a rural area in England for each year since 1997 is presented in the following table:

| | Rural local authorities (£) |
|---|---|
| 1997 | 81,133 |
| 1998 | 88,290 |
| 1999 | 97,647 |

Housing: Regeneration

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much has been spent by each Pathfinder Partnership operating in the (a) North of England and (b) Midlands since the inception of that scheme. [302344]

Mr. Ian Austin: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to my hon. Friend the Member for Newcastle upon Tyne, Central (Jim Cousins) on 21 October 2009, Official Report, columns 1503-04W.

Local Government Finance: Bury

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding was allocated by his Department to Bury Metropolitan Borough Council in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09 in respect of (i) revenue grant and (ii) specific grants; and what the percentage change was on the previous year in each case. [301920]

Barbara Follett: Formula Grant (which is made up of Revenue Support Grant, National Non-Domestic Rates and Principal Formula Police Grant) is the main revenue grant funding made to local authorities aside from those made for specific purposes by individual Departments. Formula Grant is distributed to local authorities by Communities and Local Government on behalf of central Government as a whole. The following table sets out the information requested.

| | Prior year's adjusted formula grant¹ (£ million) | Formula grant (£ million) | Change¹ (£ million) | Change¹ (percentage) |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 56.357 | 57.926 | 1.568 | 2.8 |
| 2008-09 | 61.118 | 63.103 | 1.985 | 3.2 |

¹ On a like for like basis taking account of changes such as, for example, finance or function.

The following table sets out the information on specific grants provided by this Department.

| Grant | 2007-08 (£ million) | 2008-09 (£ million) | Change (£ million) | Change (percentage) |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Planning Delivery¹ | 0.209 | n/a | n/a | n/a |
| Housing and Planning Delivery¹ | n/a | 0.102 | n/a | n/a |
| Homelessness | 0.329 | 0.329 | 0 | 0 |
| Supporting People | 6.653 | 6.611 | 0.042 | -0.63 |
| Supporting People Administration² | 0.100 | n/a | n/a | n/a |

¹ The Planning Delivery Grant was replaced by the Housing and Planning Delivery Grant in 2008-09.
² Supporting People Administration Grant was provided through Area Based Grant in 2008-09.

In addition to the funding set out, Area Based Grant (ABG) was introduced in April 2008. ABG is also paid by this Department on behalf of Government and comprises of a number of former specific revenue grants formerly provided by individual Government Departments. The allocation to Bury council in 2008-09 was £8.630 million, of which the Communities and Local Government element of funding was £0.732 million.

Mortgages: Government Assistance

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homeowners in rural areas have accepted an offer through the Mortgage Rescue scheme in each quarter since the launch of the scheme. [305038]

John Healey: We have acted rapidly to put in place a range of help and support for households struggling with their mortgage at every stage, and launched a campaign to ensure households have clear information about the help available.

Mortgage Rescue Scheme summary monitoring statistics are published on a quarterly basis on the Department's website. Figures can be assessed using the following link:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/corporate/statistics/mortgagerescuestatistics

Quarterly figures reported by local authorities from January to September 2009 are provided in a table which has been placed in the Library.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which constituencies his Department identified as suitable for its advertising campaign on the Mortgage Protection Scheme. [305125]

John Healey: The Department is not running an advertising campaign on the Mortgage Protection Scheme.

The Department is running an advertising campaign to encourage homeowners struggling with their mortgage payments to seek information on the wide range of help and advice open to them, and this campaign has not been defined by parliamentary constituency.

Planning Permission: Ports

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether his Department has made an assessment of the merits of monitoring planning applications for marina developments. [303928]

Mr. Ian Austin: No assessment has been made of the merits of monitoring planning applications for marina developments.

Planning Policy Statement 22

Fiona Mactaggart: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment he has made of the likely effects of the implementation of Planning Policy Statement 22 on the number of schools, charities and voluntary organisations which generate renewable energy. [304489]

Mr. Ian Austin: Planning Policy Statement 22, supported by a companion guide, encourages regional planning bodies and local planning authorities to include policies in their development plans that support renewable energy developments. The climate change supplement to Planning Policy Statement 1 gives a further boost to renewable energy development. A regulatory impact assessment was carried out to accompany PPS22. This did not identify any specific impacts on schools, charities or voluntary organisations.

Sheltered Housing: Finance

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was spent on sheltered housing in (a) Lewes constituency, (b) the South East and (c) England in each of the last five years. [302774]

Mr. Ian Austin: The Supporting People budget provides support to Sheltered Housing and is allocated to top tier local authorities. Data on spend are therefore not available at a district level.

The following table sets out the amount spent on sheltered housing or very sheltered housing through the Supporting People programme for East Sussex county council, the south-east region and England in the last five years where complete data are available.

| England | 216,485,624.84 | 31,132,183.86 | 247,617,808.70 |

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much each district council in East Sussex spent on sheltered housing in each of the last three years. [304279]

Mr. Ian Austin: The Department for Communities and Local Government do not collect spend data on sheltered housing at district level.

Sheltered Housing: Tamworth

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many sheltered housing tenants there are in Tamworth borough council area. [304160]

Mr. Ian Austin: There are 453 tenants in sheltered housing within the Tamworth borough.

Social Landlords: Ethnic Groups

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) black and minority ethnic people and (b) women have served on the boards of registered social landlords in the last five years; how many (i) black and minority ethnic people and (ii) women have served (A) as chair of the board and (B) on the boards of the 50 largest registered social landlords in that period; what proportion of board membership each group represented in that period; and what remuneration the chair of each such board received in each year. [304401]

Mr. Ian Austin: The Government do not collect information pertaining to housing association board members remuneration. A table containing the remaining information requested is as follows. This includes information on housing association Chairs which cannot be disaggregated:

Female and BME members of RSL governing bodies: 2005-09

Social Rented Housing: Standards

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment he has made of the effect on quality of management and level of property maintenance of rent reductions by registered social landlords in the last three years. [304450]

Mr. Ian Austin: The guideline limits for registered social landlord rent increases under rent restructuring are taken from the previous September's retail price index (RPI) + 0.5 per cent. In addition to applying the guideline limit, RSLs can increase rents by up to an additional £2 per week in order to bring the actual rent charged closer to the target rent level.

The guideline limit in each of the last three years was as follows:

| | Percentage |
|---|---|
| 2009-10 | +5.5 |
| 2008-09 | +4.4 |
| 2007-08 | +4.1 |

The Government sponsors the Tenant Services Authority (TSA) to regulate RSLs in England in order to ensure that they are properly governed and that they provide decent homes and services for tenants.

Sustainable Development

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions he has had with the Local Government Association on the progress of bids submitted under the Sustainable Communities Act 2007. [304336]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Officials have met with representatives from the Local Government Association, acting as Selector, on a number of occasions in order to co-operate with them as they draw up a shortlist of proposals under the Sustainable Communities Act 2007. The Selector Panel met on 23 October 2009, 11 November 2009 and 20 November 2009 to discuss which proposals should be included on the short-list. The decisions made by the Selector Panel at these meetings are available on the Local Government Association's website. I understand the Selector Panel is due to meet again on 22 December 2009 and is expected to submit the shortlist to the Secretary of State thereafter. The Secretary of State will then consult the Selector and try to reach agreement on which proposals should be implemented. Further discussions on the progress of proposals will take place as part of this process.

Temporary Accommodation

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if he will rank local authorities in England by the numbers of tenants in temporary accommodation in each local authority area (a) on 2 December 2009, (b) in April 2009, (c) in 2008 and (d) in 2007; how many such tenants there were in each local authority area in each case; and if he will make a statement. [304770]

Mr. Ian Austin: Information about English local housing authorities' actions under the homelessness legislation (Part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) is collected at local authority level, and published by the Department in the quarterly "Statistical Release on Statutory Homelessness", available both in the Library and via the CLG website:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/corporate/statistics/homelessnessq22009

Data collected include the number of households accepted by local housing authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty (to secure that suitable accommodation is available). If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority must secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available, and this information is also collected.

The number of households in temporary accommodation in each local authority at the end of each quarter is published in the supplementary table of the "Statutory Homelessness Statistical Release". The equivalent figures for previous years can be found in earlier additions of the Release, accessible from this link:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/housing/housingresearch/housingstatistics/housingstatisticsby/homelessnessstatistics/publicationsabouthomelessness/

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies: Finance

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for each academy where the Government has agreed with sponsors to reduce capital funding contributions how much has been repaid from within the core budget in (a) each financial year to date, (b) 2009-10 and (c) each year specified in a funding agreement. [304524]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 7 December 2009]: There are two types of sponsorship payments for academies: traditional procurement and the endowment model. It is for traditional procurement academies that sponsorship payments are a contribution to the capital cost of constructing academy buildings. The amount of cash sponsorship varies according to how many academies a particular sponsor has. The timing for the receipt of payments varies from academy to academy and is agreed as part of the Funding Agreement between the Department and the academy.

The following table lists the academies where we have paid additional costs in lieu of part of a sponsors' contribution. The table shows the total sponsorship pledged for each academy and the amount contributed to date. The contribution from sponsors is broken down into the amount that they have given and the additional costs that were initially paid by the Department and which have subsequently been recovered. The timescale for the recovery of additional costs is agreed individually for each academy.

Children: Day Care

Glenda Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children attend (a) Sure Start facilities and (b) children's centres in Hampstead and Highgate constituency; and how much such facilities cost in the last 12 months for which information is available. [304128]

Dawn Primarolo: The first Sure Start Local Programmes (SSLPs) were set up in 1999-2000. Sure Start Children's Centres were introduced from 2003-04. All former SSLPs have now become Sure Start Children's Centres.

Camden local authority has 17 Sure Start Children's Centres reaching a total of over 10,600 under fives and their families. Of these six children's centres are in the Hampstead and Highgate constituency reaching a total of around 3,500 under fives and their families.

The latest year for which we have an audited spend is 2007-08 for which Camden local authority spent a total of 6,267,295. The allocations for Sure Start Children's Centres revenue and capital are included within the wider Sure Start Early Years and Childcare Grant Main Revenue and Main Capital funding respectively. Funding in these blocks is not ring fenced and the authority has the freedom to decide how much to spend on each area supported by the grant, in line with local priorities.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) Sure Start centres and (b) children's centres have been opened in North East Lincolnshire since 1997; and what funding his Department has provided for such centres in that period. [304424]

Dawn Primarolo: The first Sure Start Local Programmes (SSLPs) were set up in 1999-2000. Sure Start children's centres were introduced from 2003-04. All former SSLPs have now become Sure Start children's centres.

North East Lincolnshire local authority has 14 designated Sure Start children's centres reaching a total of over 9,800 under-fives and their families.

The total Sure Start Early Years and Childcare Grant provided to North East Lincolnshire local authority since 1997, for which information is available is around £54,719,000.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to Annex A of his Department's Annual Report 2009, pages 214-15, which programmes and allocations have been aggregated under the categories (a) Support for Youth and (b) Support for Children and Families. [300707]

Departmental Scientists

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) scientific advisers and (b) civil servants in scientific posts there are in his Department. [301928]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: This Department has one scientific adviser, our chief scientific adviser. There are no 'hard' scientific posts in the Department, although we have a large number of social science posts. At the end of October 2009, there were 218 specialists in social scientific disciplines (economics, statistics, social research and operational research) in the DCSF, including our chief scientific adviser. In addition, there are nine specialists in social scientific disciplines in the joint DCSF/DWP Child Poverty Unit. All of these specialists are civil servants.

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on how many occasions he has met (a) the Government chief scientific adviser and (b) his Department's chief scientific adviser in the course of his official duties in the last 12 months. [303965]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: The Secretary of State has not had any meetings with (a) the Government chief scientific adviser in the course of his official duties in the last 12 months. And (b) the Department's chief scientific adviser has attended six meetings with the Secretary of State during this period.

Families: Advisory Services

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what criteria local authorities use to determine whether families should be referred to family group conferences. [304154]

Dawn Primarolo: It is for local authorities to determine what services to provide for families in their area and on what basis they should be offered in line with the relevant statutory framework. They will set their own criteria to determine whether families should be referred to a family group conference service (FGC). As part of their wider approach to supporting families to stay together, some local authorities have made it mandatory that an FGC is offered to the family before a child enters care or as soon as possible afterwards in the case of an emergency placement. Others have developed key trigger points within a local authority's involvement with a family where a decision about the child is required.

GCSE: North East

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of pupils (a) were persistent absentees and (b) obtained five GCSEs at grade A* to C including English and mathematics at each maintained secondary school in (i) Newcastle upon Tyne, (ii) the County of Northumberland and (iii) North Tyneside and Gateshead in (A) 2007 and (B) 2008. [302457]

Mr. Coaker: The main way school level information is published is in the Secondary School Achievement and Attainment Tables on the Department's website at the following links:

2007

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/performancetables/schools 07.shtml

2008

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/performancetables/schools 08.shtml

User-friendly Excel versions have also been placed in the House Libraries.

The 2009 Secondary School Achievement and Attainment Tables will be published in January 2010.

School level 'persistent absence' figures were first published in 2008. The 2007 tables give figures relating to 'unauthorised absence'.

Gifted Children: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of pupils in North-East Milton Keynes constituency have participated in gifted and talented programmes in each year since 2000. [300715]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: The Department does not collect data about participation in gifted and talented programmes. Through the School Census schools are asked to confirm the number of gifted and talented pupils they have identified. The following table provides data on how many children were identified as gifted and talented in the January census between 2006, when the question was first asked, and 2009.

2006 records include Secondary G and T pupil data only. Otherwise, figures include Primary[1] and Secondary[1, 2] school data broken down by the number[3] and percentage of gifted and talented pupils.

[1] Includes middle schools as deemed.

[2] Includes City Technology Colleges and Academies.

[3] Excludes dual enrolments.

| | 2006 (Secondary only) | | 2007 | | 2008 | | 2009 | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| NE Milton Keynes | Number | Percentage | Number | Percentage | Number | Percentage | Number | Percentage |
| Primary | n/a | n/a | 170 | 1.9 | 610 | 6.2 | 600 | 6.1 |
| Secondary | [illegible] | 6.6 | [illegible] | 8.5 | 540 | 8.1 | 540 | 7.9 |

Note:

Pupil numbers have been rounded to the nearest 10.

Home Education

Chloe Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children under the age of 16 years were being educated at home (a) at the latest date for which information is available and (b) in each year since 1997. [301887]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: We do not collect information centrally about the number of children under the age of 16 who are electively home educated because there is no current requirement for these children to be registered with local authorities. Graham Badman's 'Review of Elective Home Education in England', published in June 2009, estimated that there were around 20,000 home educated children and young people currently known to local authorities.

KBR

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether his Department has entered into any contracts with Kellogg, Brown and Root or its subsidiaries since January 2009. [303360]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: Our financial records show that the Department has not made any payments to the company Kellogg, Brown and Root or its subsidiaries since January 2009 and we do not hold any contract information for this company on our central database.

Pupils: Emotional Intelligence

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will bring forward proposals for the measurement of emotional intelligence of school pupils. [302034]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: The DCSF currently offers schools, through the National Strategies, a Social and Emotional Aspects of Learning programme to help children and young people to manage themselves, their own emotions, their thoughts and their behaviours and develop positive relationships with each other. In addition, we jointly fund the National Healthy Schools programme with the Department of Health which requires schools to satisfy criteria across four themes in order to become a Healthy School.

Both programmes promote a 'whole school' approach to developing the emotional health and wellbeing of children and young people through a shared vision, creating a positive ethos, strong relationships and inclusive leadership."

The DCSF has no proposals or plans to measure the emotional intelligence of school pupils.

Schools

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the value for money of public funding for school-based learning about international development. [304431]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: The Department has not made an assessment of the value for money of public funding for school-based learning about international development. But we know that international issues are important to young people and we are clear they should be covered in subjects such as geography, history and citizenship.

Schools: Asbestos

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) in how many schools in (a) Essex and (b) Castle Point has asbestos been found in the last three years; [illegible]

(2) if he will publish Essex County Council's response to his Department's survey of the (a) presence and (b) management of asbestos in schools in Essex; and if he will make a statement. [illegible]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 7 December 2009]: The Department's survey asked for information on whether schools contain asbestos-containing materials. It also asked questions about asbestos management in local authorities and schools. The Department did receive a response from Essex county council but we are not in a position to publish any of the local authority responses as this information may be required for legal purposes. The Health and Safety Executive is planning follow up investigations in 2010 in a number of local authorities to clarify the information provided.

Schools: Electricity

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what third-party approvals are required when electrical cables and wires are installed in newly-built school premises. [illegible]

Mr. Coaker: There is no legal requirement to obtain third-party approval of electrical wires and cables. However competent electrical consultants would specify the use of cables branded BASEC and approved by the British Approvals Service for Cables (BASEC).

Schools: Finance

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will bring forward proposals for the reform of the Dedicated School Grant to increase the amount disbursed to schools. [illegible]

Mr. Coaker: We launched a review of the Dedicated Schools Grant in January 2008 and it is now nearing its conclusion. For the first 18 months, up to July 2009, the Formula Review Group was gathering evidence on the main issues. Since July we have been developing options and it remains our intention to consult on proposals in the new year.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will increase his Department's expenditure on schools in Herefordshire. [304046]

Mr. Coaker: In November 2007, the Government announced the three year indicative education settlements for all local authorities in England from 2008-10 to 2010-11. The guaranteed funding per pupil for Herefordshire for 2009-10 is £3,830 and for 2010-11 it will be £4,002.

Levels of funding from 2011-12 onwards will be subject to future spending decisions.

Schools: Standards

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which schools inspected since September 2009 were rated as inadequate; and if he will make a statement. [303724]

Mr. Coaker: Ofsted publish these data on a termly basis and this information will be available in January 2010.

Secondary Education: Assessments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many students in (a) year nine, (b) year 10 and (c) year 11 were entered for each accredited qualification in each subject in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [300697]

Mr. Coaker: This answer can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Special Educational Needs: Young Offenders

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent estimate is of the proportion of young offenders who have special educational needs; and what educational provision is available to such young offenders. [301633]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: Research suggests that 15 per cent. of young offenders in custody have statements of Special Educational Needs (SEN). This is compared with 2.8 per cent. of the general school population.

The education providers in HM Prison Service Young Offenders Institutions (YOIs) are required to identify the special educational needs of young people and provide appropriate provision for them. The providers are contractually required to provide learning support in the classroom, as separate provision, or on a one-to-one basis as required. Providers are required to make available this additional support through both Special Educational Needs Co-ordinators (SENCOs) and also Learning Support Assistants (LSAs).

Data provided to the Learning and Skills Council indicate that for the academic year August 2008 to July 2009, there were 2,932 referrals to SENCOs for 15 to 17-year-olds within Prison Service Young Offender Institutions.

The Apprenticeship, Skills, Children and Learning Act 2009, which received Royal Assent on 12 November, contains new provisions to make local authorities responsible for education in youth custody. This includes new duties on local authorities to ensure that appropriate provision is made for young people with SEN. This will help ensure that young people in custody have access to comparable support to which they could expect in community settings.

Specialist Schools: Lincolnshire

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what specialist schools have been established in North-East Lincolnshire since 1997. [304423]

Mr. Coaker: There are eight schools in North East Lincolnshire that have gained specialist status since 1997: Cambridge Park Maths and Computing College (Maths and Computing 2007), Healing School (Science 2004), Hereford Technology School (Technology 2004), Humberston Comprehensive School (Maths and Computing 2006), Matthew Humberstone Church of England School (Business and Enterprise 2003), St. Mary's Catholic School (Humanities and Language 2005), The Lindsey School and Community Arts College (Arts 2000), Tollbar Business and Enterprise College (Business and Enterprise and Humanities 2000)

There are also three academies in North East Lincolnshire. The Havelock Academy specialises in Maths, Computing and Engineering (2007). The Oasis Academy, Immingham specialises in Engineering with Business and Enterprise (2007) and the Oasis Academy, Wintringham specialises in Sports and Health with Business and Enterprise (2007).

The Western Technology College, in partnership with Hereford Technology School had specialist status from 2000 until 2004 until the partnership between the schools finished. The Western Technology College closed in August 2008 due to falling pupil numbers.

Teachers: Lincolnshire

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) teachers and (b) classroom assistants were employed in maintained schools in North East Lincolnshire (i) in 1997 and (ii) on the latest date for which figures are available. [304427]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is published in tables 19 and 26 of the Statistical First Release (SFR) 'School Workforce In England (including local authority level figures) January 2009 (revised)' published on 29 September 2009. The SFR is available at the following web link:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000874/Tables19to27_Vals.xls

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Biofuels

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what funding his Department has allocated for the purposes of developing biofuels since its establishment. [304057]

Joan Ruddock: The Department for Transport has the overall remit for biofuels. It recently published a research and development strategy for biofuels that identified the current gaps in knowledge and the areas where Government could support greater scientific progress. DECC is working closely with the other Departments concerned, industry and academia to decide how best to take this forward.

DECC also sponsors the National Non Food Crops Centre (NNFCC), the UK's national centre for renewable fuels, materials and technologies, which is facilitating the establishment of sustainable supply chains for biofuels.

Carbon Emissions

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what his latest estimate is of the amount of UK carbon dioxide emissions (a) including and (b) excluding the impact of emissions trading in 2008. [303398]

Joan Ruddock: Provisional estimates of 2008 emissions were published on 26 March 2009. These figures estimate that:

UK emissions for carbon dioxide were 531.8 million tonnes carbon dioxide equivalent (MtC02e)

including for the effect of the EU Emissions Trading System, UK carbon dioxide emissions in 2008 were estimated to be 511.4 MtC02e

The equivalent figures for all greenhouse gases are as follows:

excluding the EU Emissions Trading System = 623.8 MtC02e including the EU Emissions Trading System - 603.4 MtC02e

The most recent final figures are for estimates of 2007 emissions. These were published on 3 February 2009. Estimates for only carbon dioxide emissions are:

excluding EU Emissions Trading System = 542.6 MtC02e

including EU Emissions Trading System = 516.9 MtC02e

It may be helpful to know emissions of all greenhouse gases. Again these are final 2007 figures:

excluding EU Emissions Trading System = 636.6 MtC02e

including EU Emissions Trading System = 611.0 MtC02e

Carbon Reduction Commitment Energy Efficiency Scheme

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what his latest estimate is of the gross revenue which will arise from the sale of allowances through the Carbon Reduction Commitment Scheme before the recycling of such monies to scheme participants in each of the next five years. [303391]

Joan Ruddock: The Department currently estimates that during the introductory phase of the CRC Energy Efficiency scheme, allowance sales could generate in the region of £650 million each year in 2011 and 2012. An integral aspect of the scheme is that this sum is returned to participants six months after the main allocation of allowances, making the scheme broadly revenue neutral to the Exchequer.

It is important to emphasise that these are preliminary estimates made using significant assumptions that will not be known with more certainty until after the start of the scheme. The main assumptions are an estimate of the quantity of emissions covered by the scheme and the uptake of energy efficiency measures within the sector. Until participants have registered for the scheme during April to September 2010 and reported their emissions in July 2011 we will not know the CRC emissions coverage accurately.

The sum likely to be raised from the auctioning of allowances during the capped phases of the scheme from 2013 onwards is yet more uncertain. Until the Government have taken a decision on the appropriate level of the cap, taking into account advice from the Committee on Climate Change it is not possible to estimate accurately the likely revenues from the five years of the first capped phase.

Climate Change: International Co-operation

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent discussions he has had with the Minister for the Environment in the Northern Ireland Executive on the Copenhagen climate change summit; and if he will make a statement. [304047]

Joan Ruddock: I attended the joint ministerial committee on the European Union on 19 October, which focused mostly on Copenhagen. All devolved Administrations have representation on the committee.

The British-Irish Council met in Jersey on the 17 April 2009, and the international climate negotiations were on the agenda. Lord Hunt, Minister for Sustainable Development and Energy Innovation met with the Minister for the Environment in the Northern Ireland Executive, the hon. Member for East Antrim (Sammy Wilson), during the council.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) what account the Government's submission to the Copenhagen climate change summit will take of environmentally-friendly information and communications technology; [304142]

(2) whether the UK's submission to the Copenhagen climate change summit will include reference to the joint work on environmentally-friendly information and communications technology undertaken by the UN and the International Telecommunications Union. [304576]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 7 December 2009]: The UK Government will negotiate as part of the EU in Copenhagen and as such cannot make a direct submission to the UNFCCC. It is important that the deal in Copenhagen will support the development, transfer, deployment and diffusion of technologies for adaptation and mitigation in developing countries. The UK and the EU recognise the important role of public policies and finance in creating an enabling environment to redirect and scale up private investments in safe and sustainable low greenhouse-gas-emitting technologies; believe that support for technologies in developing countries should be based on assessments of country needs as reflected in their low-carbon development strategies; and argue that we should establish national and regional centres of technological excellence to promote technology development and transfer, stimulate capacity-building and improve access to information.

We welcome the work of the International Telecommunications Union and believe it provides useful evidence of how the telecoms sector plans to respond to the need to shift to a low carbon economy to limit the effects of climate change. We have recommended that a member of the UK delegation attends the ITU joint Copenhagen summit side event on the 10 of December, if time and scheduling permits.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what officials from his Department will be attending the Copenhagen climate change summit. [304329]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 7 December 2009]: On current plans, two Ministers and 36 officials from the Department of Energy and Climate Change will be attending the Copenhagen climate change summit.

Committee on Climate Change

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether the Committee on Climate Change is classified as (a) an executive agency and (b) a non-departmental public body. [305064]

Joan Ruddock: The Committee on Climate Change is a non-departmental public body.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many (a) page hits and (b) visitors his Department's website received in 2008-09. [301846]

Joan Ruddock: The Department of Energy and Climate Change was created on 3 October 2008, and its official corporate website was launched on 23 February 2009:

http://www.decc.gov.uk/

This site received 288,094 page hits and 37,231 unique visitors from its inception up until 31 March 2009.

Departmental Pay

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much his Department has allocated for (a) year end and (b) in-year bonuses in 2009-10. [302779]

Joan Ruddock: Non-consolidated performance payments are an integral element of the reward package for staff. Non-consolidated performance pay has a number of key advantages:

it encourages continuous high attainment because the payments are dependent upon continuing strong performance;

it prevents a permanent rise in salary and an increase in pension on the basis of one off performances while still allowing good performance to be rewarded;

it has no long term costs, in particular it does not increase future pension payments.

it focuses the work of employees more directly on the priority goals of the organisation;

it motivates employees by linking an element of compensation to the achievement of departmental objectives rather than offering payment for time served; and it targets money at those who make the biggest contribution.

The wages/salary budget for the Department of Energy and Climate Change for 2009-10 is expected to be in the region of £57 million. Non-consolidated annual performance payments may total an estimated 1.6 per cent. of the wages/salary budget while non consolidated special bonuses may total 0.4 per cent. of the wages/salary budget.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the cost to his Department was of provision of office facilities to (a) special advisers and (b) press officers in the 2008-09 financial year. [302974]

Joan Ruddock: The Department manages the cost of office facilities centrally as a departmental overhead and it is therefore not possible to provide a breakdown of costs for specific departmental functions.

Energy Saving Trust: Advertising

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much was spent on advertising through each medium by the Energy Saving Trust in each of the last five years. [303392]

Joan Ruddock: The Energy Saving Trust has spent the following on advertising through each medium over the period 2005-10.

Energy: Conservation

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much central Government funding has been spent on energy efficiency measures in (a) local authority, (b) housing association and (c) private homes in City of York local authority area in each year since 1996. [304507]

Joan Ruddock: Funding to encourage take-up of energy efficiency measures in Great Britain is available primarily through three schemes: the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target, Warm Front, and the Decent Homes programme. However, only Warm Front and Decent Homes are funded from the public purse. Table A illustrates the investment made under Warm Front on measures to improve the energy efficiency of homes, by tenure, in the City of York since the scheme began in 2000.

Local authority and housing association homes are assisted through the Government-funded Decent Homes programme, as well as councils' own capital resources. Central Government has allocated City of York council £22.5 million for capital investment in their housing stock since 2001 through Decent Homes, as illustrated in Table B.

Energy: Meters

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent estimate he has made of the (a) average and (b) maximum premium being paid by customers using pre-payment meters for (i) gas and (ii) electricity compared to customers paying by direct debit. [303531]

Mr. Kidney: The most recent figures on tariffs are those for November 2009. The new rules outlawing undue price discrimination came into force on 1 September.

According to the latest available figures from Ofgem, prices for an average consumer using 3,300 kWh of electricity per year, indicate an average annual differential of £28 (pre-payment compared with direct debit) and a maximum differential of £60.

For an average consumer using 20,500 kWh of gas per year, November 2009 prices indicate an average annual differential of £49 and a maximum differential of £107.

Ofgem produces estimates of domestic household energy bills, and these reflect current prices as at November 2009. The maximum and average differentials given here mean the difference between direct debit and pre-payment tariffs available to consumers by a single supplier within one region.

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps he is taking to amend the system of pricing for pre-payment fuel meter customers. [303644]

Mr. Kidney: E.ON, Npower, Scottish Power, EDF Energy and Scottish and Southern Energy (SSE) have chosen to equalise their prepayment meter tariffs with standard credit for both gas and electricity. In addition, Centrica has equalised its electricity prepayment meter tariffs with standard credit.

New rules came into force on 1 September outlawing undue price discrimination and ensuring price differences between different payment methods for electricity and gas are cost reflective.

In their latest Quarterly Price Report, published 7 December 2009, Ofgem reported that tariff differentials for prepayment meter customers now, on average, reflect cost differences. This report can be found online at:

http://www.ofgem.gov.uk/Markets/RetMkts/ensuppro/Documents1/Quarterly%20Wholesale%20Retail%20Price%20Report%20November%202009.pdf

Energy: Prices

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what estimate he has made of the proportion of households in (a) England, (b) Scotland and (c) Wales which defaulted on energy bill payments in the last 12 months. [304195]

Mr. Kidney [holding answer 7 December 2009]: Neither Ofgem nor the Department collect data on numbers of households that have defaulted on their energy bill payments.

Nuclear Power

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what work he is undertaking with the International Atomic Energy Agency to assist states to develop a civil nuclear energy industry while minimising the risk of nuclear weapons proliferating. [304471]

Mr. Kidney: The UK is a committed member of the IAEA and wants the Agency to maintain and strengthen its position at the centre of international efforts [illegible] ensure a safe and secure nuclear energy future. We are the fourth largest funder, make significant voluntary contribution to its Technical Cooperation and Nuclear Security Funds, and DECC leads work with the Agency on a variety of civil nuclear related matters.

Since 1981, the UK has provided a Support Programme (UKSP) to IAEA Safeguards. The UKSP has an annual budget of about £1 million and provides support, inter alia, with training of IAEA inspectors, analytical services and expert consultancy. Support to the IAEA's Nuclear Security Fund was doubled this year, up to £4 million. The UK also plays a key role in the IAEA's security work and the revision of the IAEA's recommendations for the physical protection of materials. DECC is also leading work on the UK-led Nuclear Fuel Assurance, one of several concepts being considered under an IAEA led initiative to provide states with an assured supply of nuclear fuel, and the Nuclear Centre of Excellence.

UK engagement with the IAEA is set out in the UK policy document "Road to 2010" (Cm 7675, published 16 July this year) - a detailed plan of action in the run up to the Review Conference of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) in May 2010.

Oil

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent discussions he has had on the (a) availability and (b) use of (i) oil sands and (ii) oil shale. [304051]

Joan Ruddock: I would draw attention to the Westminster Hall debate of 27 October 2009, Official Report, columns 1-23WH, on biofuels. Statistics on the use of biodiesel made from oil seed are published by the Renewable Fuels Agency on their website:

http://www.renewablefuelsagency.org/reportsandpublications/rtforeports.cfm

Extraction of oil from shale in the UK began in Scotland in 1862 from limited oil shale deposits in West Lothian but has not been carried out now for some 40 years. However, in the last onshore licensing round in 2008, industry did show some interest in the potential surrounding shale gas in the UK. My Department has recently contracted the British Geological Survey to carry out a reassessment of potential oil and gas shale resources in the UK.

Pay As You Save Scheme

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what progress has been made on the first pilots of the new Pay As You Save scheme. [304469]

Joan Ruddock: Since the announcement of the pilots in the Low Carbon Transition Plan in July we have undertaken the detailed design of the pilots. The applications for delivery partners closed on 6 November.

The assessment process is now complete and the partners and corresponding locations for the pilots have recently been announced.

Renewables Advisory Board: Finance

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Tunbridge Wells (Grey Clark) of 12 October 2009, Official Report, column 436W, on the Renewables Advisory Board, on what date the Renewables Advisory Board budget for 2009-10 was finalised. [303505]

Joan Ruddock: The budget for the Renewables Advisor Board was finalised on 20 August 2009.

Renewables Obligation

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent assessment he has made of the effect on levels of competition of the cap on the number of renewables obligation certificates available for co-firing of regular biomass. [305178]

Joan Ruddock: We commissioned Oxera to look at the effects of the co-firing cap. Its report was published as part of the Renewables Energy Financial Incentives consultation and can be found at:

http://www.decc.gov.uk/en/content/cms/consultations/elec_financial/elec_financial.aspx

We are currently drafting the Government Response addressing this issue.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what account he took of the findings of the report prepared by Oxera for his Department in his decision not to remove the cap on the number of renewables obligation certificates available for the co-firing of regular biomass; and what the reasons were for his decision. [305179]

Joan Ruddock: We have consulted on whether to amend the co-firing cap as part of the Renewables Energy Financial Incentives consultation which closed on 15 October 2009. The Oxera Report was prepared for DECC as part of this consultation process. We are currently drafting our response.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what recent discussions he has had with Ofgem on the effect on the level of contribution of biomass to the renewable energy targets of retaining the cap on the number of renewables obligation certificates available for the co-firing of regular biomass. [305180]

Joan Ruddock: In its response to the Renewables Energy Financial Incentives consultation, Ofgem expressed their concern that the cap constrains the contribution to our renewable energy targets from a relatively low-cost renewable technology. We are currently drafting the Government Response addressing these issues.

Salix Finance: Loans

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much in loans has been granted by Salix Finance to (a) public sector and (b) private sector bodies in (i) 2007-08, (ii) 2008-09 and (iii) 2009-10. [303390]

Joan Ruddock: Salix only works with public sector bodies. In each of the following years it has committed funds for energy saving projects to the value of:

| | Funds committed (£ million) |
|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 7.5 |
| 2008-09 | 11.2 |
| 2009-10 (to October 2009) | 30.0 |
| Total | 48.7 |

Salix is working with 259 public sector bodies, operating either long term recycling funds or providing 100 per cent. interest free project loans.

Siemens

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether his Department has entered into any contracts with Siemens or its subsidiaries since February 2009. [303764]

Joan Ruddock: The Department has since February entered into one contract with Siemens Financial Services, a subsidiary of Siemens for the provision of photocopiers, to the value of £8,238.78.

Warm Front Scheme: Kent

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how much funding has been allocated for the Warm Front scheme in (a) Ashford constituency and (b) Kent in 2009-10; and what the average grant awarded under the Warm Front scheme was in Ashford constituency in each of the last three years. [304923]

Mr. Kidney: The Department does not allocate funding by region, but has a set amount of funding to be used across England. However, total spend in this financial year stands at £227,322.45 in Ashford and £7,716,053.33 in Kent as at 4 December 2009.

The average grant awarded in the Ashford constituency in each of the last three complete years in shown in the following table.

| | Average grant (£) |
|---|---:|
| 2006-07 | 998.13 |
| 2007-08 | 1,021.36 |
| 2008-09 | 1,052.86 |

Wind Power

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change for how many on-shore wind turbines planning permission has been (a) sought and (b) granted in (i) England, (ii) North Yorkshire and (iii) the City of York since 1996; and how many turbines have been constructed in that period. [304508]

Mr. Kidney: The following table sets out the requested information for the reporting period since 1996:

Number

| | England | North Yorkshire | City of York |
|---|---:|---:|---:|
| Planning permission sought | 1,847 | 53 | 0 |
| Planning permission granted | 993 | 27 | 0 |
| Turbines constructed | 536 | 13 | 0 |

BUSINESS, INNOVATION AND SKILLS

Adult Education: Student Numbers

Stephen Williams: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many 19 to 24 year olds are studying (a) full-time and (b) part-time on (i) first Level 2, (ii) first Level 3, (iii) subsequent Level 2 and (iv) subsequent Level 3 qualifications. [303307]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to him on 12 November 2009, Official Report, column 646W.

We do not hold data that show firstness by specific age-group or mode of attendance. Data showing participation on first full level 2 and first full level 3 qualifications are shown in a Statistical First Release (SFR), the next edition of which will be published on 17 December. The SFR can be found here:

www.thedataservice.org.uk/statistics/sfroct09

Apprentices

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what proportion of (a) level 2 and (b) level 3 apprenticeship (i) starts and (ii) completions were (A) men and (B) women in the last 12 months for which figures are available. [302586]

Kevin Brennan: Apprenticeship starts and achievements for 2003-04 to 2008-09 (provisional) were published in a statistical first release (SFR) on 22 October:

http://www.thedataservice.org.uk/statistics/sfroct09

Supplementary Table 6 shows apprenticeship starts and framework achievements by gender for 2003-04 to 2008-09 (provisional). Table 1 shows starts and framework achievements by gender and level for 2008-09 (provisional).

Notes:
1. Figures have been rounded to the nearest hundred and may therefore not sum to totals.
2. Percentages are based on unrounded figures.
3. Apprenticeship starts and achievements for 2008-09 are provisional. Starts will rise by approximately 2-3 per cent. and achievements will rise by approximately 10 per cent. This revised information will be shown in the December 2009 SFR, and the accompanying supplementary tables.
4. Full-year numbers are a count of the number of starts/achievements at any point during the year. Learners starting/achieving more than one framework will appear more than once.
5. Higher Level Apprenticeships are included with Advanced Apprenticeships.

Bankruptcy

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many bankruptcies there have been in (a) England and Wales, (b) Sussex and (c) Lewes constituency in each of the last five years. [304275]

Ian Lucas: The available information for bankruptcies in England and Wales, Sussex and Lewes constituency between 2004 and 2008 can be seen in the following table. Information for 2009 is not currently available, as regional insolvency statistics are only compiled on an annual basis.

Bankruptcies

| 2008 | 67,428 | 1,684 | 84 |

[1] Where the bankrupt has provided a valid postcode (increasing from 94.5 per cent. of cases in 2004 to 96.9 per cent. in 2008).

Damian Green: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many bankruptcies of individuals in each age group there have been in (a) Ashford and (b) Kent in (i) 2008 and (ii) 2009. [304861]

Ian Lucas: The available information for bankruptcies in Ashford and Kent, in 2008 by age group, can be seen in Table 1. Information for 2009 is not currently available, as regional insolvency statistics are only compiled on an annual basis.

Table 1: Bankruptcies in 2008

| 35 to 44 | 34 | 468 |
| 45 to 54 | 22 | 365 |
| 55 to 64 | 19 | 187 |
| 65+ | 4 | 76 |

Broadband

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what percentage of households in the UK (a) have broadband access and (b) have broadband of at least two Mbps. [301519]

Mr. Timms: Ofcom research indicates that over 99 per cent. of households are connected to a broadband enabled exchange and 65 per cent. of households in the UK subscribe to a fixed broadband connection. We estimate that today 89 per cent. of homes can readily get a 2Mbps (or higher) broadband service (as reported in the Digital Britain White Paper, June 2009).

Broadband: Eastbourne

Mr. Waterson: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what recent estimate he has made of the number of people resident in Eastbourne constituency who have access to a broadband internet connection; and whether he has made an estimate of the time required to make such access available to all such people. [303009]

Mr. Timms: This Department has not undertaken any estimates of the number of people in Eastbourne constituency who have access to a broadband internet connection. The Government's universal service commitment will ensure that homes across the UK have access to a line capable of delivering 2 Mbps by 2012. This should ensure that all homes in Eastbourne have access to broadband within three years, if they have not already.

Caparo Group

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what meetings (a) the Secretary of State, (b) other Ministers and (c) officials in his Department have had with Angad Paul in each of the last three years. [302868]

Mr. McFadden: My hon. Friend the then Minister for Trade, Investment and Consumer Affairs met Angad Paul on 17 September 2008. In addition, Angad Paul was on the business delegation that accompanied my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister and my noble Friend the Secretary of State to the Gulf in November 2008; and also accompanied the then Minister for Trade and Investment on an earlier visit to Saudi Arabia in March 2008.

UKTI officials have had regular contact with Angad Paul over the past two years, particularly through his membership of the Saudi British Joint Business Council (SBJBC) and his involvement with the UK India Business Council, in addition to interactions with Caparo Group.

Capita

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills whether any contracts between Capita Group plc and his Department and its predecessors have been cancelled before completion since 1997; and whether Capita Group plc has been liable for any penalties arising from failings in the administration of such contracts since 1997. [303080]

Mr. McFadden: Information on cancelled contracts and contract penalties that may have been applied to existing contracts with the Department of Business, Innovations and Skills is not held centrally and the collation of such details could only be undertaken at disproportionate cost.

City of London Guilds

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills on how many occasions the Secretary of State has met representatives of the City of London guilds in the course of his official duties in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [302559]

Mr. McFadden: My noble Friend the Secretary of State has had no meetings with City Of London Livery Companies as such but undoubtedly will have met numerous members of various Livery Companies at meetings and events in the course of his official duties.

Departmental Art Works

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what changes there have been to artwork installed in (a) the Secretary of State's office, (b) offices of other Ministers and (c) elsewhere in his Department since 3 October 2008. [301640]

Mr. McFadden: Since 3 October 2008 there have been changes to works of art installed in the office of my noble Friend the Secretary of State, and the offices of my hon. Friend the Minister of State for Higher Education, Skills, Apprenticeships and Consumer Affairs, my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Business and Regulatory Reform, my noble Friend the Minister of State for Trade and Investment and my noble Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Postal Affairs and Employment Relations and the Department's Permanent Secretary and Professor John Beddington, the chief scientific adviser.

There has been no cost to the Department.

Departmental Contracts

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what criteria his Department uses in determining the award of contracts; and how much his Department and its predecessors have spent on the advertisement of tenders for Government contracts since 1997. [303095]

Mr. McFadden: The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills uses the "most economically advantageous tender" criteria in determining the award of contracts.

The Department does not record spend on the advertisement of tenders centrally, and such details could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Disclosure of Information

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many allegations of victimisation for whistleblowing have been made to his Department by its staff since 6 June 2006. [301493]

Mr. McFadden: There have been less than five allegations of victimisation for whistleblowing reported by departmental staff since 6 June 2006. We are unable to release the specific number as to do so may lead to the identification of individuals.

Civil servants are required to act in accordance with the standards and core values set out in the "Civil Service Code". The "Civil Service Code" also provides for civil servants to raise matters of concern with the independent civil service commissioners if they do not receive what they consider to be a reasonable response following departmental internal procedures. The Commissioners will also consider taking a complaint direct. Further guidance on whistleblowing is set out in the "Civil Service Management Code" and the "Directory of Civil Service Guidance".

Departmental Industrial Health and Safety

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many courses relating to health and safety were funded by his Department in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [304559]

Mr. McFadden: Since the formation of the Department for Business Innovation and Skills in June, the Department's Health and Safety Team have organised the following courses:

First Aid training—nine courses (all for individual first aider training)

Fire Liaison Officer training—one course (12 staff attended)

Departmental Pay

Dr. Cable: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills pursuant to the answer of 25 November 2009, Official Report, column 234W, on departmental pay, how many staff in his Department's predecessor departments received both an annual performance bonus and an in-year bonus in 2008-09; what the largest combined bonus payment to an individual was; and who was responsible for awarding such bonuses in each Department. [303364]

Mr. McFadden: BIS was formed through a MOG change that occurred in June. The Department was created by merging the Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) and the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS). In response to the question the answers for each of the former Departments are included in the following table:

| Department | Number of people that received both an annual and "in year" performance award | The proportion of staff that received both an annual and "in year" performance award (percentage) | The largest total amount awarded to an individual staff member that received both an annual and "in year" performance award (£) |
|---|---|---|---|
| BERR | 367 | 10.58 | 7,885 |
| DIUS | 8 | 0.90 | 2,150 |

Who is responsible for awarding bonuses?

Annual Awards

Within both former Departments annual performance awards are given to staff that receive an annual performance rating of "Highly Successful". The performance ratings are given through an appraisal process that takes place between the staff member and their line manager through the course of the year.

In year performance awards

In year performance awards are in place to reward exceptional performance over a short period of time that might not be fully reflected in a staff appraisal report and annual pay awards. The following applies within the former Departments.

BERR

The Director General has the final responsibility for authorising any special awards within their group.

DIUS

The process for making "in year" awards is managed at group level with staff being assessed by panels consisting of staff from all grades against criteria set out in the DIUS values.

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what proportion of jobs advertised by his Department in the last 12 months were online only applications; and what provision his Department makes for those wishing to apply for jobs in his Department who do not have access to the internet. [301543]

Mr. McFadden: In the last 12 months BIS and its predecessors have undertaken 14 external recruitment campaigns. Nine of these were undertaken by the former Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR). Of the 14, only one recruitment campaign requested online only applications. This was a generic campaign for vacancies across former BERR: 25 at Grade 7 and 25 at HEO level. No specific arrangements were made for those without access to the internet and nor were any requested by potential applicants.

There were no recruitment campaigns undertaken in the former Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) that requested online only applications.

Departmental Taxis

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many miles (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department and its predecessors travelled by taxi in the course of their official duties in each year since 1997; and at what cost to the public purse in each such year. [302712]

Mr. McFadden: Ministers would generally make use of Government cars. Travel by Ministers is undertaken in accordance with the ministerial code. The Department does not hold separate records of the travel journeys undertaken by Ministers as opposed to those undertaken by officials, to provide this information would entail disproportionate costs.

Mileage travelled during taxi journeys is not recorded and details are therefore unavailable.

Taxi spend incurred by officials (including those in DIUS) in UK and overseas travel is as follows:

| | £ |
|---|---|
| 2004-05 | 342,929 |
| 2005-06 | 396,667 |

Dieticians

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many undergraduate degrees in dietetics that entitle the holder to practise as a fully qualified were awarded in each of the last 10 years. [303778]

Mr. Lammy: Information on undergraduate degrees awarded in dietetics is not available and the numbers of first degree qualifiers in Nutrition are given as an alternative in the table. Nutrition is classified as a principal subject in the Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA) Student Record and includes courses in nutrition and dietetics.

It is not known whether these courses are accredited and entitle the degree holder to practise as a fully qualified dietician.

Figures are provided for the academic years 2002/03 to 2007/08, as subject data prior to 2002/03 are not directly comparable.

Figures for the 2008/09 academic year will be available from HESA in January.

Driving

Dr. Ladyman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what mechanisms are in place to ensure that staff who drive (a) a vehicle for which (i) his Department and (ii) one of its Executive agencies is responsible have valid driving licences and (b) their own vehicles in the course of their official duties for (A) his Department and (B) one of its executive agencies have valid driving licences and insurance; what guidance is issued to those staff in respect of road safety while carrying out official duties; what steps are taken to monitor compliance with that guidance; what requirements there are on such staff to report to their line managers accidents in which they are involved while driving in the course of their official duties; and whether such reports are investigated. [302169]

Mr. McFadden: The driver of a car being used for business purposes is advised that his responsibilities are as follows:

you have a current driving licence, which covers the vehicle being driven you have suitable insurance allowing for business use of the vehicle

the car has a current MOT, and is roadworthy

you allow adequate time for journeys (including time for breaks on long journeys)

you follow all advice, guidance and legislation relating to road safety—you will have to pay any fines incurred as a result of any driving offence you drive with consideration for the safety of passengers and other road users.

Staff are required to report accidents on business travel to line management, which would be investigated if considered appropriate to do so.

I have approached the chief executives of the Department's agencies and they will respond to my hon. Friend directly.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 8 December 2009:

The Minister of State, for the Department of Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) has asked me to reply to you directly in respect of your question what mechanisms are in place to ensure that staff who drive (a) a vehicle for which (i) his Department and (ii) one of its executive agencies is responsible have valid driving licences and (b) their own vehicles in the course of their official duties for (A) his Department and (B) one of its executive agency have valid driving licences and insurance; what guidance is issued to those staff in respect of road safety while carrying out official duties; what steps are taken to monitor compliance with that guidance; what requirements there are on such staff to report to their line managers accidents in which they are involved while driving in the course of their official duties; and whether such reports are investigated.

For the purposes of travel on official Insolvency Service business in a vehicle for which the Service is responsible, it is the responsibility of line managers to ensure that staff hold a valid driving licence.

For travel on official Service business in a privately owned motor vehicle, the staff guidance advises that the owner of the vehicle should ensure that the driver holds a current driving licence for the vehicle. Regarding insurance, the use of a private motor vehicle must satisfy certain insurance conditions. It is the employee's personal responsibility to ensure that these conditions are fulfilled. Staff must declare that they know and understand the insurance requirements, and that they are covered accordingly.

There is no specific guidance regarding road safety but staff are advised that they must ensure that the private vehicle they drive has a current MOT and is in roadworthy condition. The monitoring of compliance with guidance is the responsibility of local line managers, and is not checked centrally.

Staff are required to report any motor vehicle accidents to their line-manager. Line managers must ensure that all accidents, incidents and near-miss events falling within their area of responsibility are reported and appropriately investigated, and remedies put in place to prevent re-occurrence. Near misses are not recorded unless they have resulted in some type of injury or distress to the individual that warrants recording under the above scheme.

Letter from Sean Dennehey, dated 27 November 2009:

I am responding in respect of the Intellectual Property Office to your Parliamentary Question tabled 24 November 2009, to the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS).

The Intellectual Property Office, an executive agency of BIS, requires staff who drive their own vehicle during the course of their duties to sign a declaration which confirms they have valid insurance.

Hire cars are covered by Crown indemnity. Line managers are expected to check driving licences annually to ensure compliance with the requirements. If a hire vehicle is involved in an accident staff are required to notify the hire company and the line manager and full details of the incident submitted to the HR department.

In respect of road safety we do not issue separate guidance; we expect staff to behave responsibly in all aspects of their official duties. It is made clear that the Office will not reimburse or accept any fines or penalties for motoring offences.

Letter from Gareth Jones, dated 8 December 2009:

I am replying on behalf of Companies House to your Parliamentary Question tabled on 24 November 2009, UIN 302169, to the Minister of State for Business, Innovation and Skills.

Companies House has a Health and Safety Driving at Work Policy covering all the issues raised in your question. It is available if you wish to see it.

Letter from Peter Mason, dated 26 November 2009:

I am responding in respect of the National Measurement Office to your Parliamentary Question tabled 24 November 2009, to the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills.

Where a vehicle was used for official business National Measurement Office staff must declare, on each claim made, that a valid driving licence is held by the driver and that no endorsements were pending that could result in a ban. If relevant to the claim, the declaration also covers that the vehicle used has a current MOT and is in roadworthy condition. Managers are required to confirm that the claimant's driving licence and, where relevant, motor insurance policy and MOT are reviewed for validity for official business use.

The National Measurement Office has issued staff guidance for driving for work. Drivers must report any accidents, in which they were involved, when on official business. Guidance covers the actions that staff must undertake in such circumstances. Staff must complete an accident form within 24 hours of any such accident. The content of this form is then considered under normal health and safety procedures.

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills on how many occasions the Export Credits Guarantee Department has reported allegations of bribery and corruption to (a) the Serious Fraud Office and (b) other agencies in each of the last five years. [304709]

Ian Lucas: As previously stated, although the Export Control Organisation within BIS has identified 67 licences for munitions designed to create illumination or act as an incendiary we are unable to categorically identify which, if any, of these licences are for munitions that contain white phosphorous. ### London Metropolitan University: Finance

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills with reference to the KPMG Report to the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE) reviewing lessons learned from the London Metropolitan University case, (a) whether (i) KMPG, (ii) HEFCE and (iii) his Department has seen in full the BDO Stoy Hayward review of London Metropolitan University's approach to student records and the level of accuracy of its student-data completions; (b) how much money has been (A) repaid to HEFCE by the university and (B) withheld by HEFCE from the university in relation to the matter and (C) whether the Secretary of State has been informed of active or dormant legal restraints on making public (1) the BDO Stoy Hayward review and (2) the redacted parts of the KPMG review. [303384]

Mr. Lammy: The information is as follows:

(a) (i) I understand that KPMG was made aware of the key elements of the BDO report during their investigation of HEFCE's handling of the London Metropolitan case.

(ii) HEFCE commissioned and saw the report in full.

(iii) HEFCE sent a redacted version of the report to me and one of my officials on 24 July 2009, 24 hours ahead of its first release in response to a request under freedom of information legislation. It has not been shared more widely within my Department.

(b) In general, funding is repaid by institutions to HEFCE by HEFCE withholding funds from its grant payments to them. HEFCE has agreed a repayment profile with London Metropolitan for the sum of £36.5 million running from July 2009 to July 2014. So far, £682,892 has been withheld by HEFCE from London metropolitan's grant payments.

(c) I and my officials were made aware of the restraints to the publication of the BDO report and the reasons for the redactions to the KPMG report.

Medical Devices

Laura Moffatt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (1) if he will make an assessment of the effect on the level of (a) employment, (b) private investment in research and development and (c) revenue of UK-based life sciences companies of changes to the reimbursement policy for medical devices in other European countries due to come into effect in January 2010; [303779]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to assist UK-based life sciences companies affected by changes to the reimbursement policy for medical devices in other European countries due to come into effect in January 2010. [303780]

Mr. Lammy: There are currently no plans to i) make an assessment of the effect, or ii) take specific action to support, the UK Life Science sector in relation to changes to reimbursement policy in other European countries.

BIS however is committed to helping British firms who are facing unjustified barriers to operating in other EU markets. The main tool the Department has for tackling such barriers is SOLVIT. This is a pan-European network which was set up specifically as a free service to help EU citizens and businesses solve problems that arise from the incorrect application of EU law by national administrations. Companies that suspect that they may be facing such barriers should contact the UK SOLVIT centre at:

solvit@bis.gov.uk

Minimum Wage

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what estimate he has made of the number of people in (a) the UK, (b) England, (c) the North East and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency who would have earned a wage lower than the level of the national minimum wage if the national minimum wage had not been in existence in each year since its introduction. [302992]

Mr. McFadden: Annual estimates for the number of employees who benefit from the national minimum wage (NMW) annual upratings between 1999 and 2009 are provided in table 1 and the notes. The information relates to those who benefited because they earned an hourly wage less than national minimum wage (NMW) rates prior to the uprating. It does not represent the number of individuals who would have earned a lower wage in the absence of the NMW uprating.

Full information is provided for the UK and partial information for England and the north-east. Information is not available at constituency level.

(a) Table 1 shows the estimated number of employees benefiting from the NMW in the UK.

Table 1: Job holders benefiting from the annual October increases in the national minimum wage (b) Using the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE) 2008 data, BIS estimate that within England 770,000 employees were earning an hourly wage less than the October 2009 NMW rates. This estimate will be revised in December 2009 using the latest ASHE 2009 data and will be published in the 'Government Evidence to the Low Pay Commission on the Economic Effects of the NMW' December 2009 report.

(c) Using ASHE 2008 data, BIS estimate that within the north-east region 60,000 employees were earning an hourly wage less than the October 2009 NMW rates. This estimate will be revised in December 2009 using the latest ASHE 2009 data and will be published in the 'Government Evidence to the Low Pay Commission on the Economic eEfects of the NMW' December 2009 report.

(d) Robust estimates for employees earning an hourly wage less than a forthcoming NMW rate are not available at the constituency level because of small sample sizes in the Annual Survey of Hours and Earnings (ASHE).

NESTA

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (1) what payments the National Endowment for Science Technology and the Arts has made to Consolidated PR in each of the last three years; for what purposes; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contract under which such payments have been made; [302300]

(2) how much public funding the National Endowment for Science, Technology and the Arts (NESTA) has received in each year since its establishment; how many in-house (a) public affairs and (b) public relations staff NESTA employs; and how much NESTA has spent on externally provided (i) public affairs and (ii) public relations services in the last three years. [302406]

Mr. Lammy: In 2007/08 the National Endowment for Science, Technology and the Arts (NESTA) contracted with the Central Office of Information (COI) for services when the NESTA communications team was not fully staffed and significant initiatives required communications support. Consolidated PR was chosen by COI to undertake the work and was paid £138,794. In 2008/09, NESTA engaged Consolidated PR directly and paid £17,832 for provision of the same type of services. NESTA made no payments to Consolidated PR in 2006/07. Contracts relating to these arrangements are a matter for the parties concerned.

NESTA is funded by an endowment from the National Lottery rather than grant in aid funding from its sponsor Department, the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills. NESTA was established in 1998 with an original endowment of £200 million from the National Lottery. In February 2003, £50 million was added to the endowment, and £45 million was received by NESTA for new initiatives, again from the National Lottery. In February 2006, NESTA secured an additional £75 million of endowment funding from the National Lottery to be paid over five years, £15 million pa from 2005/06 to 2009/10. The value of the endowment at 31 March 2009 was £326 million.

NESTA employs two public affairs staff and three public relations staff. In the last three years, NESTA spent nothing on externally provided public affairs services. NESTA spent £58,033 in 2006/07, £148,395 in 2007/08 and £52,482 in 2008/09 on externally provided public relations services.

Pipex Homecall: Complaints

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many complaints from consumers Ofcom (a) received and (b) upheld relating to Pipex Homecall and its related companies in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [304595]

Mr. Timms: The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executives letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Risk and Regulation Advisory Council: Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills which external public relations firms the Risk and Regulation Advisory Council has hired since its inception; at what cost; and for what purposes. [302232]

Ian Lucas: The following expenditure figures cover contracts with external public relations firms for the period from the inception of the RRAC in January 2008 to November 2009. These figures include expenditure from the budget of the unit responsible for raising awareness of the Risk and Regulation Advisory Council work and tools.

Bell Design and Communications Ltd. to provide benefits capture, design and delivery of launch event and publication design: £87,324.

Compass Rose and Co. to provide public relations consultancy services: £53,000.

Royal Mail: Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what payments Royal Mail has made to (a) Grayling Political Strategy and (b) Positif Politics Ltd in each of the last three years; for what purposes; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contract under which such payments have been made. [302306]

Mr. McFadden: The use of consultants by Royal Mail is a matter for the company. I have, therefore, asked the chief executive of Royal Mail to provide you with a reply to your question.

I will place a copy of his reply in the Library.

Saif al-Islam Gaddafi

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills on what dates the Secretary of State has met Saif al-Islam Gaddafi since his appointment; who attended each such meeting; what the location was of each such meeting; and what matters were discussed at each such meeting. [303369]

Mr. McFadden: I refer the hon. Member for Harwich to the answer I gave to the right hon. Member for Richmond (Yorkshire) (Mr. Hague) on 9 September 2009, Official Report, column 2077W.

Train to Gain Programme

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills which Train to Gain providers have had discussions with Ministers on the funding and contract arrangements for Train to Gain for 2009-10. [302503]

Kevin Brennan: I meet regularly with the representative bodies of both further education (FE) colleges and private training institutions; including the Association of Colleges and the Association of Learning Providers. I am the chair of a regular Further Education and Skills standing group. I also visit FE colleges and training institutions, which provides further opportunities for discussion.

Funding and contract arrangements for learners aged 19 or over on FE and skills provision, including Train to Gain, are administered by the Learning and Skills Council (LSC). The LSC has established and maintains a close and collaborative working relationship with individual FE colleges and training institutions and will be in regular direct contact with them on a variety of issues.

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many complaints have been received by (a) his Department and (b) the Learning and Skills Council from Train to Gain providers about the funding and contract arrangements for Train to Gain for 2009-10. [302504]

Kevin Brennan: I receive a wide range of correspondence in relation to my departmental responsibilities. This includes correspondence from further education colleges and training institutions sent via their Member of Parliament and from key stakeholders and representative bodies such as the Association of Colleges or the Association of Learning Providers. Due to the large volume of correspondence received, it is not possible to separately identify where a specific complaint has been made about a particular funding arrangement from a particular class of correspondent.

The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is responsible for the operation of funding and contract arrangements for adult learning including Train to Gain. They receive a similarly diverse range of correspondence. Any formal complaints they receive are handled through a defined complaints procedure detailed on their website and are targeted for resolution within three months. The LSC is not aware of having received any complaints through this route about Train to Gain funding and contract arrangements for 2009-10.

Unemployment: Young People

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many and what percentage of people aged between 16 and 24 years old were not in education, employment or training in the third quarter of each of the last 10 years. [302573]

Kevin Brennan: The table gives the number and percentage of people aged[1] 16 to 24 not in education, employment or training (NEET) in the third quarter of each year from 2000 to 2009.

These estimates are from the Labour Force Survey and will include pregnant mothers, those caring for children or relatives, people with a disability or suffering from ill health, and those waiting for a course or job to start, including those on a gap year.

People aged[1] 16 to 24 not in education, employment or training in England

Quarter 3 Labour Force Survey

It must be noted that a direct comparison between consecutive quarters cannot be made as quarterly NEET estimates from the LFS display a strong seasonal pattern. Estimates for quarter 3 are always considerably higher than in quarter 4 because of the number of young people who are either between courses or who have recently left education.

Estimates for every quarter since 2005 have been produced by the Department for Children Schools and Families and are available here:

Mr. McFadden: The Members of the Union Modernisation Fund Supervisory Board are selected by open competition in accordance with the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments' Code of Practice for Ministerial Appointments to Public Bodies (OCPA). As part of that appointments process, applicants must give details of potential conflicts of interest.

All appointment letters set out the Nolan Principles of Public Life Board Members must declare any personal or business interests which may, or may be perceived to, influence their judgements in performing their functions.

Mr. McFadden: A copy of the final evaluation report of the first round of the Union Modernisation Fund produced by the Department in conjunction with Leeds University Business School was published in October on the Department's website. Copies were placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills with reference to the answer of 21—July 2009, Official Report, column 1756W, on the Union Modernisation Fund, if he will publish the declarations of past and present political activity made by each of the members of the supervisory board to date. [302293]

Vocational Training

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what his policy is on support for traditional skill sets in remote island economies in the UK. [302571]

Kevin Brennan: Skills policy in England focuses on equipping the workforce with the skills needed to compete in a global marketplace and enable people and their families to live happier, healthier, more successful lives.

Government recognise the importance of traditional skills sets. Securing the right skills provision and attracting a new generation into these industries is key to preserving our heritage. Working across Government Departments and through English Heritage and the Heritage Lottery Fund, we want to ensure that our heritage is cared for, protected and enhanced for current and future generations to enjoy.

Many of the UK's remote islands are not part of England. Skills policy in the UK is devolved and as such policy for those islands are a matter for the Scottish Executive, Welsh Assembly and Northern Ireland Assembly.

CABINET OFFICE

Civil Service Compensation Scheme

10. Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what recent representations she has received on proposed changes to the Civil Service Compensation scheme; and if she will make a statement. [304990]

Angela E. Smith: On 31 July we published our proposals to reform the Civil Service Compensation scheme. Correspondence has been received from over 200 Members and the Cabinet Office has received over 18,000 emails and letters in response to the consultation. Officials have had numerous meetings with the civil service unions since July 2008, and Ministers met the unions on 22 September to listen to their views. In the light of representations significant changes which provide better outcomes for the lowest paid civil servants, while still delivering the savings committed to. Overall, the new package—announced last Friday—provides fairer outcomes to civil servants and to taxpayers.

Third Sector

Anne Moffat: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what work with the third sector her Department is undertaking to encourage the creation of jobs. [304992]

Angela E. Smith: Latest figures show levels of employment in the third sector have been sustained throughout 2008-09, with over 500,000 employees—a significant achievement in light of the recession. We are committed to creating a further 25,000 jobs in the third sector through involvement in public services. The Cabinet Office is working closely with the Department for Work and Pensions to support third sector involvement in the creation of 150,000 jobs through the Future Jobs Fund.

Charities: Regulation

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what steps the Government are taking to reduce the burden of regulation on charities. [304988]

Angela E. Smith: The changes we have made to charity law and accounting and reporting thresholds have resulted in savings for up to 50,000 charities and up to £5 million per year. The new Charitable Incorporated Organisation, planned for next year, will give charities the advantages of incorporation without the burden of dual regulation by both the Charity Commission and Companies House. Departments are also cutting red tape for third sector organisations and will be reporting on further progress later this month. The Government and National Audit Office (NAO) have produced guidance to reduce red tape associated with the £12 billion a year the sector gets from Government. The Government have introduced further measures to facilitate the use of Gift Aid, with particular support for smaller charities, including reforms to simplify the record keeping and auditing process.

Christmas

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how much (a) her Department and (b) its agency has spent on Christmas (i) cards, (ii) parties and (iii) decorations in the last 12 months. [303842]

Angela E. Smith: Since 2006, the Cabinet Office has predominantly used an on-line e-card at no cost to the Department. The cost of any Christmas cards sent by the Department is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost. No departmental funds have been used for staff Christmas parties.

Christmas trees are situated at certain points on the Cabinet Office estate, such as in the reception of the main buildings. The cost which includes the purchase, decoration and environmentally friendly disposal of the trees in 2008 was £5,757.

Civil Servants: Hearing Impaired

Mr. Borrow: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office what information her Department holds on the number of employees of each Government Department who incurred hearing loss in the course of their duties in each year since 1999. [304011]

Departmental Security

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office how many security passes her Department has issued to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months. [303953]

Angela E. Smith: The Cabinet Office takes great care regarding access to its buildings and its access control policies are in line with the HMG Security Policy Framework, Mandatory Requirements 56, 57 and 58

The Department issues security passes to all those who are visiting and have business on its estate. Non-staff employed by the Department (including temporary staff, short-term work placements, contractors and consultants) may be issued with either a temporary pass, an escorted visitor pass or an unescorted visitor pass, depending on the length of time they are working for the Department and their level of security clearance.

Separately identifying those who may be visiting the Department to provide consultancy services from those who are visiting for other reasons could be undertaken only at disproportionate cost.

Freedom of Information

John Hemming: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office if she will bring forward proposals to ensure that public bodies which enter into partnership to provide services are subject to the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [305046]

Mr. Wills: I have been asked to reply as the Minister responsible for Freedom of Information policy.

On 16 July 2009, the Government published the response to their consultation on extending the Freedom of Information Act by means of a section 5 order. It noted that they were not minded to include in an initial order companies providing, under a contract made with a public authority, any service whose provision is a function of that, authority. However, the Government have made clear that they intend to keep the extension of the Act under review.

Scientists

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Minister for the Cabinet Office on how many occasions she has met the Government chief scientific adviser in the course of her official duties in the last 12 months. [304731]

[305157]

Maria Eagle: The Equality and Human Rights Commission has not made any payments to (a) Postif Politics and (b) APCO Worldwide in the last 12 months.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many questions tabled for answer on a named day his Department received in each of the last 12 months; and to how many such questions his Department provided a substantive answer on the day named. [305376]

Mr. Michael Foster: The number of named day parliamentary questions tabled for answer by the Department for International Development (DFID) and answered on the day named is provided in the table.

| Month | Number of named day questions tabled | Number of answered on the day named |

| February 2009 | 16 | 16 |
| March 2009 | 54 | 52 |
| April 2009 | 15 | 14 |
| May 2009 | 10 | 9 |
| June 2009 | 17 | 16 |
| July 2009 | 16 | 15 |
| August 2009 | 0 | 0 |
| September 2009 | 10 | 9 |
| October 2009 | 24 | 19 |
| November 2009 | 24 | 22 |

Palestinians: Education

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to seek to ensure adequate education provision for children in Gaza. [304766]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) supports both the Palestinian Authority (PA) and the UN Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) to provide education in Gaza.

Our budget support to the PA was £50 million in 2008 and £18.5 million so far in 2009. This funding contributes to the salaries of public sector workers, including teachers and the provision of basic services such as education. Approximately 50 per cent. of PA spending goes to Gaza.

UNRWA schools in Gaza are attended by over 200,000 children. Through our core funding to UNRWA, DFID has contributed £100 million over five years (2007 to 2012) towards teacher salaries.

DFID continues to press Israel to allow reconstruction materials into Gaza so that schools destroyed and damaged in Operation Cast Lead can be repaired, and to lift all restrictions on the imports of stationery, textbooks and school furniture.

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking to provide medical assistance to those in refugee camps in Gaza. [304763]

Mr. Michael Foster: Medical assistance to Palestinian refugees in Gaza and elsewhere in the region is the responsibility of the United Nations Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA). The Department for International Development is providing £100 million to UNRWA in core funding over five years (2007-12) which the Agency can allocate to areas of most urgent need: this year we gave UNRWA nearly £20 million. About 5 per cent. of UNRWA's overall budget is allocated to healthcare in Gaza.

South East Asia: Tuberculosis

Mr. Sharma: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what contacts his Department has with governments of South East Asia in respect of the delivery of national tuberculosis programmes. [304767]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) contributes to tuberculosis (TB) control through a variety of channels including support for national programmes, multi donor initiatives and research.

In China, DFID has provided £28 million to the National TB Control Programme. This programme has increased national case detection rates from 30 per cent. in 2000 to over 70 per cent. in 2007 in 16 provinces, covering half of China's population. Furthermore 1.8 million patients have successfully been treated and cure rates are now well above 85 per cent.

DFID will provide £30.1 million by 2011 to the multi-donor funded Three Diseases Fund (3DF) which aims to tackle TB, malaria and HIV/AIDS. The 3DF provides grants to UN agencies and NGOs to support delivery of the National TB Strategy in Burma. DFID is also the donor representative on the Country Coordinating Mechanism which oversees the implementation of the National TB Strategy in Burma.

Sri Lanka

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what estimate he has made of the number of Tamils released from camps in Sri Lanka in December 2009. [304765]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Government of Sri Lanka announced that freedom of movement would be allowed for all the remaining displaced people held in camps by 1 December 2009. Since this date figures for the number of people returning to their home areas have been changing rapidly and are hard to follow accurately on a day by day basis. However at the end of last week, the United Nations estimated that more than 150,000 people had returned to their home areas.

Sri Lanka: Overseas Aid

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance his Department plans to provide to Tamils released from camps in Sri Lanka in December 2009; and with which international charities his Department plans to work to provide such assistance. [304764]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has already provided considerable support to returning displaced people since September, including de-mining programmes, transport, shelter materials, water and sanitation, and seeds for restarting agricultural activities. Future support will be determined on the basis of the evolving situation on the ground and taken forward with the most appropriate delivery partners.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Armed Conflict

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his Department's estimate is of the population of (a) Britain's area of responsibility in Helmand province and (b) each district in Helmand province. [304353]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We estimate the population of Britain's area of responsibility in Helmand province to be 750,000 to 800,000. According to 2003 Central Statistical Office/UN Population Fund Socio-Economic and Demographic Profile, the estimated population of each district in Helmand are:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| Baghran | 129,947 |
| Dishu | 29,005 |
| Garmsir | 107,153 |
| Gereshk/Nahr-e Saraj | 166,827 |
| Kajaki | 119,023 |
| Khanashin | 17,333 |
| Lashkar Gah | 201,546 |
| Musa Qal'eh | 138,896 |
| Nad-e Ali | 235,590 |
| Nawa | 89,814 |
| Nawzad | 108,258 |
| Sangin | 66,901 |
| Washir | 31,476 |

Afghanistan: Politics and Government

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether (a) he and (b) officials in his Department have had discussions with their Afghan counterparts on a national unity Government in Afghanistan. [304720]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: In the run up to and following Afghanistan's 2009 presidential elections, we met with a range of presidential candidates and continue to encourage all parties to work together for the good of Afghanistan. It is not for the UK to dictate to Afghanistan's political leadership the makeup of any future Government, or prescribe the degree to which the Afghan Government should formally work with its opposition. What is important is that with UK and international community support, the Afghan Government and other key Afghan partners reach out across the political spectrum in order to deliver progress on the key issues President Karzai outlined in his inauguration speech: security, governance, peace and reintegration, economic development and regional relations.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Prime Minister's Statement of 30 November 2009, Official Report, columns 831-6, on Afghanistan and Pakistan, what proposals the Government have brought forward on stronger international civilian leadership in Afghanistan; and when he expects such proposals to be agreed with international partners. [304933]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Following President Karzai's inauguration speech on 19 November 2009 and President Obama's statement on 1 December 2009, the international community are reinvigorating their efforts to deliver and co-ordinate coherent and effective support for the Government of Afghanistan and its people. Work is progressing on a number of fronts. NATO Foreign Ministers discussed Afghanistan on 3 and 4 December 2009 and a NATO force generation conference on 7 December 2009 focused on increasing the Allied military effort. It is important that this enhanced International Security Assistance Force military effort is matched by a stronger, more-effective civil effort. We are discussing with our international partners how best to achieve this. The London Conference will offer a timely focus to taking forward international agreement on delivering a more coherent civilian effort.

Afghanistan: Reconstruction

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has made a recent estimate of the (a) direct and (b) indirect contribution of his Department and its staff to the economy of Afghanistan. [305469]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The effort in Afghanistan is cross-departmental, with the bulk of the UK's efforts supporting the economy coming from the Department for International Development (DFID). However, one of the greatest needs for the Afghan economy is stability. Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) efforts across Afghanistan and wider region, supporting stability will therefore have the greatest indirect impact on the Afghan economy, although it is not possible to measure this contribution.

There are a number of projects, procurement and salaries in the local economy which have a direct impact on the local economy. Local purchases amounted to £6.8 million in 2008, much of which will have fed directly back to the Afghan economy. Local staff salaries were an additional £549,000. Spending in 2009 is likely to be similar. In addition, the FCO supports numerous programmes which support activity in Afghanistan. This financial year (2009-10) the total budget for non-DFID civilian programmes in Afghanistan is £88.4 million. Of this, it is predicted that £54.1 million is administered with the promotion of economic development and welfare—officially Overseas Development Authority—spend. This does not include DFID spending.

Aminatou Haidar

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will discuss with his Moroccan counterpart the deportation of Aminatou Haidar, with particular reference to Article 12(4) of the International Convention on Civil and Human Rights. [304261]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Officials from our embassy in Rabat, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in London and the United Kingdom's Mission to the United Nations have discussed the case of Aminatou Haidar with the Moroccan authorities. Article 12(4) of the International Convention on Civil and Political Rights has not been raised during these discussions. We have however made it clear that we believe the issue should be resolved swiftly and fairly.

We have also made it clear to the Moroccan authorities that recent events risk impeding the UN-led negotiation process. The UK remains fully committed to this process, and will continue to support the UN Secretary-General's Personal Envoy, Christopher Ross, in his efforts to bring the parties together to find a mutually acceptable political agreement that provides for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara.

British Indian Ocean Territory: Environment Protection

Andrew George: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what (a) historic and (b) other entitlements affect his Department's ability to enforce the proposed new Chagos Archipelago Marine Protected Area. [302472]

Chris Bryant: No decision has yet been taken on whether a Marine Protected Area will be established in the British Indian Ocean Territory (BIOT). A decision will be taken following the public consultation which is at present underway.

The UK is responsible for enforcing protection of the BIOT Fisheries and Conservation Management Zone/Environmental Preservation and Protection Zone and this would also be the case for any proposed Marine Protected Area. Surveillance and monitoring of the fisheries is, at present, carried out by a Senior Fisheries Protection Officer based on board the BIOT Patrol Vessel—the Pacific Marlin, and the Marine Resources Assessment Group's monitoring centre in London.

Departmental Information Officers

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many full-time equivalent press officers (a) are employed by and (b) work for his Department. [303599]

Chris Bryant: The White Book, published by the Central Office of Information (COI) every six months, contains details of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's press team in London.

Ilois: Resettlement

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what research his Department is undertaking on the viability of the proposed return of the Chagos Islanders to the archipelago; and if he will make a statement. [305190]

Chris Bryant: Following the Law Lords judgment of 22 October 2008 in the Judicial Review of the 2004 British Indian Ocean Territory Orders in Council, Government policy remains that no-one has a right of abode in the Territory or the right to enter the Territory unless authorised. The Government have no plans to resettle the Chagos Islanders in the Territory and is not therefore undertaking research on the viability of the return of the Chagos Islanders to the British Indian Ocean Territory.

India: Religious Freedom

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his Indian counterpart on measures to enable displaced Christians in Orissa province to return to their homes. [303117]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not discussed this with his Indian counterpart. On 10-11 November 2009 our High Commissioner to India visited Orissa and enquired with the local state authorities, including the Chief Minister, about the status of Christians still affected by the violence in Orissa in 2008, living conditions, compensation and the prosecution of those responsible. The local authorities advised that the state run camps had been closed, affected Christians had now returned to their homes, compensation had been provided and perpetrators had been convicted. However, resettlement of those displaced and the reconstruction of churches was still ongoing.

Israel: Prisoners

Richard Burden: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of the detention by the Israeli authorities of Mohammed Othman from Jayyous; and whether he has made representations to the Government of Israel on the subject. [304705]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We are concerned by Mr. Othman's treatment and long detention without charge. Foreign and Commonwealth Office Minister of State, Ivan Lewis, raised UK concerns over Othman's case with the deputy Israeli Foreign Minister, Danny Ayalon on 27 October 2009. Our embassy in Tel Aviv, and our consulate-general in Jerusalem, continue to follow his case closely.

More generally, we continue to monitor the situation with regard to all Palestinian prisoners in Israeli prisons. We are very concerned about cases of administrative detention: we call on the Israeli Government to take immediate action to ensure that all cases are reviewed by a court in accordance with fair procedures, and that detainees' rights are upheld.

Middle East: Armed Conflict

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of Israel's compliance with its obligations under article 23 of the Fourth Geneva Convention in respect of free passage into Gaza of consignments of (a) medical and hospital objects, (b) food and (c) clothing. [304882]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Government have made clear their view that in light of the control that Israel continues to exercise over Gaza, Israel remains bound by obligations under the Fourth Geneva Convention of 1949 in respect of Gaza. Those obligations include article 23 of that convention. We are deeply concerned about the situation in Gaza and continue, bilaterally and with our EU partners, to urge Israel to allow reconstruction and humanitarian supplies into Gaza.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has made representations to the Israeli Government on the payment of compensation to the United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestinian Refugees in the Near East following the shelling of its compound in Gaza City in January 2009. [304909]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Government were deeply concerned by reports of incidents involving UN property/personnel during the Gaza conflict. UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon set up the UN Board of Inquiry to investigate certain incidents involving UN property/personnel during the Gaza Conflict. The Board reported back on 5 May.

The UN Secretariat are taking this forward—including the issue of compensation—directly with the Israeli Government.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations the Government has made to the Israeli Government on the alleged shelling with high explosive and white phosphorus munitions of the United Nations compound in Gaza on 15 January 2009. [304910]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Our embassy in Tel Aviv raised concerns over this incident directly with the Israeli Government on the day it took place.

We have been clear from the beginning of the Gaza conflict that all allegations of breaches of international humanitarian law committed by both sides must be properly investigated.

UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon set up the UN Board of Inquiry to investigate certain incidents involving UN property/personnel during the Gaza Conflict. The Board reported back on 5 May 2009. The UN Secretariat are now taking this forward with the Israeli Government.

Morocco: Mining

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 6 October 2009, Official Report, column 228W, on Morocco: mining, what recent steps the Government have taken to seek to ensure that Morocco fulfils its obligations under international law to ensure that the extraction and exploitation of phosphates do not adversely affect the interests of the people of Western Sahara. [304262]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer of my hon. Friend the Member for Harlow (Bill Rammell) of 23 March 2009, Official Report, column 32W.

The UK continues to maintain its position that Morocco, as the de facto administering power of Western Sahara, is obliged under international law to ensure that economic activities under administration—including the extraction and exportation of phosphates—do not adversely affect the interests of the people in Western Sahara.

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Moroccan Government on (a) ending the movement of members of the Moroccan civilian population into the occupied Western Sahara and (b) the application of Article 49 of the Fourth Geneva Convention until the status of Western Sahara is determined. [304414]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer of my hon. Friend the Member for Harlow (Bill Rammell) of 5 May 2009, Official Report, column 47W, Western Sahara: Politics and Government:

> We have not discussed the movement of population between Morocco and Western Sahara, or the application of article 49 of the fourth Geneva convention, and have no current plans to discuss either matter with the Moroccan Government.
> The Government see the status of Western Sahara as undetermined and continue to believe that progress towards a negotiated solution to the dispute, providing for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara, is best achieved under the auspices of the UN. To this end the UK fully supports the efforts of the UN Secretary-General and his Personal Envoy, Christopher Ross.

Proliferation: Nuclear Weapons

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are taking to prepare for the 2010 Review Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons. [304465]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Government have led international efforts to re-energise the consensus underpinning the non-proliferation treaty over the last three years. There are clear indications that the international mood is changing.

Building on the "Road to 2010" policy document launched by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister in July 2009, and available at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/reports/roadto2010.aspx

The Government will continue to work hard with nuclear weapon states partners and the great mainstream of the non-aligned movement to build critical momentum and ensure a successful review conference next May.

Religious Freedom

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions each UK mission has raised the question of persecution or discrimination in relation to (a) the Christian faith, (b) the Islamic faith, (c) Judaism, (d) Sikhism, (e) Hinduism, (f) Buddhism and (g) other religious faiths in each of the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [304445]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UK condemns all instances of persecution and discrimination against individuals and groups because of their faith or belief, wherever they occur and whatever the religion of the individual or group concerned.

All the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) overseas missions have a responsibility to monitor and raise human rights in their host countries. Our embassies raise freedom of religion or belief in a variety of different contexts. We take action on individual cases where persecution or discrimination has occurred; lobby for changes in discriminatory practices and laws; raise freedom of religion or belief in bilateral and EU human rights dialogues; and work in the UN and other international organisations to uphold universal standards. The FCO does not keep statistics on our lobbying on religious persecution or indeed on broader human rights issues.

Sudan: Politics and Government

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with (a) the Sudanese Government and (b) the UN on the peacekeeping patrols in Darfur being blocked; and if he will make a statement. [304679]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We regularly discuss UN peacekeeping in Darfur with the UN, the Government of Sudan and other parties in Darfur, emphasising the importance of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid operation (UNAMID) in Darfur being able to exercise its full mandate in accordance with the Statement of Forces Agreement. On 30 November 2009 the UN Security Council reiterated its full support for UNAMID and emphasised the need for all parties in Darfur to unconditionally guarantee full access to UNAMID patrols in Darfur. On 12 November 2009 we participated in a demarche setting out to the UN and African Union our strong concern at the Government of Sudan's non-compliance with the Status of Forces Agreement and urging them to take all necessary measures to ensure that Sudan complies with its terms.

Taliban

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what estimate he has made of the proportion of the Taliban's income which derives from the illicit trade in opium. [303037]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The UN Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) released the report Addiction, Crime and Insurgency: The Transnational Threat of Afghan Opium on 21 October 2009. In it the UNODC estimates that the Taliban in Afghanistan now derive between $90-160 million per year from taxing opium production. There are no accurate assessments of what proportion of the Taliban's income comes from the drugs trade. However, the UK assesses that the opium trade represents a significant proportion of the Taliban's income.

USA: Anti-semitism

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received of incidents of anti-Semitism in the US; whether he has had recent discussions with the US Administration on that matter; and if he will make a statement. [305306]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have not received any recent reports of anti-Semitism in the US. For a more detailed explanation of ongoing discussions between the UK and US on the issue of anti-Semitism, I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 3 December 2009, in which I said that we continue to work closely with the US Administration and other partners to combat anti-Semitism wherever it occurs.

Western Sahara: Human Rights

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the answer of 9 September 2009, Official Report, column 1969W, on Western Sahara: human rights, whether the matter of human rights abuses in the Non-Self Governing Territory of Western Sahara related to calls for a referendum was raised with Morocco by EU officials in the meeting of the Sub-Committee on Human Rights, Democratisation and Governance on 24 July 2009. [304417]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The EU and Morocco held positive and open discussions in the meeting of the Sub-Committee on Human Rights, Democratisation and Governance on 24 July 2009. A wide range of human rights-related issues were discussed, including women's rights, freedom of expression and the rights of detainees. Whilst there was no discussion relating specifically to the issue of Western Sahara, Morocco has a responsibility towards the people living there and therefore the discussions that took place did not exclude Western Sahara.

The UK and European partners regularly engage in discussions with the Moroccan authorities on issues related to human rights and Western Sahara, and raise individual cases where appropriate.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans there are to implement the Afghan Public Protection Programme in Helmand province. [304169]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

We are fully aware of the Afghan Public Protection Force project being piloted in Wardak province with the help of the US. We welcome the principle of empowering individual communities to take a greater role in providing their own security. We will remain in close contact with the Afghan Government and the US on its progress and look forward to discussing the results of this pilot with them in due course. Only once the pilot has been rigorously evaluated will any decisions on expansion, including to Helmand, be taken.

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the proportion of armed forces personnel who deploy to Helmand province equipped with a cricket box for groin protection; and if he will make a statement. [304726]

Mr. Kevan Jones: All of the protective personal equipment provided to armed forces personnel is constantly under review. The Osprey body armour systems have long been considered to be among the best in the world, and the survival rates are testimony to that; however, a direct by-product of that is that personnel are now surviving with other associated and sometimes life-changing injuries. We are continually seeking ways to further protect our personnel, and work is well under way to research ways of providing additional protection including for the whole groin area.

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how much his Department paid for Jet A1 and diesel fuel delivered to Camp Bastion in support of UK operations in the last 12 month period for which figures are available; [304745]

(2) what the average monthly cost to his Department was of Jet A1 and diesel fuel delivered to Camp Bastion in support of UK operations since 2005. [304746]

Mr. Quentin Davies [holding answer 7 December 2009]: Fuel for both Bastion and Kandahar Airbase is paid for from the same budget. During the last 12 calendar months £85,669,000 was paid for aviation fuel; and £43,058,000 for ground fuel for both locations. Based upon information from FY 2008-09 onwards the average monthly cost of aviation fuel was £6,070,000; and £2,891,000 for ground fuel for both Bastion and Kandahar Airbase. The information for fuel costs prior to FY 2008-09 is not held centrally.

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps the Department is taking to enable mail and postal services provided for armed forces personnel in Afghanistan to manage the volume of letters and parcels expected over the Christmas period. [305343]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Over the Christmas period, the British Forces Post Office (BFPO) employs extra staff to ensure that all HM Forces mail to all world-wide destinations including Afghanistan is dispatched promptly.

The Enduring Free Mail Service which operates all year round is bolstered by the Christmas Free Mail Service (CFMS) for one month before Christmas, where the Free Post is extended to cover not only Operations and their supporting ships, but all destinations where HM Forces are deployed.

The CFMS is advertised along with Last Dates of Posting via a Defence Information Notice and the BFPO and MOD websites. This information is also available on the Royal Mail website.

MOD undertook press and media campaigns in the run up to Christmas to promote the reduction in volume of Unsolicited Mail, which places a considerable burden on the Supply Chain, which, left unchecked, can seriously delay personal mail.

Finally, over the Christmas period, Royal Mail occasionally delivers directly to BFPO to shorten transport time, rather than BFPO staff collecting mail from the Royal Mail Depot at Greenford.

Armed Forces: Equipment

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required and (b) actual number is of (i) items of night vision equipment, (ii) pieces of body armour and (iii) small arms for pre-deployment training. [305023]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The current required and actual number of night vision equipment, body armour and small arms specifically held for pre-deployment training are provided in the following table.

| | Requirement | Holdings |
|---|---|---|
| Night vision systems | | |
| Helmet Mounted Night Vision System | 7,168 | 4,477 |
| Light Weight Thermal Image sights (VIPIR 2 and 2+) | 971 | 762 |
| Body armour | | |
| Osprey | 2,901 | 4,697 |
| Osprey Assault | 6,146 | 0 |
| Small arms | | |
| Light Machine Gun | 922 | 922 |
| Shotgun | 198 | 70 |
| Sig Pistol | 3,007 | 1,162 |

Where there is a shortfall against the pre-deployment training requirement, this reflects the newness of equipment, or the growth in forces deployed. We are making further progress in closing the gap and should meet the full requirement for each equipment type identified (except the Sig Pistol) by July 2010, and in some cases earlier than July. All pistols (some 25,000) are due to be replaced as part of the Soldier System Lethality programme.

Equipment availability for pre-deployment training is carefully managed and prioritised to ensure that operators are safe, qualified and competent on the equipment prior to deployment.

In addition to the equipment allocated specifically for pre-deployment training, further equipment is held by units themselves; these items are not included in the figures as they are not specifically held for pre-deployment training.

Armed Forces: Injuries

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 26 November 2009, Official Report, columns 287-8W, on Afghanistan: peacekeeping operations, what compensation is payable for loss of (a) the penis and (b) normal use of the penis under the provisions of the Armed Forces and Reserve Forces (Compensation scheme) Order 2005; and what level of severity of injury on the scheme's scale such compensation represents. [304725]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The Armed Forces and Reserve Forces (Compensation Scheme) Order 2005 makes provision of compensation for all members and former members of the regular armed forces or reserve forces should they be injured, become ill or die as a result of service. Awards are tariff based depending upon the nature and severity of the injury. There is no standard provision for particular types of injury or theatre of operation.

The following table reflects the current Armed Forces and Reserve Forces (Compensation Scheme) Order 2005 tariff covering injury to the genitalia.

| Tariff | Descriptor | Compensation award (£) |
|---|---|---|
| | Either | |
| 14 | Traumatic injury to genitalia requiring treatment resulting in moderate permanent damage | 2,888 |
| | Or | |
| 12 | Traumatic injury to genitalia requiring treatment resulting in severe permanent damage or loss | 9,075 |

In addition, where appropriate, the following tariff may be awarded:

| Tariff | Descriptor | Compensation award |
|---|---|---|
| 8 | Infertility—this level will also attract a guaranteed income payment (GIP) which is a tax-free index linked payment that is paid monthly for life after leaving the armed forces. The GIP is determined by the individual's salary at time of discharge from service, multiplied by a relevant factor. | Lump sum £48,875 + GIP |

These provisions are included within the review of the AFCS, being led by Lord Boyce.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the current (a) required and (b) actual number of drivers is for each armoured vehicle type in the armed forces. [305024]

Mr. Quentin Davies: This information is not held centrally, or in the format requested, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armoured vehicles are used by a number of corps and units across the armed forces. Units are required to train using a ratio of 1.5 crew operators (drivers) per vehicle against their peacetime establishment. This ratio is different for operational requirements, which is usually set at two crew operators per vehicle.

These ratios may vary depending on the vehicle, however all requirements are currently being met.

AWE Aldermaston

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on preparations for Project Pegasus at AWE Aldermaston. [304681]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Work to prepare the site commenced in 2007, and includes site investigation, the removal of redundant services, preparatory ground works and services diversion works. This work is allowable prior to planning consent being received, and is currently planned to complete by the end of 2010.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the length of the construction period for the new enriched uranium facility at AWE Aldermaston as proposed in the planning application made to West Berkshire council; what plans he has for the usage of the uranium processed there; and if he will make a statement. [305195]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The replacement enriched uranium handling facility at the Atomic Weapons Establishment is due on current plans to become operational in 2018. The materiel outputs of the facility are for use in the Defence nuclear programme. I am not prepared to disclose further details of usage as this would, or would be likely to, prejudice national security and defence in the UK.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer of 11 November 2009, Official Report, column 403W, on Atomic Weapons Establishment: radioactive waste, who owns the radioactive waste at the site; and whether the costs of storing radioactive waste at Atomic Weapons Establishment sites are covered in the contract arrangements between AWE plc and his Department. [305227]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The Ministry of Defence owns the Atomic Weapons Establishment (AWE) sites and all radioactive waste stored on those sites. The cost of storing radioactive waste at AWE is covered in the management and operation contract between AWE Management Ltd and the Department.

Departmental Buildings

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assets his Department has sold and leased back in each of the last 10 years; what the sale price was of each asset so sold; and what estimate he has made of the cost to the public purse of leasing back each such asset over the period of the lease. [305284]

Mr. Kevan Jones: During the last 10 years this Department has entered into a number of temporary lease back arrangements in the course of estate disposals, for example to allow time for facilities to be reprovided.

The details requested are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

So far as the disposal of other surplus Ministry of Defence assets (such as ships, tanks, aircraft, plant, IT and other equipment) is concerned, no lease backs are entered into.

Departmental Compensation

Willie Rennie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has spent on (a) damages awarded against it and (b) legal costs in respect of cases in the courts relating to a decision of the Army Board under the redress system in respect of which legal proceedings have been completed since 1997. [305054]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much (a) his Department and (b) its agencies spent on (i) alcohol and (ii) entertainment in the last 12 months. [305542]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 12 October 2009, Official Report, columns 422-33. The provision of alcohol at public expense must be in moderation and is subject to both financial and quantity restrictions.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to the answer of 28 January 2009, Official Report, columns 509-22, on supply estimates, what the equivalent figures are for each estimate type in his Department's winter supplementary estimate for 2009-10. [305104]

Bill Rammell: I am placing a copy of the requested information in the Library of the House, which breaks down the MOD's 2009-10 winter supplementary estimate in the same format as we have supplied before.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what payments the Met Office has made to (a) Cavendish Communications and (b) Politics International in the last 12 months; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of each contract under which such payments have been made. [305063]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The following payments have been made in each of the last three financial years:

| | | £ |
|---|---|---|
| | Politics International | Cavendish Communications |
| 2006-07 | 61,671 | 0 |
| 2007-08 | 54,362 | 0 |
| 2008-09 | 11,669 | 16,000 |

Payments relate principally to training and support for Met Office events. The contracts between the Met Office and Cavendish Communications and Politics International are confidential.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many telephone lines with the prefix (a) 0870, (b) 0845 and (c) 0800 his Department (i) operates and (ii) sponsors; how many calls were received to each number in the last 12 months; and whether alternative numbers charged at the BT local rate are available in each case. [305218]

Mr. Quentin Davies: The use of 0800, 0845 and 0870 numbers is determined at local level in accordance with individual business requirements and obtained directly from the supplier. Records of such numbers are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Written Questions

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many questions tabled for answer on a named day his Department received in each of the last 12 months; and to how many such questions his Department provided a substantive answer on the day named. [305386]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The MOD received 643 named day questions during the past 12 months and answered 482 (75 per cent.) on the day named. The MOD aims to answer all named day questions on the day named, but where this is not possible, we aim to provide a substantive reply at the earliest opportunity.

The following table shows the number of questions which were due for answer in each month and the number answered on the day named:

| Month | Number of named day Questions for answer | Number of questions answered on the day named |
|---|---|---|
| December 2008 | 53 | 39 |
| January 2009 | 61 | 40 |
| February 2009 | 47 | 36 |
| March 2009 | 58 | 37 |
| April 2009 | 22 | 17 |
| May 2009 | 54 | 39 |
| June 2009 | 56 | 43 |
| July 2009 | 51 | 43 |
| September 2009 | 74 | 72 |
| October 2009 | 79 | 53 |
| November 2009 | 88 | 63 |
| Total | 643 | 482 |

HMS Endurance

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what decisions have been taken in respect of the (a) repair and (b) replacement of HMS Endurance; what tenders have been sought in respect of damage caused to her; what the cost was of her return to the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [304687]

Mr. Quentin Davies: Options for restoring our Ice Patrol capability are presently being examined and no final decisions on whether to repair or replace HMS Endurance have yet been taken. Therefore, no tenders have yet been sought. The cost to the Department of returning her to the United Kingdom was approximately £4.3 million.

Kentigern House

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when and for what reasons his Department decided to sell and lease back its Kentigern House site in Glasgow. [305281]

Mr. Kevan Jones: The decision to sell and lease back Kentigern House in Glasgow was taken as part of the planning round that concluded in spring 2009.

Sale and leaseback is a commercially accepted practice ensuring the MOD maintains use of the facility while releasing useful capital.

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consultation was undertaken with unions representing staff at his Department's Kentigern House site in Glasgow prior to the sale and lease back of the site. [305283]

Mr. Kevan Jones: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for North Ayrshire and Arran (Ms Clark), on 26 November 2009, Official Report, column 294W.

Rescue Services: Helicopters

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many helicopter call outs of each type from each search and rescue station there were in each of the last 10 years; and how many (a) day and (b) night time hours off-station each call out entailed. [303634]

Bill Rammell: I am placing data showing the number of helicopter call outs of each type from each search and rescue (SAR) station in each of the last 10 years in the Library of the House.

Information on the actual daytime and night-time hours off-station for each call out is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Further data on military SAR activities is published by Defence Analytical Services and Advice at the following link:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/applications/newWeb/www/index.php?page=66&pubType=0

All UK SAR helicopter units are able to provide overlapping cover when an adjacent unit is either already committed to a SAR operation or operating at a reduced capability for any reason, or during periods of temporary closure. The provision of adjacent SAR cover is standard practice and occurs routinely when a SAR helicopter is already airborne on a search and rescue sortie or is unserviceable.

St. Kilda: Radar

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many incidents of oil leakage from his Department's facilities in the vicinity of St. Kilda have been recorded in each of the last three years; [304186]

(2) what measures are in place to prevent the leakage of oil into seawater from his Department's facilities in the vicinity of St. Kilda. [304187]

Mr. Quentin Davies: No oil leakages from Ministry of Defence facilities on or in the vicinity of St. Kilda has been recorded during the last three years.

The Bulk Fuel Installation (BFI) located on St. Kilda, in support of activity at the MOD Hebrides Range, is compliant with the current legal standard, the Water Environment (Oil Storage) (Scotland) Regulations 2006.

Ship-to-shore replenishment of the BFI is undertaken in compliance with the Maritime and Coastguard Agency approved "St Kilda Oil Spillage Response Plan", prepared in accordance with the merchant Shipping (Oil Pollution Preparedness, Response and Co-operation Convention) Regulations 1998.

A number of measures are in place to protect the environment from spills and leakage. The oil tanks and associated equipment are enclosed within a physical containment barrier, known as a bund. As an additional precaution, the fuel connection points, pipe-work, valves, vent points, sight glass, rainwater sump, oil-water interceptors, and spillage kits are protected against the effects of ice.

Vehicle refuelling on the island is undertaken within the containment area. The refuelling pump is only operated by authorised personnel, and is locked when not in use.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Betting Shops: Horseracing

Mr. Caborn: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the effect on the Horserace Betting Levy of the operation of betting exchanges. [305287]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Government have not made such an estimate. However, the Horserace Betting Levy Board informs me that the levy payable by betting exchanges is equivalent to 10 per cent. of their gross profits, defined as gross commission on British Horserace Betting Business deducted from winnings paid out to bettors and bet-takers. In the year ended 31 March 2009, Betfair also made a voluntary contribution to the Levy Board in respect of British Horserace Betting Business conducted by their off-shore website in Malta.

Betting exchanges operate a business model that does not deliver product through shops. When bookmakers accept risk on bets and do so in shops, liability to levy and gross profits tax is calculated without the deduction of overheads. This leads to a proportionately larger contribution to the levy than would be the case for a betting exchange.

Broadband: East Midlands

Mr. McLoughlin: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to ensure that people resident in (a) West Derbyshire and (b) the East Midlands have access to high-speed broadband. [303189]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply.

The Next Generation Fund will help to bring fast broadband to at least 90 per cent. of households in the UK by 2017. The fund will promote the roll out of infrastructure that meets the needs of businesses and households in regions the market would not otherwise deliver to. It will work alongside the Government's Universal Service Commitment, a parallel infrastructure investment programme to ensure virtually every community has access to a broadband connection capable of providing at least 2Mbps.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on works and refurbishment to offices allocated to Ministers in his Department's buildings in the last 12 months. [305687]

[305139]

Mr. Simon: The information requested is not held centrally and is an operational matter for the Heritage Lottery Fund, who have been unable to provide the information requested to the timescales dictated by parliamentary convention.

Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive to write to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what payments the Gambling Commission has made to Grayling Political Strategy in the last 12 months; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contracts under which such payments have been made. [305140]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information the hon. Member has requested is not held centrally and is a matter for the Gambling Commission.

Accordingly, I have asked the responsible director to write to the hon. Member. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

The chief scientific adviser leads a team of 15 civil servants working in a variety of scientific or research posts across the disciplines of economics, statistics, social or operational research.

Departmental Travel

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on what date he last travelled by (a) bus and (b) taxi in the course of his official duties. [302722]

Mr. Bradshaw: 26 November and 8 November respectively.

Edelman UK: Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what payments his Department has made to Edelman in the last 12 months; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library copy of the contract under which such payments have been made. [305133]

Mr. Simon: No direct payments have been made to Edelman by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport in the last 12 months. However, Edelman was engaged through Central Office of Information to provide brand and event development support to the Creativity and Business International Network.

Fishburn Hedges: Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what payments the Digital Switchover Help Scheme has made to Fishburn Hedges in the last 12 months; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contract under which such payments have been made. [305132]

Mr. Simon: The BBC is responsible for administering the Digital Switchover Help Scheme.

Accordingly I have asked the chief executive of the scheme to write to the hon. Member for Ruislip-Northwood. Copies of the reply will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Gambling Commission: Birmingham

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the operating costs of the Gambling Commission were in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09; and what proportion of the change in costs is accounted for by the relocation of the Commission in Birmingham. [305119]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Gambling Commission completed its move to Birmingham in July 2006. The total operating costs of the Commission were £6.645 million in 2007-08 falling to £5.027 million in 2008-09.

Gambling Commission: Finance

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what value for money objectives his Department has set for the Gambling Commission. [305121]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Gambling Commission's performance is primarily assessed through a funding agreement with the Department which includes their agreed strategic objectives, together with funding and performance indicators/targets. They were set a target of achieving 3 per cent. value for money efficiency savings, year on year, over the period of the funding agreement 2008-09 to 2010-11.

Gambling Commission: Reviews

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the compatibility of the operation of the Gambling Commission with the recommendations of the Hampton Review of Regulation. [305118]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Gambling Commission was the subject of a Hampton Implementation Review earlier this year which suggested that, if the Commission's plans were implemented, it would be in a strong position to demonstrate the Hampton principles throughout its work. The implementation of those plans is a strategic objective in the Commission's 2009 business plan and my officials and I meet the Commission on a regular basis to consider progress against all of the objectives in that plan. The Commission is making good progress on these measures.

Hotels

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on hotel accommodation for (a) Ministers, (b) special advisers and (c) civil servants in each of the last five years. [305665]

Mr. Simon: All travel is conducted in accordance with rules set out in the Department's staff guide under travel and subsistence and is consistent with the civil service management code. Travel by Ministers is made in pursuance of their ministerial duties and complies with guidance set out in the Ministerial Code.

Expenditure on hotels is included within travel and subsistence claims made by Ministers and officials. The information is not held separately or analysed by the categories requested in the Department's accounting system. It can be obtained by retrieving and manually analysing a large number of travel, subsistence and incidental expense claims only at disproportionate cost.

Licensed Premises: Statistics

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will place in the Library a copy of each response received to the licensing questionnaire which formed the basis for the Licensing Statistical Bulletin 2009. [304706]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Responses received to the licensing questionnaire which formed the basis for the Licensing Statistical Bulletin 2009 are available on the DCMS website:

http://www.culture.gov.uk/reference_library/publications/6387.aspx

National Lottery: Grants

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the funds to be distributed from the National Lottery to good causes in each year to 2015; and if he will make a statement. [305356]

Mr. Simon: DCMS does not forecast future Lottery income, but we do issue projections of what income might be if total sales stay at approximately the last year's level. The latest income projection issued to non-Olympic Lottery distributors in September 2009 was as follows:

£ million

| | Total income | Transfer to Olympics |
|---|---|---|
| 2009-10 | 1,386 | 292 |
| 2010-11 | 1,391 | 292 |
| 2011-12 | 1,392 | 292 |
| 2012-13 | 1,453 | 136 |

Pete Wishart: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been distributed by the Big Lottery Fund to statutory bodies in each of the last five years. [305357]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Big Lottery Fund has distributed funding to statutory bodies where they are best placed to deliver outcomes for communities and people most in need. The Big Lottery Fund does not fund statutory bodies' core work nor does it substitute or replace statutory funding. Where BIG distributes funding to statutory bodies it is often on the precondition that they work in partnership with voluntary and community sector organisations.

The following table shows the amount awarded to statutory bodies across the UK by the Big Lottery Fund each full financial year since its inception on 1 June 2004.

| Financial year ending 31 March | Number of awards | Total awarded (£) |
|---|---|---|
| 2006 | 1,664 | 59,210,398 |
| 2007 | 1,619 | 38,144,003 |
| 2008 | 2,612 | 173,326,762 |
| 2009 | 2,073 | 41,420,649 |

Funding made through statutory bodies as third party award partners where the voluntary and community sector organisations are the direct beneficiary have not been included in these figures.

Amounts retained by the statutory third party award partner for administrative costs have been included.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Contracts

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what criteria his Department use in determining the award of contracts; and how much his Department has spent on the advertisement of tenders for Government contracts since 1997. [303136]

Ann McKechin: Other than minor purchases, the Scotland Office does not undertake discrete procurement or tendering projects. It utilises existing service contracts between suppliers and the Scottish Executive or the Ministry of Justice. These awarding authorities would take the lead in such matters and would determine the criteria for the award of contract. The Office has not incurred any direct spend on the advertisement of tenders.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Northern Ireland Equality Commission: Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what payments the Northern Ireland Equality Commission has made to Stratagem in the last 12 months; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contract under which such payments have been made. [305162]

Mr. Woodward: The sponsorship of the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland is a matter for the devolved Administration.

Police Service of Northern Ireland

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department has budgeted for introducing police community support officers to Northern Ireland; and what the budgeted cost of one police officer in Northern Ireland was in the latest period for which figures are available. [302941]

Paul Goggins: The 2007 comprehensive spending review period (CSR07) runs to 31 March 2011. Based on current plans, the PSNI has not budgeted for the introduction of PCSOs in this period. This was agreed by the Chief Constable and the NI Policing Board in allocating resources for the CSR07 period. The budgeted cost of one police officer in Northern Ireland in 2009-10 is £45,000.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what estimate has been made of the cost to the public purse of introducing police community support officers in Northern Ireland. [302942]

Paul Goggins: The 2007 comprehensive spending review period (CSR07) runs to 31 March 2011. Based on current plans, the PSNI has not budgeted for the introduction of PCSOs in this period. This was agreed by the Chief Constable and the NI Policing Board in allocating resources for the CSR07 period. The estimated cost of one police community support officer in Northern Ireland is £27,000 per annum but the actual cost would depend on how they were introduced. Decisions on the introduction of PCSOs would be for the Chief Constable and Policing Board.

Weapons: Explosives

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what his most recent assessment is of the level of illegally held (a) weapons and (b) explosives in Northern Ireland. [304592]

Paul Goggins: The Independent International Commission on Decommissioning has worked, and continues to work, to put the armaments of republican and loyalist terrorist groups beyond use. By their nature estimates of illegally held weaponry would be speculative and it is not Government practice to provide information on this basis.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Capita

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on how many occasions Capita Group plc tendered for contracts let by his Department in each of the last five years; how many such tenders were successful; how much his Department paid to Capita Group plc for the execution of contracts in each such year; how many contracts which terminate after 2010 Capita Group plc hold with his Department; and what the monetary value is of all outstanding contracts between his Department and Capita Group plc. [303156]

Dan Norris: The core-Department does not hold centrally information on how many occasions Capita Group plc tendered for contracts let in each of the last five years and how many such tenders were successful. The information could be provided only at disproportionate cost. From information held centrally the expenditure with the Capita Group since 2005-06 is as follows:

| | 2005-06 | 2006-07 | 2007-08 | 2008-09 | 2009-10 (April-October) |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Capita Business Services Ltd. | 91,672.75 | 653,407.60 | 201,571.59 | 203,859.69 | 72,598.59 |
| Capita Health Solutions Ltd. | 11,4[illegible].84 | 9,527.35 | 124,278.15 | 6,184.56 | 2,284.39 |
| Capita Resourcing Ltd. | 408,611.15 | 273,835.10 | 354,072.03 | 479,800.64 | 315,128.28 |
| Capita Symonds Ltd. | 374,023.15 | 329,480.73 | 37,461.58 | — | — |
| Capita Communications | — | 6,184.57 | — | — | — |
| Capita Trust Company Ltd. | — | — | — | 8,781.25 | — |

From information held centrally the core-Department has no contracts which terminate after 2010. It is not possible to calculate the monetary value of all outstanding contracts between the core-Department and Capita Group plc because the contracts may vary in terms, length, services, costs and in the demands made upon them.

Climate Change: Antarctic

Lady Hermon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications for the UK of the findings of the Scientific Committee on Antarctic Research report on Antarctic climate change and the environment. [304584]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: I have been asked to reply.

The Government welcome this comprehensive and timely report from the Scientific Committee on Antarctic Research (SCAR) which has been circulated to all delegations ahead of the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change meeting in Copenhagen for their consideration. Antarctica is an important barometer for global climate change and changes there will have far reaching impacts including on the UK. I congratulate all those involved in the SCAR report in particular those UK scientists, most notably from the British Antarctic Survey, who played a leading role. The Government are committed to the protection of the Antarctic environment and strongly support the Antarctic treaty and its environmental protocol. I recently launched for consultation the draft Antarctic Bill which will add to the protection we give to Antarctica. The report will be discussed in detail at the Antarctic treaty meeting of experts on climate change in April 2010 and also at the Antarctic treaty consultative meeting in Uruguay in May.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost was of maintaining his Department's website in the 2008-09 financial year; and what the forecast cost is of maintaining websites within his responsibility in the 2009-10 financial year. [302416]

Dan Norris: Staff costs for the central team with responsibility for updating and maintaining DEFRA's websites are estimated to be around £340,000 in the 2008-09 financial year, and the same in 2009-10. This central team is also responsible for the DEFRA intranet, and the staff costs for the external DEFRA website alone cannot be readily disaggregated.

Additional costs in 2009-10 of £71,149 have been incurred for specialist web design, audience research and web accessibility auditing relating to the relaunch of the DEFRA website in September 2009. This relaunch was the first significant investment in the DEFRA website since the creation of the Department in 2001, and work on it spanned two financial years. There are no such expenses currently planned for 2010-11.

Website hosting services—as well as a range of IT applications—are provided as part of DEFRA's overall IT service provision and the costs of this aspect of website maintenance cannot be readily disaggregated.

Departmental Taxis

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what contracts his Department has with private hire taxi companies; and what expenditure his Department has incurred against each such contract in each of the last three years. [300832]

Dan Norris: The core-Department has no contracts with private hire taxi companies. Paragraph 8.2 of the civil service management code requires staff use the most efficient and economic means of travel in the circumstances, taking into account any management benefit or the needs of staff with disabilities.

On expenditure, I refer my hon. Friend to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for North Southwark and Bermondsey (Simon Hughes) of 21 October 2009, Official Report, columns 1455-56W.

Flood Control: Expenditure

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on flood protection measures in (a) England, (b) Yorkshire and the Humber and (c) the City of York Council area in each year since 2000-01. [304591]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The following table provides an analysis of Government funding to the Environment Agency for flood risk management between 2000-01 and 2008-09.

The figures are based upon the annual report and accounts of the Environment Agency.

Until 2004-05 the flood risk management function of the Environment Agency was funded primarily through a combination of grants from DEFRA for specific projects and levies on local authorities.

Both forms of funding were largely replaced by grant in aid from DEFRA from 2004-05 onwards.

| | Total England (£ million) |

| 2000-01 | 248.9 |

Marine Management Organisation

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether an equality impact assessment was published prior to the decision on the future headquarters of the Marine Management Organisation being made. [305170]

Huw Irranca-Davies: An initial equality impact assessment (EqIA) was published on the Marine and Fisheries Agency's (MFA's) intranet pages prior to the decision on the future headquarters of the Marine Management Organisation being made.

This was done in the form of an initial assessment on the relocation project generally taking into account all the shortlisted locations. The finalised 'full' version of the EqIA—which takes account of the more recently known building location in Newcastle—was published on 2 November 2009 (having first been discussed with the departmental trade union, including MFA representation).

Oils: Waste

John Thurso: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what volume of waste oils was transhipped as waste for processing outside the UK in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [304638]

Dan Norris: The Environment Agency is responsible for recording the transfrontier shipment of waste oils for England and Wales. The following table sets out the quantities of waste oils exported from England and Wales from 2001 to 2008.

These data are reported to the secretariat of the Basel convention.

Organic Farming

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the amount of land in (a) England and (b) North Yorkshire and York organically farmed in each year since 1997. [304588]

Jim Fitzpatrick: We do not hold this information for years prior to 2002.

Organic and In-conversion land in hectares England

| | Hectares |

| 2002 | 184,045 |
| 2003 | 220,197 |

| 2006 | 229,861 |
| 2007 | 258,744 |
| 2008 | 283,993 |

We do not hold specific data for North Yorkshire and York, but we have data for Yorkshire and Humberside, as follows.

Organic and In-conversion land, in hectares, Yorkshire and Humberside

| | Hectares |
|---|---|
| 2002 | 6,968 |
| 2003 | 8,079 |

| 2006 | 9,032 |
| 2007 | 9,625 |

Rights of Way

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many hectares of land in (a) England and (b) North Yorkshire and York have been opened to the public under the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 to date. [304590]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The area of land opened to the public under the Countryside and Rights of Way (CROW) Act 2000 to date in England, North Yorkshire and York is shown in the following table.

| | England | North Yorkshire county | City of York |
|---|---|---|---|
| CROW Access[1] | 865,119 | 174,025 | 188 |
| CROW Section 16[2] | 153,466 | 14 ,570 | 112 |

[1] CROW Access land includes conclusive open country and registered common land mapped in accordance with Section 4 of The CROW Act 2000, with areas of excepted land (military byelaw, racecourse and aerodromes) and CROW Section 28 restrictions (military and National Security) removed.

[2] CROW Section 16 is land which has been dedicated for the purposes of open access in accordance with Section 16 of The CROW Act 2000.

Notes:

1. All figures are in Hectares (calculated using Cartesian area in MapInfo).
2. The figure for CROW Access land together with the figure for CROW Section 16 gives the total access land for a given area.

TRANSPORT

Departmental Electronic Equipment

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport with reference to the answer to my hon. Friend the Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond) of 1 September 2009, Official Report, columns 1815-6W, on departmental electronic equipment, what the purposes were of the purchase of 55 DVD players by his Department's agencies. [305150]

Chris Mole: As previously advised the Department for Transport has spent £55 on DVD players.

The DVD players were purchased by the Highways Agency and the Vehicle Certification Agency. They are used for delivering in-house training with video content, and for test engineers to show short videos of vehicle tests.

Departmental Information Officers

Mr. Heald: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many full-time equivalent press officers (a) are employed by and (b) work for his Department. [303606]

Chris Mole: The number of full-time equivalent staff (FTE) employed on press officer activities on 1 April 2009 by the Department for Transport both directly and, where identifiable, indirectly is set out in the following table.

Staff (FTE) employed on press officer activities

| | DFT employees | Other workers[1] |
|---|---|---|
| DFT(C) | 13 | Nil |
| DSA | 6[2] | 0 |
| DVLA | 5 | Nil |
| GCDA | Nil | Nil |
| HA | 11 | 3 |
| MCA | 2 | Nil |
| VCA | Nil | Nil |
| VOSA | 1 | 1 |

[1] Other workers include temporary employment agency staff.

[2] DSA figure includes fixed term employment

The staff resource deployed by the Central Office of Information in providing their regional News and PR services to parts of the Department can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Highways Agency (HA) has seven regional press officers to support its new Traffic Officer service and seven regional control centres. These press officers are employed to raise awareness of the Traffic Officers and the agency's role as network operator for England's motorways and major A roads.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what payments the Northern Lighthouse Board has made to Grayling Political Strategy in the last 12 months for which figures are available; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contract under which such payments have been made. [305128]

Paul Clark: In the 12 months to 31 October 2009, the Northern Lighthouse Board paid Grayling Political Strategy £30,606.74. The Northern Lighthouse Board has a contract with Grayling Political Strategy to provide parliamentary and media monitoring services to highlight issues directly or indirectly affecting the Board's activities.

The contract between the Northern Lighthouse Board and Grayling Political Strategy is a private contract containing commercially sensitive information and therefore it would be inappropriate to place a copy of the contract in the Library.

Departmental Taxis

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many miles (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department and its predecessor travelled by taxi in the course of their official duties in each year since 1997; and at what cost to the public purse in each such year. [302704]

Chris Mole: The Department for Transport (DFT) and its agencies do not record the mileage of taxi journeys, and so this information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Available figures for the cost are included in the following table. Four agencies do not record taxi fares separately from other travel costs, and could provide the information only at disproportionate cost. For DFT(c), Driving Standards Agency (DSA), Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency (DVLA) and the Vehicle Certification Agency (VCA) information for years earlier than those shown could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Theft

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many officials of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have (i) been reprimanded, (ii) had their contract of employment terminated and (iii) been prosecuted for theft of departmental property in each of the last three years; and what items were stolen in each case. [300968]

Chris Mole: The Department for Transport has had no employees that have been reprimanded, had their contract of employment terminated nor been prosecuted for theft of departmental property over the last three years.

Six out of the seven Department's agencies have also had no employees that have been reprimanded, had their contract of employment terminated nor been prosecuted for theft of department property over the last three years. However, the seventh agency, The Driver Vehicle and Licensing Agency, is unable to provide the information requested as it would involve disproportionate costs.

Departmental Working Hours

Andrew Selous: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many and what proportion of staff of his Department, its executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies work flexibly or part-time; and what his Department's policy is on making jobs available on a job-share or flexible basis. [301331]

Chris Mole: Information relating to flexible working in the Department for Transport can be found at the following links in the Department's website:

Driving

Dr. Ladyman: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what mechanisms are in place to ensure that staff who drive (a) a vehicle for which (i) his Department and (ii) one of its Executive agencies is responsible have valid driving licences and (b) their own vehicles in the course of their official duties for (A) his Department and (B) one of its executive agencies have valid driving licences and insurance; what guidance is issued to those staff in respect of road safety while carrying out official duties; what steps are taken to monitor compliance with that guidance; what requirements there are on such staff to report to their line managers accidents in which they are involved while driving in the course of their official duties; and whether such reports are investigated. [302172]

Chris Mole: The Department for Transport has a departmental Driving at Work policy that includes the requirement for every driver or rider to hold a valid driving licence. If drivers or riders use their own vehicles they must also have appropriate insurance provision. Further detailed arrangements vary according to the exact business need in each agency and the central Department.

All staff who drive or ride on departmental business have their driving licences and insurance provision checked by line management or in the case of DVLA by a dedicated team. Usually this is by visual inspection but in some parts of the Department it is done by self-certification supported by management checks. There are regular reviews of the appropriate documentation that vary between six months to a year or whenever there is a change of circumstances.

Detailed guidance is available to all staff in respect of road safety while on departmental business and line managers are responsible for monitoring arrangements. Guidance includes practical advice like checking vehicles prior to a journey, planning journeys and the need for regular breaks, using seat belts, not using a mobile phone while driving.

Staff are required to report all accidents via the internal arrangements in their agency or the Central Department. Reporting requirements includes accidents while driving in the course of their official duties. All accidents are investigated.

M5: Automatic Number Plate Recognition

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport pursuant to the answer of 25 November 2009, Official Report, column 132W, on M5: cameras, how many automatic number plate recognition cameras are in use for the detection of traffic offences on the M5; and if he will list the offences so detected in the last 12 months. [303439]

Chris Mole [holding answer 2 December 2009]: The average speed cameras currently in use on the M5 to secure speed limit compliance through roadworks are shown in the table.

| Scheme | Location | Safety camera partnership | Number of cameras |
|---|---|---|---|
| Gloucester Driver Information Scheme—new signs providing drivers with real time advance information on road conditions | J11a-13 | Gloucester Safety Camera Partnership | 8 |
| Newton Farm resurfacing/barrier replacement works | J13-14 | West Mercia Safety Camera Partnership | 14 |

As explained in my answer of 25 November 2009, Official Report, column 132W, the other types of cameras are not used for the detection of traffic offences.

Traffic offences are administered by the relevant Safety Camera Partnership Group and the Highways Agency does not keep records of these. Any enquiries relating to offences detected in the last 12 months would therefore have to be addressed directly to the Gloucester Safety Camera Partnership and the West Mercia Safety Camera Partnership respectively, for the above locations.

Norwich-London Railway Line

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport on how many occasions bus transport was provided instead of rail for all or part of the journey due to (a) routine and (b) non-routine maintenance on the Norwich to London Liverpool Street railway line in (i) 2007, (ii) 2008 and (iii) 2009 to date. [302432]

Chris Mole: The Department for Transport does not hold the information requested. In the case of maintenance, either routine or otherwise, the decision to replace rail with bus transport will be taken by the train operating company and Network Rail.

Railways: Scotland

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport whether East Coast plans to continue to run direct passenger rail services from London to Glasgow via Edinburgh. [304271]

Chris Mole: The timetable has not been decided as the stakeholder consultation exercise has not yet taken place. Options for rail services on the East Coast mainline are being examined, but no decision has been taken.

Railways: Standards

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport with reference to the answer of 9 November 2009, Official Report, columns 56-8W, on railways: standards, if he will provide a table showing the number of trains cancelled by each train operating company in each of the last five years given as a percentage of all trains scheduled to run; and if he will provide the same information in respect of peak hour trains in London and the South East. [301248]

Chris Mole [holding answer 24 November 2009]: The table requested is as follows, showing the number of trains cancelled by each franchised train operator in each of the last five years as a percentage of all trains scheduled to run. Data are given for the five most recent financial years, including 2009-10 up to October 2009.

Percentage of all scheduled trains cancelled

Chris Mole: South West Trains has an ITSO smartcard pilot in operation between Staines and Windsor and Eton Riverside. Another pilot is planned for the Worcester area shortly on London Midland services. Both are precursors to wider rollouts in future. On 23 November we announced the launch of pay as you go (PAYG) in London from 2 January 2010 which will allow use of Oyster on London rail services.

Chris Mole: South West Trains, London Midland, East Coast, Southern, Arriva Cross Country and East Midlands Trains all have smartcard obligations. The specific details of these commitments are commercially sensitive as they will be the subject of competitive tender by the respective train operator and therefore are not in the public domain.

Since then, the deployment of safety cameras has been the responsibility of individual local partnerships. The number of cameras currently in place will therefore be a matter for East and West Sussex county councils and the local road safety partnership.

Regulatory and Statistical Returns (RSR) to the Tenant Services Authority (TSA) from registered social landlords

The RSR returns do not include details on the monetary value of RSL properties sold to sitting tenants. Details on RSL capital receipts are available from continuous recording (CORE) returns to the TSA, but these exclude sales by smaller RSLs and therefore under-record the number of RSL sales and the capital receipts.

These figures include all social housing sales to sitting tenants. They do not include sales of new-build properties through HomeBuy sales, or sales and transfers between local authorities and RSLs.

Departmental Electronic Equipment

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average yearly running costs of a photocopier in his Department, excluding value added tax and including all service fees and rental costs, was in the latest period for which figures are available. ## Flood Control: Finance

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding, in cash terms, each local authority in England which applied for Bellwin funding in each of the last three years did not receive back in compensation as a result of the 0.2 per cent. grant threshold in the Bellwin fund limiting the amount of compensation that a council receives. [305929]

Barbara Follett: The threshold has been set at 0.2 per cent. of a local authority's calculated annual revenue budget. This is because the Government, throughout the lifetime of the Bellwin scheme, has thought it reasonable to expect authorities to cover costs themselves up to a certain level. Every local authority is required to maintain reserves, one of whose main purposes is to meet unexpected costs. Successive Governments have retained the threshold and it has never been waived, even during the 1987 storms, the 2000 floods, the foot-and-mouth crisis or the 2007 summer floods.

The following table shows the threshold applied for each local authority that received Bellwin funding within the last three years:

| Local authority | Scheme | Threshold (£) |

[1] The threshold applies to annual spending and not to spending on each incident. So authorities who report more than one incident in the same financial year take spending on all reported incidents into account in calculating whether they have exceeded the threshold. In the table above, all the authorities affected by the January 2008 floods had already incurred the annual threshold as part of their claims for the 2007 summer floods which was in the same financial year, so it was not applied for this subsequent scheme.

Hotels

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much his Department spent on hotel accommodation for (a) Ministers, (b) special advisers and (c) civil servants in each of the last five years. [305668]

Barbara Follett: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Putney (Justine Greening) on 22 October 2009, Official Report, column 1642W.

Figures for earlier years and disaggregating for Ministers, special advisers and civil servant could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

Housing: Rural Areas

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether he has made an estimate of the number of homes in rural areas which have changed ownership in each year since 1997. [305354]

Mr. Ian Austin [holding answer 8 December 2009]: We have assumed that the number of homes in rural areas which have changed ownership is made up of private sector sales and LA and RSL dwellings that have been sold to sitting tenants.

The estimated number of homes in rural areas which have changed ownership in each year since 1997 is presented as follows:

| | Private sector sales | Social homes sold by LAs and RSLs to sitting tenants |
|---|---|---|
| 1997 | 427,317 | 15,890 |
| 1998 | 405,767 | 14,540 |
| 1999 | 463,149 | 19,970 |
| 2000 | 426,018 | 16,750 |
| 2001 | 462,657 | 16,520 |
| 2002 | 489,901 | 19,640 |
| 2003 | 438,270 | 19,560 |
| 2004 | 443,117 | 12,500 |
| 2005 | 370,601 | 6,920 |
| 2006 | 470,621 | 5,020 |
| 2007 | 451,438 | 3,170 |
| 2008 | 234,041 | 820 |

Figures on private sector sales are from Land Registry data, and are based on changes of ownership of properties at market value price. Sales below market value (such as right to buy) are excluded from the private sector sales. Sales at under £1,000 and sales above £20 million have been excluded. Some properties may have been sold more than once during the period.

Figures on social homes sold are from quarterly P1B returns to CLG from local authorities, and from regulatory and statistical returns (RSR) to the Tenant Services Authority (TSA) from registered social landlords. They include sales to sitting tenants through right to buy, preserved right to buy, right to acquire, rent to mortgage, and voluntary purchase grant. Large-scale voluntary transfers (LSVTs) of local authority stock to RSLs are not included in the figures.

Local authorities that are classed as rural under the DEFRA rural codes have been included and local authorities classed as urban by DEFRA have been filtered out. Some 178 local authorities have been defined as rural by the DEFRA rural definition (2004).

Local Government Finance

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate he has made of the effect of cancellation of property developments on revenue from rates in the latest period for which figures are available. [302309]

Barbara Follett: No estimate of the effect of cancellation of property developments on revenue from non-domestic business rates has been made.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much of the £250 million local government efficiency savings referred to in the Department of Health consultation document on Personal Care at Home he expects to be made from each budget of each local authority. [304698]

Barbara Follett: The commitment to offer free personal care at home to those with highest needs is expected to cost up to £670 million per full year. The Government, through the Department of Health, will provide the bulk of this funding (£420 million per full year). It is right that councils play their part, and the remainder of the funding will come from efficiencies in local government. However, it is not for central Government to micro-manage the budgets of local authorities. They are best placed to make decisions on how to fund this important commitment. It is for this reason that the additional funding being provided by central Government will be distributed on a non-ringfenced basis. The Department of Health is consulting separately on the formulae that will be used for distributing the grant to councils.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps he plans to take to ensure the delivery of the £250 million local government efficiency savings referred to in the Department of Health consultation document on Personal Care at Home. [304699]

Barbara Follett: The Government are investing an unprecedented £450 million in supporting local government to deliver transformation, improvement and efficiency in the three years to 2010-11. With this support, local government has shown the capacity to generate significant levels of efficiency. Since 2004-05, local government has delivered £4.5 billion in efficiency savings. Last year alone, as part of the Government's efficiency drive, local authorities reported a £1.7 billion saving on their £5.5 billion target between 2008-09 and 2010-11. Work is already under way through Total Place and Smarter Government to identify new ways of maintaining high quality local services in a time of public expenditure constraint. And at a time when prices are falling everywhere, local government will be given a 4 per cent. increase in total government grant next year.

Local Government Finance: Chorley

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding Chorley borough council received from the rate support grant in each year since 1997. [305344]

Barbara Follett: The following table shows the increases for Chorley borough council in formula grant for each year from 1998-99 onwards on a like-for-like basis—i.e. after adjusting for changes in function and funding.

| | Prior years adjusted formula grant[1] (£ million) | Current year's formula grant[2] (£ million) | Change (£ million) | Percentage Change |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 1998-99 | 5.505 | 5.290 | -0.215 | -3.9 |
| 1999-2000 | 5.290 | 5.428 | 0.139 | 2.6 |
| 2000-01 | 5.428 | 5.676 | 0.248 | 4.6 |
| 2001-02 | 5.715 | 5.888 | 0.173 | 3.0 |
| 2002-03 | 5.789 | 6.105 | 0.316 | 5.5 |
| Amended 2003-04 | 5.948 | 6.691 | 0.743 | 12.5 |
| Amended 2004-05 | 5.972 | 6.309 | 0.338 | 5.7 |
| Amended 2005-06 | 6.336 | 6.655 | 0.319 | 5.0 |
| 2006-07[3] | 7.378 | 7.698 | 0.320 | 4.3 |
| 2007-08 | 7.671 | 8.008 | 0.337 | 4.4 |
| 2008-09 | 8.063 | 8.221 | 0.158 | 2.0 |
| 2009-10 | 8.221 | 8.358 | 0.137 | 1.67 |
| 2010-11 provisional | 8.358 | 8.487 | 0.129 | 1.5 |

[1] The prior year's formula grant is adjusted for changes in function and funding to enable a like-for-like comparison.

[2] Formula Grant comprises Revenue Support Grant, redistributed business rates, principal formula Police Grant, SSA Reduction Grant (SSA Review), SSA Reduction Grant (Police Funding Review) and Central Support Protection Grant where appropriate.

[3] Prior to 2006-07 support for schools was paid through formula grant. In 2006-07 funding for schools transferred to the Dedicated Schools Grant.

The amount of formula grant an authority receives each year is not directly comparable due to changes in funding and functions. For example, prior to 2006-07 funding for schools was included within formula grant; from 2006-07 onwards funding for schools was provided by the dedicated schools grant. For this reason, we adjust the prior year's formula grant, for comparison purposes only, so that it reflects the notional amount of formula grant an authority would have received in that year had we been financing the same services as in the current year.

The Department only holds data on year-on-year changes in formula grant on a like-for-like basis from 1997-98. This is because it only became necessary to make these calculations when guarantees were introduced that formula grant would not go down from one year to the next.

Mersey Coastal Park

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assistance his Department has made available for the implementation of the Mersey Coastal Park Strategy; and if he will make a statement. [304834]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Mersey Coastal Park strategy has yet to be finalised and I can confirm that the Department has not provided any direct support. The Northwest Regional Development Agency are in discussion with partners in order to ensure the strategy builds on previous funding and maximises the potential for private sector investment.

Multiple Occupation

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when he plans to announce his conclusions on his Department's review of the planning rules for houses in multiple occupation. [305567]

Mr. Ian Austin: We are currently considering the responses to the consultation on houses in multiple occupation and possible planning responses. We aim to make an announcement on the way forward shortly.

Non-Domestic Rates

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the (a) small business multiplier and (b) national non-domestic multiplier was in (i) 2007-08, (ii) 2008-09 and (iii) 2009-10; and what the provisional multipliers are for 2010-11. [304889]

Barbara Follett: Details of the small business rate multiplier and the national non-domestic rates multipliers for 2007-08 to 2009-10 are shown in the following table:

Pence

| | Small business rate multiplier | National non-domestic rates multiplier |
|---|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 44.1 | 44.4 |
| 2008,09 | 45.8 | 46.2 |
| 2009-10 | 48.1 | 48.5 |
| 2010-11 | 40.7 | 41.4 |

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was collected in business rates after the deduction of reliefs in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09; and what estimate he has made of the equivalent figures in (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2010-11. [304890]

Barbara Follett: Details of the amount of non-domestic rates collected, after the deduction of reliefs, but before the deduction of the cost of collection or losses, in 2007-08 and 2008-09 and corresponding estimates for 2009-10 and 2010-11 are given in the following table.

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 17,369 |
| 2008-09 | 19,072 |
| 2009-10 | 20,623 |
| 2010-11 | 20,791 |

The five-yearly business rates revaluations make sure each business pays its fair contribution and no more by ensuring that the share of the national rates bill paid by any one of them reflects changes over time in the value of their property relative to others. The 2010 revaluation will not raise a single extra penny for Government over the five years of the 2010 list because, although initially we will collect 1.5 per cent. more in 2010-11, this will be reduced in later years by appeals. Once all these appeals have been settled we expect the amount collected in 2010-11 to be less then that in 2009-10.

Over a million properties will see their business rate liabilities come down as a result of revaluation. The Government intend to put in place a £2 billion relief scheme to limit the impact on the minority with bill increases. That is on top of the wider support available to help ease business pressures including discounted rate bills for small businesses and deferring tax payments.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the percentage change in the (a) small business and (b) national non-domestic multiplier will be between 2009-10 and 2010-11; what proportion of this change is attributable to (i) changes in rateable value arising from the 2010 revaluation and (ii) the level of retail price index inflation in September 2009; and whether the percentage change in collectable rates and the relevant multipliers will match. [304891]

Barbara Follett: The small business multiplier is 48.1p for 2009-10 and the provisional small business multiplier for 2010-11 is 40.7p. The percentage change between the two figures is -15.4 per cent.

An estimate of the small business multiplier based on zero inflation (i.e. considering only the effect of revaluation) was published in the 'transitional arrangements for the non-domestic rating revaluation 2010 in England' consultation document. A copy of the consultation document is available at the following link:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/localgovernment/nndrrevaluation2010

| | Pence | Percentage change when compared to 2009-10 |
|---|---|---|
| 2009-10 Small Business Multiplier | 48.1 | — |
| 2010-11 Small Business Multiplier (zero inflation, as published in the consultation document) | 41.3 | -14.1 |
| 2010-11 Small Business Multiplier (including September 2009 RPI, and same assumptions as in the consultation document | 40.7 | -15.4 |

The national non-domestic multiplier is determined by adding a supplement to the small business multiplier to fund the estimated cost of the small business rate relief scheme. In 2009-10 this supplement was 0.4p, bringing the national non-domestic multiplier to 48.5p. For 2010-11, the supplement is estimated at 0.7p, bringing the provisional national non-domestic multiplier to 41.4p. The percentage change between the two is -14.6 per cent.

The five-yearly business rates revaluations make sure each business pays its fair contribution and no more by ensuring the share of the national rates bill paid by any one business reflects changes over time in the value of their property relative to others. The 2010 revaluation will not raise a single extra penny for Government.

Over a million properties will see their business rate liabilities come down as a result of revaluation. The Government intend to put in place a £2 billion relief scheme to limit the impact on the minority with bill increases. That is on top of the wider support available to help ease business pressures including discounted rate bills for small businesses and deferring tax payments.

Non-Domestic Rates: Empty Property

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many hereditaments were in receipt of empty property relief in (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08 and (c) 2008-09; and what estimate he has made of the equivalent figure in 2009-10. [304883]

Barbara Follett: Local authorities reported to Communities and Local Government that there were 186,400 hereditaments in receipt of empty property relief on 31 December 2007. On the same date in 2008 the number was 147,900.

These figures were not collected for 2006-07 and no estimate has been made for 2009-10.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the monetary value of empty property relief was in (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08 and (c) 2008-09; what estimate he has made of the equivalent figure in 2009-10; and what the actual figure is in 2009-10 to date. [304884]

Barbara Follett: The amount of empty property relief granted in 2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09 and the amount forecast to be granted in 2009-10 are as follows:

Empty property relief

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2006-07 | 1,362 |
| 2007-08 | 1,294 |
| 2008-09 | 487 |
| 2009-10 | 570 |

In 2008-09, the rules governing empty and partly occupied property relief were reformed by the Rating (Empty Properties) Act 2007 and further reforms were introduced for 2009-10.

Data are as reported to Communities and Local Government by all billing authorities in England on the annual National Non-Domestic Rates (NNDR) returns.

The figures given are the net empty property relief granted in that year irrespective of the year to which the empty property relief related. It can also include the repayment of non-domestic rates where empty property relief should have been granted in previous years but was not.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate has been made of the proportion of the 70 per cent. of properties with a rateable value below £15,000 that will claim full relief from business rates in 2009-10 as a result of being empty. [304885]

Barbara Follett: Our reforms to empty property relief are principled and right for the long-term, providing strong incentives for owners to re-let and re-use empty property. A £1.3 billion subsidy to owners of empty commercial property was no longer justified.

However, we have listened to owners. In 2009-10 all empty properties with rateable values up to £15,000 are eligible for full relief from business rates—70 per cent. of all properties are under this threshold and, if empty, are not liable for rates in 2009-10.

This temporary measure is providing real help to owners to manage short-term pressures in a difficult property market.

No estimate has been made of the proportion of hereditaments, which have a rateable value below £15,000, that are claiming full relief from business rates as a result of being empty.

The 'National Non-domestic rates collected by local authorities in England 2009-10 (Forecast)' Statistical Release that was published on 28 May 2009 estimated that, in total, 148,000 hereditaments were empty in England as at 31 December 2008. This release can be found on the CLG website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/corporate/statistics/nondomesticrates200910f

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate he has made of the total monetary value of the full relief from business rates in 2009-10 for empty properties with a rateable value below £15,000. [304886]

Barbara Follett: Our reforms to empty property relief are principled and right for the long-term, providing strong incentives for owners to re-let and re-use empty property. A £1.3 billion subsidy to owners of empty commercial property was no longer justified.

However, we have listened to owners. In 2009-10 all empty properties with rateable values up to £15,000 are eligible for full relief from business rates—70 per cent. of all properties are under this threshold and, if empty, are not liable for rates in 2009-10.

This temporary measure is providing real help to owners to manage short-term pressures in a difficult property market.

No data on the monetary value of the full relief from business rates in 2009-10 given to empty properties with a rateable value below £15,000 are collected centrally.

An impact assessment of the proposals to increase the exemption threshold for empty property relief from £2,200 to £15,000 was published in February 2009. This forecast is based on a number of assumptions, which are detailed in the impact assessment available at:

http://www.opsi.gov.uk/si/si2009/em/uksiem_20090353_en.pdf

The impact assessment forecast that the reform would increase the amount of empty property relief provided by £205 million. The forecast excludes the relief granted to hereditaments with a rateable value of less than £2,200, of which no estimate has been made.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average period of time was for which empty property relief was claimed on a hereditament in (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08 and (c) 2008-09; what estimate he has made of the equivalent figure for 2009-10; and what the actual figure is for 2009-10 to date. [304887]

Barbara Follett: This information is not collected centrally.

Non-Domestic Rates: Valuation

Mrs. Spelman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if he will make it his policy to undertake an assessment of the benefits of following the Northern Ireland example of postponing the 2010 business rates revaluation. [305938]

Barbara Follett: The postponement of revaluation in Northern Ireland is a devolved decision made by the Northern Ireland Assembly and based on local circumstances.

The five-yearly business rates revaluations make sure each business pays its fair contribution and no more by ensuring the share of the national rates bill paid by any one business reflects changes over time in the value of their property relative to others. The 2010 revaluation will not raise a single extra penny for Government.

Over a million properties will see their business rate liabilities come down as a result of revaluation. The Government intend to put in place a £2 billion relief scheme to limit the impact on the minority with bill increases. This is on top of the wider support available to help ease business pressures including discounted rate bills for small businesses and deferring tax payments.

Property Development: Floods

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homes have been (a) built, (b) built on flood plains, (c) built in areas of significant flood risk and (d) built against the advice of the Environment Agency on the flood risk in each region in the last 10 years. [303296]

Mr. Ian Austin: The number of homes built in each region, and approximate estimates of those built in areas of high flood risk in each region, for the past 10 years is given in the following table. Data are not available on the number of homes built against the advice of the Environment Agency.

Total dwelling completions and estimated dwellings built on Flood Risk Areas, 1999 to 2008

Regeneration: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what funding his Department has provided for (a) regeneration and (b) housing projects in the London borough of Bexley in each of the last five years; and how much such funding his Department plans to provide in 2010-11. [304997]

Rented Housing

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether he plans to introduce a general registration scheme for rented housing. [305569]

Mr. Ian Austin: We consulted over the summer on our response to the independent review of the private rented sector carried out by Julie Rugg and David Rhodes of the Centre for Housing Policy at the University of York. This included proposals for a national register of private landlords. We have been considering the consultation responses received and plan to publish the results shortly.

TREASURY

Bookmakers: Betting Shops

Mr. Caborn: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has made an estimate of the effect on Exchequer revenues of business transferring from licensed bookmakers to betting exchanges. [305286]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: No assessment has been made. Licensed bookmakers based in the UK pay 15 per cent. general betting duty on their profits. Betting exchanges based in the UK also pay 15 per cent. general betting duty on the commission they charge.

Departmental Written Questions

John Mason: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many questions tabled for answer on a named day his Department received in each of the last 12 months; and to how many such questions his Department provided a substantive answer on the day named. [305371]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: Treasury Ministers endeavour to answer written parliamentary questions promptly wherever possible. Of the 876 named day questions tabled to the Treasury in the 2008-09 parliamentary session, 672 (77 per cent.) were answered on the day nominated by questioners.

Excise Duties: Oil

Mark Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether he has made an assessment of the merits of amending the Hydrocarbon Oil (Registered Dealers in Controlled Oil) Regulations 2002 to exempt retailers who provide small amounts of loose controlled oil in customer-owned containers from the provisions of sections 23A(1) and (4) of the Hydrocarbon Oil Duties Act 1979. [304823]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: The Registered Dealers in Controlled Oil (RDCO) scheme was introduced in 2002, with an exemption for businesses supplying and receiving oil in pre-packaged containers not exceeding 20 litres. All other supplies of controlled oils were included in the RDCO scheme. The scope of this exemption was reviewed in a post-implementation review of the scheme in 2005, and the decision was taken not to extend it. We continue to review the scheme in order to minimise the administrative burdens on businesses.

Financial Services: Advisory Services

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what legal advice the Financial Services Authority (a) sought and (b) received on its proposals to require requalification by independent financial advisers; and if he will make a statement. [305117]

Sarah McCarthy-Fry: As the Financial Services Authority is independent of central Government, I have asked it to respond to the hon. Member directly. I also refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 5 November 2009, Official Report, column 1096W.

Property: Valuation

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the total rateable value of properties on the 2005 Rating List was in (a) 2007-08, (b) 2008-09 and (c) 2009-10; and what the total rateable value of properties is on the draft 2010 Rating List. [304888]

Ian Pearson: The total rateable values included in the 2005 Local Rating Lists England are as follows:

As at 1 April 2007 = £47,110 million

As at 1 April 2008 = £46,771 million

As at 29 May 2009 = £46,808 million

The total rateable value included in the draft 2010 Local Rating Lists England as at the 29 May 2009 was £55,871 million.

Taxation: Business

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many (a) small and medium-sized enterprises and (b) other enterprises which have made Time to Pay arrangements with HM Revenue and Customs to defer tax through the Business Payment Support Service HM Revenue and Customs forecasts will be unable to meet their tax liabilities in (i) January 2010, (ii) February 2010, (iii) March 2010, (iv) April 2010, (v) May 2010, (vi) June 2010, (vii) July 2010, (viii) August 2010 and (ix) September 2010; and if he will make a statement. [304409]

Mr. Timms: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) measures the Business Payment Support Service through the number and value of agreements reached, and not by the size of business.

No such forecasts have been made.

However, since the service was introduced on 24 November 2008, over 90 per cent. of the value of payments due have been paid. Where taxpayers do not meet the obligations of the Time to Pay agreement, HMRC takes appropriate recovery action to secure the tax due.

Welfare Tax Credits

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the annual additional revenue to the Exchequer that would arise from the removal of the payment of tax credits to households with incomes above £50,000. [303864]

Mr. Timms: The total annual tax credit entitlement for families earning more than £50,000 is estimated to be approximately £45 million.

This estimate is based on finalised incomes and circumstances of families benefiting from tax credits in 2007-08 which is the most recent year available. These statistics are available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/ctcw-tax-credit-final-may09.pdf

Household income has been calculated based on income used to calculate tax credit entitlement and will therefore disregard in-year income rises of less than £25,000.

The total annual tax credits entitlement of these families will differ slightly from the additional revenue to the Exchequer of excluding them from tax credits, because of effects on over- and under-payments. Analysis of these effects is available only at disproportionate cost.

Andrew Gwynne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the level of second income threshold for tax withdrawal required to reduce annual expenditure on tax credits by £400 million. [303878]

Mr. Timms: To reduce total annual tax credit expenditure by £400 million, it is estimated that the second income threshold would need to be reduced to around £31,000.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Attendance Allowance

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people resident in (a) Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency, (b) the Highlands, (c) Scotland and (d) England and Wales have received attendance allowance in each of the last five years. [304689]

Jonathan Shaw: The available information is in the tables.

| 2009 | 1,324,540 | 114,890 | 145,610 | 750 |

Notes:

1. Caseload totals show the number of people in receipt of an allowance and exclude people with entitlement where the payment has been suspended, for example, if they are in hospital.
2. Caseload figures are rounded to the nearest ten.
3. The Highlands region is defined as the local authority of the claimant. The postcode of a claimant is used to assign the parliamentary constituency, local authority and government office region. Local authorities are assigned by matching postcodes against the relevant postcode directory. "Unknown/Other" includes individuals whose postcode cannot be matched to a government office region and those temporarily living abroad.

Carers' Benefits

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether people who provide full-time care for a member of their family are eligible for income support. [304688]

Jonathan Shaw: Income support is available, subject to normal means-testing rules, to people who regularly and substantially care for a family member or any other person.

In order to be eligible for income support, the carer must either be receiving carer's allowance or be providing regular and substantial care to a person who receives, or is awaiting a decision on a claim for, attendance allowance or one of the two higher care components of disability living allowance.

In addition, income support is available to people who are looking after a member of the family who is temporarily ill and to people who are temporarily looking after a child out of necessity because that child's parent or guardian is either ill or absent from home.

Council Tax Benefits

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 31 March 2009, Official Report, column 1160W, on social security benefits, when she expects to have the relevant information for (a) each quarter in 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10 to date. [302357]

Jim Knight: We do not intend to publish claims processing and outstanding claims data for 2008-09. We are still working to quality assure claims processing data from 2009-10 onwards. We are currently unable to say when this will be complete.

Information on the number of outstanding claims is still to be looked at as part of the programme of data quality assurance, and at this stage there is no timetable for publishing that information.

Crisis Loans

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many and what proportion of social fund crisis loans were alignment payments in each quarter since 2007. [302241]

Helen Goodman: The available information is given in the table.

Alignment payment initial awards in Great Britain by quarter

Departmental Contracts

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what criteria her Department uses in determining the award of contracts; and how much her Department and its predecessors spent on the advertisement of tenders for Government contracts since 1997. [303096]

Jim Knight: The criteria the Department uses in determining the award of contracts is tailored specifically to individual contracts. Contracts are let through a fair and open competitive tendering process underpinned by EU principles of transparency, equal treatment, non-discrimination and proportionality. Contracts should deliver sustainable best practice commercial services and solutions that support the required departmental business outcomes, take account of current policies and provide best value for money.

Departmental spend on advertising contracts since 1997 is not collated centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Where appropriate, current contracts are advertised through the Official Journal of the European Union (OJEU) which is free of charge. Procurement teams will also consider advertising in external trade journals and other relevant publications if appropriate to individual contracts.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost was of maintaining her Department's website in the 2008-09 financial year; and what the forecast cost is of maintaining websites within her responsibility in the 2009-10 financial year. [302426]

Jim Knight: Ongoing delivery and maintenance of the Department's website is carried out by the Department's own in-house Digital Media team. It is not possible for us to extract and quantify internal staff costs, because in most cases, staff are engaged in more than one role. In addition, we are unable to establish accurately our annual running costs because they form part of a wider departmental IT contract.

We can provide a figure for 2008-09 development work, as we redeveloped the Department's website in that year. This is a one-off cost relating to that development only and is not an annual cost. This is £215,666.00.

The total forecast expenditure for Directgov in the 2009-10 financial year is £30,500,000. This is consistent with previously agreed financial figures and covers all aspects of Directgov business of which an aspect is website maintenance.

It is not possible to provide 2009-10 forecast costs for the remaining websites within the responsibility of the Department. We are working with Cabinet Office to implement a standardised method for quantifying website costs across Government in line with Central Office of Information guidelines. This is in response to a Public Accounts Committee recommendation. These costs will be available from April 2010 onwards as per the timetable.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the cost to her Department was of provision of that office facilities to (a) special advisers and (b) press officers in the 2008-09 financial year. [302961]

Jim Knight: DWP special advisers are based in London and the annual cost of providing serviced office accommodation was £38,220 in 2008-09.

The cost of providing serviced accommodation for DWP press office and support staff in London, the regions, Scotland and Wales, was £233,914 in 2008-09. DWP press office carried out work on behalf of the Department, Jobcentre Plus, the Pensions, Disability and Carers Service and the Child Support Agency (now Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission).

Disabled People: Social Security Benefits

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer to Lord Ashby of Stoke on 13 October 2009, Official Report, House of Lords, columns 112-13, on, disabled people: benefits, which benefits are included in the Government's definition of disability benefits. [300399]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer on 23 November 2009]: Attendance allowance and disability living allowance for those aged 65 and over.

Flexible Working: Wales

Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many parents of young children have exercised their right to request flexible working in (a) Newport East constituency and (b) Wales since the introduction of that right. [303499]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

The new employment rights introduced on April 2003 gave parents of children under six and disabled children under 18 the right to request flexible working. This was extended to carers in April 2007 and parents of children aged 16 and under in April 2009. The proportion of employees with children (under 16 years old) who have requested to work flexibly by region and nation in Great Britain are provided in the following table. These figures are from the Flexible Working Survey (2005). However information is not available for Newport East and due to a small sample size of respondents in Wales reliable information is only available for all employees' requests for flexible working, not those employees with children.

Later information comes from the Work Life Balance Survey (2006), which asked 2,081 employees in Great Britain whether they made a request in the last two years to change their working arrangements. Again, the relative small sample size representing Wales means reliable statistics are not available for parents of young children; however the survey found that 18 per cent. of all respondents in Wales requested flexible working, 17 per cent. for all of Great Britain.

Table 1: Requests to work flexibly over last two years, employees with children

Percentage

| | Employees with children (under 16) requests for flexible working | All employees |
|---|---|---|
| Great Britain | 19 | 14 |

| North West | [1] | 13 |
| Yorkshire and the Humber | 19 | 12 |

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when she plans to respond to the hon. Member of Billericay's letter of 2 November 2009 on Mr. D. Prance. [304708]

Angela Eagle: A reply was sent to the hon. Member on 7 December.

Retirement

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if she will make it her policy to ensure that employers are required to give reasons for requiring a person to retire. [302463]

Mr. McFadden: I have been asked to reply.

The Employment Equality (Age) Regulations 2006 provide for a statutory retirement procedure which includes an employee's right to request to stay in employment beyond retirement age and a default retirement age of 65 that employers can use if they wish. The Government fixed the default retirement age at 65 for sound policy reasons and the High Court has confirmed that it is objectively justified. There is therefore no requirement for employers to give a reason why they are retiring someone if using the default retirement age.

We have brought forward the planned review of the default retirement age from 2011 to 2010. The review will consider whether the default retirement age remains appropriate and necessary.

Social Security Benefits: Elderly

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which disability benefits are included in the figure of £6.1 billion quoted on page 101 of the Green Paper on "Shaping the Future of Care Together", for expenditure on the disability benefits specifically targeted at older people; and what estimate was made of the amount spent on each benefit. [300517]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 23 November 2009]: The £6.1 billion quoted on page 101 of "Shaping the Future of Care Together", refers to the amount of attendance allowance and disability living allowance paid in 2007-08 to those aged 65 and over in England. The expenditure was estimated at £3.5 and £2.6 billion respectively.

Social Security Benefits: Greater Manchester

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what the budget is for the Work for Your Benefits pilots in (a) Manchester and (b) Norfolk; [302401]

(2) what the timetable is for the Work for Your Benefits pilots in (a) Manchester and (b) Norfolk; and what evaluation process will take place during and after the pilots. [302402]

Jim Knight: There are two pilot areas, both of which cover multiple Jobcentre Plus Districts. The overall budget for the Work for Your Benefit programme is as follows:

(a) Greater Manchester Central and Greater Manchester East and West: £9.34 million

(b) Cambridgeshire and Suffolk; and Norfolk: £5.66 million

Both Work for Your Benefit pilots will start delivery in November 2010 and will run for two years. There will be a full and independent evaluation of the pilots which will begin in 2010. Findings will be available throughout the lifetime of the pilots with early results available from autumn 2011. A final report will be published in 2013-14.

Social Security Benefits: Pilot Schemes

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when she expects the Work for Your Benefits scheme to be rolled out nationally; and if she will make a statement. [302403]

Jim Knight: The Work for Your Benefit pilots are not yet operational and it would be premature to pre-judge the results of the evaluation. As such there are no current plans to roll the programme out nationally.

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions which employers have agreed to participate in Work for Your Benefits pilots to date. [302430]

Jim Knight: The Work for Your Benefit programme will be delivered through private, voluntary or public sector contractors. It will be for individual providers to source work experience placements with a variety of host organisations once contracts have been awarded. Procurement for these contracts is under way with contract award expected in the summer of 2010 with the pilots due to be launched in November 2010.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Animal Welfare

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 11 November 2009, Official Report, column 416W, on animal welfare, whether the guidance relating to named veterinary surgeons takes account of circumstances in which such a veterinary surgeon is a shareholder in a company owning a scientific procedures establishment. [304697]

Meg Hillier: Paragraphs 3.17 to 3.19 of the Guidance on the Operation of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 (HC321) dealing with conflicts of interest do not make specific reference to circumstances in which an individual is a shareholder in a company owning a scientific procedures establishment in which they are the named veterinary surgeon. However, all relevant circumstances will be taken into account when considering any suggestion that a potential conflict of interest exists.

Asylum

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many asylum seekers who declared their age to be (a) 17, (b) 12 to 16, (c) five to 11 and (d) under five years old have been the subject of age disputes in each of the last 12 years. [302082]

Alan Johnson: The requested information is not collated and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost through the examination of individual case records.

Criminal Records Bureau: Finance

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much funding his Department has allocated for (a) the Criminal Records Bureau and (b) the Independent Safeguarding Authority for (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2010-11. [305364]

Meg Hillier: The Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) is a self-funding agency.

However, for the implementation of the Vetting and Barring scheme the budget allocation to the CRB is (i) 7.33 million for 2009-10 and (ii) 4.3 million for 2010-11.

The funding for set up of the Vetting and Barring Scheme, including the costs associated with the Independent Safeguarding Authority (ISA), are provided by the Department of Children Schools and Families (DCSF) and the Department of Health (DH).

The funding allocated to the ISA is (i) £15.5 million for 2009-10 and (ii) £13.1 million currently for 2010-11.

Deportation: Palestinians

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people who have given their nationality as Palestinian have been deported to each country in each year since 1997. [303036]

Alan Johnson: The following table shows the number of removals and voluntary departures by destination for nationals of the Occupied Palestinian Territories between 2004 and 2008. Destination data prior to 2004 are not available.

Published statistics on immigration and asylum are available from the Library of the House and from the Home Office Research, Development and Statistics Directorate web site at:

Entry Clearances

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information his Department holds on the reasons given by overseas embassies in the UK for refusing to provide passports to their nationals who are legitimately in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [305191]

Meg Hillier: The Home Office holds no information on the reasons given by overseas embassies in the UK for refusing to provide passports to their nationals who are legitimately in the UK. The decision of whether or not to issue an identity document is a matter for the sovereign government in question.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office are responsible for certain administrative aspects of our relationship with foreign missions in the UK.

Extradition

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been (a) sent (i) from the UK to another EU member state and (ii) to the UK from another EU member state under the European arrest warrant, (b) extradited to the US under the UK/US extradition treaty and (c) extradited to the UK under the UK/US extradition treaty; and if he will make a statement. [304114]

Meg Hillier: (a) (i) The Serious Organised Crime Agency and the Crown Office and Procurator Fiscal Service are the designated authorities for the receipt and transmission of European arrest warrants (EAWs) in the UK. The number of EAW surrenders from the UK (excluding Scotland) to other EU member states from 1 January 2004-31 December 2008 is as follows:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| 2004 | 24 |
| 2005 | 77 |
| 2006 | 151 |
| 2007 | 332 |
| 2008 | 515 |

(ii) The number of surrenders to the UK from other member states under the EAW procedure between 1 January 2004 and 31 December 2008 is as follows:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| 2004 | 19 |
| 2005 | 63 |
| 2006 | 76 |
| 2007 | 99 |
| 2008 | 96 |

(b) In the same period, 68 people have been extradited to the US from the UK (excluding Scotland); and 34 people have been extradited in the other direction. The new UK-US extradition treaty came into force on 26 April 2007. The figures given in this reply cover extraditions made under the new and old bilateral arrangements.

Government Communications

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether his Department's Research, Information and Communications Unit is affiliated to the Government Communication Network. [305153]

Mr. Hanson: The Research, Information and Communications Unit (RICU) is not affiliated to the Government Communication Network (GCN), but a number of staff working within RICU have been recruited through and are members of the GCN.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he intends to reply to the letter of 5 October 2009 from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton with regard to Mrs. Bashir Begum. [303413]

Alan Johnson: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 2 December 2009.

Alan Johnson: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 30 November 2009.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he plans to reply to the letter of 5 October 2009 from the right hon. Member for Manchester Gorton on Mrs Bashir Begum. [305116]

Alan Johnson: I wrote to my right hon. Friend on 2 December 2009.

Passports: Fees and Charges

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 12 November 2009, Official Report, column 957W, on passports, what fee will be charged for an application for a fingerprint biometric passport; and whether holders of existing passports will be required to obtain a fingerprint biometric passport. [303640]

Alan Johnson: The level of fees that will apply in the future when fingerprint biometric passports are introduced has not been set and will depend on the future fee strategy for passports and identity cards. However, the current standard fee for an adult passport is £77.50 and £30.00 for an identity card. Once fingerprint biometric passports are introduced, anyone applying for a passport, whether as a first time applicant or as an existing passport holder, would have the choice of being issued with a fingerprint biometric passport or a fingerprint biometric identity card or both documents.

Police: Hunting

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate he has made of the amount of police time spent on the policing of hunting and related activities in each year since 2000. [301639]

Mr. Hanson: The deployment of resources to investigate alleged offences committed under the Hunting Act 2004 is a matter for individual chief officers.

Police: Public Appointments

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Chief Executive of the National Policing Improvement Agency was appointed; by whom he was appointed; whether he is eligible to receive a bonus; and if he will make a statement. [304012]

Mr. Hanson: Chief Constable Peter Neyroud was appointed as Chief Executive Officer (CEO) Designate of the National Policing Improvement Agency (NPIA) by the Minister of State for Policing in January 2006. He was appointed CEO upon the creation of the NPIA on 1 April 2007 by the Minister of State for Policing in consultation with the Association of Chief Police Officers and the Association of Police Authorities, as required by the Police and Justice Act 2006.

The CEO is eligible to receive a performance-related bonus at the discretion of the NPIA board. The board recommended that the CEO be awarded a bonus for the year 2008-09, but this was declined by the CEO.

Radicalism: Civil Servants

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many civil servants have been investigated for possible links to violent extremism in each year since 2001. [305347]

Mr. Hanson [holding answer 8 December 2009]: This information is not held centrally and could only be obtained at disproportionate cost.

Wickham Research Laboratories

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when he plans to announce who has been chosen to conduct the special investigation of animal testing at Wickham Laboratories; and when he expects this investigation to be completed. [305000]

Meg Hillier [holding answer 8 December 2009]: The review will be led by a superintending inspector from the Home Office Animals (Scientific Procedures) Inspectorate who will be assisted by two independent experts. I anticipate that the review will be completed early in 2010.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Carbon Emissions

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the latest estimate is of UK net carbon dioxide emissions in 2008 (a) with and (b) without the inclusion of carbon trading. [303528]

Joan Ruddock: Provisional estimates of 2008 emissions were published on 26 March 2009. These figures estimate that:

UK emissions for carbon dioxide were 531.8 million tonnes carbon dioxide equivalent ($MtCO_2e$) including for the effect of the EU Emissions Trading System, UK carbon dioxide emissions in 2008 were estimated to be 511.4 $MtCO_2e$

The equivalent figures for all greenhouse gases are as follows:

excluding the EU Emissions Trading System = 623.8 $MtCO_2e$ including the EU Emissions Trading System = 603.4 $MtCO_2e$

The most recent final figures are for estimates of 2007 emissions. These were published on 3 February 2009. Estimates for only carbon dioxide emissions are:

excluding EU Emissions Trading System = 542.6 $MtCO_2e$

including EU Emissions Trading System = 516.9 $MtCO_2e$

It may be helpful to know emissions of all greenhouse gases. Again these are final 2007 figures:

excluding EU Emissions Trading System = 636.6 $MtCO_2e$

including EU Emissions Trading System = 611.0 $MtCO_2e$

Departmental Information Officers

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many full-time equivalent press officers (a) are employed by and (b) work for his Department. [303597]

Joan Ruddock: There are nine full-time equivalent press officers who are employed and work for DECC. These include:

One Head of News (SCS)

Two Chief Press Officers (G7)

Three Senior Press Officers (SIO)

Three Press Officers (IO)

Departmental Internet

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the cost was of maintaining his Department's website in the 2008-09 financial year; and what the forecast cost is of maintaining websites within his responsibility in the 2009-10 financial year. [302415]

Joan Ruddock: The Department of Energy and Climate Change was created on 3 October 2008, and its official corporate website was launched on 23 February 2009:

http://www.decc.gov.uk/

The cost of developing and maintaining the Department of Energy and Climate Change's website in the 2008-09 financial year was: £58,874.00

The forecast costs of maintaining websites within the Secretary of State's responsibility in the 2009-10 financial year are: £883,726.

This includes the forecast costs for the Department's corporate site:

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what proportion of jobs advertised by his Department in the last 12 months were online-only applications; and what provision his Department makes for those wishing to apply for jobs in his Department who do not have access to the internet. [301549]

Joan Ruddock: In the past 12 months, the Department did not externally advertise any roles on an online-only basis.

Applicants without access to the internet can telephone to request a hard copy of an application pack.

Departmental Research

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the safety of (i) emissions from and (ii) ash by-products of energy from waste incinerators in the last 10 years. [303976]

Dan Norris: I have been asked to reply.

DEFRA is continually evaluating research relevant to energy from waste as our departmental priority is to secure a healthy environment in which we and future generations can prosper. In particular over the last ten years, we have commissioned and evaluated the following research:

Emissions (i) "Emissions from waste management: framework for assessment of data quality and research needs"; the project is still underway.

Emissions and ash by-products (i) and (ii) 'Review of Environmental and Health Effects of Waste Management: Municipal Solid Waste and Similar Wastes'; published in 2004.

In May 2002 the Environment Agency produced its own report on solid residues from municipal incineration. It has not commissioned outside bodies to carry out research in this area. It evaluates reports that come to light in order to keep abreast of developments but does not maintain a list of these.

The Health Protection Agency (HPA) has commissioned no research in this area in the last ten years but recently reviewed the latest research on the health effects of modern municipal waste incinerators. It concludes that while it is not possible to rule out adverse health effects completely, any potential damage from modern, well-run and regulated incinerators is likely to be so small that it would be undetectable. Moreover, it recommends that since any possible health effects of emissions are likely to be very small, studies of public health around modern, well managed municipal waste incinerators are not recommended. A statement can be found on the HPA's website.

Electricity: Pensions

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the Government Actuary's Department's recent report on the stewardship of electricity sector pension schemes; and what consideration he has given to bringing forward measures to enable Ofgem to regulate in this area. [302557]

Mr. Kidney: The Government Actuary's Department's report was commissioned by Ofgem as part of its review of compliance with its price control pension principles. The report fed in to Ofgem's fifth distribution price control review, the final decision on which was published on 7 December 2009:

http://www.ofgem.gov.uk/Pages/MoreInformation.aspx?docid=346&refer=rNetworks/ElecDist/PriceCntrls/DPCR5

We have no plans to bring forward measures to change Ofgem's role regarding pensions.

Energy: Housing

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what expenditure his Department expects to incur on the Pay as You Save pilots in (a) 2009-10, (b) 2010-11 and (c) subsequent years. [303512]

Joan Ruddock: The Home Energy PAYS pilots have a budget of £4 million in total: £2 million in 2009-10 and £2 million in 2010-11. The pilots end in April 2011 and therefore there is no budget in subsequent years. The administration costs of the pilot are being covered by our delivery partners, and they will cover these costs for the duration of the PAYS arrangements.

Energy: Prices

Mr. Russell Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change (1) what recent representations he has made to Ofgem on the fifth Distribution Price Control Review; and if he will make a statement; [302555]

(2) with reference to the fifth Distribution Price Control Review, what assessment he has made of the effect a settlement below that requested by the distribution network operators would have on the level of economic growth; [302556]

(3) with reference to the fifth Distribution Price Control Review, what assessment he has made of the effect a settlement below that requested by the distribution network operators would have on the connection of new onshore renewables to the National Grid and the achievement of climate change targets; [302558]

(4) with reference to the fifth Distribution Price Control Review, what assessment he has made of the effect a settlement below that requested by the distribution network operators would have on (a) maintaining secure energy supplies and (b) the standard of customer service, particularly in rural areas; [302563]

(5) with reference to the fifth Distribution Price Control Review, what estimate he has made of the effect a settlement below that requested by the distribution network operators would have on the number of highly skilled jobs. [302564]

Mr. Kidney: Ministers and officials meet with Ofgem representatives and distribution network operators representatives regularly to discuss a wide range of issues, including the fifth Distribution Price Control Review (DPCR5).

As economic regulator of the electricity industry, it falls to Ofgem to administer the distribution price control regime. Ofgem published its final decision on DPCR5 on 7 December, after a period of consultation with DNOs and other interested parties.

The price control regime ensures DNOs can, through efficient operation, earn a fair return after capital and operating costs while limiting costs passed on to customers. DNOs can reject a price control, in which case it will be considered by the Competition Commission.

National Nuclear Policy Statement

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the cost has been of each regional hearing organised by his Department since publication of the National Nuclear Policy Statement on 9 November 2009 inviting residents to have their say on proposals to build a new nuclear power station in their area; how many departmental officials attended each meeting; how many incurred overnight stays in each case, and at what cost; and whether provision has been made to defray the costs of interested parties in travelling and staying overnight to enable attendance at such meetings. [304415]

Mr. Kidney: The Planning Act 2008 requires the Government to consult the public and stakeholders on the draft National Policy Statements (NPSs) before they can be designated. The consultation is ongoing and therefore we do not yet have detailed costs associated with each event. We estimate that, on average, each of the 10 events, including design, strategic planning, production, marketing, staffing and transport, will cost in the region of about £60,000. Between four and seven DECC staff attend each event over the course of each three-day exhibition (open from 8 am to 8 pm) and public meeting. Accommodation and subsistence costs are not finalised at this early stage in the consultation and we would expect that these will vary depending on the location. However, we would expect all these costs to be within civil service guidelines, with hotels costing around £60 per person per night for example.

The primary target audience of the Nuclear NPS events is the local community, therefore we would not expect members of the public to incur accommodation costs and only limited travel costs to attend the events. Venues were chosen to be as close to the proposed nuclear power station site. We took into account a number of principles which helped us in choosing the exhibition location . These included:

Journey time to proposed site

Historic evidence of attendance levels to similar consultations

Existence of multiple proposed sites in one area

A wide range of venues were considered for each location. Suggested venues have been recommended by local authorities and energy companies (who have undertaken similar events in the past) and we have endeavoured to use as many of these recommendations as possible. The priority was finding the largest possible venues, nearest to the site.

Renewable Energy: Fuel Oil

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the extent to which greater use of recovered fuel oil for incineration by industry could reduce the use of fossil fuels. [304301]

Dan Norris: I have been asked to reply.

Waste Strategy 2007 recognises that recovered fuel oil (RFO), which is part-processed waste oil, may be used as a fuel substitute, and the energy in the RFO recovered. This can lead to a reduction in reliance on fossil fuels. Under the revised Waste Framework Directive the recovery of energy from waste is placed fourth in the waste hierarchy, which shall apply as a priority order, and above waste disposal which includes incineration without energy recovery. The regeneration of waste oil into base oil by re-refining is classed as recycling and is placed third in the waste hierarchy.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children: Day Care

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many childcare places have been created in (a) England, (b) the North East and (c) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each year since 1997. [301932]

Dawn Primarolo: Information on the number of child care places available in England and the North East from 1997 to 2009 is shown in the following table. Information is not available below local authority level.

Table 1: Number[1] of childcare places[2] for children under eight years of age: position at 31 March each year, 1997 to 2009

| 1998 | 1,326,100 | [3] |
| 1999 | 1,480,400 | 68,300 |

Table 1: Number[1] of childcare places[2] for children under eight years of age: position at 31 March each year, 1997 to 2009

| 2009 | 1,346,100 | 54,100 |

[1] Figures have been rounded to the nearest 100.

[2] 1997-2001 Data Source: Children's Daycare Facilities Survey—total includes day nurseries, playgroups and pre-schools, childminders, out of school clubs, and holiday schemes.
2003-08 Data Source: Ofsted—total includes full day care, sessional day care, childminders, out of school clubs, and creche day care.
2009 Data Source: Ofsted—total includes childminders, childcare on non-domestic premises, childcare on domestic premises and home child carer.

[4] Data not collected due to transfer of responsibility from LAs to Ofsted.

[5] Accurate local authority level information is not available.

Local authorities were responsible for the registration and inspection of children's day care facilities from 1997 to 2001. Responsibility transferred to Ofsted from 2003 and correspondingly, the categories of childcare changed from day nurseries, playgroups and pre-schools, childminders, out of school clubs and holiday schemes to full and sessional day care, childminders, out of school clubs, and crèche day care. Therefore, data from 2003 are not directly comparable with data prior to 2002.

Data were not collected for 2002 during the transfer of responsibility to Ofsted. Due to changes in legislation Ofsted have changed the way they publish statistics on registered childcare providers and places. From 1 September 2008, Ofsted started to record providers in line with new legal requirements using the categories of childminders, childcare on domestic premises, and childcare on non-domestic premises. This change means that the total numbers of providers and places (excluding childminding) shown in its returns up to and including August 2008 and from December 2008 onwards (the last under the old system, and the first under the new system) are not directly comparable.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many registered childminders there were in each local authority area in the South East in each quarter of each year since 2003. [304283]

Dawn Primarolo: For information on the number of registered childminders in each local authority in each quarter of each year from March 2003 to March 2009, I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 10 June 2009, Official Report, column 912W.

Information from June 2009 is included in the following table.

Number[1] of registered childminders in each local authority in the south-east: Position as at each quarter, 2009

Children: Social Services

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will amend the Integrated Children's System to enable a pre-birth plan to be changed after birth. [300304]

Dawn Primarolo: Statutory guidance contained in 'Working Together to Safeguard Children' sets out the processes for managing individual cases when there are concerns about the welfare of a child, including of an unborn child. It also sets out the minimum time periods for reviewing a plan. The local authority should record the plan electronically in its IT system, known as the Integrated Children's System, and update the plan as appropriate following a review. The same processes apply when there are concerns about an unborn child: any pre-birth plan will need to be reviewed following the baby's birth. When a new plan has been developed, the previous plan should be archived in order to provide an audit trail of the reasons for changes agreed at each stage of the decision making process.

Departmental Finance

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the Home Department's together we can end violence against women and girls strategy, how much his Department plans to spend on family intervention projects in (a) 2009-10, (b) 2010-11 and (c) each of the subsequent three years; and from what budget such expenditure will be drawn. [305311]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government allocated £35.5 million for family intervention projects in 2009-10 and are planning to allocate £57 million Government funding in 2010-11. Expenditure is being drawn from the Department for Children, Schools and Families, Home Office, Ministry of Justice, Communities and Local Government and Department of Health budgets. In addition there is anticipated match funding of £9.5 million from registered social landlords, housing associations and youth offending teams.

Departmental budgets, and therefore the funding for family intervention projects, have yet to be determined beyond March 2011. Decisions will be made following spending review discussions once the Department's settlement is agreed.

Secondary Education: Gifted Children

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of secondary school pupils are participating in the young, gifted and talented programme in each local authority area. [303732]

Ms Diana R. Johnson: The Department does not collect data about participation in gifted and talented programmes. Through the School Census schools are asked to confirm the number of gifted and talented pupils they have identified. The following table shows the number and percentage of children identified as gifted and talented by LA for each Government office region in the January 2009 census.

Maintained primary and state-funded secondary schools[1, 2], number of pupils who are gifted and talented[3] as at January 2009 In England by local authority and Government office region

Youth Opportunity Fund: Youth Capital Fund

Dr. Blackman-Woods: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many young people received funding from the Youth Opportunity Fund and Youth Capital Fund in the latest period for which figures are available. [304991]

Dawn Primarolo: In 2008-09 (the latest period for which figures are available) a total of 905,227 young people were either involved in or benefited from use of the Youth Opportunity and Youth Capital Funds, with 14,163 grants approved during that period. These latest figures mean that almost 2.5 million young people have been involved in or benefited from these Funds in the first three years of operation.

JUSTICE

Advisory Panel on Judicial Diversity

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people worked for the Advisory Panel on Judicial Diversity in each of the last three years. [304319]

Mr. Straw: The independent Advisory Panel on Judicial Diversity, chaired by Baroness Neuberger, did not exist before April 2009 and is now due to produce its report and conclude its work in early 2010. Therefore, the panel will only be operational for less than a calendar year.

The Advisory Panel on Judicial Diversity has no separate support. It is being supported by officials from within the Constitution and Judiciary Division of the Ministry of Justice, within existing budgets. None of the officials work full-time for or on the advisory panel, but seven spend significant time on it.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much the Advisory Panel on Judicial Diversity cost in each of the last three years. [304320]

Mr. Straw: The independent Advisory Panel on Judicial Diversity, chaired by Baroness Neuberger, did not exist before April 2009 and is now due to produce its report and conclude its work in early 2010. Therefore, the panel will only be operational for less than a calendar year and so will not have ongoing annual running costs.

The costs of the panel, from April 2009 to the end of October, were £20,975, excluding secretariat staff costs.

Crimes of Violence: Sentencing

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what sentencing guidance is provided to courts on crimes of violence with a homophobic motive. [304761]

Claire Ward: The Criminal Justice Act (CJA) 2003 (section 146) applies to cases where immediately before or during the offence the offender demonstrated hostility towards the victim based upon sexual orientation or disability, or to cases where the offence is motivated by hostility towards persons who are of a particular sexual orientation or who have a disability. Courts must treat those circumstances as an aggravating factor, and sentencers must state in open court that the offence was so aggravated.

It is the responsibility of the independent Sentencing Guidelines Council to issue guidelines to the courts. The council's guideline on seriousness draws the courts' attention to the statutory provision for aggravation in such circumstances.

Driving Offences

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people (a) were convicted and (b) served a custodial sentence for drink-driving offences in each police authority area in (i) 2008 and (ii) 2009. [304785]

Claire Ward: Court proceedings data are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

EU Law

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what (a) statutory instruments and (b) other regulations his Department has brought forward to meet obligations arising from EU law in this Parliament. [304182]

Mr. Wills: The Statutory Instruments Registrar has maintained central records of statutory instruments made under specific powers, including those in the European Communities Act 1972, since 2001. There is no central record of which statutory instruments were made using other powers in order to meet obligations arising from EU law, and it would be disproportionately costly to create such a record now. There is also no central record of "other regulations". Since 2001, the Ministry of Justice and its predecessor departments (the Lord Chancellor's Department and the Department for Constitutional Affairs) have been responsible for 17 statutory instruments made using the powers in the European Communities Act 1972. A list of those instruments is as follows:

Freedom of Information: Academies

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he plans to bring forward proposals to apply to academy schools the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. [305408]

Mr. Wills: On 16 July 2009, the Government published the response to its consultation on extending the Freedom of Information Act by means of a section 5 order. Academy schools were one of four bodies proposed for inclusion in this first section 5 order. These bodies are currently being consulted about their possible inclusion in a section 5 order and their responses will be taken into account in reaching a final decision on whether to designate them as public authorities under the Act.

Subject to the outcome of this consultation, the Government aim to bring forward a section 5 order early in the 2009-10 session.

Hunting Act 2004: Prosecutions

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions there have been at courts in Kent for offences under the Hunting Act 2004 in each year since the Act came into force. [304862]

Claire Ward: The Hunting Act 2004 came into force on 18 February 2005. For the period up to the end of 2007 (latest available) no prosecutions under the Act had been reported for the purposes of the Court Proceedings Database now held by the Ministry of Justice.

Data for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions there were for offences under the Hunting Act 2004 in (a) 2008 and (b) 2009 to date. [304574]

Mr. Straw: Court proceedings data for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

Legal Aid

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how much his Department received from each other Government Department from the legal aid impact test in each year since 1999; [304499]

(2) what proportion of money received from other Government Departments as a consequence of the legal aid impact test in the last 10 years has been allocated to the legal aid fund. [304500]

Bridget Prentice: Funding received from other Government Departments for legal aid since 2005-06, when the legal aid impact test was introduced, is shown in the following table.

All the funding received was allocated to the legal aid fund.

Transfers from other Government Department

| | | £000 |

Ms Buck: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what assessment has been made of the efficacy of the legal aid impact test; [304501]

(2) what guidance his Department provides to other Departments on completing the legal aid impact test; and what models and analysis are used to assess the impact of proposed legislation on the legal aid budget; [304502]

(3) what research his Department has conducted into the effectiveness of the legal aid impact test. [304503]

Bridget Prentice: The legal aid and judicial impact test (LAJIT) was introduced in 2005 to formalise the arrangements under which Departments responsible for policy change had an obligation to meet the downstream costs falling to other agencies. The purpose of the LAJIT is to ensure that policy makers are aware of the potential impact that their proposals could have on legal aid and the courts so that resources can be better managed and, where appropriate, funding secured from other Government Departments. The Better Regulation Executive (BRE) has oversight of the overall Impact Assessment process across Government, and owns the relevant templates and guidance. Its guidance toolkit includes specific guidance for policy makers in Departments on the LAJIT.

The models and analysis used to assess the impact of proposed policy changes on the legal aid budget include identifying instances where legal aid could potentially be required and applying suitable unit costs. These estimates are agreed between the MoJ and the Department introducing the policy.

No formal research or assessment of the legal aid impact test has been carried out. The BRE is, however, revising the impact assessment template, toolkit and guidance in order to promote the continued improvement of impact assessments. This work is due for completion in the first half of 2010. As part of that project, Ministry of Justice officials are working with BRE to review the legal aid impact test.

Legal Profession: Females

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent progress has been made on increasing the level of access of women to senior positions in the legal profession. [305002]

Bridget Prentice: The legal professions have attracted significant criticism over the years for not representing the diverse society in which we live. However, this criticism has put diversity at the top of the agenda for the professions and their response has been encouraging.

In 1998 women accounted for 53.6 per cent. of traineeships registered with the Law Society. This increased steadily to 63.4 per cent. in 2007-08. Therefore the focus of the debate has in many ways shifted towards ensuring that diversity is maintained at all levels within the professions and that progression is not in any way linked to an individual's gender.

In 1998 women made up 17 per cent. of partners at law firms in England and Wales, compared to 24 per cent. in 2008. In 1998 less than 6.5 per cent. of all Queen's Counsellors were female; a decade later this figure was 10 per cent. In addition to this progression in law it is important to remember that according to the Association of Women's Solicitors (AWS), women are more successful when working in-house in the legal departments of industrial and commercial companies; for example, women head the legal teams at BT, Serco and the London Development Agency.

A variety of programmes has been initiated in order to improve further women's career progression in the legal professions. Some 11 per cent. of judges and recorders in 1999 were female; today this figure is 19.4 per cent. The Ministry of Justice is devoting considerable effort and resources to continue to improve diversity in the judiciary. In April 2009 the Lord Chancellor established an independent Advisory Panel on Judicial Diversity, to identify the barriers to progress on judicial diversity and make recommendations on how to make speedier and sustained progress to a more diverse judiciary at every level. The panel is expected to build upon the work that is already under way in this area, and to draw on lessons learned from current initiatives, including the Judicial Appointments Commission's Judicial Diversity Forum and the follow-up work from the Lord Chief Justice's conference on "A Judiciary for the 21st century".

In the private sector, the Association of Women's Solicitors, alongside major City law firms such as Lovells, have undertaken research which identifies that key barriers for women are that they do not have role models or are not self-promoting enough. Accordingly they are running 'soft skill' programmes to encourage women to acknowledge their own success more, and for 20 years AWS have run a mentoring scheme so that new entries into the profession can be paired with more experienced female lawyers in order to pass on experience and contacts. AWS is also at the centre of encouraging law firms to adapt flexible working, so that mothers can still have a legal career alongside their family lives.

Some 60 per cent. of new solicitors are now female. It may take up to a decade for these new lawyers to become partners in big city firms, and we look forward to more diversity at all levels of the legal profession in the future thanks to the progress we are making now.

Legal Services Commission: North West

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which organisations in the north-west procurement area received funds from the Legal Services Commission in (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08 and (c) 2008-09; and for each such organisation how many (i) asylum and (ii) non-asylum immigration cases they had in which Legal Services Commission funding started in each of those years. [304225]

Bridget Prentice: The information in Table 1 shows active legal aid providers in the north-west procurement area for financial years 2006-07, 2007/08 and 2008-09 and whether they delivered immigration and/or asylum work. Table 2 shows immigration and asylum cases started.

Notes:

1. To protect commercial interests of the providers involved, the table has been anonymised and is not reflective of the order in Table 1.
2. NMS figures are the number of new matters reported at the end of the relevant financial year.
3. Some firms reported zero NMS though they held a contract in these categories of law.

Monarchy: Succession

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what advice he has received on the compatibility with the provisions of the Human Rights Act 1998 of (a) the rights of illegitimates in succession to the Crown and (b) the UK's interpretative declaration in respect of Articles 9 and 10 of the European Convention on the Legal Status of Children born out of Wedlock. [304268]

Mr. Wills: The Human Rights Act 1998 does not require the UK to change the law so as to admit illegitimate children to the line of succession to the Crown. The UK's interpretative declaration in respect of Articles 9 and 10 of the European Convention on the Legal Status of Children Born out of Wedlock is compatible with the Act.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what advice was given to Ministers on the effect of the Human Rights Act 1998 on the rights of illegitimates in succession to the Crown (a) prior to and (b) during the passage of the legislation through Parliament. [304269]

Mr. Wills: This information is not readily accessible and if it exists could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Government has taken in respect of the UK's interpretative declaration in respect of Articles 9 and 10 of the European Convention on the Legal Status of Children born out of Wedlock in order to secure the conformity in UK law required by Article 1 of the Convention. [304270]

Mr. Wills: UK law already conforms with the provisions of the Convention and therefore no such steps are necessary. The declaration simply confirms our understanding of the effect of Articles 9 and 10 of the Convention.

Offenders: Rehabilitation

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners in each prison establishment participated in each type of offender behaviour programme in the latest 12 months for which figures are available. [303933]

Mr. Straw: The tables set out the number of starts by prisoners in 2008-09 for each type of accredited offending behaviour programme by prison. The figures have been drawn from administrative data systems and although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large-scale recording system.

Office of Public Sector Information: Marketing

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice with reference to the answer of 14 September 2009, Official Report, column 2153W, on third sector, which Minister took the decision to rebrand Her Majesty's Stationery Office to the Office of Public Sector Information; and whether Her Majesty was consulted. [305061]

Mr. Wills: Her Majesty's Stationery Office (HMSO) was not re-branded the Office of Public Sector Information (OPSI) and continues to exist and fulfil its core activities, including responsibility for the publication of legislation and the management of Crown copyright operating from within The National Archives. In 2005, OPSI was created as a result of implementing the Re-Use of Public Sector Information Regulations 2005 (S.I. 2005 No. 1515). The decision to create OPSI was taken by the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster as the Minister responsible for the Cabinet Office. Activities relating to these regulations are undertaken under the OPSI name. OPSI merged with The National Archives in 2006. The National Archives is an executive agency of the Ministry of Justice, for which I have responsibility. Her Majesty was consulted on these changes when they took place.

Pathogens Access Appeals Commission

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what remuneration the chair of the Pathogens Access Appeals Commission receives; [304314]

(2) how many people worked for the Pathogens Access Appeals Commission in each of the last three years; [304315]

(3) how much the Pathogens Access Appeals Commission cost in each of the last three years. [304316]

Mr. Straw: The fee for the Chair of the Pathogens Access Appeals Commission (PAAC) is £894 per day. There has been no remuneration to the Chair, as no appeals have been submitted to the PAAC. Any appeals received would be administered by staff from existing tribunals. The Department has incurred no direct costs.

Prison Accommodation

Clare Short: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the (a) operating costs and (b) figures for (i) funding, (ii) operational capacity and (iii) certified nominal accommodation were for each prison in 2008-09; and what the average (A) cost of a prisoner place and (B) prison population was in 2008-09. [303926]

Maria Eagle: The net establishment level operating costs and figures for funding, operational capacity and certified normal accommodation for each public sector prison in 2008-09 are shown in the following tables.

The average establishment level direct cost of a prisoner place in 2008-09 was £30,328.

The average prison population in 2008-09 was 82,830.

The cost figures provided are net resource expenditure met and recorded locally against each prison. They do not include net expenditure met at regional or national level against central budgets.

Private prisons are operated through contracts between the contractors and NOMS, as a result operating costs are included in the table but not budgets.

Expenditure met by other Government Departments (e.g. education and health) is not included in the figures.

Notes

1 Displayed figures are subject to rounding.

2 Establishments are categorised in these tables by their main role as at the end of 2008-09 for all periods reported. Establishments that have more than one role have been placed in the category that represents the primary or dominant function of the prison. For this reason, performance of prisons within a category cannot necessarily be compared on a like for like basis.

3 YOI refers to Young Offender Institutions.

4 Data for Elmley, Standford Hill and Swaleside, is reported under the Sheppey cluster. Similarly data for Blakenhurst, Brockhill and Hewell Grange is reported together as a cluster (as Hewell Grange)

Data for Parkhurst, Camphill and Albany is now reported under the Isle of Wight cluster.

5 Cookham Wood changed from a Female closed prison to a Male juvenile prison in October 2007. Data for 2008-09 is now shown under the category Male Juvenile.

6. Dover and Haslar are Immigration Detention Centres (IDC) operating under Detention Centre Rules 2001. Lindholme includes Lindholme IDC. It is a split site, part Category C Training Prison and part Immigration Detention Centre.

7. The following expenditure is not included: a one-off impairment charge of £496 million following revaluation of land and buildings; Operation Safeguard (use of Police Cells); cost of capital on assets in the course of construction, expenditure at HMPS Bure as it had not yet opened.

Prisoners: Training

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what percentage of the prison population undertakes employment-related activities; whether he has made a recent estimate of the annual average number of hours spent by prisoners on such activities; and what recent assessment he has made of the merits of such activities. [305409]

Maria Eagle: In 2008-09 an average of 13.36 hours per prisoner per week were spent on employment-related activities.

It is not possible to provide figures for the percentage of the population that takes part in employment-related activities. This is because the regime's monitoring database records activities in hours and does not allow those activities to be broken down by individual prisoner.

Increasing offender employment rates is critical to our strategy to increase social inclusion and reduce reoffending. A key aim is to provide prisoners with employment skills, experience and motivation so they become productive members of society. A survey from 2008 of prisoners' own perception of need[1] found that most said they needed help with finding employment (48 per cent.), getting qualifications (42 per cent.) and work-related skills (41 per cent.) ahead of other help or interventions such as finding accommodation (37 per cent.), offending behaviour (34 per cent.) and drug problems (29 per cent.).

Note:

The information relating to public sector establishments has been derived from the Personnel Corporate Database and Oracle HRMS. These are subject to the normal levels of inaccuracy expected of any large-scale reporting system. Information concerning the two contracted prisons in the North West—Altcourse and Forest Bank—has been provided by the individual contractors.

Probation: South East

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many Probation Service staff there were in each probation area in the South East in each of the last five years; and what the ratio of offenders to such staff was in each such year. [304282]

Maria Eagle: Over the five year period, the number of qualified probation officers[1, 2] has increased by 7.3 per cent. nationally, with numbers in the south-east increasing by 7.9 per cent. The total number of staff in each probation area in the south-east region is shown in the table, together with the ratio to offenders.

Rape: Domestic Violence

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice in how many cases of (a) rape, (b) attempted rape and (c) domestic violence cautions have been issued in each of the last three years. [304455]

Claire Ward: Information showing the number of offenders cautioned for offences of rape and attempted rape in England and Wales, from 2005 to 2007 (latest available) can be viewed in the table.

Data for 2008 are planned for publication at the end of January 2010.

The Ministry of Justice cannot separately identify domestic violence offences from other offences of assault and violence against the person. The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) advise that domestic violence cases have to be referred by the police to a prosecutor for a charging decision in accordance with the Director's Guidance on Charging. A report of domestic violence to the police is unlikely to have been the first incident, and for that reason cautions should be rarely administered in these cases. If there is sufficient evidence of an offence, the public interest will usually mean that the decision is taken to prosecute the case in the courts.

The number of domestic violence prosecutions undertaken by the CPS has increased from 34,839 in 2004-05 to 67,094 in 2008-9. The proportion of successful cases has also risen from 55 per cent. in March 2005 to 71.9 per cent. in September 2009.

The number of offenders cautioned[1, 2] for rape and attempted rape, England and Wales, 2005 to 2007[3, 4]

| Offence description | 2005 | 2006 | 2007 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Rape | 20 | 19 | 32 |
| Attempted rape | 2 | 5 | 2 |
| Total | 22 | 24 | 34 |

[1] The cautions statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been cautioned for two or more offences at the same time the principal offence is the more serious offence.
[2] From 1 June 2000 the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and warnings. These figures have been included in the totals.
[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[4] Data given includes rape/attempted rape of male and female.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many of those convicted for offences related to domestic violence had been issued with at least one caution prior to conviction in the last three years. [304476]

Claire Ward: The information requested is not available. It is not possible to identify offences involving domestic violence using the department's extract from the police national computer, which is the source of data on previous offences; domestic violence offences cannot be distinguished from other violent offences.

Remand in Custody: Ashford

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people in Ashford constituency who have been remanded in custody in each year since 2005 were not convicted of the offences in respect of which they were remanded in custody; and how many days in total such people spent on remand in each such year. [304921]

Claire Ward: Information collected centrally by the Ministry of Justice on the number of persons remanded in custody is not available below Criminal Justice System area level.

Transsexuality

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the salary is of each person who sits on the Gender Recognition Panel. [304311]

Mr. Straw: Legal members of the Gender Recognition Panel (GRP), including the President and Deputy President are salaried First-tier Tribunal Judges within the Social Entitlement Chamber. In addition, one medical member of the GRP is a member of the First-tier Tribunal within the Social Entitlement Chamber. None of these office holders receives additional remuneration on account of their responsibilities in connection with the GRP. Fee paid medical members of the GRP are remunerated at the rate of £371 per day.

Full details of judicial salaries and fees can be found on the Ministry of Justice website at www.justice.gov.uk/publications/judicial-fees-salaries.htm

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people worked for the Gender Recognition Panel in each of the last three years. [304312]

Mr. Straw: The number of people who have worked for the Gender Recognition Panel for each of the last three years is shown in the following table. From May 2007 the staff also provide support to a number of tribunals.

| Period | Number of staff |
|---|---|
| 2006 | |
| January-February | 5 |

| Period | Number of staff |
|---|---|
| March-September | 4 |
| October-December | 3 |
| 2007 | |
| January-April | 3 |
| May-December | 2 |
| 2008 | 2 |
| 2009 | 2 |

Mr. Grieve: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much the Gender Recognition Panel cost in each of the last three years. [304313]

Mr. Straw: The full cost for the Gender Recognition Panel for the last three financial years is shown in the following table.

| | Cost (£) |
|---|---|
| 2006-07 | 216,480 |
| 2007-08 | 173,109 |
| 2008-09[1] | 121,293 |

[1] 2008-09. The administrative element of the cost for this year is not on a similar basis due to a change in accounting procedures. This component is now recorded within the overall administrative cost of the Leicestershire Administrative Support Centre, where the Gender Recognition Panel is based. This accounts for a reduction of £14,364 between costs in 2007-08 and 2008-09.

Young Offenders: Location

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many young people are in the process of being relocated from Young Offenders' Institution Brinsford; how many of them will be transferred to an institution further away from their home; and if he will make a statement. [304653]

Maria Eagle: On 3 December 2009, there were 26 sentenced young people at HMYOI Brinsford. The Youth Justice Board has developed individual placement plans for each of these young people, in order to minimise any disruption to their sentence plans and to ensure that they are placed in the most suitable alternative accommodation. Of the 23 young people for whom the YJB has a valid permanent home address, 22 will be further from home as a result of the planned transfers.

On 3 December 2009, there were also 34 young people on remand at Brinsford. If sentenced, they will be placed in an alternative establishment.

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Prices

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent steps his Department has taken to seek to reduce the availability of cheap alcoholic drinks; [304209]

(2) what research his Department has undertaken on the likely effects on the level of alcohol consumption of a minimum unit price for alcohol in the last 10 years; [304210]

(3) what recent discussions he has had with the Chief Medical Officer on restrictions on the price of alcohol. [304211]

Gillian Merron: In December 2008, the Department published an independent review on the effects of alcohol pricing and promotion from the School of Health and Related Research at the University of Sheffield. This included looking at the effects of minimum unit price on consumption

A copy of the publication "Independent review of the effects of alcohol pricing and promotion from the School of Health and Related Research at the University of Sheffield" has already been placed in the Library.

The Government recently completed a public consultation on the content of a new mandatory code of practice for alcohol retailers. The consultation includes proposals to tackle irresponsible promotions in the on-trade, and in the off-trade it explores the principle of prohibiting retailers from offering alcohol for sale at prices below the rate of duty and VAT paid on the product, a form of loss leader.

In the consultation, the Department also committed to do further work on the impact of alcohol price and promotions and in particular to look into certain key evidence gaps.

All responses will be independently analysed and a report of the consultation and the Government's response will follow in due course.

The chief medical officer regularly meets Ministers from the Department on a number of policy issues, including alcohol.

Arthritis: Health Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking, with reference to the report by the National Audit Office on Services for People with Rheumatoid Arthritis, to work with primary care trusts to promote early treatment of and employment-focused support for people with inflammatory arthritis. [304419]

Ann Keen: The Department has published a good practice commissioning pathway for inflammatory arthritis which supports clinicians in identifying cases of rheumatoid arthritis and ensuring that they are set on the right pathway of care. This describes key symptoms, for example where patients should be referred for urgent treatment.

General practitioners can also use the Map of Medicine to determine the best possible treatment options for their patients, including information on the various patterns of onset, diagnostic tests and medical treatment of rheumatoid arthritis.[1]

The Government response to Dame Carol Black's review of the health of the working age population "Working for a Healthier Tomorrow" introduced a number of policy initiatives aimed at supporting people with health conditions to stay in, return to or move in to work.

For example, Pathways to Work and Condition Management Programme are designed to meet the needs of the three most common causes of long-term sickness: mental health, musculoskeletal and cardio respiratory conditions. Individuals who have inflammatory arthritis and are claiming benefits can volunteer to participate.

The Fit for Work Service Pilots will integrate with existing health and employment-related structures and services, such as Jobcentre Plus and relevant local partnerships, to join up appropriate support for sickness absentees. This will include health-related services such as physiotherapy but will also extend to wider support such as employment, skills, housing and debt advice. As musculoskeletal disorders are one of the most common causes of sickness absence, appropriate support for these will be an integral part of the Fit for Work Service pilots and those with inflammatory arthritis will receive appropriate and timely treatment.

[1] The Map of Medicine is a map of best available research evidence and a best evidence clinical guideline. It displays this knowledge in an easy-to-use pathways format, reflecting the patient journey and provides a framework for creating local pathways.

Blood: Donors

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has spent on advertising to encourage people to donate blood in each of the last 10 years. [304099]

Gillian Merron: The following table shows funds spent on marketing activities to attract blood donors in England and North Wales between 2001-02 (the earliest date for which complete data are available as before then figures were not collated centrally) and 2008-09. Costs given include media advertising; direct marketing; external marketing services; campaign events; donor awards; promotional items; and public relations activities.

| | Cost (£)[1] |
|---|---|
| 2001-02 | 10,475,238 |
| 2002-03 | 10,745,007 |
| 2003-04 | 11,127,532 |
| 2004-05 | 11,341,616 |
| 2005-06 | 11,780,854 |
| 2006-07 | 12,523,837 |
| 2007-08 | [2]13,967,051 |
| 2008-09 | [2]14,453,533 |

[1] Figures given relate solely to expenditure by the National Blood Service (part of NHS Blood and Transplant). The promotion of blood donation in South Wales, Scotland, and Northern Ireland is the responsibility of the separate UK blood services which operate in those areas.

[2] Figures for 2007-08 and 2008-09 reflect the cost of promoting both blood and organ donation. In October 2005, the National Blood Service and UK Transplant merged to become one special health authority, NHS Blood and Transplant (NHSBT). Accounting systems were subsequently amalgamated, and the cost of promoting blood donation is no longer recorded separately.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of people were on the (a) blood donor and (b) bone marrow donor register in each register area in each of the last 10 years. [304103]

Gillian Merron: The following table shows the total number of blood donors recorded in June of the last eight calendar years, broken down by region into the north (incorporating North Wales); south-east; and south-west; and the percentage of blood donors as a proportion of the total population of England. 2001 is the earliest year for which complete data are available, as before then data was not collated centrally.

Number of blood donors

| | North | South West | South East | Total blood donors | Population (million, England) | Blood donors—percentage of population |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| 2001 | 677,554 | 517,873 | 619,911 | 1,815,338 | 49.1 | 3.7 |
| 2002 | 665,724 | 509,497 | 614,398 | 1,789,619 | 49.7 | 3.6 |
| 2003 | 602,121 | 492,519 | 588,549 | 1,683,189 | 49.9 | 3.4 |
| 2004 | 581,113 | 472,720 | 553,801 | 1,607,634 | 50.1 | 3.2 |
| 2005 | 584,661 | 474,457 | 537,951 | 1,597,069 | 50.5 | 3.2 |
| 2006 | 541,098 | 440,019 | 499,641 | 1,480,758 | 50.8 | 2.9 |
| 2007 | 511,800 | 418,225 | 462,059 | 1,392,084 | 51.1 | 2.7 |
| 2008 | 514,983 | 430,107 | 466,807 | 1,411,897 | 51.5 | 2.7 |
| 2009 | 512,031 | 448,647 | 449,028 | 1,409,706 | 51.7 | 2.7 |

The corresponding figures for people on the bone marrow registry is not currently collated centrally. However NHS Blood and Transplant is currently in the process of migrating these data to a central system and a copy of these figures will be placed in the Library.

Bolton Primary Care Trust: Managers

Mr. Crausby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many senior managers were employed in the Wigan and Bolton Health Authority in the final year of its operation; and how many were employed by Bolton Primary Care Trust at the latest date for which figures are available. [304449]

Ann Keen: The information requested is shown in the following table:

National health service hospitals and community health services: Senior managers in the Wigan and Bolton Heath Authority and the Bolton Primary Care Trust (PCT)

| | Senior manager headcount |
|---|---|
| Wigan and Bolton Health Authority as at 30 September 2001 | 8 |
| Bolton PCT as at 30 September 2008 | 11 |

Note:

The Bolton PCT was formed in 2002, bringing together elements of the former Wigan and Bolton Health Authority, the three Bolton Primary Care Groups, and the Community Healthcare Bolton NHS Trust.

Bone Marrow Disorders: Donors

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps he has taken to increase the number of blood donors who are bone marrow donors; and if he will make a statement. [304102]

Gillian Merron: The National Blood Service (part of NHS Blood and Transplant) currently recruits bone marrow donors from the existing pool of blood donors and therefore efforts to promote bone marrow donation are focused through existing channels of communication with donors. Information on bone marrow donation is available at blood collection sessions, and staff actively promote bone marrow donation particularly to blood donors from black and minority ethnic communities.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions he has had with the devolved Administrations on increasing the number of bone marrow donors. [304104]

Gillian Merron: NHS Blood and Transplant, as the special health authority with responsibility for ensuring the supply of blood, organs, stem cells and tissues for patients, holds regular meetings with its counterparts from across the UK where all issues on donation and collection are discussed.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has not held any meetings with the devolved Administrations on increasing the number of bone marrow donors.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of patients who received bone marrow and stem cell treatments in the last 12 months were administered cells from (a) UK donors and (b) foreign donors from each country. [304105]

Gillian Merron: This information is not collected.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his most recent estimate is of the unit cost of identifying the tissue type of a bone marrow or stem cell donor by samples taken from (a) a blood donor at the time of donation and (b) a DNA swab. [304185]

Gillian Merron: NHS Blood and Transplant use the following cost estimates for extracting Deoxyribonucleic Acid (DNA) from blood samples and buccal swabs:

(a) Blood samples: £203.97 for 48 test kits fully automated

(b) Buccal swab: £117.60 for 50 test kits manual

One test kit is used for each donor.

Because the kits for buccal swabs are not fully automated, there will be additional costs as the process requires more staff time.

Coeliac Disease

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate he has made of the number of people living with coeliac disease in England; what the evidential basis is for that estimate; and if he will make a statement. [304248]

Ann Keen: We have made no estimate of the number of people living with coeliac disease.

Cord Blood

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many and what proportion of the umbilical cords of babies born alive in each of the last 10 years were donated for the harvesting of stem cells. [304109]

Gillian Merron: The total amount of units of umbilical cord blood processed and stored in the NHS Cord Blood Bank (the Bank) for the last 10 years are:

| | Units banked per annum |
|---|---|
| 1997 | 862 |
| 1998 | 880 |
| 1999 | 944 |
| 2000 | 820 |
| 2001 | 962 |
| 2002 | 470 |
| 2003 | 997 |
| 2004 | 860 |
| 2005 | 1,076 |
| 2006 | 1,117 |
| 2007 | 1,342 |
| 2008 | 1,664 |
| 2009 year to date | 1,712 |
| Total | 12,856 |

A report commissioned by the Department entitled 'Cord Blood Banking in the UK: An International Comparison of Policy and Practice' estimated that, in 2007, the Bank collection rate represented about 0.13 per cent. of annual total births in the United Kingdom.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many stem cell donations from the NHS Cord Blood Bank were provided to patients in each year since 1996. [304106]

Gillian Merron: The number of cord blood units issued by the NHS Cord Blood Bank for transplant into patients each year since 1998 are:

| | Issued |
|---|---|
| 1998 | 3 |
| 1999 | 14 |
| 2000 | 18 |
| 2001 | 10 |
| 2002 | 10 |
| 2003 | 10 |
| 2004 | 19 |
| 2005 | 27 |
| 2006 | 34 |
| 2007 | 44 |
| 2008 | 47 |
| 2009 (to date) | 43 |
| Total | 279 |

Dangerous Dogs: Merseyside

Dr. Pugh: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many patients have been admitted to hospital after being attacked by dogs in (a) Southport constituency and (b) Merseyside in the last five years. [304117]

Ann Keen: The information requested is shown in the following tables:

A count of finished admission episodes in Southport in which the cause of admission was being bitten or struck by a dog, 2004-05 to 2008-09

| Primary care trust (PCT) of residence | 2008-09 | 2007-08 | 2006-07 |

Notes:

1. Activity in English national health service hospitals and English NHS commissioned activity in the independent sector.

2. A finished admission episode is the first period of inpatient care under one consultant within one healthcare provider. Finished admission episodes are counted against the year in which the admission episode finishes. However, admissions do not represent the number of inpatients, as a person may have more than one admission within the year.

3. In Hospital Episodes Statistics (HES) data cannot be filtered using Merseyside or Southport constituencies as the PQ requests, consequently data is provided using PCTs of residence that approximate to required areas.

Merseyside is made up of the following PCTs: Wirral PCT, Sefton PCT, Halton and St. Helens PCT, Liverpool and Knowsley PCT (or their equivalents in 2005-06 and 2004-05). Southport falls under Sefton PCT of Residence (or its equivalent in 2005-06 and 2004-05).

Owing to the fact that in July 2006, the NHS reorganised PCTs in England from 303 PCTs into 152, data from 2006-07 onwards are not directly comparable with previous years.

Data for the years 2005-06 and 2004-05 have been presented using the equivalent PCTs to the ones listed above. These are as follows: Sefton PCT = (Southport and Formby PCT, South Sefton PCT); Wirral PCT = (Birkenhead and Wallasey PCT, Bebington and West Wirral PCT); Liverpool PCT = (North Liverpool PCT, Central Liverpool PCT, South Liverpool PCT) and, Halton and St. Helens PCT = (St. Helens PCT, Halton PCT).

4. To protect patient confidentiality, figures between 1 and 5 have been suppressed and replaced with "*" (an asterisk). Where it was possible to identify numbers from the total due to a single suppressed number in a row or column, an additional number (the next smallest) has been suppressed.

5. HES are compiled from data sent by over 300 NHS trusts and PCTs in England. Data are also received from a number of independent sector organisations for activity commissioned by the English NHS. The Information Centre for health and social care liaises closely with these organisations to encourage submission of complete and valid data and seeks to minimise inaccuracies and the effect of missing and invalid data via HES processes. While this brings about improvement over time, some shortcomings remain.

6. HES figures are available from 1989-90 onwards. The quality and coverage of the data have improved over time. These improvements in information submitted by the NHS have been particularly marked in the earlier years and need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. Some of the increase in figures for later years (particularly 2006-07 onwards) may be due to the improvement in the coverage of independent sector activity. Changes in NHS practice also need to be borne in mind when analysing time series. For example, a number of procedures may now be undertaken in outpatient settings and may no longer be accounted for in the HES data. This may account for any reductions in activity over time.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost was of maintaining his Department's website in the 2008-09 financial year; and what the forecast cost is of maintaining websites within his responsibility in the 2009-10 financial year. [302419]

Phil Hope: The total cost of maintaining the Department's website in 2008-09 was £2,840,326.59. This figure has been calculated in line with Central Office of Information guidance: TG128 Measuring website costs. The forecast cost for maintaining the Department's website in 2009-10 is expected to be in line with the reported total figure for 2008-09.

A forecast figure for all websites within the Department's responsibility has not been provided, as this would include 71 remaining websites that we are converging or rationalising under Transformational Government. This would incur disproportionate costs.

Departmental Legislation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criminal offences have been (a) abolished and (b) created by primary legislation sponsored by his Department since 1 May 2008. [301252]

Phil Hope: The criminal offences which have been abolished since 1 May 2008 are as follows:

Offences under the Care Standards Act 2000 (insofar as those offences related to the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) or the Healthcare Commission—both bodies abolished) have been (or will be) repealed by the Health and Social Care Act 2008:-

Section 26 - offences relating to false descriptions of establishments and agencies;

Section 27 - false statement in applications;

Section 28 - offence relating to failure to display certificate of registration;

Section 30 - provision is made for what happens if one of the offences is committed by a body corporate - if the offence is proved to have been committed by, or with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of any director, manager or secretary of the body corporate, or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, that director, manager, secretary or person purporting to act as such (as well as the body corporate) is guilty of the offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly;

Section 31(9) - offence relating to the obstructing of or failing to comply with entry and inspection by the CSCI or Healthcare Commission.

Offences under the Health and Social Care (Community Health and Standards) Act 2003 have been (or will be) repealed by the Health and Social Care Act 2008 (due to abolition of Healthcare Commission and CSCI):

Section 67(5)and 89(5) - offence relating to the obstructing of or failing to comply with entry and inspection by the Healthcare Commission or CSCI;

Section 68(4) and 90(4) - offence relating to failure to comply with a Healthcare Commission request for documents or information or CSCI;

Section 136 - offence of disclosure of confidential personal information held by the Healthcare Commission;

Section 146—provision is made for what happens if one of the offences is committed by a body corporate—if the offence is proved to have been committed by, or with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of any director, manager or secretary of the body corporate, or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, that director, manager, secretary or person purporting to act as such (as well as the body corporate) is guilty of the offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly.

However, many of those repealed under the Health and Social Care Act 2008 are to be re-enacted (broadly re-enacted) in regulations under the provision referred to in Part 1 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008, which will come into force at the same time that the repeal comes in to effect.

The criminal offences which have been created since 1 May 2008 are as follows:

Offences in Part 1 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008:

Section 10(1) - any person who carries on a regulated activity without being registered with the Care Quality Commission is guilty of an offence;

Section 33 - offence of failure, without reasonable excuse, to comply with conditions of registration with the Care Quality Commission;

Section 34 - offences relating to the carrying on or management of regulated activities while registration with the Care Quality Commission is suspended or where such registration has been cancelled;

Section 35 - regulation-making power to create offences for contravention of or failure to comply with regulations;

Section 36 - offence of false description of concerns, premises - any person who with intent to deceive gives any concern or premises a name or in any other way describes a premises so as to indicate that the carrying on of the concern is a regulated activity or that the premises are used for the carrying on of a regulated activity is guilty of an offence unless the person is registered in respect of the regulated activity in question and that registration is not suspended;

Section 37 - offence relation to making knowingly false statements in applications to the Care Quality Commission;

Section 63(7) - offence relating to the obstructing of or failing to comply with entry and inspection by the Care Quality Commission (without reasonable excuse);

Section 64(4) - offence relating to failure to comply with Care Quality Commission request for documents or information (without reasonable excuse);

Section 65(4) - offence relating to failure to comply with a request for an explanation from the Care Quality Commission (without reasonable excuse);

Section 76(2) - offence of disclosure of confidential personal information held by the Care Quality Commission;

Under section 90 of the Act provision is made for what happens if one of the offences is committed by a body corporate—if the offence is proved to have been committed by, or with the consent or connivance of, or to be attributable to any neglect on the part of any director, manager or secretary of the body corporate, or any person who was purporting to act in any such capacity, that director, manager, secretary or person purporting to act as such (as well as the body corporate) is guilty of the offence and liable to be proceeded against and punished accordingly.

"Regulated activities" (i.e. the definitions of what they are) are set out in regulations.

Section 4A(1) of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Act 2008 prohibits the placing in a woman of a human admixed embryo. Section 4A(2) (read with section 41) also makes it an offence to mix human gametes with animal gametes or to create, keep or use a human admixed embryo without a licence.

Section 21 of the Health Act 2009 introduced new offences in relation to tobacco by inserting new provisions into the Tobacco Advertising and Promotion Act 2002:-

New section 7A of that Act makes it an offence for a person in the course of a business to display tobacco products or cause tobacco products to be displayed, in a place in England, Wales and Northern Ireland;

New section 7B provides for exclusions from and defences to this offence;

New section 7C makes it an offence for a person to display or cause to be displayed the prices of tobacco products in breach of a requirement contained in regulations made under this section (such regulations can impose requirements in relation to the display in a place in England or Wales or Northern Ireland in the course of business of the prices of tobacco products);

New section 7D makes it an offence for a person who displays or causes to be displayed tobacco prices or their prices in breach of a requirement contained in regulations made under this section (such regulations can impose requirements in relation to the display in England or Wales or Northern Ireland in the course of a business of tobacco products or their prices on a website where tobacco products are offered for sale)

Section 22 of the Health Act 2009 also introduced a new section 3A into the Children and Young Persons (Protection from Tobacco) Act 1991 allowing the appropriate national authority to make provision by regulations prohibiting the sale of tobacco from an automatic machine in England and Wales; these regulations must make provision as to the persons who are liable in the case of any breach of a prohibition, and where a prohibition is breached any person liable inn accordance with the regulations is guilty of an offence.

Section 23 makes similar provision in relation to Northern Ireland by adding a new article 4A into the Children and Young Persons (Protection from Tobacco) (Northern Ireland) Order 1991.

Section 20 amended section 6 of the Tobacco Advertising and Promotion Act which automatically excluded specialist tobacconists from committing an offence under section 2 of that Act; under the amendments this exclusion will only apply in England, Wales and Northern Ireland if the tobacco advertisement complies with requirements, including those to be established in regulations.

Departmental Written Questions

John Mason: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many questions tabled for answer on a named day his Department received in each of the last 12 months; and to how many such questions his Department provided a substantive answer on the day named. [305380]

Phil Hope: The information is in the following table.

| | Number of named day questions for answer | Number answered on the day specified | Percentage |
|---|---|---|---|
| 2008 | | | |

Drugs: Misuse

Mike Wood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what research his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on trends relating to the (i) age, (ii) sex, (iii) ethnicity and (iv) sexual orientation of (A) crack cocaine users, (B) heroin users and (C) problem drug users in the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [305406]

Gillian Merron: The Government places great importance on the collection of trend data on drug use, and funds a number of strands of activity. The National Drug Treatment Monitoring System which is maintained and developed by the National Treatment Agency for Substance Misuse's collects information about the impact of drug treatment on a range of groups of service users. The Home Office collects information annually through the British Crime Survey and has also commissioned national and regional estimates of the prevalence of opiate use and crack cocaine use. The Office of National Statistics publishes annual information about trends in drugs deaths. The Department of Health funds additional work by St. George's University of London through the national programme on substance abuse deaths which provides additional information on trends in drugs deaths.

Copies of the relevant reports can be found in the Library.

Drugs: Rehabilitation

Mike Wood: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will estimate the cost to the public purse of placing every (a) crack cocaine and (b) heroin user receiving NHS treatment in a residential treatment programme. [305407]

Gillian Merron: Residential treatment is one of a number of treatment modalities for drug misuse. Before a drug user receives national health service care in a residential drug treatment service, care planning needs to be undertaken between the service user and their clinicians to assess whether it will help the user to change their behaviour and if so, the nature and duration of the treatment that will be needed. They will also consider the care that will be needed following residential treatment. Without such assessments it is not possible to estimate the cost of placing all problem drug users in residential treatment.

EU Law

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) statutory instruments and (b) other regulations his Department has brought forward in the 2005 Parliament to meet obligations arising from EU law. [304177]

Phil Hope: Central records of statutory instruments made under specific powers have only been maintained by the Statutory Instruments Registrar since 2001. A record has been maintained since that time of statutory instruments made under powers in the European Communities Act 1972 in order to meet obligations arising from European Union law, but no record has been maintained of statutory instruments made under other legislation in order to meet such obligations.

There are no central records maintained of "other regulations". Since 2001 the Department has made 139 statutory instruments in order to meet obligations arising from EU Law, under powers contained in the European Communities Act 1972. A list of those instruments has been placed in the Library.

It would incur disproportionate cost to retrieve details of all such instruments since 1997.

Exercise

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate has been made of the percentage of (a) men and (b) women aged (i) 18 to 25, (ii) 26 to 49, (iii) 50 to 69 and (iv) over 70 years old who undertake recommended levels of physical activity; and if he will make a statement. [304220]

Gillian Merron: Health Survey for England last measured the percentage of men and women meeting the Chief Medical Officer's recommendations on physical activity, broken down by age and gender in 2008, which will be published on 17 December 2009. Prior to this, a report from the 2006 survey has set out similar data and a copy of the report/data has already been placed in the Library.

Fibromyalgia

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps his Department is taking to increase knowledge of fibromyalgia amongst (a) the medical profession and (b) the wider public; [304296]

(2) how many people have been diagnosed with fibromyalgia in the last three years; [304297]

(3) what help his Department provides to people diagnosed with fibromyalgia. [304298]

Ann Keen: The number of people diagnosed with fibromyalgia is not collected.

Detailed advice on fibromyalgia, suitable for the medical profession and the wider public, has been made available on the NHS Choices and NHS Evidence websites at:

www.nhs.uk/conditions/fibromyalgia/Pages/Introduction.aspx

www.evidence.nhs.uk/search.aspx?t=fibromyalgia

Although there is no cure for fibromyalgia patients are able to access treatments to ease their symptoms and improve the quality of life. Medications available include painkillers, muscle relaxants, and antidepressants.

Health Professions: Equal Opportunities

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent progress has been made on increasing the level of access of women to senior positions in the medical profession. [305004]

Ann Keen: The NHS Workforce Census shows that the number of women consultants working in the national health service has increased from around 4,000 in 1997 to almost 10,000 in 2008. The numbers are shown in the following table:

Hospital and Community Health Services female medical consultants, England as at 30 September each year

| | Female consultants within medical specialties |
|---|---|
| 1997 | 4,351 |
| 1998 | 4,658 |
| 1999 | 5,002 |
| 2000 | 5,418 |
| 2001 | 5,911 |
| 2002 | 6,406 |
| 2003 | 7,010 |
| 2004 | 7,657 |
| 2005 | 8,170 |
| 2006 | 8,715 |
| 2007 | 9,131 |
| 2008 | 9,769 |

Health Services: Greater London

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has for the future provision of accident and emergency services in London North central. [305191]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: This is a matter for the local national health service.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of spending on acute services by his Department in London North central in the next five years. [305192]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Decisions on spending allocations for individual services are a matter for the local national health service. Revenue allocations to primary care trusts (PCTs) for 2009-10 and 2010-11 were announced on 8 December 2008. PCTs received an average increase of 5.5 per cent. in 2009-10 and will receive an average increase of 5.5 per cent. 2010-11, a total increase in funding of £8.6 billion.

Health Services: Inspections

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much (a) the Care Quality Commission and (b) its predecessor organisations have spent on inspection visits in each year since 1997-98. [304755]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Care Quality Commission tell us that it does not hold the information in the format requested.

The accounts of the Commission for Social Care Inspection, National Commission for Social Care, Commission for Healthcare Audit and Inspection and the Commission for Health Improvement did not provide specific costs relating to inspections.

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many inspectors the Care Quality Commission employs; and how many inspectors its predecessor organisations employed in each year since 1997-98. [304768]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Care Quality Commission has provided the following information.

Number for inspectors employed each year by the health and social care regulators since 2002-03

| | National Commission for Social Care | Commission for Social Care Inspection | Healthcare Commission | Care Quality Commission |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| 2002-03 | 1,027 | — | — | — |
| 2003-04 | 1,072 | — | — | — |
| 2004-05 | — | 1,397 | — | — |
| 2005-06 | — | 1,317 | 137 | — |
| 2006-07 | — | 1,254 | 164 | — |
| 2007-08 | — | 960 | 130 | — |
| 2008-09 | — | 829 | 123 | — |
| 2009-10 | — | — | — | [1]913 |

[1] The figure for 2009-10 also includes assessors.

The decrease in 2007-08 is because a number of inspectors were transferred to Ofsted in that year, as responsibility for the inspection of child-care services was transferred.

The Care Quality Commission is unable to provide figures earlier than 2002-03 for social care inspectors. Prior to that date local authorities carried out the inspection of social care.

The Commission does not hold figures earlier than 2005-06 for health care inspectors.

Heart Diseases: Health Services

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department plans to take in response to the National Specialist Commissioning Group's document for designation of Grown-Ups with Congenital Heart Disease Specialist Centres; and if he will make a statement. [304418]

Ann Keen: Designation of specialised services such as services for Grown-Ups with Congenital Heart Disease is a formal process of checking that service providers meet certain standards and that services are able to meet demand and to deliver the best possible outcomes for patients and are good value for money. The service specification standards included in the Grown-Ups with Congenital Heart Disease designation document have been drawn up to assist this process by providing a common set of criteria against which services can be assessed. It is the responsibility of the 10 Specialised Commissioning Groups in England working on behalf of their constituent primary care trusts to decide on the relative priority of work on the specialised services within their designation programmes.

Hospitals: Admissions

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department has issued to NHS organisations on the length of stay of patients in (a) medical and (b) surgical admission units. [304703]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: None.

Hospitals: Hygiene

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what recent assessment he has made of the effects of poor hand hygiene on (a) infection and (b) mortality rates in hospitals; [304101]

(2) what recent assessment he has made of the effectiveness of each hand hygiene initiative undertaken in hospitals; [304183]

(3) how much his Department spent to increase levels of compliance with hand hygiene procedures in hospitals in the last 12 months. [304184]

Ann Keen: Hand hygiene is only one part of our comprehensive strategy to reduce health care associated infections, and the evidence base shows that it prevents infections. All acute trusts signed up to the National Patient Safety Agency's 'cleanyourhands' campaign and independent evaluation of this campaign suggests a strong association with a reduction in infections. We do not specifically fund or assess individual hospital campaigns and mortality rates have not been specifically investigated.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the likely effects on the rapidity of the spread of hospital-acquired infections of (a) the use of disposable blood pressure cuffs, (b) the practice of infusing hospital equipment with silver ion particles and (c) banning hospital staff from wearing neckties. [304146]

Ann Keen: Devices such as silver alloy coated catheters aim to prevent infections rather than reduce transmission. Although specific information on the effect of blood pressure cuffs and neckties on transmissions is not available, they will be expected to contribute if part of a systematic approach to infection control. However, manufacturers of new devices are able to submit their products to the Rapid Review Panel for evaluation.

Hospitals: Manpower

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many full-time equivalent (a) managers and (b) senior managers were in post at each hospital in the North West in each of the last five years. [[illegible]]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested. Non-medical workforce census data are collected by trust, so hospital level data are not available. The information that is available is shown in the following tables:

Hospitals: South East

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many redundancies there were in each hospital trust in the South East in each of the last 12 months. [304107]

Gillian Merron: Monthly redundancy figures for individual trusts are not held centrally. Quarterly compulsory redundancy figures for individual strategic health authorities (SHAs) are held centrally. The figures for the two SHAs in the South East region for the last four quarters are as follows:

| | Number |
|---|---|
| Total for quarter 2 2009-10 | |
| South Central (SC) SHA | 9 |

From 2009-10 foundation trust data are no longer centrally collected. In previous years their returns were voluntary.

Influenza: Stockport

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) hospitalisations and (b) deaths in the Stockport Primary Care Trust area related to (i) swine influenza and (ii) seasonal influenza there were in the 12 months to 1 December 2009. [304123]

Gillian Merron: The swine flu hospital data collected by the Department are not broken down by primary care trust (PCTs). They are collated for acute trusts rather than PCT areas so precise figures for Stockport PCT are not available.

The data collected show that Stockport NHS Foundation Trust has reported 108 patients were admitted with H1N1 swine flu (swabbed or clinically presumed) between 6 July and 1 December 2009. Data on hospital admissions related to swine flu were not collected prior to 6 July. The above figures include all patients reported by the hospital regardless of where they are resident, so may include non-Stockport residents. The figure will not include any residents of the Stockport PCT area who have been admitted to other hospitals with swine flu.

The Department can not release a breakdown of swine flu related deaths in individual PCTs as to do so could breach the confidentiality of patients and their relatives. Details of these deaths were supplied in strict confidence.

The Department does not collect data on seasonal flu hospitalisations and deaths.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the number of people in the Stockport Primary Care Trust area to whom it plans to offer the seasonal influenza vaccination. [304124]

Gillian Merron: Estimates suggest that there are about 85,000 people in Stockport Primary Care Trust area that fall within the groups eligible to receive the seasonal influenza vaccine.

Frontline health care workers involved in direct patient care can also receive the seasonal influenza vaccine. There are an estimated 4,000 people who fall into this category working in Stockport national health service trusts.

Legislation

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many pieces of primary legislation sponsored by his Department have not had commencement clauses since 1997. [304848]

Phil Hope: All pieces of primary legislation sponsored by the Department since 1997 include a commencement provision.

Medical Treatments

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether NHS trusts will be the preferred provider under the proposed patient entitlement to treatment if a patient cannot be seen within the relevant period and desires an alternative provider. [304264]

Ann Keen: Under the proposed new patient right, if access to the relevant service is inappropriately delayed, the national health service would be required to take all reasonable steps to offer that patient a range of alternative providers which would be able to provide the service sooner than the original provider, if this is what the patient wants. Where possible, the range of alternative providers should include NHS providers and private providers which meet NHS standards and the NHS tariff.

The patient would have a choice between their original provider or one of the range of alternatives.

Midwives: Manpower

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many full-time equivalent midwives were in post at each hospital in the North West providing maternity services in each of the last five years. [304668]

Ann Keen: The information is not available in the format requested. Non-medical work force census data are collected by trust, so hospital level data are not available. The information that is available is shown in the following table:

NHS: Data Protection

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what breaches of data protection legislation have been recorded in the NHS in each of the last five years; and how many formal undertakings from the Information Commissioner have been signed by NHS organisations consequent on a breach of the legislation. [304243]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: National health service organisations are directly responsible for compliance with the Data Protection Act 1998. NHS organisations should also publish serious data loss incidents in their annual reports and notify their strategic health authority (SHA). In turn, SHAs should publish quarterly data losses regarding its NHS organisations on their websites.

It is for the Information Commissioner and the courts to determine whether or not data protection legislation has been breached in any particular case. Details of formal undertakings are published on the Information Commissioner's website.

NHS: DHL

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms are being used to monitor the performance of DHL under its contract for NHS supply and delivery of medical supplies and equipment; and if he will make a statement. [304253]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department signed a 10-year Master Services Agreement with DHL on 4 September 2006 for the provision of procurement and supply chain services, trading under the name of NHS Supply Chain.

Schedule 23 of the Master Services Agreement sets out the Key Performance Indicators and post-transition Key Performance Indicators. The post-transition phase began in August 2007.

A copy of Schedule 23 of the Master Services Agreement has been placed in the Library.

NHS: Finance

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the budget is of each NHS trust and NHS foundation trust hospital in England for 2009-10. [304892]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The forecast turnover for the 2009-10 financial year of every NHS trust in England is published in the most recent edition of The Quarter, which can be found on the Department's website:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsStatistics/DH_087335

Information on NHS foundation trust plans for the 2009-10 financial year can be found on the website of Monitor, the independent regulator of NHS foundation trusts at:

www.monitor-nhsft.gov.uk/home/our-publications/browse-category/reports-nhs-foundation-trusts/reviews-nhs-foundation-trusts-an-4

NHS: Information and Communications Technology

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has decided whether BT and CSC have met the criteria published by Connecting for Health on 29 October 2009 for delivery of IT solutions to the NHS through the National Programme for IT. [304240]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The Department set an end of November deadline for achieving significant progress, in terms of implementing information systems which support electronic records for patients, against published criteria for success. It will take some time to judge progress against all of the criteria and we are currently reviewing all of the outcomes in order to decide the best way forward.

Mr. Bacon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many open issues are logged against the Lorenzo software system. [303848]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: As at 1 December 2009, the number of open issues logged against the Lorenzo software system by live national health service trusts was 453.

Many of the open issues are of low business impact, and there is a rolling schedule to resolve them in line with trusts' priorities.

NHSU

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment has been made of the performance of the NHS University against its objectives. [304421]

Ann Keen: A review was commissioned from Sir William Wells. This reported in 2004 and is available on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/FreedomOfInformation/Freedomofinformationpublicationschemefeedback/FOIreleases/DH_073921

A copy has been placed in the Library.

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the NHS University has cost in each year since its establishment. [304422]

Ann Keen: The NHS University (NHSU) was launched in December 2003.

The budget for NHSU was £27 million in 2003-04, and £43.676 million in 2004-05.

NHSU was officially dissolved on 31 July 2005.

Patient Choice Schemes

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library a copy of the extended choice network rules. [304110]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: A copy of the Extended Choice Network Rules has been placed in the Library.

Pharmacy

[illegible]dra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for [illegible]w many pharmacies in each primary care [illegible] area have (a) opened and (b) closed in each of the last five years. [304498]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information available on national health service community pharmacies in England has been placed in the Library.

Social Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 4.7 of the Impact Assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, for what reasons (a) chiropody and (b) podiatry are exempted from services included within the definition of personal care. [304786]

Phil Hope: The definition of personal care is based on the draft regulations being made under sections 8 and 20 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008, which exclude chiropody and podiatry. These services are within the scope of health care services, rather than personal care.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to table 2 of the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what methodology was used to calculate the additional costs; and whether the figures given for additional costs relate to millions of pounds. [304794]

Phil Hope: The estimated additional costs for older people are based on analyses from the Personal Social Services Research Unit's (PSSRU) micro-simulation model for older people. The PSSRU cost estimates are broken down into groups of individuals with difficulty with different total numbers of activities of daily living (ADLs) on the basis of the average predicted need for each group—as referred to in table 1 of the impact assessment.

The additional categories not considered by PSSRU—that is, the estimates of residential care and informal care switchers—are then added. All of the residential care switchers are assumed to have difficulty with four or more ADLs.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to table 2 of the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, from what source he derived the number of younger adults described as (a) already receiving state-funded care and (b) self-funding plus unmet need. [304795]

Phil Hope: The estimate of 110,000 younger adults eligible for free personal care at home is based principally on the referrals, assessments and packages of care (RAP) data from councils for 2007-08. In the absence of data on the proportion of younger service users whose needs are assessed as critical under fair access to care services (FACS) critical, for the purposes of the impact assessment, it is assumed that there could be some 100,000 younger adult local authority funded users receiving personal care in the critical category. It is likely that most of these receive their care free, as their incomes are generally low. It has therefore been assumed that 90 per cent. already receive free personal care at home and that 10 per cent. make a means-tested contribution towards the cost.

Little is known about the number of younger adults who currently fund their own care at home. It has been assumed that around a further 10,000 younger adults may be brought under state funding following the introduction of the Personal Care at Home Bill.

The figures have been rounded to the nearest 10,000 to reflect the uncertainty. The figure of 110,000 should therefore be treated as an estimate.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to table 2 of the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, from what source the costs referred to in bullet 4 of Annex A were derived. [304797]

Phil Hope: Annex A sets out the assumptions on which the analysis is based. Bullet 4 explains that, in the absence of data giving the relationship between costs and average predicted need, the assumption has been made that the relationship is linear, i.e. that twice the predicted need score on this measure is equivalent to twice the weekly care costs.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, whether reablement packages will cover the costs of (a) hardware and (b) labour. [304807]

Phil Hope: We understand that there is a great deal of variability in both the costs of reablement across councils and the different types of services which may be available in particular localities. In our consultation, "Personal Care at Home: a consultation on proposals for regulations and guidance", a copy of which has already been placed in the Library, we suggest that a reablement package could include physiotherapy, occupational therapy, installation of telecare or adaptations to the house. The £1,000 per person figure referred to is based on an estimate of 30 hours of care at £30 an hour and an allowance for some equipment. The precise nature of any package would be a matter for local decision, based on an assessment of the person's needs.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 1.6 of the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, in what circumstances the Government provides social care where private insurance cover has proved inadequate. [304808]

Phil Hope: Councils currently assess needs and means in reaching decisions on whether or not to provide state funded social care. For people with high needs who are not eligible on the grounds of means, the lack of a private insurance market has meant they may have already incurred significant costs in meeting their own care needs. As part of plans for a national care service, we have been considering a number of proposals which include insurance schemes, so that people with high care needs will not find themselves faced with unexpected care costs.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 2.2 of the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what estimate he has made of the amount of funding referred to. [304809]

Phil Hope: No estimate has been made on future investment in social care. However, we know that, in order to ensure that a new care and support system is affordable, we will need to be prepared to take tough decisions to ensure that existing resources are targeted on those who need them the most. But we know that the money already in the system will not be enough.

In 20 years' time, we expect there to be 1.7 million more adults needing care and support than there are now and proportionately fewer people of working age to help pay for the funding of that care and support. We will not be able to pay for the care that is needed simply by reprioritising the money we already have. As a society, we are going to have to spend more on care and support if we are to maintain a care and support system that gives older people and disabled people quality of life, dignity and peace of mind about their future care costs.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to paragraph 2.2 of the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, for what reasons the proposal was not included in the Green Paper. [304810]

Phil Hope: Free personal care for those with the highest needs in their own home was not considered in the Green Paper because it is a step towards that National Care Service. The Green Paper puts forward fundamental proposals—partnership, insurance and comprehensive—for the National Care Service to reform the system for all adults.

Proposals for reablement put forward in the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill were also considered as part of the Green Paper.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will estimate the costs of taxpayer-funded personal care as set out in the Personal Care at Home Bill if the assumptions of the impact assessment were applied to population projections for (a) 2015, (b) 2020, (c) 2025 and (d) 2030. [304847]

Phil Hope: The impact assessment estimates the first full year costs of extending free personal care at home to those with the highest needs at £537 million. It also estimates the costs of providing reablement services over the same period at £130 million, bringing the total costs of the proposals to approximately £670 million. The impact assessment only covers the period from October 2010 to the end of 2012-13. Estimating beyond this point to 2015, 2020, 2025 and 2030 is problematic because of the uncertainties involved. The proposals here are intended as a step towards a fully integrated National Care Service, at which point a different set of assumptions may need to be applied.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the checklist of impact tests in the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, whether the results of the human rights impact test have been published. [304851]

Phil Hope: I sent a memorandum to my hon. Friend the Member for Hendon and Chair of the Joint Committee on Human Rights (Mr. Dismore), on 27 November 2009. The memorandum details the human rights implications of the Personal Care at Home Bill. A copy has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment his Department has made of the relative effects on the environment of care delivered at home and in a residential home setting. [304852]

Phil Hope: A sustainable development impact test has not been carried out as part of the impact assessment. The policy will help people to remain living at home for longer where this is what they wish. The environmental impact of the policy is likely to be negligible.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the average lifespan of people who are Fair Access to Care Services critical; and what assumptions his Department has made on the effect on life expectancy of enactment of his legislative proposals on personal care at home. [304844]

Phil Hope: No estimate or assumption of the average lifespan or life expectancy of those who will benefit from the legislation have been made. Costings have been made on the estimated numbers of people meeting the criteria in any one year, with the exception of the costs of reablement and the costs of additional assessment, which are based on the flow of new entrants over the course of a year.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what the (a) net benefit and (b) net benefit range associated with his legislative proposals is. [304848]

Phil Hope: The impact assessment has not attempted to specify the net benefit or a net benefit range owing to uncertainty in estimating a number of specific benefits, that is, the benefits from meeting unmet need, re-ablement and reducing the savings disincentive. This notwithstanding, the areas in which benefits have been quantified, namely those people in highest need who will receive free personal care at home, equity distribution and the extended insurance coverage, justify the proposed policy on cost-benefit grounds.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what plans he has for meeting transition costs. [304850]

Phil Hope: A one-off transition cost of £335 million is set out in the impact assessment for the first half-year of the policy, from October 2010. Thereafter, we do not consider that there will be transition costs associated with this for local authorities. However, we will be reviewing the impact of the policy after 12-18 months to ensure that it is being applied properly and that there are no unforeseen costs or perverse incentives.

South East Coast Strategic Health Authority

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the capitation cost was of (a) the Director and (b) other staff in Communications and Engagement of the South East Coast Strategic Health Authority in the latest year for which information is available. [304 [illegible]]

Gillian Merron: The last full year for which information about remuneration for the Director of Communications and Engagement of the South East Coast Strategic Health Authority (SHA) is available is 2008-09. This is published in the SHA's 'Annual Report 2008-09', a copy of which has been placed in the Library. Information about costs relating to the SHA Director of Communications and Engagement's staff is not collected centrally.

Mr. Blunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much the South East Coast Strategic Health Authority paid to public relations companies in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09, and what budget has been set for such expenditure in 2009-10; [304532]

(2) what the cost was of the recent independent survey of the regional stakeholders of the South East Coast Strategic Health Authority undertaken as part of the Healthier people, excellent care programme; [304533]

(3) how much the South East Coast Strategic Health Authority spent on gathering public opinion and opinion polling in (a) 2006-07, (b) 2007-08 and (c) 2008-09; and what budget has been set for such expenditure in 2009-10. [304534]

Gillian Merron: The information requested is not collected centrally. These are matters for the South East Coast Strategic Health Authority.

Swine Flu: Vaccination

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the number of people to whom it plans to offer the swine influenza vaccination (a) in the Stockport Primary Care Trust area and (b) nationally. [304120]

Gillian Merron: The estimated number of people in the Stockport Primary Care Trust area who fall into a priority group for H1N1 influenza vaccination is about 55,000. There are an estimated 15,000 children aged over six months and under five years that would fall into the extended H1N1 vaccination programme.

The estimated number of people in England who fall into a priority group for H1N1 influenza vaccination is about 9.5 million. The estimated number of children in England who fall into the group aged over six months and under five years is about 2.75 million.

Health care workers involved in direct patient care can also receive the H1N1 vaccine. This applies to about 1 million individuals in England. There are an estimated 4,000 people who fall into this category working in Stockport national health service trusts.

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many doses of swine influenza vaccine had been distributed to health centres (a) in the Stockport Primary Care Trust area and (b) nationally by 1 December 2009. [304192]

Gillian Merron: By 1 December 2009, 68,000 doses of swine influenza vaccine have been delivered to the Stockport primary care trust area. By the same date 8.8 million doses of swine flu vaccine had been delivered nationally.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what criteria are used by primary care trusts to prioritise individuals for swine influenza vaccinations. [304250]

Gillian Merron: The priority groups for swine flu vaccination were identified in the letter from the Chief Medical Officer (CMO) dated 13 August 2009, and this has been reiterated in subsequent communications to National Health Service staff. A copy of the letter has been placed in the Library.

The following groups were initially prioritised for vaccination in the following order:

individuals aged six months and up to 65 years in the current seasonal flu vaccine clinical at-risk groups;

all pregnant women;

household contacts of immunocompromised individuals; and people aged 65 and over in the current seasonal flu vaccine clinical at-risk groups.

These groups were selected because they are at highest risk of severe illness. As vaccine became available, in some areas priority groups i to iii have been vaccinated concurrently, rather than in order of priority.

In addition to these groups, frontline health and social care workers have been offered the vaccine at the same time as the first clinical risk group as they are at increased risk of infection and of transmitting that infection to susceptible patients.

On 19 November 2009 the Department announced Phase 2 of the vaccination programme. The programme will be extended to children over six months and under five years, after the initial priority groups have been vaccinated. It will also be extended to main carers of older and disabled people, subject to discussions with carers' organisations.

Transplant Surgery

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many transplants were performed in private clinical practice using solid organs from living donors removed (a) in NHS facilities and (b) in other facilities in each of the last 10 years. [304249]

Ann Keen: All organ retrieval and organ implantation in the United Kingdom is notified to NHS Blood and Transplant. All living donation in the UK is approved by the Human Tissue Authority to safeguard against coercion and trafficking.

The method of payment for transplant operations carried out using organs taken from living donors in national health service trust facilities is not recorded. Therefore, it is not possible to provide data on the number of transplants that were performed privately using organs retrieved from living donors in NHS facilities.

The following table shows organs retrieved from living donors in non-NHS facilities for transplants performed in private hospitals in the UK in each of the last 10 years. With one exception as detailed, all organs were retrieved in the same private hospital where they were transplanted.

| | Kidney | Liver lobe |
|---|---|---|
| 1999-2000 | 4 | 2 |
| 2000-01 | 1 | 4 |
| 2001-02 | 4 | 0 |
| 2002-03 | 5 | 0 |
| 2003-04 | 2 | 0 |
| 2004-05 | 6 | 0 |
| 2005-06 | 3 | 2 |
| 2006-07[1] | 4 | 0 |

| | Kidney | Liver lobe |
|---|---|---|
| 2007-08 | 5 | 0 |
| 2008-09 | 6 | 2 |

[1] In 2006-07, one kidney was removed in a private hospital and transplanted in an NHS hospital. Transplants carried out on private basis within NHS and Foundation trusts are not recorded separately.

BUSINESS, INNOVATION AND SKILLS

Adult Education: Further Education

Mr. Harper: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills when he expects the independent review commissioned by the Learning and Skills Council and undertaken by the Institute for Employment Studies, of the provision of further education courses for people aged 19 years and over with learning difficulties or disabilities to be published. [302780]

Kevin Brennan [holding answer 30 November 2009]: The IES report raised a number of very important questions and issues that my officials have been considering against current policies. They have been discussing this further with colleagues in the Learning and Skills Council and I expect this work to be concluded very shortly. The report will be published by the end of December.

Apprentices

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many apprenticeships were awarded in each subject sector in the last 12 months. [304505]

Kevin Brennan: The following table shows apprenticeship achievements by Sector Subject Area for 2007/08, the latest year for which we have complete data. Final information for the 2008/09 academic year will be released on 17 December. In-year information for 2008/09 can be found in a Statistical First Release, at:

Apprentices: Accountancy

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many apprenticeships in accounting were awarded by each awarding body in the last 12 months. [304504]

Kevin Brennan: There were 2,700 achievements in the accountancy apprenticeship framework in 2007/08, the latest year for which we have complete data. Final data for the 2008/09 academic year will be published on 17 December. In-year data for 2008/09 can be found in a Statistical First Release at:

http://www.thedataservice.org.uk/statistics/sfroct09/

Information on apprenticeship achievements by awarding body is not available.

Apprentices: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many people in (a) Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency and (b) the London Borough of Bexley, who lost their apprenticeship place in the last 12 months, have found new apprenticeship places with other employers. [300236]

Kevin Brennan: I refer to the answer I gave to him on 5 November 2009, Official Report, column 1232W, when I explained that data about the number of apprentices made redundant are not currently available. We have put in place for this academic year, from 1 August, arrangements to record the number of apprentices who are made redundant. We expect these data to be available from early in 2010. Currently, the National Apprenticeship Service (NAS) has not been approached by providers, employers or individuals in Bexleyheath and Crayford or in Bexley to support any redundant apprentices.

The London NAS has commissioned an ESF-funded Apprentice Redeployment Support Programme to cover the whole of London. It will support up to 1,000 apprentices, from all sectors, who have been made redundant or are under notice of redundancy, with a work-based training placement to enable them to complete their framework and enhance their opportunity to secure alternative employment. The programme, which started in September, is due to run until 2010, and is being delivered by South London Business and Examplas. Performance data are not yet available.

Apprentices: Environment Protection

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many apprenticeship schemes in green jobs have been established since 1997. [304528]

Kevin Brennan: The skills required in green jobs are usually delivered through existing frameworks, for example through engineering or electro-technical apprenticeships. Information on the number of starts or achievements on apprenticeship frameworks is published in a Statistical First Release, and can be found at:

http://www.thedataservice.org.uk/statistics/sfroct09/

Work is currently under way to develop existing and new frameworks in green areas such as low-carbon and renewable energy industries, for example wind-turbine and solar photovoltaic panel installation jobs.

Broadband

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what estimate he has made of the average speed of broadband services available in (a) England and (b) Milton Keynes. [304345]

Mr. Timms: This Department has not made an estimate of the average speed of broadband services available in (a) England and (b) Milton Keynes. However, Ofcom's Broadband Speed report indicates that in April 2009 average broadband speeds in the UK were 4.1 Mbit/s.

Building Colleges for the Future Programme

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what recent discussions he has had with further education college principals about the Building Colleges for the Future programme. [303167]

Kevin Brennan: I have regular meetings with the Association of Colleges and individual college principles. Additionally, in line with Sir Andrew Foster's recommendations, an FE Reference Panel on Capital was established in collaboration with the Association of Colleges (AOC). Through this panel, the Government have consulted with the sector about the recent prioritisation exercise and on the future of the FE Capital programme. The reference panel last met on the 28 October and will continue to meet on a regular basis.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what his plans are on the future of the Building Colleges for the Future programme; and if he will make a statement. [303170]

Kevin Brennan: The Building Colleges for the Future Programme continues to move forward. In total across this current spending period, Government will spend £1.7 billion on college buildings with continued investment earmarked for the next spending period.

Since the completion of the prioritisation exercise, the Department has been working with both the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) and the Association of Colleges (AOC) through the College Reference Panel to consult with the sector to determine how to best invest future investment. The group last met on the 28 October and will do so again in January.

Carbon Monoxide: Alarms

Tom Levitt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (1) what information his Department holds on the proportion of carbon monoxide alarms sold which are (a) provided with lifetime batteries and (b) mains wired; [301461]

(2) what information his Department holds on the proportion of carbon monoxide alarms sold which conform to BS EN 50291; and if he will make a statement. [301462]

Kevin Brennan: The Department does not hold information relating to sales of carbon monoxide detectors. We would advise consumers to only buy carbon monoxide detectors that are marked as conforming to BS EN 50291 as this standard includes performance requirements for such detectors.

Departmental Rail Travel

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills on what date (a) he and (b) the Secretary of State last travelled by train in the course of his official duties. [301202]

Mr. McFadden: My noble Friend the Secretary of State travelled by train on Friday 4 December for an official visit to Birmingham and I travelled to Coventry on Thursday 3 December to visit Modec, an electric van manufacturing company.

Departmental Scientists

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many (a) scientific advisers and (b) civil servants in scientific posts there are in his Department. [301930]

Mr. McFadden: Professor Brian Collins is the Chief Scientific Adviser for the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills. He draws upon science and engineering expertise as necessary from within the department and externally.

There are 197 civil servants in BIS and its agencies who have signed up to the Government Science and Engineering network, which is for civil servants who identify themselves as scientists and/or engineers, or who work in posts which demand science or engineering skills.

Departmental Training

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what training his Department makes available to its officials immediately prior to an overseas posting; and if he will make a statement. [304558]

Mr. McFadden: Most staff from the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS) working overseas do so on loan to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO). The training they receive immediately prior to an overseas posting depends on the post they are to take up.

BIS staff undertaking trade and investment posts overseas normally have the opportunity to attend an induction programme covering UKTI's strategy, structure and business. The programme includes a mix of briefing meetings and broader meetings with key stakeholders, sector specialists and relevant UK companies. Where appropriate, further pre-posting training may be provided by FCO, e.g. language training; IT systems training and similar.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many officials in his Department undertook media skills training in the last 12 month period for which figures are available. [304561]

Mr. McFadden: Media skills training, arranged by the Press Office, has been undertaken by the Department's permanent secretary and the Government chief scientific adviser in the last 12 months.

Details of any other media skills training for officials are not held centrally.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills whether his Department funds any training courses which are undertaken overseas; and if he will make a statement. [304566]

Mr. McFadden: The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS) does not normally fund training courses undertaken overseas. BIS staff working overseas mainly do so on loan to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO). Skills training overseas is usually funded through FCO budgets.

Departmental Working Hours

Andrew Selous: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (1) how many and what percentage of staff of his Department, its executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies work flexibly or part-time; and what his Department's policy is on making jobs available on a job-share or flexible basis; [301335]

(2) when he will respond to question 301335, tabled by the hon. Member for South West Bedfordshire on 19 November 2009, on departmental working practices. [305838]

Mr. McFadden: Currently, there are 416 staff in Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS) who have chosen to work part-time which represents 10.8 per cent. of staff.

The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS) was created in June from the former Department for Innovation for Universities and Skills (DIUS) and former Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR). Workforce data are currently being amalgamated. We do not have full flexible working data for former DIUS staff, but for former BERR staff it is estimated that 1309 members of staff work flexibly, representing 42.8 per cent. of former BERR staff.

This information does not include executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies. Chief executives of our executive agencies will respond to you directly. The Department offers a wide range of flexible working options to support our staff such as part-time working, home working, condensed hours, flexi-time and annualised hours. The Remote computer access and remote telephony options are also available to staff, to help them to work flexibly.

Job-sharing is a way of widening the talent pool and recruiting the best staff. In BIS, we held a job-share and part-time workshop in July, to encourage more managers and staff to consider job share or part-time arrangements. The workshop was attended by over sixty managers and staff. We also highlighted the Cabinet Office job share website:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/news/2009/june/job-share.aspx

We continue to promote job-sharing and job vacancies must explicitly address the scope for flexible working opportunities in posts and state that applications are welcomed from candidates with part-time, job-share or other flexible working arrangements.

Letter from Stephen Speed, dated 9th December 2009:

The Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills has asked me to reply to your question how many and what percentage of staff of his Department, its executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies work flexibly or part-time; and what his Department's policy is on making jobs available on a job-share or flexible basis.

As at 19/11/2009, we have the following numbers of staff who are working flexible working patterns:

| Working pattern | Number of employees |
|---|---|
| Flexible working scheme | 575 |
| Compressed hours | 52 |
| Part-time working | 417 |
| Home working | 26 |
| Remote working | 2 |

We also offer our staff flexi-time, but we do not record centrally the numbers of staff that use this working pattern. We also do not hold records centrally of the number of staff that job share. Job sharers are included in the table as part-time workers.

Recruitment Policy for Flexible Working

The Insolvency Service strongly encourages opportunities for part-time, job share and other flexible working arrangements. When advertising posts, recruiting managers are not able to specify a specific working pattern e.g. full-time, part-time etc, unless a business case has been made through a relevant Director, and agreed by Human Resources. Applicants are not required to indicate their current or proposed working pattern. It is only at the point where an applicant is contacted to be offered the job that a recruiting manager will discuss with the applicant the proposed working pattern.

Recruiting managers are encouraged to accommodate all working patterns, but where there is any doubt on whether a working pattern can be accommodated, the applicant needs to discuss the proposals with their line-manager to establish what options are available to accommodate the pattern. Where the pattern cannot be accommodated, the recruiting manager provides the applicant with written objective justification for the decision.

Letter from Peter Mason, dated 26 November 2009:

I am responding in respect of the National Measurement Office (formerly National Weights and Measures Laboratory) to your Parliamentary Question tabled on 19/11/2009 [reference 301335 ] to the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills, asking how many and what percentage of staff of his Department, its executive agencies and non-departmental public bodies work flexibly or part-time.

The National Measurement Office employs 65 members of staff, of whom 9 (13.9%) work part time and 5 (7.7%) have a home working contract. Statutory provisions have been extended to all staff in line with our equality policy and all staff have access to flexitime working and other flexible working patterns. When posts are advertised each one is considered for various flexible working arrangements according to the business needs of the Agency.

Letter from Sean Dennehey, dated 24 November 2009:

I am responding in respect of the Intellectual Property Office to your Parliamentary Question tabled 19 November 2009, to the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills.

The Intellectual Property Office (IPO), an Executive Agency of the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills, currently has 353 part-time staff, representing 17% of its workforce. The IPO has 72 staff who work from home (representing 8% of the workforce) of which, 17 are part-time.

Other forms of flexible working are available to all IPO staff, including annualised hours, term-time working, job-sharing and compressed hours. Staff are able to manage their work-life balance effectively on a daily basis within a normal bandwidth of 7am to 7pm.

The IPO's flexible working policy is published to all staff via its intranet and sets out its commitment to providing the widest possible range of working patterns for staff. Applications to work flexibly are invited from staff and considered on an individual basis. All vacancies are advertised as open to job share and part-time working.

Letter from Tim Moss, dated December 2009:

I am replying on behalf of Companies House to your Parliamentary Question tabled 19 November 2009, UIN 301335, to the Minister of State for Business, Innovation and Skills.

The majority of Companies House staff work their contracted hours through a flexi system which means they can work flexibly around core hours. 313 members of staff, equating to 26.7% of the workforce, work on a part-time basis.

All jobs are available on a job share or part-time basis.

Departmental Written Questions

John Mason: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many questions tabled for answer on a named day his Department received in each of the last 12 months; and to how many such questions his Department provided a substantive answer on the day named. [305370]

Mr. McFadden: The Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (and the previous Departments for Innovation, Universities and Skills and Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform) received a total of 944 named day parliamentary question during the fourth Session of Parliament. A total of 231 questions received a substantive reply on the day requested. The Department aims to provide information to Members accurately and wherever possible on time and notes the Government Response to the House of Commons Procedure Committee's Third Report, published on 7 December 2009 [HC129].

Following the merger of the two Departments in June 2009, the Business, Innovation and Skills parliamentary unit was restructured and the figures for September to November (which form part of the figures indicated above) were 205 tabled named day parliamentary questions of which 122 received a substantive answer on the date specified.

Electric Vehicles

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what funding his Department has allocated for the purpose of developing electric cars in the last 12 months. [illegible]

Ian Lucas: The Department is supporting the development of electric vehicles through a number of measures including the Technology Strategy Board led Low Carbon Vehicle Innovation Platform, worth approximately £150 million of public sector support; the work of the Research Councils and Energy Technologies Institute; and the Automotive Assistance Programme.

In the last year, the Technology Strategy Board's Innovation Platform has resulted in support for:

A £50 million Low Carbon Vehicle Demonstrator Programme (with public sector funding of £25 million, announced in 2008 and launched in June 2009), which will see more than 340 vehicles being trialled in several UK regions, managed through eight industry-led consortiums, within the next six to eighteen months—the biggest project of its kind in the world.

The development of an all-electric urban car with the provision of grant funding of £4.5 million for a £9 million project led by Gordon Murray Design, which will develop four prototypes of the vehicle by February 2011.

10 innovative research projects through a £10m investment in business led collaborative R and D projects that will lead to the development of cutting-edge ultra efficient electrical systems for electric and hybrid vehicles, and

A number of collaborative R and D projects, which were allocated funding in prior years, but where spend has continued this year as the projects are typically of three to four years duration.

The Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council (EPSRC) has committed £1.5 million to projects commencing in 2009 relating to the development of electric vehicles. This brings their current portfolio of projects to £9.22 million in total. In addition, EPSRC supports a broader range of underpinning research into fuel cells, energy storage and networks and grids.

In July, the Energy Technologies Institute announced it would be committing £3 million to the first stage of a project to provide an evaluation of the consumer response to plug-in vehicles and the supporting infrastructure.

In September, the Department also announced an offer of a £10 million loan to Tata Motors European Technical Centre to support £25 million of investment to develop and manufacture electric vehicles in Coventry. Although the company has now secured alternative funding, it has voiced its appreciation for the offer under the Automotive Assistance Programme and the Government remain ready to support the company should it require it.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what recent discussions he has had on the development of electric cars. [illegible]

Ian Lucas: I have had a range of discussions with the automotive sector about electric vehicles including, for example, with JLR, GM, BMW, Nissan and Toyota.

English Language

Mark Williams: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many individuals (a) registered for and (b) successfully completed an English for speakers of other languages approved course in England in each of the last three years. [301733]

Kevin Brennan: Learner participation and achievements on English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) courses are published in a quarterly statistical first release (SFR). The latest SFR was published on 22 October and shows information for 2005/06 to 2008/09 (provisional):

http://www.thedataservice.org.uk/statistics/sfroct09/

Table 1 shows participation and achievement on approved ESOL courses, and all ESOL courses in 2006/07 to 2008/09 (provisional).

Table 1 Participation and achievement of ESOL courses, 2006/07 to 2008/09 (provisional)

| | 2006/07 | 2007/08 | 2008/09 (provisional)[1] |
|---|---|---|---|
| Participation | | | |
| All ESOL courses | 243,900 | 218,100 | 211,300 |
| Approved ESOL courses | 164,500 | 167,500 | 169,600 |
| Achievement | | | |
| All ESOL courses | 166,500 | 156,200 | 98,000 |
| Approved ESOL courses | 107,800 | 113,300 | 73,600 |

[1] Figures for 2008/09 are not directly comparable to earlier years as the introduction of demand led funding has changed how data is collected and how funded learners are defined from 2008/09 onwards. More information on demand led funding is available at:
http://www.lsc.gov.uk/providers/funding-policy/demand-led-funding.htm.Notes

Notes

1. Figures have been rounded to the nearest hundred.
2. 'Approved' courses are those which can be funded by the Learning and Skills Council under section 96 or section 97 of the Learning and Skills Act 2000.
3. Full-year numbers are a count of the number of learners that participated/achieved at any point during the year. Learners undertaking/achieving more than one course will appear only once in the 'total learners' category for each data collection. However, learners that are included in different data collections, whether that relates to different years or different funding streams, will be counted more than once.
4. Learners undertaking or achieving both approved courses and courses which have not been approved are counted once only in the totals.

Coverage: England

Source: Individualised Learner Record

From 2006/07, the LSC ceased funding very short courses (less than nine hours). Learners were encouraged to enrol on longer, accredited Skills for Life courses. Accredited provision provides a higher quality of learner experience and leads to the gaining of a recognisable, transferable qualification upon completion. The impact of moving from shorter to longer courses is a reduction in overall learner numbers.

Environment Protection: Finance

Gregory Barker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how much funding is available to low carbon innovative companies through the UK Innovation Investment Fund. [304474]

Mr. McFadden: The UK Innovation Investment Fund will operate on a fund of funds structure which means it will not invest directly in companies, but rather invest in a small number of specialist technology funds that have the expertise and track record to invest directly in companies. These underlying funds will focus on investing in growing small businesses, start-ups and spin-outs, in strategically important UK sectors including clean technology, life sciences, advanced manufacturing and ICT. Investments in individual technology funds will be a commercial decision for the fund of funds manager based on the quality of the investment opportunity and the fund's investment strategy. There is no restriction on the spread of spending across technology sectors, with the exception of £25 million minimum investment in each of low carbon and life sciences. We anticipate that the actual level of investment in low carbon will exceed £25 million.

Estate Agents: Registration

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (1) how much the Office of Fair Trading has received from estate agents in registration fees under the Money Laundering Regulations 2007 in each of the last six months; and how much the Office expects to receive in each of the next three years; [303049]

(2) whether the Office of Fair Trading undertook an impact assessment in respect of its proposals to require estate agents to register under the terms of the Money Laundering Regulations 2007; and if he will make a statement; [303050]

(3) what research (a) his Department and (b) the Office of Fair Trading have undertaken on the effect on the estate agency sector of the implementation of the registration requirements under the Money Laundering Regulations 2007; [303113]

(4) what estimate the Office of Fair Trading has made of the annual administrative costs of operating the system of estate agent registration in compliance with the Money Laundering Regulations 2007. [303048]

Kevin Brennan: The Office of Fair Trading's (OFT) registration scheme for money laundering was launched on 31 July. No fees were sought or received prior to 31 July. Forecasts for fee levels in 2010/11 onwards are subject to future public consultation (to start in January 2010). The OFT will be seeking input on its future supervisory approach and fee structures to support supervisory activity. Future costs and fee levels have not yet been estimated. The OFT receives no central funding for its anti-money laundering supervisory role. The regime has to be self funding and the OFT can recover its reasonable costs through fees. The consultation will enable the firms supervised by the OFT to influence future costs.

Regarding the hon. Member's questions in relation to impact assessments and research on the effect of registration on the estate agency sector, I refer to my answer of 21 July, Official Report, column 1676W.

The OFT does not have a figure solely for the administrative costs of operating the system of estate agent registration. This is because there is no differentiation made in the OFT's budget for anti-money laundering between estate agents or Consumer Credit Financial Institutions. The OFT estimates that the cost of setting up and operating the OFT's money laundering registration in 2009/10 is as follows:

Staff costs: £397,000

Non-staff costs: £407,000

Total: £804,000

This figure does not include (i) any costs for corporate support such as IT, finance or accommodation, which is totalled elsewhere in the budget, (ii) recovery of the set-up costs from 2008/09 associated with registration, or (iii) the estimated cost for 2009/10 associated with the operation of the registration system since registration launch on 31 July, which is £150,000. Forecasts for administration costs in 2010/11 onwards are subject to future public consultation and will be dependent on the proportion of firms who register with OFT during the initial six month registration period. These costs have not, as yet, been estimated.

Further Education: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment he has made of the number of violent attacks on further education college staff in the last 12 months. [303171]

Kevin Brennan: The Government are not the employer of FE staff and as such keeps no central records to answer this sort of question.

FE colleges were established as self-governing, independent organisations following the enactment of the Further and Higher Education Act in 1992.

Further Education: Finance

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what recent estimate he has made of the financial losses experienced by further education colleges in the last 12 months which have not received capital funding from the Building Colleges for the Future programme. [303166]

Kevin Brennan: We are not able to provide this information as colleges are not due to submit audited accounts for 2008-09 until the end of the calendar year, which will then be reviewed by the Learning and Skills Council.

The LSC has an existing process in place for dealing with colleges that experience financial difficulties and is committed to ensuring that no college gets into financial difficulty as a result of the Building Colleges for the Future Programme.

Higher Education: Qualifications

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what proportion of foundation degrees are offered by further education colleges. [303719]

Kevin Brennan: 58 per cent. (19,390 students) of UK-domicile foundation degree entrants to higher education institutions and further education colleges in England were taught wholly at further education colleges in 2006/07.

These are the latest figures available from the Higher Education Funding Council for England (HEFCE).

Investors in People

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what the cost to the public purse has been of the Investors in People scheme to date; and if he will make a statement. [304571]

Mr. McFadden: Between 1995 and present, the total amount of funding given by Government to Investors in People UK for the development and delivery of the Investors in People standard is £65,585,404. Information on funding prior to 1995 could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what recent assessment he has made of the effects on the economy of the Investors in People scheme; and if he will make a statement. [304572]

Mr. McFadden: The Department has made no direct assessment of the impact of the Investors in People Framework on the economy. However, IiP UK has itself regularly commissioned research into the benefits of IiP.

Details of recent research is available on the IiP UK website and a copy will be placed in the Libraries.

Investors in People: Government Departments

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many Government (a) departments, (b) agencies and (c) non-departmental public bodies have been certified by Investors in People to date. [304570]

Mr. McFadden: The number of public sector organisations which are or have been recognised as an Investor in People organisation is approximately 21,000. Of this approximately 11,000 are currently recognised.

The way in which data are collected and stored by IiP UK does not allow for a breakdown of this figure into the categories requested. The figure above covers all public sector organisations including (but not limited to) Government Departments, NDPBs, agencies, schools, colleges, universities, hospitals and museums.

Learning and Skills Council for England

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what progress has been made on the transfer of the functions of the Learning and Skills Council to (a) the Skills Funding Agency, (b) the National Apprenticeship Service, (c) the Young People's Learning Agency and (d) local authorities; and if he will make a statement. [300237]

Kevin Brennan: We are making good progress in transferring the functions of the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) to the Skills Funding Agency, the Young People's Learning Agency (YPLA) and local authorities. Officials in this Department and the Department for Children, Schools and Families are working with our new partners to ensure a seamless handover in April and, as part of this, a period of shadow running has already begun. We are on track for local authorities to assume their new responsibilities, and for the new organisations to be fully operational, from April 2010. The National Apprenticeship Service, which has end-to-end responsibility for apprenticeships, has already been established (in April 2009) and will be housed within the Skills Funding Agency from April 2010.

Lord Sugar

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many meetings Lord Sugar has had with (a) Baroness Vadera and (b) Lord Davies of Abersoch since being appointed Enterprise Champion. [305091]

Mr. McFadden [holding answer 8 December 2009]: Between 5 June, when the PM announced the appointment of Lord Sugar as Enterprise Champion, and 3 December, he has met Baroness Vadera four times and Lord Davies four times.

In addition he has seen them on other occasions, including in the House of Lords.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (1) how many times Lord Sugar has visited his Department's premises since being appointed Enterprise Champion; [305093]

(2) how many meetings Lord Sugar has had with officials in his Department since being appointed Enterprise Champion. [305092]

Mr. McFadden [holding answers 8 December 2009]: Lord Sugar is an adviser to Government and small business and does not have a Department.

He has met BIS officials on over 40 occasions between the announcement of his appointment and 3 December. He has visited the Department over 20 times in the same period.

However the main focus of his work as Enterprise Champion has been meeting small businesses and seeing business support delivery around the country.

Motor Vehicles: Manufacturing Industries

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many registered companies there were in the automotive industry in each year since 2005. [305303]

Ian Lucas: There are currently 73,286 limited companies in the automotive industry registered with Companies House. The figures are based on the standard industrial classification code shown on the annual return, which means that no figures are included for companies incorporated in 2009 as they have not yet filed their first annual return. The annual figures are not available as the register is constantly updated with no historical databases retained. Detailed information comparing dates of incorporation and dissolution could be secured only at disproportionate cost.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many registered companies in the automotive industry have received Government assistance in each year since 2005. [305304]

Ian Lucas: Data about the wide range of Government support that is available and has been taken up by the automotive sector could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, the number of registered automotive companies in England that have received Grant For Business Investment (GBI) or Selective Finance For Investment In England (SFIE) assistance in each year since 2005 is as follows:

| | Number | Value of offers Accepted (£000) |
|---|---|---|
| 2005 | 12 | 11,864 |
| 2006 | 9 | 9,570 |
| 2007 | 10 | 4,555 |
| 2008 | 6 | 3,063 |
| 2009[1] | 6 | 7,399 |

[1] To end Sept 2009

The introduction of the car scrappage scheme at a cost of £400 million has benefited companies in both manufacturing and retail.

National Star College: Finance

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills when he expects a decision to be taken on funding for the development of the National Star College; and if he will take steps to ensure that funding is provided for the development of the college planned before the capital expenditure programme of the Learning and Skills Council was put on hold. [302787]

Kevin Brennan: Under the Learning and Skills Act 2000, Ministers may not direct the Learning and Skills Council in its decision making regards individual capital approvals.

However, I met with the Principal of National Star on 9 July and agreed to ask the LSC to explore potential options for the college to move forward. This work continues and I can confirm that for the future capital programme, the LSC is working with the Association of Colleges College Reference Panel to consider how to prioritise future investment.

Royal Mail: Industrial Disputes

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what assessment he has made of the effect of the industrial action by Royal Mail employees called by the Communication Workers Union on small businesses in (a) Vale of York constituency, (b) North Yorkshire and (c) England; and if he will make a statement. [305224]

Mr. McFadden: It is clear that industrial action by Royal Mail staff will impact on those customers that heavily rely on Royal Mail services and we are aware that many small businesses throughout the country use postal services on a daily basis.

The Government want to see a successful outcome to the discussions between Royal Mail and the Communication Workers Union under the agreement of 6 November and we welcome the appointment of Roger Poole, former Assistant General Secretary of Unison and Chairman of the Parades Commission for Northern Ireland, to independently oversee the process. It is important that both parties keep talking until an agreement is made on the way forward on the next phase of modernisation, which everyone accepts is vital for the future of the company.

Training: Government Contracts

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps his Department is taking to encourage holders of Government contracts to develop skills among their workforce. [304556]

Kevin Brennan: The Government are committed to using the unique leverage of their £220 billion procurement programme to promote skills training and apprenticeship opportunities. In September 2009, I announced a new ambition to support 20,000 new apprenticeships over the next three years through Government procurement. Departments and Agencies will play a central role in delivering this ambition by building skills and apprenticeships considerations into both new and existing contracts.

The Department is supporting skills training and apprenticeship places through its procurement spend. In the Learning and Skills Council's Building Colleges for the Future programme, recent estimates suggest that on average one in every 20 workers employed on college construction projects is an apprentice.

In April the then Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills and the Office of Government Commerce published practical guidance on how skills training and apprenticeships can be promoted through procurement processes. The guidance has been widely adopted.

Unemployment

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what estimate he has made of the proportion of those not in employment, education or training who were unskilled in each of the last 18 months. [302570]

Kevin Brennan: The following table gives the proportion of people aged[1] 18 to 24 in England not in employment, education or training (NEET) who did not hold a level 2 qualification in each quarter during the last 18 months. Monthly estimates are not available as the Labour Force Survey, from which this information is produced, is run on a quarterly basis.

Proportion of 18 to 24-year-olds in England whose highest qualification is below level 2 or have no qualifications

Unemployment: Milton Keynes

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what proportion of people in Milton Keynes aged (a) 16 to 18 and (b) 19 to 24 years were not in education, training or employment in each quarter of the last 10 years. [304346]

Mr. Iain Wright: I have been asked to reply.

Estimates of participation in education, training and employment for those aged 16 to 18 are published by the Department in a Statistical First Release (SFR) each June and can be found on the Department's website at

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000792/index.shtml

These estimates cannot be broken down to local authority level. However, Connexions services collect information on the number and proportion of 16 to 18-year-olds NEET in each local authority area. Figures for Milton Keynes are shown below. Figures for Milton Keynes are not available prior to 2006.

16 to 18-year-olds NEET in Milton Keynes (Connexions estimates)

| | Proportion (percentage) |
|---|---|
| 2006 | 6.5 |
| 2007 | 5.8 |
| 2008 | 5.9 |

Equivalent information is not available for 18 to 24-year-olds.

We are making all 16 and 17-year-olds an offer of suitable place in learning through the September Guarantee. The Department has asked local authorities to focus in particular on those who are disengaged from education or missing school. The 14 to 19 curriculum reforms are creating a range of different learning opportunities suit all young people, including those who need help to re-engage in learning. Connexions services provide tailored support and advice, both on accessing education, employment or training, and on personal issues.

My right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister announced on 18 November plans to guarantee an offer of an Entry to Employment place to any 16 and 17-year-old who is not in education, employment or training (NEET) in January 2010. This will give those who were not ready to engage in learning in September, or who have since left, a further opportunity to get the skills they need to succeed.

Unemployment: Young People

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills how many people aged between (a) 16 to 18 and (b) 19 to 24 years old in each ethnic group were not in education, training or employment in each quarter of the last 10 years. [303831]

Kevin Brennan: The table gives the number and percentage not in education, employment or training (NEET) broken down by ethnic group for people aged[1] 16 to 18 and 19 to 24 in England. Due to the small sample sizes involved in analysis at this level of detail, quarterly data will not give robust estimates and the Annual Population Survey has been used instead.

Details of a respondent's ethnicity was not recorded prior to 2001, therefore the estimates are given for each year from 2001 to 2008.

Please note that these estimates are subject to large sampling variability and should therefore be treated with caution and viewed in conjunction with their Confidence Intervals[2] (CIs), which indicate how accurate an estimate is. For example, a CI of +/- 4.2 percentage points (pp) means that the true value is between 4.2pp above the estimate and 4.2pp below the estimate.

Union Learning Fund: Finance

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what Union Learning Fund courses his Department and its predecessor has funded in the last five years. [304545]

Mr. McFadden: The Union Learning Fund (ULF) is not used to directly fund the provision of education or training courses. Over the last five years my Department has provided £86 million to help trade unions boost their capacity as learning organisations and use their influence with employers, employees and learning providers to encourage greater take up of learning in the workplace.

There are now over 23,000 trained Union Learning Representatives who, supported by ULF, have helped more than 800,000 workers back into learning since the Fund was introduced in 1998. Over 220,000 were helped last year, many from those hard to reach groups, who employers and training providers find it so difficult to engage with, including over 33,000 workers with poor basic literacy and numeracy skills.

Vocational Training

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Business, Innovation and Skills what steps his Department plans to take to assist people who have lost their jobs during the economic downturn to gain skills and qualifications necessary for them to obtain employment. [301634]

Kevin Brennan: New offers worth over £300 million over two years will help up to 235,000 people get the training they need to obtain sustainable employment. These programmes are in addition to existing support for the unemployed available through mainstream funding.

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Church of England: Green Issues

Mr. Hurd: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners what payments the Church Commissioners have made to Green Issues in the last 12 months; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contract under which such payments have been made. [305164]

Sir Stuart Bell: In promoting strategic development opportunities, the commissioners use a wide range of professional advisers, including public consultation consultants, and I can confirm that Green Issues is one of the firms used.

The firm's primary role is to organise the public consultation associated with the promotion of major development proposals, including exhibitions and workshops, as well as liaising with various third parties such as local councillors. However, the terms of engagement are commercially sensitive and therefore cannot be deposited in the Library.

Public consultation is, of course, part of the statutory planning process but we also view it as a welcome opportunity to engage with local communities.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Costs

Sir Menzies Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has charged (a) other Government departments, (b) private sector companies and (c) foreign governments in employment costs for members of (i) his Department's civilian staff, (ii) the MOD Police Service, (iii) MOD Police and Guarding Agency and (iv) military personnel of the (A) Royal Navy, (B) Royal Marines, (C) Army and (D) Royal Air Force in each of the last five years. [304644]

Mr. Kevan Jones: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Charges for personnel services are levied against outside bodies in accordance with the principles set out by HM Treasury in chapter 6 of Managing Public Money which requires that full costs should normally be recovered for any goods and services provided by MOD.

Armed Forces: Manpower

(2) what the (a) required and (b) actual trained strength is of each (i) regular infantry and (ii) Royal Marine battalion. [305724]

Mr. Kevan Jones: Unfit for duty has been interpreted as medically unfit to perform any duty. Personnel unfit for duty in their primary role but who can perform a role in an alternative capacity are not included in the following tables.

[304669]

Jonathan Shaw: Motability is an independent charitable company and is responsible for the administration of the Motability Scheme. They have written separately to the hon. Member with such information as they have available.

New Deal for Young People

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions with reference to the answer of 11 November 2009, Official Report, column 583W, on work experiences: young people, how many places were available on each option in the New Deal for Young People in each of the last 24 months. ### New Deal Schemes

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many bids her Department has received for Flexible New Deal Phase 2 contracts; and how many full-time equivalent staff in her Department are responsible for analysing and evaluating bids submitted for Phase 2 Flexible New Deal contracts. [304539]

Jim Knight: To date, the Department has not received any bids. The deadline for flexible new deal phase 2 bids to be submitted to DWP is 6 January 2010.

The number of full-time equivalent staff likely to be involved in the evaluation will be influenced by the number of tenders that are actually returned and will include staff from across several expert domains.

Remploy: Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what payments Remploy has made to (a) Portland PR and (b) Greenhause Public Communication in each of the last three years; for what purposes; and if she will place in the Library a copy of the contract under which such payments have been made. [302301]

Jonathan Shaw: Remploy has made total payments to Portland PR of £174,680 between 2007 and 2009.

In 2007-08 the amount was £160,665 for public affairs strategy and communications work. £35,000 of this spend was specifically for factory closure communications.

In 2008-09 the amount spent was £14,015 for the public affairs strategy and communications programme.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many requests under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 his Department received in 2008; and how many of these received a substantive response within 20 days. [305490]

Ann McKechin: Statistics published by the Ministry of Justice on Freedom of Information in central Government for 2008 show that of a total of 111 non-routine requests received by the Department (based on aggregated quarterly data) 71 per cent. (79) received a substantive response within 20 days. 78 per cent. (87) of requests were dealt with 'in time', that is within 20 days by meeting the deadline or other permitted extension deadline.

The statistics can be found on the Ministry of Justice website at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm and copies are available in the Library.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on (a) alcohol and (b) entertainment in the last 12 months. [305532]

Departmental Publicity

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department has spent on (a) Ministerial photoshoots and (b) production of videos in which Ministers appear in the last three years for which figures are available. [305524]

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office has incurred no expenditure on ministerial photoshoots or production of videos in the last three years.

Ann McKechin: Details of the number of questions tabled for answer on a named day and those that received a substantive answer on the day named are shown in the following table:

| | Number of named day questions tabled | Percentage of named day questions that received a substantive answer on the day named |
|---|---|---|
| December 2008 | 2 | 100 |
| January 2009 | 1 | 100 |

Central guidance on answering parliamentary questions is now available in the "Guide to Parliamentary Work", at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/parliamentary-clerk-guide.aspx

In the response to the Procedure Committee Report on written parliamentary questions, the Government accepted the Committee's recommendation that Departments be required to provide the Procedure Committee with sessional statistics in a standard format on the time taken to respond to written parliamentary questions, accompanied by an explanatory memorandum setting out any factors affecting their performance. This will be taken forward as soon as possible.

Hotels

Ann McKechin: The Scotland Office does not separately record expenditure on hotel accommodation from other forms of subsistence such as meal allowances, day subsistence, incidental expenses and motor mileage.

All travel and subsistence is conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Ministerial Code, Travel by Ministers and the Civil Service Management Code.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Department of Resources: Finance

Mr. Chope: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how much money was owed to the House of Commons Department of Resources by (a) hon. Members, (b) Officers of the House and (c) the Press Gallery Committee for expenditures incurred on catering and retail goods and services on 1 September 2009. [302830]

Nick Harvey: It is not possible to provide the figures requested as at 1 September, except at disproportionate cost. This is because the database changes every day and the figures are only readily available if the data for a particular day have been retained. Reconstructing the data for a past day for which the data have not been retained would be an extremely time-consuming exercise involving a lot of manual adjustments to the data.

Speaker's Adviser

Kate Hoey: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission whether Mr. Speaker's special adviser has claimed any expenses for travel since his appointment. [305840]

Nick Harvey: No expenses of any kind have been claimed.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Creativity and Business International Network: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what proportion of his budget for c&binet for 2009-10 was spent on the event held at The Grove between 26 and 28 October 2009. [305622]

Mr. Bradshaw: The gross costs of planning and staging the event at The Grove accounted for approximately 40 per cent. of the budget allocated to c&binet during 2009-10. The investment to develop a network of key professionals in the creative industries also contributed to the success of the event. DCMS is currently in discussions with private sector companies to take forward the project. This has allowed us to reduce the overall budget from £3 million to £2 million over the period 2008-09 to 2010-11.

Departmental Sick Leave

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many days of sick leave were taken by staff in his Department and its agency in each of the last 12 months for which figures are available; and what the cost to his Department was of such sick leave. [305556]

Mr. Simon: The information is as follows:

Film: Israel

Mr. Byers: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to sign the co-production treaty concerning the film industry with the Government of Israel. [305358]

Mr. Simon: We hope to conclude negotiations with Israel on a film co-production agreement and to be able to announce arrangements for the signing of this agreement soon.

Grayling Political Strategy: Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what payments Arts Council East has made to Grayling Political Strategy in the last 12 months; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contract under which such payments have been made. [305135]

Margaret Hodge: Arts Council England has advised the following position on the subject of expenditure relating to Regional Cities East (RCE).

Regional Cities East is a partnership between Colchester borough council, Ipswich borough council, Luton borough council, Norwich city council, Peterborough city council, Southend-on-Sea borough council, Arts Council England East and the East of England Development Agency.

In 2008-09, RCE had an overall budget of £120,000 from the partners, including a £60,000 contribution from Arts Council East, to promote the world class arts and cultural assets of these key cities.

In November 2008 Colchester borough council, as budget holder for Regional Cities East, contracted Grayling to deliver the first stage of this programme. Their fee was £90,876.00 + VAT for an initial 12 months from 1 November 2008 to 31 October 2009 and this resulted in press coverage equivalent to an editorial value of £334,000.

ACE East has had no contract with Grayling.

Olympic Legacy Board

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the membership is of the new Olympic Legacy board announced in his Department's press release of 2 October 2009; how many times the board has met; and on how many occasions (a) Sir Steve Redgrave and (b) each of the other six Olympic and Paralympic medallists has attended the board's meetings. [305790]

The board has met twice since October 2009 and is due to meet again in January, February and March 2010. Sir Steve has attended one meeting; the School Sports Ambassadors have not attended either meeting.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Christmas

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department budgeted for Christmas trees in 2009. [306150]

Paul Goggins: The Northern Ireland Office (NIO), including its arms length bodies and the Public Prosecution Service Northern Ireland but excluding its agencies and NDPBs, does not hold the information required to answer this question because budget information is not broken down to this level of detail.

Employment: Religion

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) Catholics and (b) Protestants were employed in the (i) private and (ii) public sectors in Northern Ireland in each of the past 30 years; how many Catholics and Protestants were employed in the (A) Fire Service, (B) Police Service and (C) Civil Service in Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years; and what percentage of the working age population of each community each of these figures represented. [302336]

Paul Goggins: Employment figures for the total number of Catholics and Protestants employed by the private and public sectors in Northern Ireland and for the proportions of each community that these figures represent are a matter for the Northern Ireland Administration; figures relating to the Fire Service and Northern Ireland Civil Service are also a matter for the Northern Ireland Administration.

The Chief Constable has provided the following table which gives the number of Catholics and Protestants employed as police officers in the Police Service of Northern Ireland in each of the last 10 years.

| | Regular police officers | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Protestant | Catholic | Not determined | As a percentage of total economically active Protestants[1] | As a percentage of total economically active Catholics[1] |

[1] This information has been derived from the Summary Report of Northern Ireland 2001 Population Census. Economically active persons are those aged 16 to 64.

Total number of economically active Protestants—401,473;

Total number of economically active Catholics—299,218.

Irish Language

Mark Durkan: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to Annex B of the St. Andrews Agreement of October 2006, what steps the Government plans to take to fulfil the commitment to introduce legislation on the Irish language, reflecting on the experience of Wales and the Republic of Ireland. [304265]

Paul Goggins: Annex B of the St. Andrews Agreement committed the Government to introducing an Irish Language Act, reflecting on the experience of Wales and Ireland, and to work with the Executive to enhance and protect the development of the Irish language.

The Government took forward this commitment through the publication of two consultation papers in December 2006 and March 2007 setting out their proposed approach to an Irish Language Act. The latter included draft clauses.

Following the restoration of the Northern Ireland Assembly on 8 May 2007, the responsibility in this area passed to the Northern Ireland Assembly and Executive.

The Northern Ireland Executive was placed under a statutory duty, by the Northern Ireland (St. Andrews Agreement) Act 2006, to adopt a strategy to enhance and protect the development of Irish language. The Executive has a similar statutory duty to enhance and develop the Ulster Scots language, heritage and culture.

The Government recognise the close connection between language and identity issues, and understand the concern of individuals to see that the language in which they were brought up, or which is used in their communities, is respected. They therefore believe that these statutory duties are of particular importance and encourage the Executive to complete and publish their strategies.

The Government reaffirmed, at the British-Irish Council on 13 November 2009, their commitment to work with the Executive to support the development and implementation of strategies for Irish language and Ulster Scots and are continuing to work with other Administrations through the British-Irish Council to share best practice on the enhancement and protection of minority languages.

In addition, the Government are seeking views in their consultation paper "A Bill of Rights for Northern Ireland: Next Steps" on what additional legislative protections in relation to the Irish language might be included in a Northern Ireland Bill of Rights.

Work is also being taken forward in relation to Irish language broadcasting. The British and Irish Governments hope shortly to sign a memorandum of understanding which will contain commitments to the continuing widespread availability of TG4 in Northern Ireland following the digital switchover, and to exploring the increased availability of RTE in Northern Ireland.

Northern Ireland Courts Service: Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what payments the Northern Ireland Courts Service has made to Stratagem in the last 12 months; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contract under which such payments have been made. [305161]

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

The Northern Ireland Court Service has not had a contract with Stratagem since March 2009. Between December 2008 and March 2009 the Court Service made payments totalling £1,479.50 to Stratagem for the provision of political monitoring.

Bridget Prentice: I have been asked to reply.

During the last 12 months the Northern Ireland Legal Services Commission has made payments to Weber Shandwick—Belfast totalling £52 582.84 for communication services for the period May 2008 to August 2009.

A statement of the remit, scope and terms of reference for the contract has been placed in the Library.

Offenders: Deportation

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland with reference to the answer of 4 November 2009, Official Report, column 1039W, on devolution (1) whether primary legislation would be required to provide for a reserve power to block the repatriation of foreign national prisoners from Northern Ireland following the devolution of criminal justice and policing; and if he will make a statement; [304525]

(2) what circumstances would constitute grounds of national security for the purpose of exercising a reserve power to block the repatriation of foreign national prisoners from Northern Ireland following the devolution of criminal justice and policing; and if he will make a statement. [304526]

Paul Goggins: While the repatriation of foreign prisoners will become the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Minister for Justice after the devolution of criminal justice and policing, decisions on the grounds of national security will, however, remain excepted.

New primary legislation would not be required. The grounds of national security would be interpreted consistently with case law.

Terrorism: Compensation

Sammy Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much compensation has been paid out to those affected by terrorist activity in Northern Ireland in each year since 1979. [305412]

Paul Goggins: The Compensation Agency is unable to provide the information requested, as the records held do not identify separately claims made as a result of terrorist activity.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Climate Change

18. Jessica Morden: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his most recent assessment is of the effectiveness of the UK's adaptation to climate change; and if he will make a statement. [305592]

Dan Norris: Since the Climate Change Act came into force earlier this year, we have:

launched the UK Climate Projections 09 established the Adaptation Sub Committee; and set out the strategy for using the Adaptation Reporting Power

The Adapting to Climate Change Programme is driving work on the first UK Climate Change Risk Assessment which will report in January 2012, in line with the timetable set out in the 2009 Act.

Food Labelling

21. John Penrose: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues on country of origin food labelling. [305596]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I have regular discussions with ministerial colleagues and the Food Standards Agency to ensure that we have tighter, clearer and more accurate origin labelling.

Waste-to-Energy Plants

Simon Hughes: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps are being taken to increase the use of waste-to-energy plants; and if he will make a statement. [305575]

Dan Norris: The Government's Renewable Energy Strategy sets out current and future policies to divert biomass waste from landfill, support the supply of biomass waste for energy, and drive the delivery of the necessary infrastructure.

DEFRA has established the Waste Infrastructure Delivery Programme to support local authorities and accelerate the building of the infrastructure needed to treat residual waste.

Biodiversity

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when his Department (a) concluded and (b) expects to publish its most recent assessment of the status of the Biodiversity Action Plan, Priority Species and Priority Habitats. [305797]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The most recent assessment of the status of Biodiversity Action Plan Priority Species and Habitats was published in April 2009, as part of the update to the UK Biodiversity Indicators in Your Pocket. This can be found on the website of the Joint Nature Conservation Committee.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures he has put in place to halt biodiversity loss beyond the expiry of the EU's 2010 targets; and if he will make a statement. [305798]

Huw Irranca-Davies: We are fully committed to identifying a new challenging 'post 2010' biodiversity target and we are playing a leading role in establishing it. For example, earlier this year, we hosted an international workshop in Reading which reviewed the 2010 indicators and considered implications for post 2010 indicator development. We have also been feeding into key discussions at EU and global level on the development of the post 2010 framework. Linked to this, we will co-host an international workshop with Brazil in January. This will be a key stepping stone on the path to agreeing a post 2010 target, or targets, in Japan next October.

Within the UK, we have published targets to increase the population and range of our priority species and restore and expand priority habitats by 2015.

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of progress since February 2009 towards meeting the objectives set out in the EU's 2010 targets to halt biodiversity loss; and if he will make a statement. [305799]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The European Commission and member states are currently compiling data to allow an assessment next year of progress against the targets in the EU Biodiversity Action Plan. We measure our progress towards the EU's 2010 target to halt biodiversity loss through the UK Biodiversity Indicators. This was reported in the National Statistics publication "Biodiversity Indicators in Your Pocket 2007", which was updated most recently in April 2009. Statistics for wild birds were updated in October 2009 and those for sites of special scientific interest (SSSIs) are updated monthly.

Overall, 23 (72 per cent.) of the 32 measures that comprise the UK Biodiversity Indicators are "improving" or show "little or no overall change" since the year 2000. In particular, 89 per cent. of SSSIs are in favourable or recovering condition, agri-environment schemes are leading to significant improvements, and we have made great strides with the Marine and Coastal Access Act 2009.

Fisheries: White Fish

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what consultation his Department undertook with the under 10 metre fishing industry regarding the introduction of the 500kg cod lottery draw. [306058]

Huw Irranca-Davies: No formal consultation exercise was undertaken with the 10 metre and under fishing industry about the allocation of the additional 18 tonnes of cod quota in area VIId. It was not possible given the very short time available to arrange access to the additional fishing opportunity and still allow fishermen a reasonable chance to catch the fish before the end of the year.

The Marine and Fisheries Agency did, however, consult a number of individual fishermen on the south coast of England on a strictly informal basis on alternative allocation approaches before the final method of allocation was decided upon.

Tim Farron: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his most recent assessment is of the likely effects on the under 10 metre fishing industry of the introduction of the 500kg cod lottery draw. [306059]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The additional 18 tonnes of quota the Marine and Fisheries Agency was able to obtain for the inshore vessels to fish for cod in area VIId will prove a valuable, if limited, fishing opportunity for those vessels that received the quota. It is estimated that the additional quota will have a total value of c.£36,000 at current market prices, or £1,000 for each vessel that receives an allocation of 500kg of quota. An allocation of 500kg of quota per vessel should allow those vessels to undertake normal fishing activity and minimise discards in a mixed fishery until the end of the year.

Given the strictly limited quota available, it was not possible to open the fishery to all the licensed vessels that may have wished to take part in the fishery and remain confident of meeting the UK obligations in ensuring there is no overfish of this quota.

Flood Control

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of Ofwat's final determination on the ability of water companies to provide alternative water supplies in the event of contamination of usual supplies by flooding; and what recent assessment he has made of the capacity of water companies to increase the resilience of their water treatment plants to flooding. [304954]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Water companies have to provide a safe and secure water supply. It is for the companies themselves to take responsibility and make decisions on how best to protect the essential services they supply.

In its final determination Ofwat included over £414 million to improve the resilience of water and sewerage services against external hazards such as flooding.

Companies are also obliged to have emergency plans in place to maintain supply either through network resilience or deployment of bowsers, for which Ofwat has also allowed funding.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reasons the chief engineers and regional engineers in each region of England are no longer in place; and what alternative structure is in place for the carrying out of their functions. [304955]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA has given the Environment Agency a strategic overview of flood and coastal erosion risk management and, in line with this, passed it the management of the capital improvements programme. The chief engineer and regional engineers were primarily focused on this work.

To facilitate this transition the Environment Agency has strengthened its role at both regional and area levels, for example, by recruiting additional coastal engineers. DEFRA also seconded staff to the Environment Agency to ensure continuity of work and training.

DEFRA retains a smaller cadre of engineers and other experienced professionals who provide input to policy development and an intelligent client function for the flood and coastal erosion risk management programme.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people are registered with Floodline Warnings Direct. [305075]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency has over 450,000 registered users on Floodline Warnings Direct.

The Environment Agency's Floodline Warnings Direct is a free service that provides flood warnings direct to users by telephone, mobile, email, SMS text message and fax.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects a final national flood emergency framework to be implemented. [305076]

Huw Irranca-Davies: A fully developed National Flood Emergency Framework will be in place by June 2010, in line with the commitment given in response to Sir Michael Pitt's review on the 2007 floods. The Framework will provide the basis for Exercise Watermark—our planned national exercise in March 2011.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department has spent on flood defences in each of the last five years. [305230]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA provides funding to operating authorities for flood defences from the allocation of funding for flood and coastal erosion risk management. Over the past five financial years this allocation totalled:

| Financial year | DEFRA funding (£ million) |
|---|---:|
| 2008-09 | 568.1 |
| 2007-08 | 507.5 |
| 2006-07 | 506.0 |
| 2005-06 | 514.8 |
| 2004-05 | 415.4 |

Forests

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received on the proposed sites for tree-planting as recommended by the National Assessment of Forestry and Climate Change. [305624]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The National Assessment of Forestry and Climate Change published on 25 November does not put forward any specific sites for tree planting and we have not received any representations.

Our Strategy for England's Trees, Woods and Forests puts a strong emphasis on planting the right tree in the right place and we will be taking an integrated approach to see where additional woodland can complement other activities.

Forests: West Midlands

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he plans to take steps to increase the area of woodland in the West Midlands. [305625]

Huw Irranca-Davies: As part of the Low Carbon Transition Plan announced in July, the Forestry Commission and DEFRA are working to develop the framework that would be needed to enable 10,000 hectares of new woodland to be created each year for the next 15 years. As part of this, the Forestry Commission will be working with partners in each region to identify the scope for increasing the area of woodland.

Horticulture

John Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what measures he is considering to increase the amount of home-grown horticultural produce; and if he will make a statement. [305583]

Hilary Benn: On 21 October I chaired the first meeting of the fruit and vegetable task force. It will look at how we can boost domestic production and consumption of fruit and vegetables in England. This is in addition to the support already provided which includes funding up to £7 million of research and development last year on horticultural crops.

International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether he has made an assessment of the outcomes of the International Union for Conservation of Nature meeting held on 26 November 2009. [305623]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Secretary of State co-hosted this roundtable event along with Ashok Khosla, the President of the International Union of Conservation and Nature, in support of the Global Partnership on Forest Landscape Restoration. In the co-chairs' summary, "The London Challenge", they recognise the progress made by the partnership since its establishment in 2003, the considerable potential for forest restoration globally and the important role of forest restoration in both climate change mitigation and adaptation. Work on restoration complements the work we are doing to tackle deforestation and forest degradation. The summary goes on to reflect issues raised by participants and actions to take forest restoration forward in the coming months. The final summary will be posted on the partnership's website following its distribution to participants.

Marine Management Organisation

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department spent on consultancy fees during the selection process of the headquarters of the Marine Management Organisation. [305085]

Huw Irranca-Davies: DEFRA has paid £6,900 in respect of property consultancy, including the site search and financial appraisal of the property options, for the Marine Management Organisation headquarters building in Newcastle.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what arrangements have been made for the temporary accommodation of Marine and Fisheries Agency staff in Newcastle before moving to Lancaster House; and what expenditure he expects his Department to incur on such temporary accommodation. [305086]

Huw Irranca-Davies: Since the beginning of October 2009, interim accommodation for Marine and Fisheries Agency staff based in Newcastle has been the Government Office North East. Additional accommodation from 14 December will be in city centre commercial offices. It is estimated that the cost of this interim accommodation will amount to approximately £150,000.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what expenditure has been incurred on recruitment agencies engaged to recruit staff for the Marine and Fisheries Agency in the last 12 months. [305087]

Huw Irranca-Davies: In the 12 months up to November 2009, approximately £153,000 of expenditure had been incurred on recruitment agencies as part of a continuing exercise to recruit Marine and Fisheries Agency staff.

Salmon: River Dee

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department has made a recent estimate of the size of the population of salmon in the River Dee. [305341]

Huw Irranca-Davies: The Environment Agency carries out an annual assessment of the number of adult salmon entering the River Dee using data from a fish trap at Chester Weir. The latest available assessment indicates a population of 5,437 adult salmon entering the River Dee in 2008.

TRANSPORT

Bridges: Workington

Mark Hunter: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what plans there are to build a bailey bridge capable of taking wheeled vehicles across the River Derwent in Workington, Cumbria. [304488]

Mr. Khan: Following the recent floods in Cumbria an immediate priority in Workington is to improve transport links for communities on either side of the River Derwent, which have been significantly curtailed.

The Government are working closely with Cumbria county council on re-establishing those transport links. An additional rail station has been built at North Workington to allow a shuttle rail service to operate. The Army have also built a temporary footbridge, which opened on 7 December. These facilities are being supported with Government funding.

Cumbria county council are considering what measures would be appropriate to restore road vehicle links across the River Derwent at Workington. The Department for Transport is funding project management support to assist the authority with their infrastructure recovery planning. When Cumbria county council decides on how to restore road vehicle links, they will be able to include the costs in their claim to the Department for emergency capital highway maintenance funding.

Bus Services: Finance

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what bids for funding for new and enhanced bus services for local authorities and their partners he has received under the Kickstart Bus Funding Competition announced in January 2009; and when he plans to announce the successful schemes to be funded. [304274]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Transport received 105 bids for funding, totalling £63 million, from local authorities across England. An announcement will be made in due course.

Bus Services: Lincolnshire

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how much his Department has paid in grants to North East Lincolnshire local authority to provide free bus travel for pensioners in the last 12 months. [304428]

Mr. Khan: In the last 12 months, The Department for Transport has made payments totalling £614,039 in respect of concessionary travel special grant to North East Lincolnshire. The special grant provides funding solely to cover the extra costs that followed from the improvement to the statutory concession to all-England travel in April 2008. The Department for Communities and Local Government continues to provide the bulk of concessionary travel funding to local authorities through Formula Grant.

Crossrail Line

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how many lorry movements carrying waste from tunnelling as part of the Crossrail project he estimates will take place in each month in 2012. [304287]

Mr. Khan: It is estimated that there will be around 60 lorry movements carrying waste from tunnelling as part of the Crossrail project per day during 2012. The need to reduce the number of such movements during the periods of the Olympic and Paralympic Games is recognised and is being actively considered by Crossrail Ltd. in consultation with the Olympic Delivery Authority, although the precise details will not be known until nearer the time.

85 per cent. of the excavated material from the tunnel drives will be removed by rail and boat, removing an estimated 500,000 lorry movements from the streets of London during the life of the project.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport by what means (a) contaminated tunnel waste, (b) non-contaminated tunnel waste and (c) waste of indeterminate quality from the Crossrail project will be disposed of. [304288]

Mr. Khan: Virtually all of the 7.3 million $m^3$ of excavated material is expected to be clean and non-contaminated and can be reused elsewhere. A significant proportion of this material will be transported to Wallasea Island in Essex to enhance a nature reserve for the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds (RSPB). This will be one of the largest new wetland nature reserves in Europe for some 50 years. Other sites being considered for this material include South East of England Development Agency (SEEDA) regeneration sites in Kent.

If any contaminated material or waste of indeterminate quality is found it will be transported to a specialist treatment facility.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what requirements he has identified for the need to stockpile waste during the construction phase of the Crossrail project. [304289]

Mr. Khan: It is anticipated that all categories of excavated material will be transported straight to its intended destination without the need for stockpiling. However, each construction site will have limited stockpiling capacity in case of unforeseen incidents on the rail, water or road networks.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what assessment he has made of the (a) carbon footprint and (b) environmental sustainability of (i) the construction of Crossrail and (ii) the completed scheme; and what benchmarking exercises his Department has carried out in this respect. [304290]

Mr. Khan: The carbon footprint and environmental impacts of Crossrail during both construction and operation were assessed and presented in the Crossrail Environmental Statement, which was published in February 2005.

As a sustainable transport project Crossrail forms part of the Mayor of London's 'London Plan' which was itself subject to a sustainability assessment.

In addition Crossrail has worked with the Building Research Establishment to develop a BRE Environmental Assessment Method (BREEAM) for its sub-surface stations and is using that and the Civil Engineering Environmental Quality Assessment and Award Scheme (CEEQUAL) to benchmark the environmental performance of its designs.

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what preparations have been made to reduce the effect of lorry movements associated with Crossrail construction during the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. [304291]

Mr. Khan: Crossrail Ltd. and the Olympic Delivery Authority are working together to ensure that the Games proceed unhindered, and to ensure that the impact of Crossrail works is minimised during the Olympic/Paralympic Games periods.

The need to reduce the number of lorry movements during the periods of the Olympic and Paralympic Games is recognised and is being actively considered. The precise details will not be known until nearer the time.

Departmental Plants

Grant Shapps: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how much has been spent by his Department on (a) cut flowers and (b) pot plants in each of the last three years. [306145]

Chris Mole: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, the Department for Transport spent £87,401 on pot plants and £3,419 on cut flowers in 2008-09. This excludes spend incurred at the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency as the information requested can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Spend on pot plants includes provision, maintenance and replacement of plants.

All expenditure was incurred in accordance with the principles of Managing Public Money and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

Departmental Public Relations

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what payments the British Transport Police has made to (a) Grayling Political Strategy and (b) Politics International in the last 12 months; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contracts under which such payments have been made. [305129]

Chris Mole: This is a matter for the British Transport Police who can be contacted at 25 Camden Road, London, NW1 9LN, e-mail:

parliament@btp.pnn.police.uk

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what payments Cycling England has made to Blue Rubicon in the last 12 months; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contract under which such payments have been made. [305130]

Mr. Khan: Blue Rubicon has been contracted through the Central Office of Information (COI) to provide public relations services to Cycling England. The agency delivers a programme of activity targeting consumers and engaging stakeholders with the aim of getting more people cycling, more safely, more often. A key focus of Blue Rubicon's work is the promotion of Bikeability cycle training for children (supporting the Government's goal of training an additional 500,000 children by 2012).

In the 12 months from November 2008 to October 2009, £493,177 was paid to Blue Rubicon in connection with the provision of such services. A further £432,985 was spent on external expenses (such as the supply of Bikeability badges) associated with the Cycling England campaign and procured through Blue Rubicon. In total, £926,162 was spent over the 12 months. During this period, the contract was retendered and refocused. As a result, the total value of work for the seven months from April to October 2009 was just over £321,000.

Blue Rubicon's contract is with the COI who have released a copy of the terms and conditions of the contract and their brief for the work. These have been placed in the Libraries.

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what payments the Civil Aviation Authority has made to (a) Waterfront Public Affairs and (b) AS Biss/Mandate Communications in the last 12 months; for what purpose; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the contracts under which such payments have been made. [305131]

Paul Clark: The Civil Aviation Authority (CAA) informs us that they have paid Waterfront Public Affairs a net amount of £96,019.80 in the last 12 months. This was for providing a public affairs and public relations consultancy service to the CAA. No payments have been made to AS Biss/Mandate Communications in the last 12 months. A copy of the Waterfront Public Affairs contract will be made available in the Libraries of the House.

Departmental Rail Travel

Mr. Hurd: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport with reference to the answer of 12 May 2009, Official Report, column 645W, on departmental rail travel, whether (a) his Department's travel policy and (b) the travel policy of his Department's agencies allows staff to make claims from the public purse for travel in first class rail carriages in circumstances on which there are no seats in standard class available. [305148]

Chris Mole: The travel policies of the central Department and of its agencies allow claims for first class travel in circumstances on which standard class seats are unavailable.

East Coast Railway Line: Rolling Stock

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what recent estimate he has made of the cost of refurbishing existing rolling stock on the East Coast Main Line to enable it to be used (a) up to and (b) beyond 2019. [301211]

Chris Mole: In order to provide a comparison with the costs of the new Super Express Trains, which will operate on the East Coast Main Line from 2014, the Department for Transport has prepared an estimate of the costs of the alternative: of continuing to operate the existing intercity rolling stock beyond that time. This includes the period leading up to as well as the period beyond 2019. Release of this comparator information at this stage would diminish the Department's commercial position in negotiations with the preferred bidder, Agility Trains. We therefore remain convinced of the value for money of replacing the old rolling stock with the new Super Express Train, especially in the context of an extensive electrification programme.

Road Salting and Gritting

Sarah Teather: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what guidance his Department has issued to local authorities on (a) contingency plans in the event of snow and (b) the stockpiling of road grit. [305562]

Mr. Khan: It is for each local authority to determine how best to set and deliver a winter service strategy for the highway network for which they are responsible. The Department for Transport has not issued formal guidance to local authorities on this, but endorses the UK Roads Liaison Group's (UKRLG) code of practice on highways maintenance management, "Well-maintained Highways", which includes guidance on winter service. The code is available free from:

www.ukroadsliaisongroup.org

Following the severe weather in February this year, the then Secretary of State commissioned the UK Roads Liaison Group to identify the lessons that should be learnt regarding highway authorities' preparedness for extreme weather events. I will respond to the UKRLG's report shortly.

Roads: Accidents

Sarah Teather: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport what estimate he has made of the number of road traffic accidents caused by partial parking on kerbs where the kerb is higher than four inches in the last 12 months. [305297]

Paul Clark: The information requested is not collected.

Transport: Expenditure

Hugh Bayley: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how much his Department spent per capita on transport (a) revenue and (b) capital schemes in (i) England, (ii) each Government region and (iii) the City of York Council area in each year since 1996-97. [304547]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Transport publishes estimates of its total expenditure on services per head by region and country in its annual report. These figures rest on a number of assumptions, for example about how total expenditure on strategic highways and rail should be attributed to different regions, and figures are not available below regional level. The report does not include the split between revenue and capital schemes.

However, a further analysis showing the breakdown between revenue and capital schemes per capita for the Department since its formation in May 2002 is provided in the following table:

Department for Transport revenue and capital expenditure per capita

| Region | CAP or CUR | 2002-03[1] | 2003-04 | 2004-05 | 2005-06 | 2006-07 | 2007-08 |

[1] The figures proved for 2002-03 are aggregate.

These figures do not include grant support provided by the Department to local authorities. Revenue support to authorities for transport is generally provided through the Revenue Support Grant. Amounts provided to York city council in these years are as follows:

Transport: Per Capita Costs

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport how much transport spending per person by (a) his Department and (b) its agencies there was on (i) light rail, (ii) heavy rail, (iii) bus and (iv) roads in (A) Yorkshire and Humber and (B) London in each year since 2005. [305767]

Mr. Khan: The Department for Transport publishes estimates of its total expenditure on services per head by region and country in its annual report. These figures rest on a number of assumptions, for example about how total expenditure on strategic highways and rail should be attributed to different regions.

These figures exclude grant to local authorities, including Greater London Authority Transport Grant, as this information is collated separately by the Department for Communities and Local Government, the Department for Children, Schools and Families, the Department for Work and Pensions and devolved Administrations.

The report does not provide a specific breakdown per capital for light rail, heavy rail, bus and roads.

To provide a detailed estimate of the figures on the basis sought would incur disproportionate cost.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Andrew Selous: To ask the Minister of State, Department for Transport when he will respond to question 301331, tabled by the hon. Member for South West Bedfordshire on 19 November 2009, on departmental working practices. [305878]

Chris Mole: A reply was sent to the hon. Member on 9 December 2009.

PRIME MINISTER

Departmental Security

Mr. Heald: To ask the Prime Minister how many security passes his Department has issued to contractors providing consultancy services in the last 12 months. [303940]

The Prime Minister: It has been the practice of successive Governments not to comment on security matters.

Dept for Business, Innovation and Skills

Mr. Sanders: To ask the Prime Minister what assessment he has made of the (a) advantages and (b) disadvantages of the merger of the Departments for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and Innovation, Universities and Skills. [303932]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the machinery of government press notice issued by my Office. Copies are available in the Library of the House and are also available on the No. 10 website at:

http://www.number10.gov.uk/Page19525

Iraq Committee of Inquiry: Disclosure of Information

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Prime Minister what protocols have been agreed between the Government and the Iraq Inquiry on the disclosure and publication of documents provided to the Committee. [304131]

Tessa Jowell: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Gentleman to the Cabinet Office press release of 29 October publishing the information sharing protocol the Government have agreed with the Iraq Inquiry. This is the only protocol agreed between the Government and the Inquiry.

Members: Surveillance

Norman Baker: To ask the Prime Minister pursuant to the answer of 30 November 2009, Official Report, column 366W, on Members: surveillance, if he will provide the information requested in respect of unreported interceptions since 1975. [304285]

The Prime Minister: I have nothing further to add to the answer I gave on 30 November 2009.

Trinidad and Tobago: Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister what (a) discussions he had and (b) conclusions were reached at the Commonwealth Heads of Government meeting in Trinidad and Tobago in 2009. [304527]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to my written ministerial statement of 30 November 2009, Official Report, column 113WS.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Bangladesh: Climate Change

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance his Department is providing to Bangladesh to help combat the effect of climate change; and if he will make a statement. [305288]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) works closely with the Government of Bangladesh (GoB) on climate change issues. DFID:

Assisted the GoB in developing a national Climate Change Strategy and Action Plan and provided £60 million to help implement them.

Provided more than £6 million since 2004 to support disaster preparedness in the regions of Bangladesh most vulnerable to severe climate shocks. We are providing a further £12 million to support this work over the next five year, covering a wider area. This programme is implemented by UNDP and co-financed by the European Union. It is also part of Bangladesh's Climate Change Strategy.

Is providing £690,000 to research institutions and universities in Bangladesh to increase national capacity to assess the impacts of climate change and improve Bangladesh's climate adaptation strategy and activities.

Is building the country's resilience to climate change through improved governance, health, education and job opportunities.

Bangladesh: International Assistance

Anne Main: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance his Department is providing to Bangladesh for the construction of cyclone defences following Cyclone Sidr in 2007. [305290]

Mr. Thomas: The UK provided around £20 million in response to three natural disasters in 2007, including Cyclone Sidr. Approximately £2 million has been used to repair damaged coastal defences and build shelter homes in areas affected by Cyclone Sidr.

The World Bank has launched a special project called the Emergency Cyclone Recovery and Restoration Project (ECRP). This is a £138 million (US $226 million) project of which £19 million (US$ 30 million) has been specifically allocated to repair the embankments damaged by Cyclone Sidr. The UK has contributed £19.6 million to this project through our support to the World Bank International Development Association 15 fund.

Departmental Telephone Services

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many telephone lines with the prefix (a) 0870, (b) 0845 and (c) 0800 his Department (i) operates and (ii) sponsors; how many calls were received to each number in the last 12 months; and whether alternative numbers charged at the BT local rate are available in each case. [305214]

Mr. Michael Foster: The Department for International Development (DFID) has one telephone number with the prefix 0845. This is used by the Department's Public Enquiry Point in our office in Scotland. DFID pay a fixed annual fee for this telephone line which includes rental and all outgoing call charges. This line is managed via the Governments Management Telecoms Service and DFID does not receive any payment for calls made to this number. Calls to this number are charged at the local rate.

DFID does not keep a record of calls made to the 0845 number, this information would need to be specifically requested from our supplier.

DFID do not have any telephone lines with the prefix 0800 or 0870.

HEALTH

Autism: Health Services

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent research into cerebral inhibition soothing behaviours and the compromised capacity of persons who are autistic undertaken by autism spectrum experts his Department has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated; and if he will make a statement. [305721]

Gillian Merron: Neither the Department nor the Medical Research Council (MRC) is currently supporting or evaluating research relating to cerebral inhibition soothing behaviours and the compromised capacity of persons who are autistic. Both fund a portfolio of other research relating to autism on which the MRC, for example, spent over £2.4 million in 2008-09.

Christmas

Mr. Hutt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department budgeted for Christmas trees in 2009. [306147]

Phil Hope: The Department has budgeted for £3,250 for Christmas trees in 2009.

Departmental Finance

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 17 of the Explanatory Notes for the Personal Care at Home Bill, which budgets within his Department will fund the Department's £420 million contribution in (a) 2010-11, (b) 2011-12 and (c) 2012-13; and by how much in each case. [306014]

Phil Hope: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 8 December 2009, Official Report, column 296W, to the hon. Member for Boston and Skegness (Mark Simmonds).

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has allocated to the Aiming Higher for Disabled Children programme in (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11. [305293]

Phil Hope: The 2009 Child Health Strategy, 'Healthy lives, brighter futures', confirmed that £340 million was included in primary care trust (PCT) baseline allocations by the Department of Health for disabled children for the period 2008-09 to 2010-11, to support the implementation of the Aiming High for Disabled Children programme and the children's palliative care strategy, 'Better Care: Better Lives'. This figure includes £30 million to deliver the priorities for children's palliative care. Neither the programme nor the strategy broke down the funding by year. It is for PCTs to determine how best to use this funding based on local needs.

Copies of both documents have already been placed in the Library.

Mental Capacity Act 2005

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Health on how many occasions the Mental Capacity Act 2005 has been invoked in order to modify the situation pertaining to someone with disability in order to maximise their individual capacity; and if he will make a statement. [305722]

Phil Hope: This information is not collected.

Mental Health Services

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the level of implementation of the National Service Framework for mental health; and if he will make a statement. [305913]

Phil Hope: No recent assessment has been made of the level of implementation of the National Service Framework (NSF). However, we know that the NSF has led to an impressive range of policy initiatives in a previously neglected area of service provision. We have seen many benefits for people who use mental health services in the form of more money, with real terms investment in adult mental health services increasing by 44 per cent. (or £1.7 billion), since 2001-02. We also know that more patients have been helped, with crisis resolution teams providing over 106,000 home treatments to patients in the year 2007-08.

Further, because of the NSF the national health service now has 64 per cent. more consultant psychiatrists, 71 per cent. more clinical psychologists and 21 per cent. more mental health nurses than it had in 1997, and over 740 new community mental health teams offering home treatment, early intervention, or intensive support for people who might otherwise have been admitted to hospital.

Mental Health Services: Finance

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding has been allocated to the provision of cognitive behavioural therapy in each primary care trust in each of the last five years. [305483]

Phil Hope: The Improving Access to Psychological Therapies (IAPT) programme's principal ai[illegible] to support primary care trusts (PCTs) in implemen[illegible] National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellen[illegible] guidelines for people suffering from depression and anxiety disorders.

To date, IAPT has focused solely on the provision of cognitive behavioural therapy (CBT). IAPT has allocated funds centrally to the national health service in each of the last two years, rather than directly and individually to each PCT.

This centrally allocated money has seen £33 million allocated in 2008-09, with 35 IAPT services established. A further £70 million (to a total of £103 million) has been centrally allocated in 2009-10, with 115 IAPT services established. In 2010-11, a further £70 million (to a total of £173 million) will be allocated.

The expansion of sites are part of a phased roll-out and services will be beginning to be implemented in every PCT by 2011 and the NHS is committed to delivering universal coverage in the period after 2011. Prior to the start of the IAPT programme in 2008, CBT provision was not funded through centrally allocated money. Information about spending on CBT prior to 2008-09 is not collected by the Department but is held by PCTs.

Neuroblastoma

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy that monoclonal antibody therapy is available to NHS patients diagnosed with neuroblastoma. [305803]

Ann Keen: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has not issued any guidance on monoclonal antibody therapy for the treatment of neuroblastoma.

In the absence of NICE guidance, it is a matter for local national health service organisations to decide whether to fund a particular drug or treatment. The NHS Constitution gives patients the right to expect local funding decisions on the availability of drugs and treatments to be made rationally following consideration of the available evidence.

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his estimate is of the number of children who have neuroblastoma. [305804]

Ann Keen: Information on the number of patients with neuroblastoma (prevalence) is not held centrally, nor has any estimate been made.

However, the following table shows the number of children and young people aged 19 and under diagnosed with an unspecified adrenal gland cancer, which could include neuroblastoma, during 2007. This is the latest year for which incidence data are available.

Registrations of newly diagnosed cases of adrenal gland, unspecified cancer[1], in persons aged 19 years and under by age group in England[2] during 2007[3]

| Age of person diagnosed (years) | Number of cancers diagnosed |
|---|---|
| Less than 1 | 7 |
| 1-4 | 19 |
| 5-9 | 5 |
| 10-14 | 0 |
| 15-19 | [4] |

[1] Adrenal gland, unspecified cancer (including neuroblastoma) is coded as C74.9 in the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10).

[2] Based on boundaries as of 2009.

[3] Newly diagnosed cases registered in 2007.

[4] For young people aged 15-19, the reported incidence levels indicate less than three individuals. Due to this small cell count, the data have been suppressed to avoid the risk of disclosure.

Office for National Statistics

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much the Government have allocated to research to find a cure for neuroblastoma. [305805]

Gillian Merron: The Department's National Institute for Health Research is undertaking translational research specifically concerned with neuroblastoma at two of its Biomedical Research Centres; and via its national cancer research network is currently supporting some nine studies into the condition. The Department has additionally invested over £1 million in experimental cancer medicine centres specifically to support early-phase clinical trials for children with cancer, including trials for children with neuroblastoma. It is not possible to disaggregate the cost of these research activities.

Social Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will publish the economic modelling used for the Shaping the Future of Care Together consultation. [305697]

Phil Hope: The Department is working towards publishing a White Paper on care and support in early 2010. They have been working with the Personal Social Services Research Unit (PSSRU) to provide the modelling and analysis to underpin our policy development. We were provided with an interim report from PSSRU in November but that report was based on a view of the system when the Green Paper was published. Our core modelling assumptions have changed quite significantly since then as a result of our stakeholder engagement, responses to our consultation and developments such as the Prime Minister's announcement on free personal care. The report is therefore only part of the story and we have come to the conclusion that to publish it now could be unhelpful to the wider debate on the future of care and support.

PSSRU continue to model the costs and benefits of a new National Care Service based on revised assumptions.

The whole methodology of the interim report was published in July on the PSSRU's website at:

www.pssru.ac.uk/pdf/dp2644.pdf

The top level costs and benefits are in the impact assessment published with the Green Paper and available on the Big Care Debate website at:

http://careandsupport.direct.gov.uk/greenpaper/the-green-paper-and-supporting-documents/

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent consideration he has given to raising the charges for lower levels of need in order to subsidise free personal care at the critical level. [305740]

Phil Hope: Setting charges for social care is a matter for local authorities. Free personal care will be funded by an additional £420 million from central Government and £250 million from local government efficiency savings.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to paragraph 5.14 of the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill; what assessment he has made of the likely effect on small businesses in the care sector if individuals and local authorities do not use money that would have been spent on personal care for other purchases. [305742]

Phil Hope: The impact assessment published alongside the current consultation document, "Personal Care at Home: a consultation on proposals for regulations and guidance", sets out the current considerations on the impact on small firms. Both documents have already been placed in the Library.

The consultation will close on 23 February 2010 and a response to the document will be published subsequently. We will also be undertaking direct stakeholder engagement alongside the consultation process and this will be considered as part of this.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons the purposes set out for the Personal Care at Home Bill vary between page two of the impact assessment, paragraph 7.2 of the impact assessment and the human rights section of the relevant explanatory note. [305751]

Phil Hope: The different sections of text referred to are intended to detail differing aspects of the Personal Care at Home Bill. Therefore, differing explanations are required to appropriately define each section of the text. There are no inconsistencies between them.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the impact assessment for the Personal Care at Home Bill, what recent assessment he has made of the risk of catastrophic costs being incurred. [305976]

Phil Hope: Paragraph 5.6 of the impact assessment recognises that the costs of meeting personal care needs will be greater for individuals in higher need and that, if these costs are incurred over an extended period of time, they may sum to a significant and in some cases catastrophic, amount.

It is this risk, which cannot be well insured against in the current market, that the Personal Care at Home Bill is seeking to reduce for individuals in highest need.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he had with Ministerial colleagues in respect of the formulation of his policy on the provision of free personal care at home. [305977]

Phil Hope: In formulating policy proposals as part of the Personal Care at Home Bill, there were appropriate ministerial level discussions and clearances.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment his Department has made of the likely effect of future demographic changes on the provision of free personal care; and if he will make a statement; [306151]

(2) what models his Department has commissioned to assess the future provision of free personal care for those people with the highest needs; and if he will make a statement. [306154]

Phil Hope: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave to the hon. Member for Eddisbury (Mr. O'Brien) on 7 December 2009, Official Report, column 166W.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment his Department has made of the geographical distribution of the provision of free personal care; and if he will make a statement. [306152]

Phil Hope: I refer the hon. Member to the replies I gave to the hon. Member for Eddisbury (Mr. O'Brien) on 8 December 2009, Official Report, column 294W.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how his Department defines eligibility in relation to the provision of free personal care; and if he will make a statement. [306153]

Phil Hope: Eligibility in relation to the provision of free personal care is set out in the consultation document, "Personal Care at Home: a consultation on proposals for regulations and guidance" and comments are invited. The consultation will close on 23 February 2010 and will inform the drafting of regulations which will define the scheme.

The consultation document has already been placed in the Library.

ENERGY AND CLIMATE CHANGE

Christmas

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many Christmas trees were purchased by his Department in each year since its establishment; what the cost was of those trees in each year; from where the trees were sourced; what account was taken of the sustainability of the sources of the trees; and by what process the trees were disposed of. [305644]

Joan Ruddock: The Department has purchased no Christmas trees.

Climate Change

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many (a) Ministers and (b) officials from his Department attended the Copenhagen Climate Change Summit; what methods of transport each used to travel (a) to and (b) from the Summit; and whether he has applied carbon offsets to carbon footprint of the collective travel of the UK delegation to the Summit. [305847]

Joan Ruddock: Two Ministers and 38 officials from the Department of Energy and Climate Change are in Copenhagen, or will be shortly arriving in Copenhagen, to attend the UNFCCC summit on Climate Change. Seven delegates travelled by rail, 28 by plane, and five have yet to determine their method of travel. All of DECC's travel emissions are offset.

Departmental Electronic Equipment

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change how many plasma screen televisions his Department has purchased since its inception; and what the cost has been of purchasing and installing such screens. [306086]

Joan Ruddock: The Department has purchased no plasma screen televisions.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what the cost was of his Department's 1st Anniversary Stakeholder Reception held on 12 October 2009. [303405]

Joan Ruddock: The cost of the 12 October 2009 DECC 1st anniversary party was £21,937.71 +VAT.

Departmental Publications

Paul Flynn: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what steps he has taken to (a) inform interested parties of and (b) distribute his Department's publication The arrangements for the management and disposal of waste from new nuclear power stations: a summary of evidence; and how many copies of the document have been printed. [304416]

Mr. Kidney: The Planning Act 2008 requires the Government to consult the public and stakeholders on the National Policy Statements (NPSs) before they can be designated. The waste assessment summary evidence paper is part of a suite of documents supporting the draft Nuclear NPS, which is currently subject to a wide ranging national consultation lasting 15 weeks. As part of this programme the Government have corresponded with statutory consultees, have set up a dedicated NPS website and are conducting national and local engagement events targeting key stakeholders and members of the public. These have been widely advertised through print, broadcast and online media, as well as by generating PR coverage and targeted communications including leaflets and an email campaign.

The waste assessment summary evidence paper has not been printed in large quantities The document is available on the NPS consultation website for viewing or download, and DECC has so far printed over 100 copies from this source and made them available at local exhibition events.

Departmental Taxis

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what contracts his Department has with private hire taxi companies; and what expenditure his Department has incurred against each such contract in each year since his Department was established. [300842]

Joan Ruddock: The Department has no contracts with private hire taxi companies.

Industrial Diseases: Compensation

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what hospitality officials in his Department and its predecessors with responsibility for the two miners' compensation schemes have received from Capita Group plc since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [302087]

Mr. Kidney: Capita became the Department's claims handling contractor in 2004. Information held by the Department on hospitality received since 2004 related to officials in the Coal Liability Unit (CLU) is provided in the following table:

Hospitality received by officials responsible for the Coal Health Schemes

| Date received | Section | Staff by grade | Hospitality received | Total value (£) |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| October 2005 | CLU | SCS plus staff below SCS (x 3) | Dinner | 120.00 |
| 23 June 2006 | CLU | SCS | Lunch | 10.00 |
| 26 July 2006 | CLU | SCS plus staff below SCS (x 1) | Dinner | 45.00 |
| August 2006 | CLU | SCS | Dinner | 25.00 |
| 29 March 2007 | CLU | SCS | Lunch | 10.00 |
| 18 September 2007 | CLU | SCS plus staff below SCS (x 1) | Lunch and dinner | 50.00 |
| 13 December 2007 | CLU | Staff below SCS (x 3) | Lunch | 90.00 |
| 30 July 2008 | CLU | Staff below SCS (x 3) | Lunch | 90.00 |
| 22 September 2008 | CLU | Staff below SCS | Meal | 20.00 |
| 22 July 2009 | CLU | Staff below SCS | Dinner | 25.00 |

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change whether Capita Group plc receives a financial benefit from reducing (a) the total money paid out and (b) the amount of money paid to individual claimants under each of the two miners' compensation schemes. [302089]

Mr. Kidney: I can confirm that there is no financial benefit to Capita in respect to (a) or (b) under the Department's contractual arrangements for claims handling for the vibration white finger and respiratory disease schemes.

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what evaluation his Department has made of the effectiveness for claimants of the Coal Health Compensation Scheme. [304683]

Mr. Kidney: The Coal Health Compensation Schemes have been closely scrutinised by a range of reviews including the Boys Smith Review conducted in 2005 for the then Minister for Energy, my right hon. Friend the Member for Croydon, North (Malcolm Wicks); the Trade and Industry Select Committee Review in 2005; and the National Audit Office report in 2007 on the schemes and the subsequent Public Accounts Committee hearing in 2007 and Committee's Report in 2008.

I am proud that we are now moving towards the conclusion of these schemes under my ministerial 'watch'. We believe these are the biggest personal injury schemes in British legal history. They are complex schemes that were set up in agreement between the Department and the miners' solicitors' representatives following the original judgments in the 1990's and then endorsed by the High Court. This ensured that miners and their families received the level of compensation to which they might reasonably have been entitled had they pursed their claim in common law.

I believe that objective has been achieved as we now draw near to the completion of the vibration white finger (VWF) and respiratory disease schemes. In all almost 760,000 miners' claims have been processed and compensation now totalling £4.1 billion has been paid out.

The VWF litigation was wound up in the High Court on 1 May 2009 following the completion of processing nearly all the 170,000 claims. There are now fewer than 10 VWF general damages and 20 special damages scheme claims left to settle. There are also a small number of claims involving individual mediations or court actions to be concluded. For the respiratory scheme where we had nearly 590,000 claims there are now less than 2,000 active claims left to be settled and we are on track to achieving settlement of the majority of these by mid 2010.

However, it has not all been plain sailing. Clearly we have all learnt lessons from the operation of these schemes.

One of the key issues remains the conduct of solicitors in making deductions from compensation. I continue to hold regular meetings with the Legal Complaints Service (LCS) and Solicitors Regulatory Authority (SRA) and I know that this work remains an important focus for both organisations. I welcome recent developments both in terms of action taken against individual firms of solicitors and actions being taken by solicitors to offer repayment of deductions. I would urge firms that have not taken such actions to co-operate with the LCS.

I also recognise that despite the scale of these schemes it has taken too long for some claimants to receive the compensation they were entitled too. I apologise to those people who have had to wait so long. The key lesson here is about making sure information required to process claims is obtained at an early stage and the use of tight and binding timescales for all parties to manage the claims to be settlement. The successful fast track risk offer scheme has also demonstrated how claims can be settled more rapidly for some claimants.

In overall terms, I believe settling the claims has been a major achievement for this Government delivering over £4.1 billion in compensation to miners and their families. I would also like to pay tribute to those that have contributed to delivery of the schemes on behalf of the Department.

Nuclear Power

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change what assessment he has made of the merits of including in his Department's report, Appraisal of sustainability of the draft national nuclear policy statement: main report, published on 9 November 2009, an appraisal relating to the uranium mined for the nuclear fuel used in new reactors. [305241]

Mr. Kidney: The Appraisal of Sustainability is intended to assess the environmental and sustainability impacts of the draft Nuclear National Policy Statement and therefore focuses on those impacts which arise from the draft Nuclear National Policy Statement itself. The draft Nuclear National Policy Statement provides guidance to the Infrastructure Planning Commission on the construction and operation of new nuclear power stations. It does not cover mining or milling of uranium.

The Government have previously considered the environmental impacts of uranium mining and milling as part of the 2007 consultation on nuclear power. The Government published their response in the Nuclear White Paper in January 2008. In the Nuclear White Paper, the Government set out that conventional uranium mining do not differ significantly from mining of other metalliferous ores or coal for other types of power stations. Furthermore, an increasing proportion of the world's uranium now comes from in-situ leaching. This is a process that does not require the ore to be mined and generates much less waste, though it can have a negative impact on the water table and is not suitable for all types of uranium deposits. There are established environmental constraints, such as the regulations governing uranium mining in Australia which cover, among other things, environmental protection and the requirement to meet environmental approvals before mining proceeds. Additionally, most uranium mining companies in Australia and Canada, which supply much of the world's uranium, have achieved certification from the International Organisation for Standardisation. This body sets the standard for, and undertakes audits of, environmental management systems. These environmental constraints minimise the environmental impacts of mining operations.

The consultation on my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State's proposed decisions on the regulatory justification of new nuclear power station designs, copies of which have been placed in the Library of the House and are available at:

www.decc.gov.uk/en/content/cms/consultations/reg_just_cons/reg_just_cons.aspx

also covers this issue. In the consultation, my right hon. Friend explains that he considers that he is not bound to take practices outside the UK into account in making a regulatory justification decision but he has none the less considered the issue in view of fact that various respondents to the previous consultation on the regulatory justification process had raised concerns about the issue.

Renewable Energy: Heating

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Energy and Climate Change when he will be consulting on the Renewable Heat Incentive. [306003]

Mr. Kidney: We aim to publish the consultation on the renewable heat incentive (RHI) in January 2010. We had previously intended to publish the consultation by the end of 2009, however, we now plan to publish in January.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs

Mike Wood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will publish a Government response to future recommendations from the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs; [306009]

(2) what factors he takes into consideration when assessing recommendations from the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs; [306010]

(3) on what basis he rejected the recommendation of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs that cannabis should remain a class C drug. [306011]

Mr. Alan Campbell: As my right hon. Friend the former Home Secretary, Member for Redditch (Jacqui Smith), advised in her statement to the House on 7 May 2008, Official Report, column 705, the reclassification of cannabis as a Class B drug against the advice of the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD) was based on a number of factors, including but not limited to scientific evidence. Reclassification on 26 January 2009 is a preventative measure to protect the public, particularly the future health of young people.

The Government's Reply to the Fifth Report from the House of Commons Science and Technology Committee Session 2005-06 HC 1031 Drug classification: making a hash of it? can be found at:

http://www.official-documents.gov.uk/document/cm69/6941/6941.pdf

sets out the factors, including the ACMD's recommendations, that are considered in relation to drug classification decisions.

The Government have published and will continue to publish responses to the recommendations in the reports of Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs.

Alcoholic Drinks: Crime

Andrew Stunell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what his most recent estimate is of the cost to his Department of crime caused by alcohol misuse in each region in the last five years. [305399]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has estimated the cost of alcohol-related crime and disorder in England and Wales in 2007-08 as between £8-£13 billion per year. We are unable to break down this estimate by region.

Anabolic Steroids

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) cautioned, (b) arrested, (c) charged and (d) convicted of offences related to the (i) possession and (ii) supply of anabolic steroids in each year since 2005. [304997]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information from the court proceedings database held by the Ministry of Justice, showing the number of defendants cautioned, proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for offences relating to the possession and supply of anabolic steroids in England and Wales, 2005-07 (latest available) can be viewed in the following table.

The Ministry of Justice do not collect charging data; proceeded against information has been provided in lieu.

Data for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

The arrests collection held by the Home Office covers arrests for recorded crime (notifiable offences) only, broken down at a main offence group level, covering categories such as violence against the person and robbery. It is not possible to separate data on arrests related to the possession and supply of anabolic steroids from within these offence groups.

i. Supplying or offering to supply (or being concerned in supplying or offering to supply) a controlled drug: Anabolic Steroids Statute: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971, section 4(3)

ii. Having possession of a controlled drug: Anabolic Steroids Statute: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971, section 5(2)

iii. Having possession of a controlled drug with intent to supply: Anabolic Steroids Statute: Misuse of Drugs Act 1971, section 5(3).

[2] The cautions statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been cautioned for two or more offences at the same time, the principal offence is the more serious offence.

[3] From 1 June 2000, the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 came into force nationally and removed the use of cautions for persons under 18 and replaced them with reprimands and final warnings. These figures have been included in the totals.

[4] The court statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[5] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Children: Abuse

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what proportion of his Department's budget was allocated to tackling child abuse and the viewing of images of child abuse online in each of the last five years. [304639]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government set up the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre (CEOP) in 2006 to help protect children online. They have tackled both those who abuse children and those who are trading in images of such abuse. Since 2006 the Government have provided funding for the Centre as follows.

| | £ million |
|---|---|
| 2006-07 | 5.360 |
| 2007-08 | 5.657 |
| 2008-09 | 6.270 |
| 2009-10 | 6.353 |

In addition, chief constables have their normal policing budget which they are able to use on the priorities for their forces. Any decision on funding or staffing for child protection activity is a matter for the chief constables for their area.

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what further work he plans to undertake on the relationship between viewing images of child abuse online and child abuse. [304719]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government's efforts on the relationship between viewing images of child abuse online and child abuse focus on the training courses provided by the Child Exploitation and Online Protection (CEOP) Centre for child protection professionals. These courses are designed to do two things. Firstly, to help delegates better understand the nature of sexual offending and secondly to impart the skills and knowledge that can better equip professionals to deal with the difficult and distressing nature of this crime. Many of CEOP's training courses are based on material gathered during investigations, and case studies of sex offenders interviewed by CEOP's dedicated Behavioural Analysis Unit (BAU). The relationship between the use of images and contact offending is a key thread that runs through all of their project areas and something that is considered in all of the interviews that the BAU conduct with offenders.

Crime and Disorder Act 1988

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been convicted of an offence under section 9(7) of the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 in each of the last five years. [301797]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information is provided by the Ministry of Justice on how many people have been convicted of an offence under section 9(7) of the Crime and Disorder Act 1998 in each of the last five years.

Information showing the number of persons proven at court to have breached a parenting order from 2003 to 2007 (latest available) can be viewed in the following table.

Data for 2008 are planned for publication on 28 January 2010.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Number of defendants proven at court to have breached a parenting order, under Section 9(7) of the Crime and Disorder Act 1998, from 2003 to 2007[1]

| | Number of defendants |
|---|---|
| 2003 | 11 |
| 2004 | 20 |
| 2005 | 22 |
| 2006 | 25 |

Crimes of Violence: Females

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to his Department's Together we can end violence against women and girls strategy, from what budget the £5 million to be allocated to (a) independent domestic violence advocacy services, (b) sexual assault referral centres, (c) multi-agency risk assessment conferences and (d) local non-statutory support services for rape victims in 2010-11 will be drawn; whether the level of funding to other services funded from that budget will be changed as a consequence; and what plans his Department has for the level of such funding after 2010-11. [305312]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Government's strategy: Together We Can End Violence Against Women and Girls committed the Government to a continuing investment of over £5 million in 2010-11 in independent domestic violence advisers (IDVAs) and the further roll-out of multi-agency risk assessment conferences (MARACs). This will be sourced from both Home Office and Ministry of Justice budgets. The Home Office budget has funded IDVAs and MARACs since 2008-09 and these have always been key initiatives.

Funding for Sexual Assault Referral Centres (SARCs) comes from the Department of Health and Home Office. Funding for local non-statutory support services for rape victims (Rape Crisis and Survivors Trust) from the Ministry of Justice Victim's Fund and from the Government Equalities Office.

Levels of funding to other services for violence against women and girls have not been affected as a result of these allocations which continue and expand on resources committed to the same priorities in 2009-10.

The strategy commits the Government to prioritising investment in these specialist services after 2010-11.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to his Department's Together we can end violence against women and girls strategy, how much his Department plans to spend on (a) Connexions and other services working with schools to ensure they assist victims, (b) establishing a stalking and harassment helpline, (c) developing a sexual violence helpline and (d) meeting the Government's compact with the voluntary sector by moving to three-year funding arrangements in (i) 2009-10, (ii) 2010-11 and (iii) each of the subsequent three years; and from what budgets such funding will be drawn. [305314]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The cross-Government strategy Together We Can End Violence Against Women and Girls was launched on 25 November 2009.

(a) The role of Connexions and other services working with schools in tackling Violence Against Women and Girls will be informed by the Early Interventions Consultation which the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) will be launching in December 2009.

(b) The Stalking and Harassment helpline will be run in partnership by the three main charities who work in this area: the Suzy Lamplugh Trust, Network for Surviving Stalking and Protection Against Stalking. The Home Office has awarded the partnership £47,470 for the 2009-10 financial year. This will cover initial set up of the helpline, staff and recruitment costs and the development of a multi-media website with personal safety advice and information. Funding for 2010-11 has been guaranteed by additional partnership funding.

(c) Plans for a new sexual violence helpline, including levels of investment, will be agreed in 2010 by a cross-departmental delivery board which will have oversight on delivery of all actions in the strategy.

(d) Officials across Government are working together to consider what more we can do to address the sustainability of the violence against women third sector. This will include looking at how the commissioning of voluntary services can be made Compact compliant.

Crimes of Violence: Knives

Mr. Gerrard: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences of (a) wounding or grievous bodily harm, (b) assault with injury and (c) robbery there were involving a knife in each month since May 1997. [304304]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Home Office has collected data on knife and sharp instrument offences since April 2007 via a special additional data collection, so it is not possible to give data back to May 1997.

Data are published annually. 2007-08 and 2008-09 data can be found in tables 7.11 and 7.12 of the Home Office Statistical Bulletin "Crime in England and Wales 2008/09" at the following link.

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/crimeew0809.html

Crimes of Violence: Retail Trade

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) cautions, (b) penalty notices for disorder and (c) convictions resulted from incidents of violence against retail staff in (i) North Yorkshire, (ii) Lancashire, (iii) London and (iv) England in each of the last three years. [305305]

Claire Ward: I have been asked to reply.

Information held centrally by the Ministry of Justice on cautions and court proceedings does not identify the employment status of a victim of an offence other than where specified in the statute. Therefore outcomes of violence against retail staff cannot be separately identified from other offences of assault and violence against the person.

Penalty notices for disorder are not available for violent offences or when injury has been caused. They are only intended to be used for certain low level antisocial behaviour and public order offences.

Crimes of Violence: Taxis

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many violent crimes were committed against taxi drivers in each region in each of the last two years. [305006]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Information is not available centrally on the number violent crimes committed against taxi drivers.

DNA: Databases

Daniel Kawczynski: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) with reference to the written ministerial statement of 11 November 2009, Official Report, columns 25-28WS, on DNA and fingerprint retention, whether those stopped and searched under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 will have their DNA retained; [301933]

(2) how many people stopped and searched under Section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 have a record on the National DNA Database. [304024]

Mr. Hanson: The stop and search powers under section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 do not include a power to take a DNA sample (or fingerprints) from a person.

However, if a person is arrested following a search under section 44, samples and fingerprints may be taken and will be retained. The relevant retention arrangements will then apply.

No figure is available in relation to the number of people initially stopped and searched under section 44, whose DNA has been retained because of a subsequent arrest. Profiles held on the national DNA database do not include the relevant legislation a person was arrested under, it only has the relevant police national computer (PNC) reference where this information would be held.

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if he will bring forward proposals to amend the National DNA Database to take account of the recent ruling of the European Court of Human Rights; and if he will make a statement. [305171]

Mr. Alan Campbell: My right hon. Friend the Home Secretary set out the Government's proposals for implementing the judgment of the European Court of Human Rights in the case of S and Marper in a written ministerial statement on 11 November 2009, Official Report, column 25WS. Legislation to give effect to these proposals is set out in the Crime and Security Bill, introduced on 19 November 2009.

Domestic Violence

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment has been made of the merits of systems to enable anonymous reporting of domestic abuse. [304222]

Mr. Alan Campbell: There has not been a Government assessment of systems to enable anonymous reporting of domestic abuse.

The Government expect all incidents of domestic violence to be taken seriously, however, they are reported. The implementation of specialist domestic violence courts and independent domestic violence advisers demonstrates that the Government are committed to ensuring that victims are supported throughout their engagement with the criminal and civil justice system.

Paul Holmes: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate his Department has made of the cost of full implementation of all of proposals of his Department's Together we can end violence against women and girls strategy. [305410]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The cross-Government strategy "Together We Can End Violence Against Women and Girls" was launched on 25 November 2009.

A comprehensive new burdens assessment will be published shortly.

EU Law

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what (a) statutory instruments and (b) other regulations his Department has brought forward to meet obligations arising from EU law in this parliament. [304178]

Mr. Hanson: Central records of statutory instruments made under specific powers have only been maintained by the Statutory Instruments Registrar since 2001. There are no central records maintained of "other regulations". Since that time the Home Office has made 33 statutory instruments to meet obligations arising from EU law, under powers contained in the European Communities Act 1972.

Homophobia: Crime

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps his Department is taking to reduce numbers of crimes of violence with a homophobic motive in the North West. [304221]

Mr. Alan Campbell: In September 2009 we launched the Cross-Government Hate Crime Action Plan which contains a number of action points designed to reduce numbers of crimes of violence across all five hate crime strands, including sexual orientation. In particular, it commits the Home Office to produce guidance for Crime and Disorder Partnerships on preventing and responding to hate incidents and hate crimes.

There is also a range of activity taking place in the North West to combat hate crime targeted at lesbian, gay and bisexual individuals. For example, bar owners and door staff in and around the gay quarter of Liverpool have recently received hate crime awareness-raising training. Further, Liverpool's Hate Crime Reduction Forum which brings stakeholders together from across Liverpool to address all strands of hate crime, funded the As One programme which was an educational awareness programme focused on youth centres in the Kensington area encompassing antisocial behaviour and diversity awareness.

Independent Police Complaints Commission

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will bring forward proposals to require the Independent Police Complaints Commission to inform his Department of the number of recommendations made by the Commission which have been (a) rejected and (b) implemented by the police force to which they are addressed; and if he will make a statement; [306101]

(2) how long on average police authorities have taken to make a response to recommendations of the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) in each of the last three years; what recent discussions he has had with (a) the IPCC and (b) police authorities on this issue; and if he will make a statement; [306102]

(3) if he will bring forward proposals to require individual police forces to (a) accept, (b) respond to and (c) implement in full recommendations made by the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC); and what (i) representations he has received from and (ii) discussions he has had with (A) police forces, (B) the IPCC and (C) members of the public on this issue in the last 12 months; [306103]

(4) if he will bring forward proposals to monitor the responses of police forces to the findings of the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) which affect them; what recent discussions he has had with the IPCC on this issue; and if he will make a statement. [306104]

Mr. Hanson: One of the functions of the police complaints system is to ensure that lessons are learned so that the service the public receives can be improved. The recommendations made by the IPCC are an important element in that improvement process.

The Public Accounts Committee's Fifteenth Report on the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC), published in March 2009, recommended that the Home Office clarify who is responsible for monitoring the implementation of IPCC recommendations made to police forces following an IPCC investigation.

The Home Office is considering with the IPCC, Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary, Association of Police Authorities and the Association of Chief Police Officers the implementation of a suitable system for monitoring the implementation of IPCC recommendations, both at national and local level. We aim to have arrangements in place by spring 2010.

The specific information sought by the hon. Member is not collected by the Home Office.

Mephedrone

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment he has made of the likely effects on health of the use of mephedrone as a recreational drug; what advice he has received from the Advisory Council for the Misuse of Drugs on mephodrone; and if he will make a statement. [302577]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Mephedrone (4-Methylmethcathinone) is a stimulant drug which is structurally related to cathinone and methcathinone, both of which are controlled substances under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971. The Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD) is currently considering the harms of Mephedrone and related cathinones compounds as a priority of its current review of so called 'legal highs', commissioned by the then Home Secretary earlier this year. The ACMD will report back early next year and their advice will inform our response to these substances. The Government's FRANK campaign provides information on Mephedrone with clear advice about its known harms provided by the Department of Health and our current 'legal highs' information campaign has included warnings about Mephedrone.

Mr. Watson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) if he will bring forward proposals to prohibit the possession and supply of the recreational drug mephedrone; [306021]

(2) what recent meetings he has had with the Advisory Council for the Misuse of Drugs to discuss the recreational drug mephedrone; and if he will make a statement. [306022]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Mephedrone (4-Methylmethcathinone) is a stimulant drug which is structurally related to cathinone and methcathinone, both of which are controlled substances under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971. I had not met the Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD) specifically on this issue as they are already considering the harms of Mephedrone and related cathinones compounds as a priority of its current review of so called 'legal highs', commissioned by the then Home Secretary earlier this year. It is a statutory requirement that the ACMD are consulted before bringing an Order under the 1971 Act before Parliament. The ACMD will report back early next year and their advice will inform our consideration of the control of mephedrone under the 1971 Act.

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what plans his Department has to classify mephedrone as a controlled substance under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971; and if he will make a statement; [306049]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the harm associated with the use of mephedrone; and if he will make a statement. [306050]

Mr. Alan Campbell: Mephedrone (4-methylmethcathinone) is a stimulant drug which is structurally related to cathinone and methcathinone, both of which are controlled substances under the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971. The Advisory Council on the Misuse of Drugs (ACMD), who we are required by statute to consult before bringing an order under the 1971 Act before Parliament, is currently considering the harms of mephedrone and related cathinones compounds as a priority of its current review of so called 'legal highs', commissioned by the then Home Secretary earlier this year. The ACMD will report back early next year and their advice will inform our consideration of the control of mephedrone under the 1971 Act. The Government's Frank campaign provides information on mephedrone with clear advice about its known harms provided by the Department of Health and our current 'legal highs' information campaign has included warnings about mephedrone.

Offences Against Children: Internet

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what mechanisms are in place for the sharing of information on online images of child abuse with the US authorities; and if he will make a statement. [304641]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The Internet Watch Foundation (IWF) is the reporting point for illegal images of child sexual abuse for the UK. When an image is reported, the IWF will notify the relevant INHOPE (the International Association of Internet Hotlines) Hotline in the country concerned, including in the United States, and will also inform the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre (CEOP). CEOP work closely with the Virtual Global Taskforce, and with the law enforcement agencies of other countries, to tackle such sites, and to arrest those responsible for them. CEOP works closely with the National Centre for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC) in the US.

Passports

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether a person with a complaint about a defective passport is entitled to speak to a manager at a local passport office. [305200]

Meg Hillier: We are always concerned to hear of any problem that our customers have and we look to provide a resolution as quickly as possible.

Customers who wish to lodge a complaint about any aspect of the services that the Identity and Passport Service (IPS) provides may do so via telephone, e-mail, letter, fax or in person at one of the seven regional passport offices. All IPS customer facing staff are fully trained in handling complaints, however, if unable to do so or if a customer specifically asks to see a manager, the public counter manager will make themselves available.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what mechanisms are in place to compensate those whose passport applications have been subject to (a) delays and (b) errors in processing. [305236]

Meg Hillier: In accordance with current Treasury and Cabinet Office guidance, which indicates that they do not consider it is appropriate to recompense for anything other than quantifiable loss and that payments for distress and inconvenience should only be made in exceptional circumstances. It is the Identity and Passport Service's (IPS) policy to reimburse the reasonable and actual out of pocket expenses incurred by customers as a direct consequence of operational errors or omissions by its staff by means of an ex-gratia payment. It is not our normal policy to pay compensation for distress or inconvenience arising from these errors.

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many passports issued in each of the last three years were replaced after being reported as damaged. [305239]

Meg Hillier: The recording of statistical data relating to faulty chips in passports began in January 2007 and, as at 31 October 2009, the Identity and Passport Service (IPS) has recorded a total of 389 passports returned by customers with suspected faulty chips. Records show that 14 of these were found not to be faulty and five chips had been damaged after dispatch by persons unknown.

Police

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent representations he has received on the reform of police authorities; and if he will make a statement. [305835]

Mr. Hanson: In the development of the White Paper: Protecting the Public: Supporting the Police to Succeed I sought views from all key policing stakeholders on the planned Government reforms of police authorities in England and Wales. I was also strongly influenced by the review carried out by my right hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield, Brightside (Mr. Blunkett).

Police: Essex

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the crime detection rate for Essex police force was in each year since 1996-97. [305832]

Mr. Alan Campbell: The information requested is given in the table.
